FLIGHT ANGELS: Virginia Bruce, Dennis Morgan, Ralph Bellamy, Jane Wyman, Wayne Morris—An aviation picture that should more than please your box office with the draw. Morris finally came down and did his share of work to uphold this swell little action drama. Good in any spot and a swell show. This Morgan boy is going to end up at the top of the heap before the season is over. Watch him. Running time, 75 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

'TIL WE MEET AGAIN: Merle Oberon, George Brent, Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Frank McHugh, Binnie Barnes—As fine a picture as any one could hope to see. A really excellent story, well acted, and my patrons were very well satisfied. A good two reel comedy with this feature and you have an excellent program. Running time, 99 minutes. Played July 4-6.—Mike Kieryluk, Vimy Theatre, Vegreville, Alberta, Canada. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

EDISON, THE MAN: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Gene Lockhart, Charles Coburn—A grand picture and best business for some time.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

FLORIAN: "Florian," Robert Young, Helen Gilbert—Didn't do a thing in this situation and I had thought it would be a natural. People who saw it thought it was good but that didn't help either. A fair picture that you could do a lot of advertising concerning an intelligent horse who is good. Steals the show, as a matter of fact. Running time, 91 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

NEW MOON: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Mary Boland—Had a very nice run on this but it didn't break any records. Not their best picture by any means but it has enough action to keep most everybody's interest, even if they don't care for the singing. Those who saw it liked it. Running time, 104 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

PHANTOM RAIDERS: Walter Pidgeon, Florence Rice—Good enough action but no draw at the box office. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 19-20.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THEY ALL COME OUT: Rita Johnson, Tom Neal—Here is a company that does not make poor pictures. There is some good in every one they make. We shelved this last season but finally picked it up and we had one of the finest audience reactions that we have ever had on any picture. If you skipped this one, by all means go back and pick it up. Tops in prison pictures. Running time, 63 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TWENTY MULE TEAM: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau—Just a high class western that failed to draw mid-week. Beery and Leo Carrillo excellent as usual. Running time, 83 minutes. Played July 10-11—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

TWO GIRLS ON BROADWAY: Lana Turner, George Murphy, Joan Blondell—Very good musical. Business fair. Running time, 73 minutes. Played July 5-6.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. City and suburban patronage.

WATERLOO BRIDGE: Robert Taylor, Vivien Leigh—It fell like a dud for us. Poorest receipts we have had in a long time and it is a good picture. The story is not pleasant, but it is a picture that is true to life. Possibly the public would rather have a bunch of hokum because they certainly stayed away from this one in droves. Running time, 108 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WOMEN, THE: Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell, Paulette Goddard, Mary Boland, Joan Fontaine, Virginia Weidler—This was so good the length wasn't noticed. (It was really too long.) That Russell girl was grand. So were the others.—Frank Sabin, Majestic Theatre, Eureka, Mont. Small town patronage.

YOUNG TOM EDISON: Mickey Rooney, Fay Bainter, Virginia Weidler, George Bancroft—One of Mickey's finest pictures. It will surely be enjoyed by all who see it. Give us more of this kind, Metro. Running time, 85 minutes. Played June 9-10.—B. F. Jackson, Delta Theatre, Ruleville, Miss. Small town patronage.

Paramount

LIGHT OF THE WESTERN STARS: Victor Jory, Russell Hayden, Noah Beery, Jr.—Played on Saturday to better than average business. This is an exceptionally good western with good story in the hands of capable actors. Running time, 65 minutes. Played July 13.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

ROAD TO SINGAPORE, THE: Dorothy Lamour, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope—If you are suffering from bad business just book in this picture. It has nearly everything that goes to make a good show. Running time, 85 minutes. Played June 20-21.—B. F. Jackson, Delta Theatre, Ruleville, Miss. Small town patronage.

SAFARI: Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Good picture and good business. Running time, 86 minutes. Played July 9.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SANTA FE MARSHAL: William Boyd, Russel Hayden—Good picture. Running time, 86 minutes. Played July 12-13.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WAY OF ALL FLESH: Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George, William Henry, Muriel Angelus—Good enough picture but business so bad I didn't get film rental. Winchell said of this picture "Tamiroff wore whiskers and so did the story." Running time, 82 minutes. Played July 17-18.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Republic

THREE FACES WEST: John Wayne, Sigrid Gurie, Charles Coburn—Very good picture from Republic which did only average business due to hot weather. Republic pictures are getting better and this is as good as those from the majors. Running time, 81 minutes. Played July 21-22.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS: Raymond Massey, Ruth Gordon, Mary Howard—A very good picture but no draw, especially in a small town. Running time, 109 minutes. Played July 2-3.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

FLYING DEUCES, THE: Laurel and Hardy—Played with "The Road to Singapore." See report on "The Road to Singapore." They still laugh and roar at the antics of Laurel and Hardy and we are still for them strong.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

MY FAVORITE WIFE: Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick, Granville Bates, Donald MacBride—One of the top pictures of the year is "My Favorite Wife." Dunne and Grant were each superb and delicate scenes handled in a very clever and interesting manner. Enoch Arden was outdone in this picture and Granville Bates as the Judge and Donald MacBride were each exceedingly funny. Randolph Scott was clever and the equal in many respects to Dunne and Grant. Gail Patrick and the other players did their various parts exceedingly well. All seeing the picture, both old and young, will enjoy 88 minutes, every one of 'em, to the fullest extent, and will very reluctantly leave the big, beautiful Criterion after the finis has been reached. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 18-24.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

PINOCCHIO: Disney Feature Cartoon—Did poor business with this one. "Snow White" at least had good music. This one doesn't rate your best playdates. Exhibitors expecting "Snow White" business on this one are in for a big disappointment. Running time, 87 minutes. Played May 9-11.—Mike Kieryluk, Vimy Theatre, Vegreville, Alberta, Canada. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

DAY-TIME WIFE: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Warren William, Binnie Barnes—Good program fare. They'll all like it except the kids. Plenty comedy of sophisticated type. Played July 5.—Frank Saibin, Majestic Theatre, Eureka, Mont. Small town patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—This is an excellent production with Alice Faye on a par as in "In Old Chicago." The rest of the cast was also good but it missed badly at the box office. Running time, 126 minutes. Played July 14-16.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. City and suburban patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—A fine picture but cost us about 50 per cent of the gross.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SWANEE RIVER: Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, Al Jolson—Grand show. Beautiful coloring. Everybody pleased.—Frank Sabin, Majestic Theatre, Eureka, Mont. Small town patronage.

TOO BUSY TO WORK: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Joan Davis—An enjoyable picture to slightly increased business. Played June 29.—C. W. Mills Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

20,000 MEN A YEAR: Randolph Scott, Margaret Lindsay, Preston Foster—Exciting and satisfactory. Business moderate. Played July 3-4.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

VIVA CISCO KID: Cesar Romero, Jean Rogers—Poor business and not so good a feature. Fox will have to give this series a big kick in the pants if they want it to do anything but pass out completely. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

YOUNG AS YOU FEEL: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington—Played with "The Man Who Wouldn't Talk."

I double billed two small ones and did just a fair business. Patrons were satisfied and so was I. Running time, 59 minutes. Played May 27-29.—Mike Kieryluk, Vimy Theatre, Vegreville, Alberta, Canada. Small town patronage.

United Artists

CHUMP AT OXFORD: Laurel and Hardy—Doubled this with "Shooting High" and was well received. I believe Hal Roach should continue with this series because the public still enjoys these comedians. Running time, 63 minutes. Played July 7-9.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. City and suburban patronage.

HOUSE ACROSS THE BAY: Joan Bennett, George Raft, Lloyd Nolan, Gladys George—Poorest Friday-Saturday business on this in three years. A few of the ladies thought it was fair but not even that thought was to be found among the males. Joan Bennett hasn't a bit of draw in this situation and practically all of her pictures are box office flops here. Running time, 74 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MY SON, MY SON: Brian Aherne, Madeleine Carroll, Louis Hayward, Laraine Day—I would recommend this for any audience for a change from action but not entertaining for the younger set who these times comprise most of the audience. Sound poor on my print. Running time, 110 minutes. Played July 18.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

REBECCA: Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders, Judith Anderson—A picture strictly for sophisticates. Opinion very mixed. Some liked but the majority of our small town audience did not think so much of it. Business just average. Would not play same best days of week because of no star power. Running time, 130 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SAPS AT SEA: Laurel and Hardy—Was very well enjoyed on a bargain night. This house hasn't heard so much laughing for quite some time and how they did laugh. Good business and lots of happy and carefree people made this a grand show for us. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SLIGHTLY HONORABLE: Pat O'Brien, Edward Arnold, Ruth Terry, Broderick Crawford—Plenty of comedy and thrills in this one but the title seemed to keep them away. Go after it. Don't be afraid of it. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 12-13.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. City and suburban patronage.

Universal

ALIAS THE DEACON: Bob Burns, Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe—A swell little comedy that all the Bob Burns fans enjoyed. This remake of the same picture of a few years back is just as good, if not better. A real laugh hit. Running time, 72 minutes. Played July 13-15.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

HALF A SINNER: Heather Angel, John King—Just an average program picture played on bargain night to ordinary business. Seemed to please. Running time, 59 minutes. Played July 12.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

IF I HAD MY WAY: Bing Crosby, Gloria Jean—A typical Crosby picture with Gloria Jean and many old timers from vaudeville. Dandy picture that didn't draw as expected. Running time, 87 minutes. Played July 6-8.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

MA! HE'S MAKING EYES AT ME: Tom Brown, Constance Moore—A dandy Bank Night picture. Will sure please them if you can get them in.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

RIDERS OF PASCO BASIN: Johnny Mack Brown, Bob Baker, Fuzzy Knight, Frances Robinson—Better than average of Universal's westerns. Did only fair business. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Warner Brothers

GAMBLING ON THE HIGH SEAS: Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, John Litel—Small action picture which failed to draw. Running time, 56 minutes. Played July 16.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

IT ALL CAME TRUE: Ann Sheridan, Jeffrey Lynn, Humphrey Bogart, Zasu Pitts—A very good picture. Did not gross what it should but what does.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PRIVATE LIVES OF ELIZABETH AND ESSEX, THE: Bette Davis, Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—A fair picture, slightly overplayed by Bette Davis. Errol Flynn always good in this town. A little bit of extra push should make this a fair grosser. Running time, 106 minutes. Played May 2-4.—Mike Kieryluk, Vimy Theatre, Vegreville, Alberta, Canada. Small town patronage.

ROARING TWENTIES, THE: James Cagney, Priscilla Lane, Humphrey Bogart, Jeffrey Lynn, Gladys George—Here is a sad story, mates. We expected some real business on this but the war jitters which broke out about this time played havoc with receipts; at least we use this alibi for the poor business we did on this and the same can be said for "Remember the Night," "That's Right, You're Wrong," "His Girl Friday" and other fine pictures played during June. We certainly can't blame the pictures for the poor showing. So we will blame it on the war.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

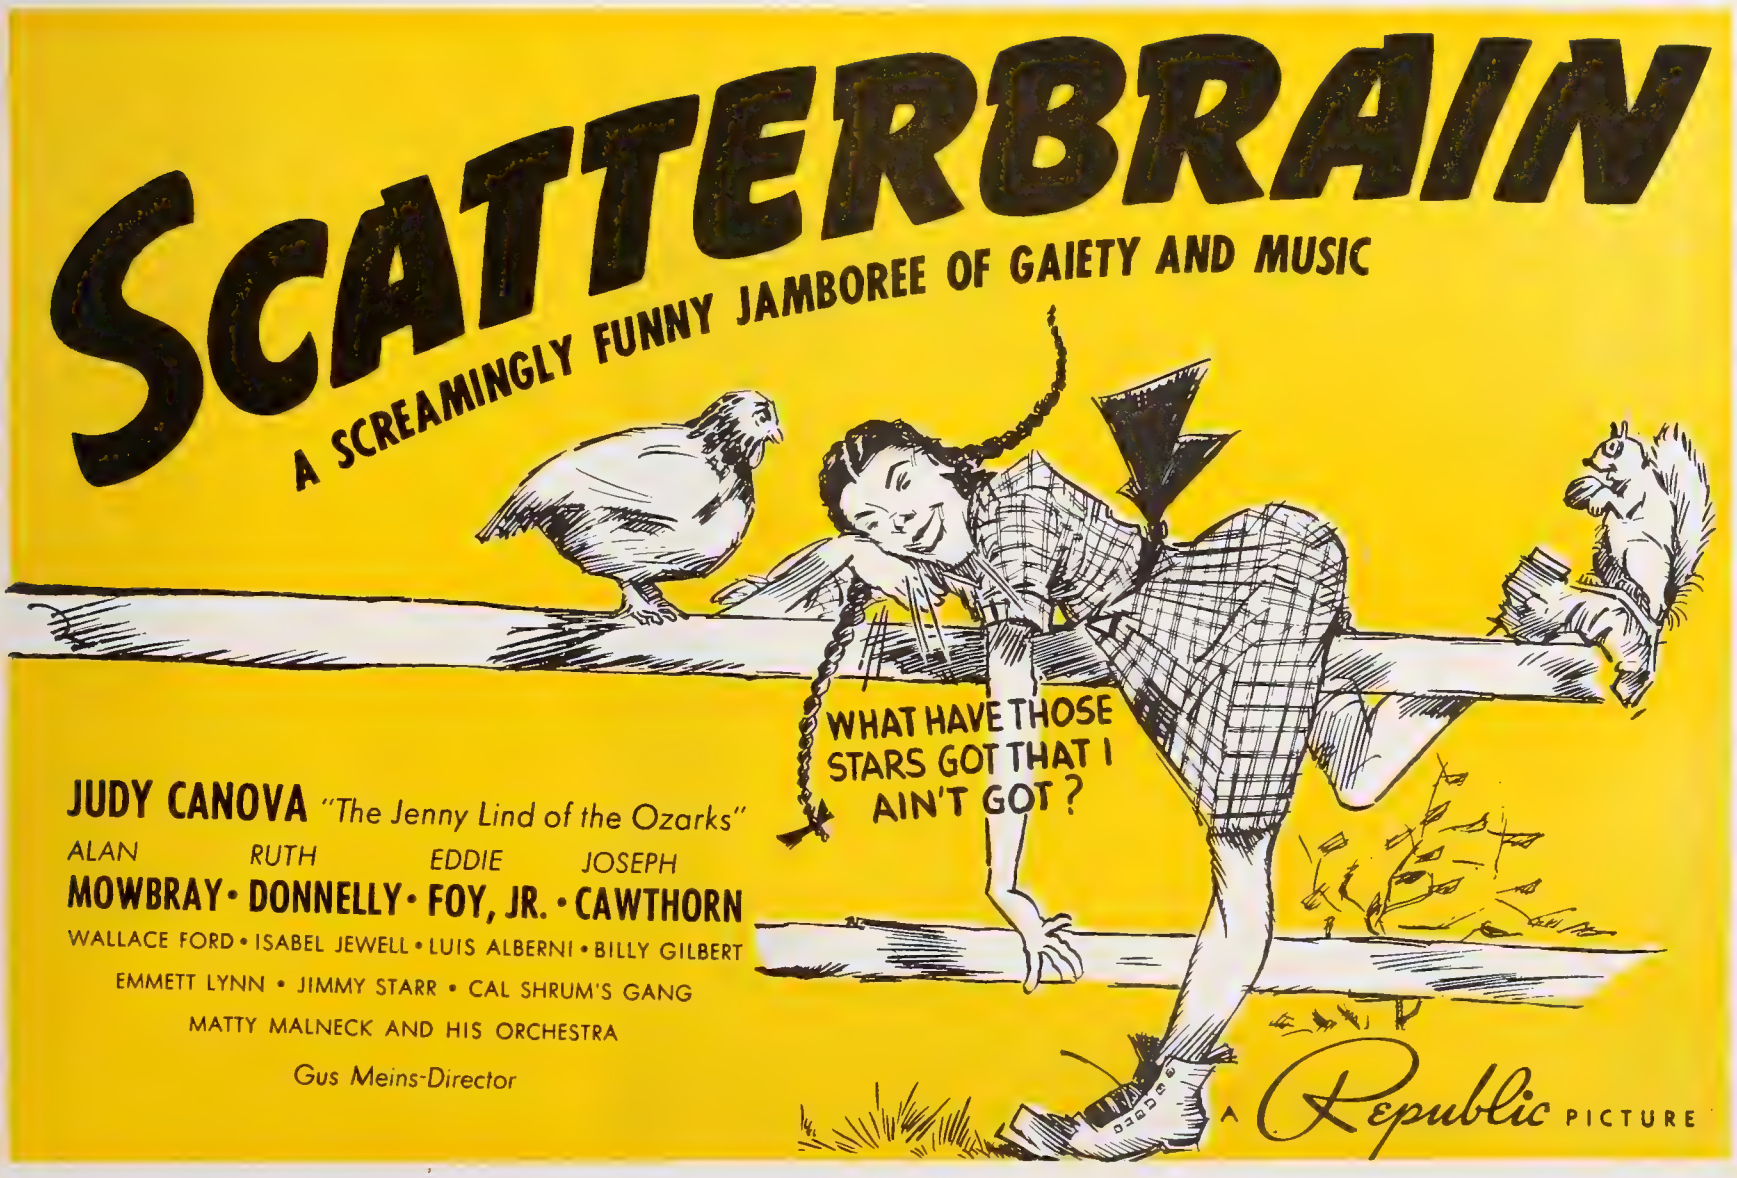
ROARING TWENTIES, THE: James Cagney, Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, Humphrey Bogart, Gladys George—Just right up the alley for my customers. Action, suspense, comedy and a real good story. Play it in any spot. Running time, 100 minutes. Played July 11.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BOOBS IN THE WOODS: Andy Clyde—A scream. Most timely. Vacationists will enjoy this immensely. —Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

COMMUNITY SING, NO. 3: College Songs—This was pretty good but our patrons do not go for community sings. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.



LIBRARY OF CONGRESS: Washington Parade, No. 4—A very dry short of the books in the Library of Congress. There may be some who like this sort of thing but we don't know who. Nuf sed. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

POOCH PARADE: Fables Cartoons—Just a cartoon and better not been made.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

SERVANT OF MANKIND: MGM Miniatures—An historical subject on Thomas A. Edison and excellent.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SPOTS BEFORE YOUR EYES: Pete Smith Specialities—Very good subject from Pete Smith on cleaning spots. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SWING SOCIAL: MGM Cartoons—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

TOM TURKEY: MGM Cartoons—Color cartoon only fairly amusing but includes some tuneful harmonica playing that seemed to please. Running time, seven minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

WHAT'S YOUR I. Q.?, NO. 2: Pete Smith Specialties—Our public ate this up and believe more attention was paid to this short than any other played in long time. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

Paramount

PARAMOUNT NEWS, No. 89—Good neighbors howdy to Canada, Knox and Stimson hearing, Navy yard activities, etc. Excellent picture. Running time, eight minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 90—British children arriving in America and what some of 'em had to say. Very entertaining and pleasing. Running time, 12 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

PLAYMATES FROM THE WILD: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Trained beavers taken from their natural habitat to Florida. Interesting and well received. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

UGLY DINO, THE: Stone Age Cartoons—Good enough black and white cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

AIR ARMY: Reelisms—Up-to-date army-navy manoeuvers showing Uncle Sam is going places and preparedness is here now and not just around the corner. Very entertaining and pleasing. Running time, 12 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

INFORMATION PLEASE: No. 7—This series pleases all.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MUTINY IN THE COUNTY: Edgar Kennedy Comedies—Another good Kennedy full of laughs.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

NEW CONTRIBUTOR JOINS DEPARTMENT

One new contributor and another whose reports have been missing for some time sent their opinions for this week's What the Picture Did for Me department. The new member is:

R. A. NAVARI, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa.

The prodigal contributor to the department is:

FRANK SABIN, Majestic Theatre, Eureka, Mont.

Read the reports from these and other contributors in these columns.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ACTION ON ICE: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—Just a filler. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

JUST A LITTLE BULL: Terry-Toons—A very good colored cartoon. Stay with the cow and calf and the animals.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING: Terry-Toons—As the name indicates, the usual cartoon picture but will please those seeing it. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

RUPERT THE RUNT: Terry-Toons—Good black and white cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

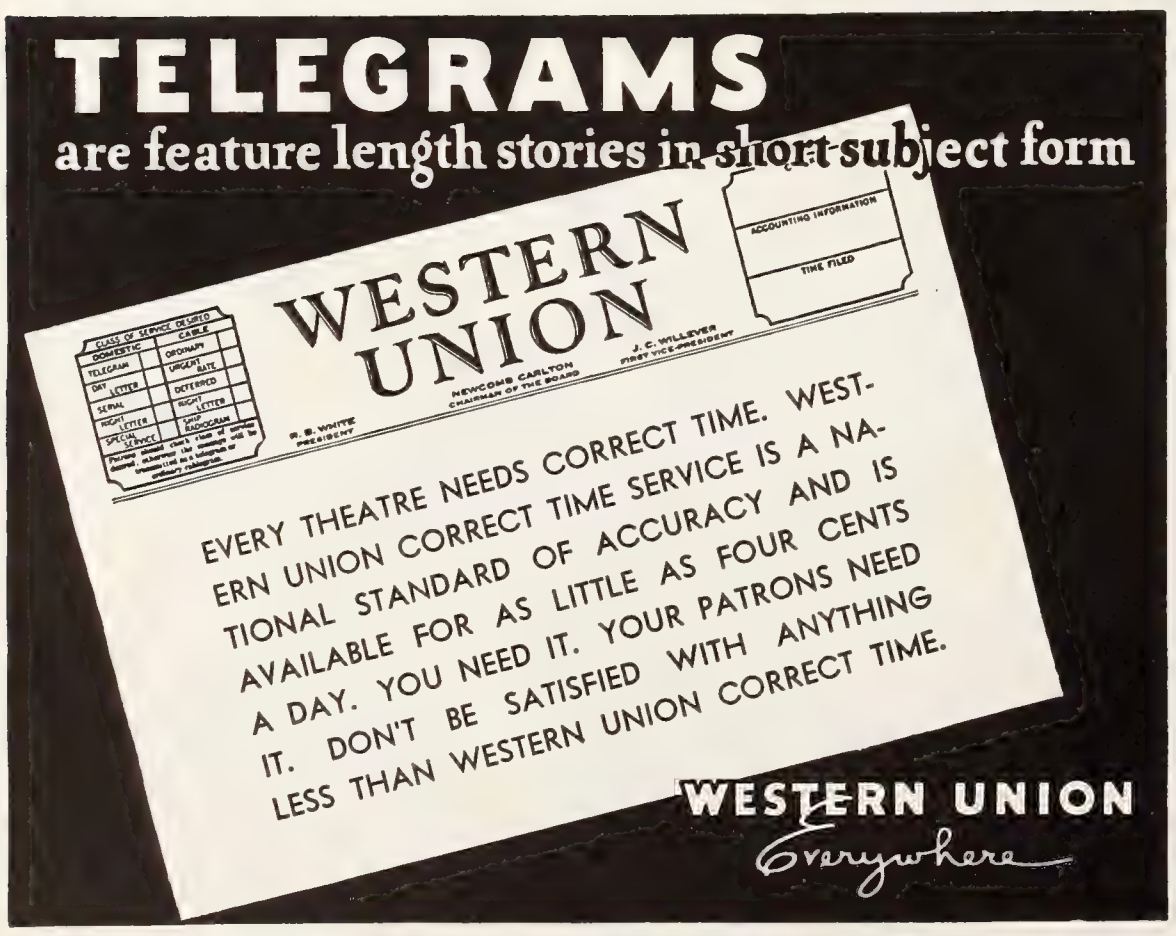
Vitaphone

CHEWIN' BRUIN, THE: Looney Tunes—Good black and white cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GANDER AT MOTHER GOOSE, A: Merrie Melodies—Another dandy cartoon. Very clever.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

GUN DOG'S LIFE: Color Parade—Here is a good short for all who like animals and who doesn't. Very good. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

OZZIE NELSON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—An excellent band short. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.



PONY EXPRESS: George Reeves—Two-reel color that serves as interesting filler. Not as good as others in this series. Running time, 18 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

SINGING DUDE, THE: Broadway Brevities—Very good short. Can recommend it. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

TOM THUMB IN TROUBLE: Merrie Melodies—One of the poorest Merrie Melodies of the year. Running time, eight minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

MOBILIZED FOR MERCY: Red Cross—Entertaining.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Freeman Made District Manager for Interstate

Charles Freeman, formerly in charge of talent booking for the Paramount and RKO circuits, has been made a district manager for the Interstate circuit, in Dallas.

His New York associates and friends, and his new associates, tendered a testimonial dinner to Mr. Freeman at the Astor Hotel recently. Among the guests were R. J. "Bob" O'Donnell, partner-manager of the Interstate circuit; Joseph Vogel, of the Loew circuit; John J. O'Connor, head of the RKO circuit; Robert Weitman, managing director of the Paramount Theatre, in New York, and Jay C. Flippen, vaudeville star, who was master of ceremonies.

Alliance "Outsider" Deals

Alliance Films Corporation, with headquarters in New York City, has set regional distribution of its film, "The Outsider," thus: New England, Imperial Exchange, in Boston, and Imperial Exchange, in New Haven; Buffalo and Albany, Eleanor Paradeis, of the Pam-O-Film Exchange; Ohio, Indianapolis, and Kentucky, the Big Feature Rights Exchange of Lee Golberg; Atlanta, Charlotte, New Orleans, and Little Rock, John Mangham, of the Monogram southern exchanges; Detroit, William Flemion, of Excellent Pictures Corporation; St. Louis, the Monogram exchange, of Robert Taylor; Kansas City, the Monogram exchange, of W. Benjamin; Chicago and Milwaukee, Henri Elman, of Special Attractions, Inc.; and Pittsburgh, Louis Krieger.

Walt Disney Festival

Walt Disney's Festival, comprising "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "The Ugly Duckling," "Ferdinand the Bull," "Donald's Lucky Day" and "The Practical Pigs," started Saturday, July 27th, at Loew's Criterion theatre, New York. The program is being distributed through RKO Radio.

Give Free Scholarships

In connection with the Loew circuit showing in New York City of "Edison, the Man," the International Correspondence Schools, of that city, are giving away nearly $10,000 in scholarships.

Release Muni, Dieterle

Paul Muni, actor, and William Dieterle, director, have been released by Warner Brothers due to their insistence on selecting their own stories. Mr. Muni's contract had three years to run and Mr. Dieterle's one year.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

That Pass Problem —and One Solution

Does the "pass evil" rate a defense? It does, according to Joe Ryan, of the Eastman, in Rochester, Minn. On a following page the Round Tabler describes his "sensible use" of passes on a "strictly business" basis.

Well, that may be. But, as this corner has always seen it, "payment" in passes is economically unsound, an expensive heritage too costly to maintain. Thus, the most sensible handling of passes is to be regarded as no more than a compromise, hardly a solution.

Let us recognize that any permanent solution is to start with the elimination of passes for services rendered, to be replaced with cash on the line for value received.

If a window location is not worth its rental in cash, it is not worth any more in passes. Yet, the theatreman particular in selecting 24-stands and other poster locations—for which he pays in cash—will throw cards in every available window, mainly because of the pass payoff.

Ryan notes that merchants would laugh at an offer of 50 cents a week for window card rental. If so, it should then be better business to aim at a smaller number of leading locations for exclusive use, to be paid for as such. That would return a greater "value received" than a string of hit-and-miss locations jammed with the advertising of every competing entertainment in town.

The fundamental principle of economics is the circulation of money. Thus, in paying his way, the manager encourages that circulation in the direction of his boxoffice. In so doing, the pass "sore spot" is removed, the theatre seat remains a unit of sale, and eliminated is the danger of the "privileged character" class, which evidently Ryan regards without undue alarm.

The Minnesota member may have reason to feel he is making satisfactory "pass" deals in exchange for display and newspaper space. But patrons who know the taste of passes are rarely satisfied with any other diet.

Some 6,000 or more theatres screen advertising bought by local merchants. The merchants pay cash.

Decidedly no. The Quigley Awards are not confined to entries on individual pictures. Distinctly eligible are all promotions having to do with the health of the boxoffice, institutional or otherwise.

This is published for the attentions of all theatremen not yet entirely familiar with Awards rulings. It is suggested by the letter from the member who "has been under the impression that only entries devoted to selling of pictures were considered".

TESTING EXPLOITATION

With Paramount's current activities on behalf of "The Great McGinty", it appears that the test campaign considered a "must" by national advertisers now comes more firmly into its own in the exploitation of motion pictures. Told elsewhere in this section is the story of a polling stunt at the coast preview. Put on by Paramount's Cliff Lewis and his staff, the idea worked out so successfully that the tiein is to be incorporated in the picture's national campaign.

Producers count heavily upon preview audience reaction to determine a picture's boxoffice values. The same reasoning should apply equally for advance testing of promotional ideas on which so much of this boxoffice depends.

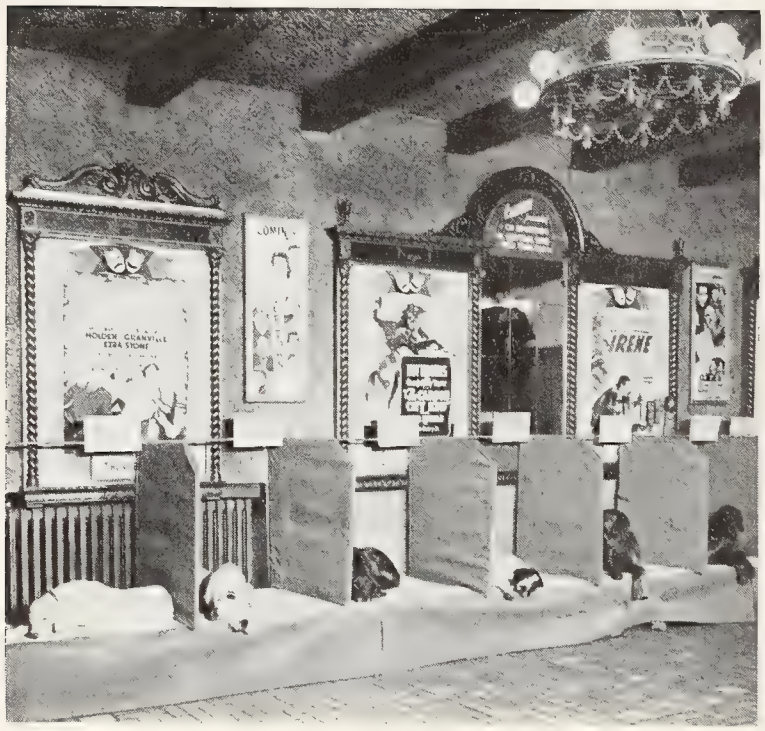
PLEASANT TIDINGS



Good news is Earl Hudson's appointment of Ralph Stitt as United Detroit Theatres advertising and publicity director. The tidings are hailed by the many friends of the Round Tabler and others familiar with his works. Stitt has been around. He knows home office and field from the inside, has plenty of showmanship savvy—and is a very swell guy, in addition.

In joining up with the Hudson forces Ralph brings added strength to an organization whose potent promotional activities have long been noted in these pages.

Round Table In Pictures

Tying in with current newspaper headlines, Manager Elmer Hollander at Warners' Stanton Theatre, in Philadelphia, for reissue of "Confessions of a Nazi Spy", constructed the effective front illustrated above. Same effect was carried out on opposite side of entrance.

Examining the exhibit of the inventor's first projector alongside International's new Simplex E7, at Loew's New York Paradise, were Lester B. Isaac, director of Projection and Sound of Loew's Theatres, and M. D. O'Brien, assistant director who arranged the display for Jerry DeRosa's date on "Edison the Man".

Animated display arranged by Francis Deering for "Turnabout" at Loew's, in Houston, Texas, was mounted on a turntable, one side of the centerpiece carrying a straight pose of Landis and Hubbard and on the other the characters in reverse. Teaser copy was used on both. Second lobby display consisted of giant blowup of the Life spread featuring Carole Landis.

'McGinty' Polling Tested at Preview

Audience reaction to a test promotion weighed for consideration in the national campaign on Paramount's "The Great McGinty," was found highly favorable in the exploitation of a special voting poll put on during the picture's recent coast preview at the Westwood Village, in Westwood, Cal.

In conjunction with the theatremen, Cliff Lewis, Paramount studio ad head and his staff, recreated an old time voting scene out front, with all the authoritative "props" such as polling booths, torches and banners, based on the politico-comic background of the picture. Before the screening, ballots were distributed and patrons asked to mark their votes inside the covered booths on the various questions listed. Among the questions, one asked if the audience preferred the "tender brute" type of lover as personified by Brian Donlevy, the picture's star. The query was aimed to draw atention to the star's possibilities as a romantic lead for which he is being groomed by the studio.

According to returns, over three-quarters of the audience voted their choices, considerably over one thousand ballots being cast. Votes were counted during the screening and final results posted in the lobby on completion of the show for the information of the audience.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Mayor Endorses "Confessions" At Naturalization Day Meeting

For his campaign on the re-issue of "Confessions of a Nazi Spi," Manager John R. Schultz at the Liberty theatre, in Sharon, Penna., contacted all service organizations in the vicinity and the American Legion which brought fine representation in the form of a parade to the theatre opening night. Through the cooperation of His Honor the Mayor, the picture was endorsed by him at the Naturalization Day meeting attended by some few thousand.

One of the highlights of Schultz's campaign was a 15 minute radio program "Is There a Fifth Column in America?" which was conducted by the president of the Valley Forum and tied entirely into the picture. Special front was constructed for the occasion using a red, white and blue background, and newspapers were generous with their stories ahead and during run.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Humorous Slants Employed By Yeakle to Sell Dates

Teaser gag ahead of opening of "Remember the Night" at the Kentucky Theatre, in Danville, Ky., was the distribution by Bill Yeakle of paper plates in a house-to-house canvass. Pasted onto plates were stickers with copy reading: "Don't wash your dishes tonite. Use these paper plates instead so that you can hurry down to see," etc., etc.

For "Invisible Stripes," Yeakle also distributed tinted cards on which were printed three stripes. Folks were told how to blow on them and if they became invisible to see a doctor and if they remained visible to see the picture. This was followed by cast, playdates, etc.

Four-Day Fair and Cattle Show To Be Held as Stage Attraction

Round Tablers who have put over successful milking contests and 4-H Club tieins, and other theatremen interested in the possibilities of agricultural promotions as added attractions, are directed to the Farm Show and Fair announced by Manager Frank V. King, to be held at the Midland, in Newark, Ohio, the week starting Monday, August 12. Since the county fairgrounds are no longer available, officials have arranged with the theatreman to stage livestock judgings and milkmaid's contests during one and a half hour periods at matinee and night shows. A rural type stage show is also set in addition to farm women's exhibits and 4-H Club displays in lobby and mezzanine.

In a general letter sent out by the county agricultural agent, farmers in the area were instructed on requirements for the judging to be held in seven classifications of cattle and sheep, 32 classes in all. Four to five classes will be judged in each period. Arrangements are being made for stabling and shelter of livestock. Entries are confined to the county and well-known judges engaged for the various events. These include the milkmaid's contest for county women and girls. A limited number of entries will be accepted and awards made on the basis of the greatest total weight of milk drawn within the allotted time.

Spencer Reports on "Grand Opry" Premiere

In cooperation with the Paramount Theatre, Nashville and Station WSM, sponsors of the famous "Grand Ole Opry" radio program, Perry Spencer, publicity director for Republic Pictures in the south, reports a ten days' advance campaign in which the station plugged the world premiere of that picture. Newspapers gave front page stories and picture breaks well ahead with streamer headlines.

Special novelty invitations were sent to out-of-town newspaper men and radio officials who arrived for the premiere, special parade was held and guests were taken to the theatre in old fashioned rigs and surreys. Governor Prentice Cooper opened the celebration by welcoming everyone to Nashville and contestants came from all over the state to compete for prizes in a square dance contest. Highlight of the evening was the stage show at the theatre, where the original stars of the radio program appeared in the picture.

Redmond Concocts Star Dust As Advance for That Date

Jimmy Redmond of the Bonham, in Fairbury, Neb., recently turned chemist and mixed up a batch of "Star Dust" as his advance exploitation on that picture. Purchasing a pound of silver metallic and two ounces of blue metallic, Jim mixed them together and then put a portion of it in imprinted envelopes with copy reading: "Enclosed you will find a sample of star dust, just as a reminder to see" etc., etc. These were distributed on the street as well as placing them in surrounding small towns.

Having cracked his local daily for the first time recently on a co-op page, Redmond approached them again for "Edison the Man" which brought merchant cooperation, each store's ads tied directly to the picture. Arrangements were also made with the local utilities company for distribution of small cards with all light and water bills, thus carrying picture message directly into the homes of most residents.

Eerie Slants Used by Burke Ahead of "Ghost Breakers"

Starting his campaign two weeks ahead of opening of "Ghost Breakers," Bill Burke at Schine's State, in Fostoria, Ohio, concentrated on the eerie by promoting two skeleton suits which were stuffed with batting and strung on pulleys out of sight in the fly loft. Just before the trailer hit the screen, all lights were doused and with aid of a phonograph with sound effects which included howling wind, screams, etc. the skeletons were dropped while a green light played overall. The trailer was then brought on and Burke reports the effect as terriffic.

Classified ad contest was planted in cooperating paper, guest tickets going to those who found their names listed among various ads, and second contest consisted of scene stills from the picture which were run in paper together with conversation balloons, tickets also were given here for best conversations submitted between Bob Hope and other characters in the picture.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

First-Time Street Car Tiein Set by Bell for "Edison"

Reported by Ray Bell as a first-time locally, all street cars in Washington were bannered with posters reading "Take street cars and busses to Loew's Capitol to see Spencer Tracy in 'Edison the Man.'" Local power company was persuaded to pay for and distribute signs which saluted the name Edison and the picture, in addition to devoting windows to displays tied to the picture. Power company was also induced to buy time on the air and present 15-minute dramatization of highlights from the film for which a local cast was engaged.

Replica of original electric light and other interesting models were secured and placed on display week ahead, Western Union windows were placarded in addition to miniature blanks with tiein copy being distributed and a three-day radio contest was conducted on WRC women' program with listeners being asked to estimate what benefits electricity and other Edison inventions had brought them. Guest tickets were awarded.

The Pass Defended

DEAR MIKE:

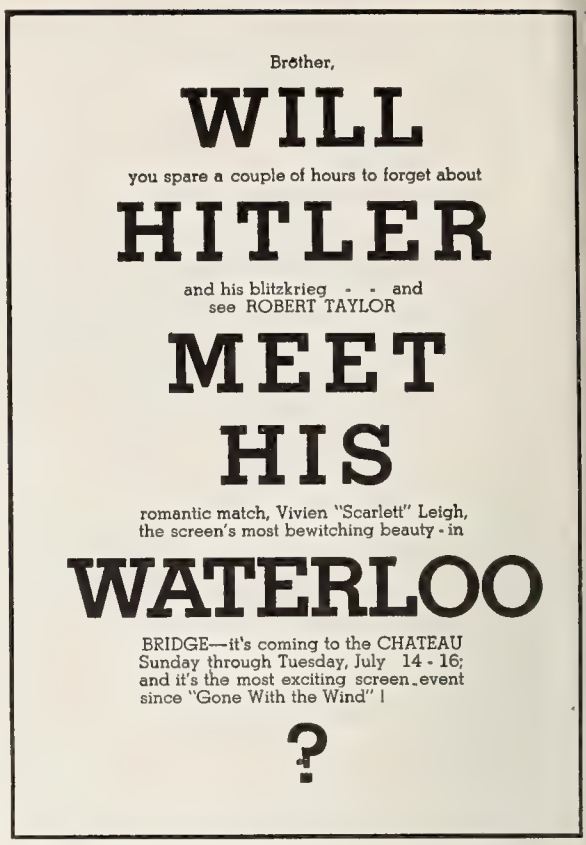
It's quite a while since your editorial appeared in the Herald on the "Pass Evil"—in fact, about seven weeks. Well, here comes a belated cry from out here in the wilderness, anent the sensible use of passes.

Perhaps, somewhere in these United States there is a theatre that can stick out its chest and say: "We never issue any kind of a pass to anyone for anything." If there is, more power to that operation.

Let's talk about our situation. We have several very nice window spots around town, wherein we regularly use one-sheets. Mounted on attractive backboards, the merchants who have allowed us the use of these windows for many months past apparently feel that they do not detract from the appearance of these windows.

Now. We hand these merchants two passes each, per week, for these displays. As our matinee price is 15 cents, and our evening price is 25 cents, just exactly how many of these men would agree to our use of their windows if we said we'd give them the value of two passes, or 50 cents per week rental of these spots. I think we agree that we'd either be laughed out or tossed out of the store.

We think that's one of the biggest reasons for the use of passes on a sensible basis. The plain and simple fact is that any merchant up and down the street would rather breeze by the entrance with a pass in his hand which rated him as a privileged character than have us hand him the cold cash, which would allow him to buy a ticket or two if he wished, but which classed him as just another average patron.



Much has been said against the use of passes, but nary a word in their behalf, even when they're meted out carefully and on a strictly business basis.

To substantiate my plea for just one kind word for the much maligned subject of discussion, I'm sending you a few newspapers and heralds which contain a little department which is headed "Eastman Theatre News." This column, appearing once a week in both the "St. Cloud News," a subscription paper, and the "Thrift News," which is distributed door-to-door with complete coverage of every home in St. Cloud, is published in return for 10 passes per week, which are handed to those whose names appear in either of the publications. If they are used in the evening, which is really true of only about half of them, the cash value of the passes would be $2.50. By actual measurement of the last few of these columns, based on a 40-cent-an-inch rate, it is evident that the cash value of the write-up, in space, is about $5.60.

You will note in looking them over, that we have been taking a little more space each week, entirely with the approval of the editor, who has told us he'd just as soon carry this column indefinitely. These write-ups appear exactly as we have originally written them, with the exception of a few typographical errors, and what we say and how we say it is left entirely up to us.

So, whether it means anything or not, I'm shooting along this little dissertation in behalf of the defense side of the case, because, as I remarked before, it seems like the prosecution has had the floor to itself these many years.

"Waterloo Bridge" Novelties Sell Date for Praught

Trick copy for novelty advertising on "Waterloo Bridge" at the Chateau, Rochester, Minn., used in various forms by Manager Woody Praught, was featured by what the theatreman terms a "Hitler" card, in two colors, as illustrated above. The capitalized lines seemingly bearing on the current European situation attracted quick attention, according to Praught, with the interspersed trick wording on the picture following through to attract notice on the date.

Popularity of the star as "Scarlett" was also built upon by the theatereman in his advertising by the use of face cuts of Leigh in "GWTW" and such hook-up copy as:

"Can Taylor take the place of Gable in Scarlett O'Hara's arms?" Contests included the pressbook suggestions on "name the bridges" and the translation of "I love you" in eight languages.

Golf Trophy Awarded By Unger on "Pinocchio"

What he chose to call a "Pinocchio" golf tournament was arranged for that date week ahead of opening by Jim Unger at the Arcadia, in Temple, Tex., winner of the handicap was awarded a loving cup. Tourney was advertised well in advance, and the theatreman planted small cutouts of the various characters in the picture in strategic spots around the course.

Bookmarks were distributed in local libraries and classrooms, in addition to being available at newsstands, giant size foot stencils with title and playdates were pasted on sidewalks in the vicinity of the theatre and numerous windows of the "Pinocchio" merchandise was promoted.

Telescope Idea Gets Attention

A novel stunt that aroused much attention and comment was that put over by Jack Edwards, Rialto, Butte, Mont., for the showing there of "New Moon." Edwards placed a "New Moon" display card high on the side of a five-story building. A man with a telescope, stationed in the street below, invited passersby to look through the sight and tell what stars they saw.

May's Ribbon Gag Sells "Russell"

Promoting bolts of ribbon from local store, Ed May for his date on "Lillian Russell" at Schine's Paris, Paris, Ky., cut them in eight-inch pieces and had his doorman or cashier present each patron with a piece and inform them to be sure to keep them as instructions for their use would be made during the show. At every performance, theatre attendant stepped to stage and requested patrons to carefully tie the ribbon around their left index finger. Time was allowed for following instructions and then the audience was advised that it was a gentle reminder to see "Lillian Russell."

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Beach Games Sell "Debutante"

Vaughn O'Neil at Loew's State, in Providence, for "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" concentrated on bathing beaches and arranged a stunt whereby 10 large beach balls painted with Andy Hardy copy were used on public beaches over the weekend. O'Neil also arranged to have inexpensive standees prepared with directional copy urging homeward bound bathers to go to Loew's to see the picture.

Merchant Tieups Aid Anthony Engagements

Use of a reduction illusion display placed in a store adjacent to Schine's Piqua, in Piqua, Ohio, proved a crowd-stopper for Bob Anthony and his date on "Dr. Cyclops." Appropriate tiein copy with scene stills were also featured in the display.

For "It's a Date," Anthony promoted local furniture mart for distribution of 2,000 autographed roto heralds, a Lane cedar chest with full window display and numerous other merchandise gifts. Store also carried copy in their newspaper ads plugging the engagement.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Deering's "Storm" Serialization

Five days ahead of opening of "The Mortal Storm," Round Tabler Francis Deering at Loew's, in Houston, Texas, planted a serialization in the Houston Post consisting of a biography of James Stewart, star of the picture, also included were scene stills and art work.

Kids Collect Rock to Advertise Date On "Million B C"

Following Ted Kirkmeyer's recent promotion of used auto tires from among his local youth, R. W. Ferguson, now reports the collection of lettered rock by the youngsters of Osawatomie, Kan., for a build-up on "Million B.C." at the Osawa. Newspaper ads announced that children under 12, bringing rocks lettered with title, theatre and date, would be admitted for five cents. Over 400 responded, the rocks being saved until the day before opening when Ferguson had them distributed around town between five and six in the morning.

A puzzle novelty also greeted enthusiastically by the youngsters was made up by the theatreman in the form of jigsaws, from heralds on the picture. Heralds were pasted to mat board and divided by a cutawl machine. When this served its purpose, the theatreman announced another offer, similar to the rock project, this time the kids being invited to bring bones twelve inches or longer to the theatre in exchange for free admission to see the opening chapter of a new serial. As Ferguson tells it, the butchers were besieged for bones and the locals who phoned the theatre to inquire were told the collection was to be used to advertise the picture.

Comparison Copy Used for Displays

This was done in many ways for window and other display. Set alongside of horse-head skeletons and other material atmospheric of the picture in store windows, the copy was to the effect that the bones were representative of animals in the picture. As an instance, a leading hardware store plugged aluminum wear and the date with copy such as, "In the form of ore and sand this Pyrex flame-wear and ovenwear has lived since "One Million B.C.," etc., etc. In other windows, the title and date were spelt out with bones. The utilities company made up an exhibit of a prehistoric camp fire to plug modern cook stoves. The copy: "This was the only form of cooking used in," etc., etc., "compare it with," etc. Comparison displays were also planted in drug stores for exterminators, in farm supply stores for farming implements. Restaurants advertised, "T-Bone Steak Special, the Size of a Dinosaur," etc.

Parade Features Campaign

The comparison idea was also carried out in a street parade of a Saturday afternoon, units including Boy Scouts, high school band, other youth organizations and fleet of bannered Chevrolet cars. What the Scouts might have been in the period of the picture was compared with the 1940 members. The same was done with the autos to show old and new transportation. Theatre front was in keeping with the personnel dressed accordingly.

Newspaper support was topped with a page co-op promoted by Ferguson, all copy further tieing in the "compare" slant. Incidentally, the manager sold the ads in person, making a profit on the page as he did on the sale of the bones as fertilizer after the date, bringing the entire cost of campaign down to a few dollars. He reports the down to a few dollars.

NEARING THE HALF WAY

About the best commentary on the enthusiasm shown by entrants on the Quigley Awards is indicated in the number of winners in the Third Fortnight of the Third Quarter, a two-week period that marked one of the worst heat spells this country has known. Despite these handicaps, sufficient high-grade showmanship was displayed in the Third Fortnight to roll up a total of 59 Awards to 56 entries, the added three voted because of double-credits as shown.

The Third Quarter Competitions now near the Quarter halfway mark with the current Fortnight—the fourth—and three more to go before the Third Quarter-Master Plaques, Medals and Citations are voted. It should be a merry battle, according to the representation of different operations, circuit and independent, participating in the fast going. As noted above, 15 circuits are listed for the honors. In addition to the domestic winners, we are pleased also to include Alec F. Smith, of London.

LATE NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENTS

Siegel To Testify

M. J. Siegel, president of Republic Pictures; Wells Root, E. E. Passmore, Jan Fortune and Harold Shumate, script writers, were ordered last week in federal court in New York to submit to examination before trial in Los Angeles this week in connection with the infringement suit of Marquis James against Republic. The suit seeks an injunction and an accounting, charging that the author's biography of Sam Houston, "The Raven," was plagiarized in "Man of Conquest."

Credo Loses Plea

Referee John E. Joyce in New York this week dismissed the petition of Credo Pictures, Inc., for an arrangement with creditors on the ground that Credo had failed to file a confirmation of the plan in time.

IN COURTS

Court Reinstates Morristown Pool

Vice-chancellor Buchanan in Newark this week ordered reinstatement of the pooling and booking arrangment between Walter Reade and the Justin-Jacks interests in Morristown, N. J., following an action by Lester G. Justin and Morris H. Jacks to compel Mr. Reade and his American Communities Corporation to fulfill the contract entered into by these parties in 1937.

They claimed Mr. Reade had breached the arrangement. Mr. Justin and Mr. Jacks operate the Jersey and Park theatres in Morristown and Mr. Reade has the Community. Under the decision, the polling arrangement remains in status quo.

Seek Dismissal Of Trendle Suit

Paramount on Friday, July 26th, asked for dismissal of George W. Trendle's suit seeking to void an agreement made by him and John H. King in 1929 which barred them from operating theatres within a 150 mile radius of Detroit for 50 years. An answer filed in federal court in New York contends that the provision is legal and binding.

Twentieth Century-Fox Sued

A suit by Twentieth Century-Fox against the Century Circuit was disclosed in New York supreme court Thursday, July 25th, when the case was set for trial September 23rd. The distributor seeks about $30,000 damages for failure, it is charged, by the circuit to play a number of pictures in some 25 houses and to pay for other films said to have been played but not paid for under a contract.

File Philadelphia Action

A suit to collect a judgment of $40,166 levied eight years ago against Marjorie Rambeau, actress, was started in Philadelphia Thursday, July 25th, by Norman G. Chinn, of New York City, who bought the judgment at public auction to pay an $18,000 fee to Mrs. Mabel Manton's lawyer. Originally, the judgment was obtained by Mrs. Manton, then wife of the late Kevitt Manton, British actor, who had sued Miss Rambeau for alienation of affections and won the award. Mr. Chinn, who otherwise remains unidentified, bought the judgment for $1,000.

Judgment Against Brandt

Three William Brandt houses were ordered Friday, July 26th, to pay $3,300 each to Jack Naples, owner of the NTG (Nils T. Granlund) vaudeville unit, for failure to live up to a booking contract. Judge Timothy A. Leary, in New York supreme court, granted summary judgment against Mr. Brandt, the Adde Company, owner of the Flatbush theatre, Sharbu Operating Company, owner of the Windsor, and Robertson Operating Company, owner of the Carlton.

Writer Sues Warners

Hans Rehfisch, German writer, filed a $750,000 damage suit in federal court in Los Angeles this week against Warners, charging plagiarism of his story, "Die Affaire Dreyfuss" in the "Life of Emile Zola."

Sues Over French Film

A suit for an injunction has been filed in New York supreme court by Arthur Ziehm, Inc., against Leo Films., to restrain the defendant from allegedly distributing in the United States the French film "Serenade."

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

THE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) symbol indicates picture is of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Thank you, Mr. Selznick . . .

"Paramount's policy has been to sign up American radio stars. Today, it is needless to indicate that Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, and other radio 'names' are about the best investments a studio could have."

—David O. Selznick, as reported in Ed Sullivan's column.

PARAMOUNT HAS THE CORNER ON COMEDY!

It's laughter they're after in the theatres of these United States these worried days. And Paramount is prepared! We've got the biggest bunch of top laugh-builders in show business. Look at those names: Fred Allen, Jack Benny (with Rochester, of course), Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard, Jackie Cooper, Mary Martin, Ken Murray, Eddie Bracken, Victor Moore, Ezra Stone, Jerry Colonna, Brenda & Cobina. No outfit in the business can top that laugh line-up. And look at the comedy-creating strength behind them: Arthur (The Ghost Breakers) Hornblow, Jr., Mitchell (Remember the Night—Midnight) Leisen, Ted (What a Life) Reed, Mark (Buck Benny Rides Again) Sandrich, Victor (Road to Singapore) Schertzinger. No outfit can show the line-up of smash comedies for the coming season Paramount has ready for you.

FOR A HEAVY SCHEDULE OF LIGHT ENTERTAINMENT . . . PLAY PARAMOUNT!

Vol. 140. No. 6 — August 10, 1940

"RIGHT to BUY"

THE motion picture's anti-trust suit has about as many aspects as it has lawyers, and exactly as many complications as there are operations in the conduct of the amusement industry—but still basic, probably most important, is that ancient issue of "the right to buy".

Some years ago, about the time that the ill-fated Code of Fair Trade Practices under the NRA was being fabricated, the slogan of "the right to buy" resounded in Washington. The issue is still at stake, with some ornamental plumage attached to it.

In the drafts of the entertaining document entitled "Consent Decree", perhaps because here is so various an array of consents and dissentions, there was a Section VI, as of July 17, now Section VII as of August 3; today, possibly—probably—the title is "Remedy for Discrimination against Independently Operated Theatres". The pure food and drugs act forbids the use of the word "cure" on labels.

A careful and prayerful reading of this Section VII finds that the independent can hope and try for an arbitration award on the availability of product under a set of conditions of a rarely ingenious pattern. The independent must represent a theatre that has been in business within five years, prior to July 20, 1940, or a theatre replacing such a theatre, but not much better, and must be prepared to claim that he has not been able to get enough pictures of a nature to sustain his policy; that he or the theatre has within the five years made a demand in writing upon the distributor for the pictures concerned; and that the pictures have the while been licensed to competition consisting of a circuit theatre. Meanwhile, none of this goes either, if the complaining independent is tied up with a circuit of more than five theatres or a buying combine.

Aside from those choicely arranged hurdles and ex-post facto conditions, the independent is entirely free to seek arbitration. That, one is to understand, constitutes an arrangement for the restoration of that free competition which is in Mr. Thurman Arnold's preamble.

An ex-parte observer, not entirely steeped in the internal lore of the circumambient situation, Washington, New York and way-stations, could be a-wondering how a showman with a notion, ambition and a policy and capital might, in this 1940, select a site, build a theatre and go into business.

Does Section VII mean that the books of opportunity are to be closed, as of July 20, according to a certain specified five-year pattern of yesterdays?

UBER ALLES?

GERMANY, it appears from certain seepages of information, has arrived not only at a complete policy of screen control for areas under its domination, but also at a program of continued pressures upon all film production.

In substance, the German policy is to demand that none of the product of any studio anywhere shall have any part of the Reich controlled markets unless all of the output is acceptable to the Nazi ideology, even though the pictures in question are offered only outside the German world.

Notice, in a fashion, has already been served upon two Hollywood production plants that none of their pictures of any nature whatsoever can be circulated within German dominion because a certain two pictures, offered only elsewhere, disagree with the Hitler program.

That is a problem of the Department of State, as a principle of international trade, rather than a problem peculiar to the screen.

Meanwhile, such a dictation to the motion picture industry concerning the political consciousness and content of its wares is not to be accepted from government, any government, by an art of a free people.

LEARNING THE HOW

ALL of the other great media of expression have enjoyed through their long evolutions an amateur background out of which professional talents and skills develop to leaven the arts.

This development, because of the complex technology required, has been relatively slow for the motion picture. But the process is now well underway.

These observations come to mind because of the arrival of the ACL Movie Book, picture making manual of the Amateur Cinema League—some three hundred and odd pages of how to do it, with quite a bit also of why, done with as much simplicity as the subject permits and with a decided competency. The volume is the product of a collaboration of ACL members, including Colonel Roy W. Winton and Mr. Arthur L. Gale, editor of Movie Makers magazine.

Some of the discussions of taste, titles and grammar would indicate a field of service among some of the professional picture makers—but, alas, the book is available only to ACL members. Its influence will perhaps be found among the professionals of tomorrow.

PURCHASED PRESSURE

ONE can remember from 'way back there in the Blue Eagle days that some of the political economists and pundits of the Administration were minded that advertising was a somewhat less than constructive element of the American scene.

That concept appears again now in the Government's anti-trust suit in the tobacco trade, where the executives tend to the opinion that the action reduces to a charge that by large advertising and merchandising campaigns manufacturers gain monopolistic control over public demand and in consequence over retail distribution. The charge is that advertising can and does make it necessary for retailers to handle brands unprofit-

RCA Equipment

THE Photophone Division of the Radio Corporation of America (communications, radio, television, records) will, in the fall, extend its 15-year-old activities of selling and servicing theatre sound reproducers, and parts, to other lines of theatre equipment.

There had been reports that Photophone was going into the general theatre equipment supply business, such as that engaged in by National Theatre Supply and scores of local independent supply dealers. RCA Photophone says this is not so, that Photophone will merely take on theatre screens and "a few other items," unnamed. Photophone will not manufacture, but will distribute, through its established branches in the field.

Fox Buys "Tobacco"

"TOBACCO ROAD," still running on the stage with six-and-a-half years on Broadway and on the road, has been sold to Darryl Zanuck for Twentieth Century-Fox, for a reported $100,000 after spirited bidding by major film companies had raised the price. Jack Kirkland, author of the play, has said that he was influenced in his decision to sell the work, which deals with Georgia sharecroppers, to Mr. Zanuck because of the treatment Twentieth Century-Fox gave "The Grapes of Wrath," John Steinbeck's novel about Oklahoma sharecroppers. "Tobacco Road" is scheduled for early production. The stage version has been deemed remarkable for its language.

Paramount's Round?

PRELIMINARY rounds in the fight for control of the distribution of prize-fight films, now legal after 28 years, are under way. RKO was ready at the bell and distributed last month the first legal fight films in almost three decades, pictures of the Armstrong-Jenkins bout which were photographed by RKO Pathe News. In the last few weeks several distributing companies have been formed to handle prize-fight films in New York State.

Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee of Paramount and chairman of the board of Madison Square Garden, Michael S. Jacobs, the promoter, and Col. John R. Kilpatrick, incorporated what may be expected to be the dominating company in the field. It is Sports Features Distribution, Inc., with 500 shares of stock. Subscribers are Robert C. Sullivan, Richard Kent and Cyril F. Metsko. Mr. Griffis, Mr. Jacobs and Col. Kilpatrick are the directors.

RKO obtained rights to the Armstrong-Jenkins fight by a deal with the Madison Square Garden Corporation, headed by Mr. Griffis, and the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, Mike Jacobs. Now they have made preparations to go into the fight film business themselves. Now Mr. Griffis' Paramount may have national distribution of Sports Features Distribution, Inc., fight pictures.

U. S. Tax Warning

THEATRE owners in and around the territory of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, and, probably elsewhere, are in receipt of Tax Form No. 729 from the U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue, for use in reporting and paying the Federal admission tax for July. It appears that this form is obsolete, does not give effect to the requirements of the new Revenue Act, which, effective July 1st, lowered tax exemptions from 40-cent tickets to 20-cent tickets.

P. J. Wood, secretary of the Ohio ITO, advises that the Revenue Bureau is rushing copies of the proper form, which the law requires be filled in and mailed with check for tax returns of July by midnight of August 31st. This will be the Government's first returns from theatres for use in national defense.

Social Notes

OUT in Los Angeles Buron Fitts, district attorney, this week was presenting material before a grand jury pertaining to Communist activities in the region, with tales ranging from a sailor murder mystery in San Pedro to testimony accredited to John L. Leech, former organizer, that "the party" had organized the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League to tap rich film personages.

According to press wires subpoenas were issued for Herbert Biberman, director, his wife, Gale Sondergaard, Lionel Stander, Clifford Odets and Samuel and Sadie Ornitz, all of the picture community.

Responding, the Screen Actors Guild's board by resolution denounced "implied assertions against actors."

A review notice in the Daily Worker, New York, announces that Black and White, "a progressive magazine published on the West Coast, is now appearing in a new format under the title of The Clipper. . . . Adopted by the League of American Writers, the magazine includes material from some of Hollywood's most promising talent."

Charges are that Communist influences have invaded Actors' Equity Association have been denied but never refuted by that organization and a thorough investigation of the matter should be made by the Dies Committee, it was declared in Washington this week by Representative W. P. Lambertson (Rep., Kans.). He asserted he was in possession of "some startling" information on the entry of Communists into key positions in the entertainment profession, and incorporated in the Congressional Record letters exchanged between himself and Paul Dullzell of Equity, and others.

The correspondence disclosed that on July 9, the association adopted a motion denying Communist control or domination and requesting the Congressman to offer proof to the contrary, but that Mr. Lambertson's request for the names of those voting for and against the resolution never has been complied with.

Representative Lambertson made it clear that not all officers and members of the actors' organization were opposed to investigation and related that he had been advised by several that he "was on the right track."

Jay Leyda, of the staff of the Film Library of the Museum of Modern Art and an authority on the Soviet cinema, reported on a vacation for August, resigned this week. Mr. Leyda is listed among the editors of a quarterly entitled Films, published in New York.

PURCHASED PRESSURE

For some months now the food industry has been expecting attack on similar grounds.

This seems to be an element that was not written into the Government's motion picture suit. But if the contention is supportable it would seem inevitably to apply to those methods of picture merchandising which tend to make it necessary to the exhibitor to book the product regardless of terms, or at terms backed by a pressure that has been bought by address to the public.

The exhibitors of the motion picture in this 1940 have had, if not enjoyed, precisely that experience in the case of one picture, and are subject in varying degrees to the same pattern of pressure concerning other products. That has come about through devices which seek to take the retail selling away from the retailer and make him buy the selling along with the film.

Straw Votes

IN this year of Presidential election, the motion picture newsreel theatre also will report on the strawvoting of the public. Embassy Newsreel Theatres, in New York, are in the second week of balloting. As of 4:00 P. M., Wednesday, Willkie was running ahead. He had 8,840 votes against Roosevelt's 8,064.

Major A. G. Rudd, managing director of the company's Embassy Newsreel, at Longacre Square, and of its Radio City Newsreel in Rockefeller Center, devised an arrangement, where, under the eyes of Democratic and Republican "watchers," any patron, on purchasing a ticket, may vote by selecting an "I'm for Willkie," or "I'm for Roosevelt" button. Each button is a vote.

At the Embassy, in the Broadway sector, they were voting: Roosevelt, 6,774, Willkie, 5,900; at the Radio City, it was Willkie, 2,940, Roosevelt, 1,290—as of Wednesday afternoon.

In the ten days of the "balloting," reports Major Budd, there has been little change in the ratio at either theatre. Balloting is expected to continue through the campaign.

The newsreel circuit's newsreel houses at 72nd Street and Broadway, New York, and in Newark, Chicago and San Francisco, will shortly start balloting for straw votes in what the sponsors expect will be the most comprehensive cross-section of political opinion gathered by newsreel theatres in a Presidential campaign.

Rentals Up

A TOTAL of forty-seven per cent of pictures under contract this season to the average first run exhibitor member of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners required the payment of higher rentals to distributors than those contracted for the year before; subsequent run exhibitors had to pay an increase of 25 per cent of the product bought.

Further disclosures from answers submitted by members to a questionnaire on product policies, procedure and contracts of distributors, as circulated by the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, include the facts that 75 per cent of the independent first runs and 90 per cent of the subsequents were "forced" to buy short subjects in order to obtain a supply of features, and 90 per cent of the first runs and 83 per cent of the subsequents were compelled to purchase newsreels with feature contracts.

Earlier details of the investigation appeared in Motion Picture Herald, August 3rd, page 13, representing answers from 70 per cent of the Pacific Coast Conference total membership, this group operating 445 theatres.

Progress

MURRAY SILVERSTONE, chief of worldwide operations of United Artists (official title), returned to company headquarters in New York on Wednesday, from Hollywood, to where he had traveled ten days before to confer specifically with producer-partner Charles Spencer Chaplin on the release of Mr. Chaplin's much-revised, much-discussed, much-delayed new motion picture. Mr. Silverstone did return with word that erstwhile "Chaplin Production Number 6," alias "Dictator" and "The Dictator," will finally and positively emerge as "The Great Dictator"—when and as.

Nazi Ambitions

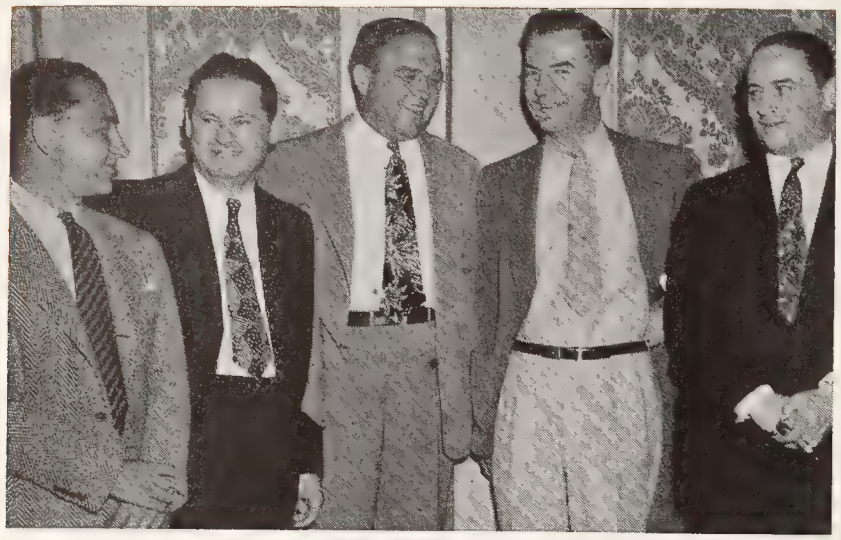
THE prospect of Germany supplying dubbed versions of 220 pictures for circulation in France and other Nazi-occupied territory, as reported in a cabled dispatch from a New York Times Paris correspondent this week, was dismissed as improbable Wednesday by foreign department executives recently returned to New York from the Continent.

In the first place, these authorities asserted, Germany does not have that number of pictures on hand which would be acceptable in any commercial sense to the populations of the occupied territories; secondly, the cost of dubbing even a fraction of that number of films in the languages of the occupied countries would be virtually prohibitive.

Several of the New York foreign department executives reasserted their belief that if, as seems to be the case, Germany is desirous of keeping theatres open in occupied territories, American product will have to be utilized to a major extent.

Loew's and 20th Century-Fox on Wednesday sent protests to the U. S. State Department at Washington against the banning of their films by Germany from occupied territory on the Continent. The protests set forth that the banned films were being distributed in full compliance with the laws, had been submitted to censors and approved.

Checking Features



THE Ross Federal Service, on August 1st, reassumed, under contract, the responsibility of checking percentage bookings for Warner Pictures.

The big eight at one time had only Ross checkers clock admissions on percentage pictures. Five years ago, Warners established its own checking system, and was followed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The latter now is the only large distributor operating its own checking service.

Eighteen of Warners' staff of checkers have been absorbed by Ross.

U. S. CONSIDERS "FINAL" DRAFT OF DECREE WHILE MAJORS STILL DIFFER

Further Negotiations Guaranteed by Washington as Paramount and 20th Century-Fox Balk at Escape Clause

Mid-week, and probably the week-end too, found the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice behind a white stone facade in sweltering Pennsylvania Avenue, with a "last draft" of a consent decree in the motion picture trust suit before it—and the question of what next?

Actually it was a consent decree for only three defendants, MGM, RKO and Warners.

Back in New York, Paramount was still considering and the board of directors of Twentieth Century-Fox was looking it over with a recommendation before it. And the while the "isolationists" of "Little Three," Columbia, United Artists and Universal, without exhibition affiliates, were standing pat against participation in a decree.

Rejection Reported

Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th-Fox, was reported Wednesday to have recommended rejection of the proposed terms. Paramount's position, it was said, paralleled that of Mr. Kent.

Both companies, it was reported, based their objections on the escape clause and both will demand that this provision be rewritten along with certain other clauses. One obstacle to this might be objections by the three distributors who already have agreed, in principle to the decree.

Meanwhile in Washington an official spokesman at the Department of Justice observed: "Anyone who believes that the final draft has been written is mistaken. Further negotiations are necessary."

It was further explained on Wednesday that "the question of whether a decree would be accepted with only three or four signatories had not come up, because the matter had not yet reached that point." It was indicated, however, that in the past, the Department has accepted a consent decree from part of the respondents in a trust action and proceeded against non-signatories with trial.

Robert Sher, special assistant attorney general, last of the Government counsel to leave the scene of negotiations, arrived in Washington late Monday, carrying the draft with him, and on Tuesday afternoon he formally turned over the document to the Department.

Wednesday, the Government's lawyers who had arrived at the principle of settlement with distributors, started conferences with their superiors, out of which meetings Thurman Arnold and associate U. S. anti-trust leaders are to decide whether the document as drafted under date of August 3rd is acceptable to the United States Government in the action it has pending in Federal Court in New York. Text of the "draft in general principle" appears in adjoining columns.

Special U. S. Attorney Sher also took with him to the Department of Justice, on Tuesday, formal notification from the lawyers of Loew - Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Warner-Vitagraph, that each of those defendants had agreed in principle, "though not in particulars," to the decree.

In New York, the managements of both of the remaining two of the five distributor-circuit defendants were weighing their positions.

Loew's, RKO and Warners, the only three consenting to date, are the only distributor-circuit owners of the "Big Five" which have full control of and supervision over their individual theatre operations. Paramount is a partner in 1,200 theatres over which its partners exercise autonomy in operation. National Theatres, the Fox Film circuit affiliate, is 42 per cent controlled by the distributor, the majority control and supervision, through Spyros and Charles Skouras, resting in Chase National Bank.

The "draft in general principle" now in the hands of the Department of Justice was the second to reach general circulation among the defendant executives, other than their negotiating lawyers. The first document to be submitted to them, under date of July 17th, was individually returned by the companies with "suggestions" for alterations, and out of those emerged the present draft, containing one additional section, "Escape Clause," allowing consent decree signatories to petition the Federal Court for relief from certain of the decree's clauses when non-signatories are proven to have taken advantage of their film selling position as non-signatories.

Also included in the latest document is a section entitled "Arbitration Machinery," which was the work of one negotiating attorney and does not necessarily represent the opinion either of the Department's or the defendant's attorney negotiators. (See page 14).

Trade Showings, Blocks of Five

Continuing over from the previous drafts and into the "draft in general principle," despite objections of Paramount's circuit partners, and others, is the provision requiring distributors to screen features in advance and to confine features sales to blocks of five.

The clause providing a "remedy" for distribution against independently operated theatres, also complained of, has since been given a new meaning. It would require the independent exhibitor who has a complaint of product discrimination and who seeks arbitration of his complaint to have been in business within the five years prior to July 20, 1940; that he or his theatre has within the five years made a demand in writing upon the distributor for the product concerned. There are other conditions, too.

Text of Decree Agreed To "In Principle"

Negotiations between the Department of Justice and some of the defendants in the Government's trust action in New York resulted in the drafting of a consent decree "in general principle", to which Loew's, Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Warner Brothers have subscribed. The document, on Tuesday, reached the Department of Justice, in Washington, for its consideration, the while the decisions of Paramount and Twentieth Century-Fox continued in abeyance.

The first nine of the ten sections of the draft were the result of negotiations running over two months. Section X, on arbitration, represents the work of one attorney, and does not necessarily represent the opinion of either the Government or any of the company defendants.

The text of the document as submitted to Washington follows:

I. Elimination of Blind Selling

No distributor shall lease or offer for lease: (1) a feature, (2) motion picture film for a public exhibition within the United States of America and the District of Columbia at which an admission fee is charged until the film has been trade shown, (3) within the exchange district, (4) as presently constituted, in which the public exhibition is to be held. Every trade showing shall be preceded by a notice published in a trade publication, (5) having general circulation among exhibitors in such exchange district, which shall state the title of the film and the date and the time and the place or places where the film will be trade shown.

(1) The term lease includes the making of a license, agreement, contract or any type of agreement whereby a feature motion picture film is to be supplied by a distributor directly or indirectly to an exhibitor to be exhibited in a theater for public performance.

(2) A feature motion picture film is a motion picture which is approximately 5,000 feet, or more, in length, hereinafter sometimes referred to as "features" or "feature pictures" or "pictures," and which has not been released in the United States prior to September 1, 1941.

(3) A trade showing is an exhibition of a motion picture film at a theater or projection room for the benefit of exhibitors generally, prior to the lease or offer to lease of a feature for public exhibition.

(4) Each company shall file a map showing the territory covered by each exchange district as presently constituted.

(5) Trade publication means a daily or weekly newspaper or magazine which is devoted primarily to news concerning the motion picture industry.

II. Limitation on the Lease of Pictures Which Have Been Trade Shown

(a) No distributor shall lease or offer for lease more than five features in a single group. Any distributor may in offering its features for licensing change the combinations of trade shown features in groups as it may from time to time determine; and may lease or offer for lease as many groups of trade shown features as it may from time to time determine provided that the lease of one group of features shall not be conditioned upon the lease of another feature or group of features.

(b) No exhibitor shall be required to lease short subjects, newsreels, trailers, or serials (herein collectively referred to in this article as "shorts") as a condition of leasing features. No exhibitor shall be required to lease re-issues, westerns, or foreigns (hereinafter collectively referred to in this article as "foreigns"*) as a condition of leasing other features.

Controversies arising upon a complaint by an exhibitor that the leasing of one group of features was conditioned upon the leasing of another feature or group of features or the leasing of shorts or foreigns shall be subject to arbitration. An exhibitor shall have no right to assert any claim that the leasing of such features was so conditioned unless he shall have mailed to the distributor at its Home Office notice in writing of such claim and the grounds therefor not later than two days after notification to exhibitor of distributor's approval of exhibitor's signed application for such features, shorts and foreigns. The power of arbitrators in any such dispute shall be limited to (1) a finding as to whether or not the leasing of such features was so conditioned; and if the finding be in the affirmative, then (2) an award cancelling the license agreement or agreements for (or to the extent that they may relate to) such additional feature or group of features, "shorts" or "foreigns."

(c) Cancellation for Cause. An exhibitor may cancel out of any group of features leased by him, any picture which is generally offensive in the locality served by his theatre on moral, religious or racial grounds, provided written notice of his election to cancel together with a statement of his reasons therefor shall be mailed to the Home Office of the distributor not later than seven days after the contract has been executed. Any distributor may arbitrate the question of whether any picture is in fact generally offensive in the locality served on moral, religious or racial grounds.

Westerns are those western pictures which are not of the usual character and type of, and are inexpensively produced as compared with, the distributor's general line of features. Foreigns are features produced outside of the United States except such as are produced in the English language by the distributor or a subsidiary or affiliate thereof.*

III. Leasing of Feature Motion Pictures in Exchange Districts

No license for features to be exhibited in theaters located in any exchange district shall include theaters located in another exchange district, as from time to time constituted, nor shall the leasing of features in one exchange district be conditioned upon the leasing of a feature or group of features in another exchange district.

Changes in the territory embraced within a particular exchange district shall be made only after two weeks' notice to the Department of Justice.*

IV. Pictures Available on Some Run

Controversies arising upon a complaint by an exhibitor that a distributor has refused to lease its pictures contrary to the provisions of this section shall be subject to arbitration. Distributors shall not refuse to lease their pictures on some run to be designated by the distributors for exhibition in any situation provided that the exhibitor can satisfy reasonable minimum standards of theater operation and the exhibitor is reputable and responsible, unless the granting of a run on any terms to the complaining exhibitor will prejudice the distributor's business interests in the area where the complainant's theater is located. If the arbitrator finds that a distributor has refused to lease its pictures contrary to the provisions of this section he shall issue an award directing the distributor to offer its pictures for license to the complaining exhibitor for a run to be designated by the distributor upon terms and conditions fixed by the distributor which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of this section. The burden of showing that granting a run on any terms to the complaining exhibitor will prejudice the distributor's business interests in the area where the complainant's theater is located shall be upon the distributor.

V. Arbitration of Clearance Disputes

Disputes as to clearance shall be subject to arbitration under the following provisions:

Clearance, as used in this section, shall be deemed to mean the period of time which must elapse between the successive runs of a motion picture in a given area, pursuant to the express provisions of a license agreement.

It is recognized that clearance, reasonable as to time and area, is essential in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures.

[The clause on a distributor's right to select its own customer and designate the run is omitted from this draft and is to be inserted in clauses containing general reservation.]

In determining whether any clearance complained of is unreasonable, the arbitrators shall take into consideration the following factors and accord to them the importance and weight to which each is entitled, regardless of the order in which they are listed:

(1) The historical development of clearance in the particular area wherein the theaters involved are located.

(2) The admission prices of the theaters involved.

(3) The character and location of the theaters involved, including size, type of entertainment appointments, transit facilities, etc.

(4) The policy of operation of the theaters involved, such as the showing of double features, gift nights, give-aways, premiums, cut rate tickets, lotteries, etc.

(5) The rental terms and license fees paid by the theaters involved and the revenues derived by the distributor from such theaters.

(6) The extent to which the theaters involved compete with each other for patronage.

(7) All other business considerations, provided that the fact that a theater involved is affiliated with a distributor or a chain of theaters, shall be disregarded.

The power of the arbitrator in any dispute relating to clearance shall be limited to:

(1) a finding as to whether or not the clearance complained of is unreasonable, and if the finding be in the affirmative, then,

(2) an award fixing the maximum amount of clearance which may be granted in all license agreements thereafter entered into.

In any case where there has been a reduction in clearance by an award of the arbitrator any distributor or exhibitor affected by such an award may thereafter petition for a modification of the maximum clearance fixed by the award, and if it shall be shown that since the making of such an award the conditions in respect of the theaters involved in the award have so changed as to warrant modifications thereof. then such award shall be modified accordingly.

VI. Unreasonably Withholding Prints

In booking prints for exhibition by exhibitors competing on the same run in the same exchange territory, the distributor shall not withhold delivery of prints available in the exchange from one exhibitor in order to give a competing exhibitor a prior playing date not provided for in its exhibition contract. It is recognized that distributors must be permitted discretion in the ordinary course of booking and distributing films in an exchange when too few prints are available in the exchange for the playing date desired by two or more theaters. In such cases this section shall have no application.

Violations of this section shall be subject to arbitration and, if the arbitrator finds that the distributor has pursued a policy of withholding available prints in violation of this section, he shall enter an award directing the distributor to discontinue such policy.

VII. Remedy for Discrimination Against Independently Operated Theatres

Controversies arising upon a complaint by an independent exhibitor that subsequent to the commencement of the method of selling set forth in sections 1. 2a and 2b hereof. a defendant distributor has arbitrarily refused to license its features for exhibition on the run requested by said exhibitor in one of said exhibitor's theaters which was in existence or which replaced* a theater in existence at the date of this decree shall be subject to arbitration. An independent exhibitor, as used in this section, is one wholly independent of any circuit of more than five theaters and not affiliated either by stock ownership, common buying or otherwise with a circuit of more than five theaters or with a buying combine or common buying agent negotiating for more than five theaters.

A replacement is a theatre which was erected in the same neighborhood as one which was destroyed or permanently abandoned as a theatre, for the purpose of succeeding to its patronage. If the replacing theatre has a seating capacity more than 25 per cent greater than that of the theatre replaced, it shall not be entitled to the benefits of this section.*

Findings

In any such arbitration no award shall be made against a distributor unless the arbitrator shall first find the following facts:

(1) That the complainant is an independent exhibitor as defined in this section and that the theater operated by him and specified in his complaint was in existence at the date of the decree or replaced such a theater;

(2) That such refusal of the distributor continued during a period of not less than three successive months;

(3) That the distributor has during such period, licensed the feature pictures requested by the complaining exhibitor on the run requested by him to a theater which is a component of a circuit of not less than 15 theaters and which is in competition with the theater specified in the exhibitor's complaint;

(4) That the complainant's theater has not available to it feature pictures sufficient in nature and quantity to enable it to operate on the run requested by the complainant.

(5) That

(a) The complaining exhibitor has operated the theater specified in his complaint subsequent to July 20, 1935, and prior to July 20, 1940, on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theater specified in the complaint; or

(b) The complaining exhibitor has subsequent to July 20, 1935, and prior to July 20, 1940, demanded in writing features for the theater specified in his complaint from the distributor complained against on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theater specified in the complaint; or

(c) The complaining exhibitor operated his said theater for at least one year prior to the entry of this decree and subsequent to July 20, 1935, and prior to July 20, 1940, a prior operator of said theater demanded in writing features from the distributor defendant complained against on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theater specified in the complaint.

(6) That the refusal to license the exhibition of said pictures in the complainant's theater was in fact because the theater licensed to exhibit them on the run requested by the complainant was a component part of such circuit of theaters.

The arbitrator, in determining whether the exhibitor's complaint is established by the evidence, shall take into consideration, among other things: the terms offered by the two competing theaters, the seating capacity of each of said theaters; their respective capacities for producing revenue for the distributor, their character, appearance and condition, including their furnishings, equipment and conveniences; their location; the character and extent of the area and population each serves; the competitive conditions in the area in which they are operated; their comparative suitability* for exhibition of the distributor's pictures on the run requested; the character and ability of their management and their reputation generally in the industry and in the community for showmanship, honesty and fair dealing; the policy under which the theaters involved have been operated and under which the complaining theater proposes to operate if it obtains the run requested; the financial responsibility of their owners and operators; and any equities arising out of the distributor's prior relations with the two theaters involved.

In considering this factor in situations where the exhibitor customarily operates two or more theaters on the same run in the same situation as a unit by contracting for blocks of features on an "or" basis and by exhibiting each feature in a particular theatre which, because of its characteristics, operating policy, or admission prices, is most suitable for exhibition of the particular feature, all of such theatres may be considered collectively as a unit.*

Award

If in any such arbitration the arbitrator finds for the complaining exhibitor, he may enter an award against the distributor which shall not affect the license to exhibit any feature picture then under contract but shall prohibit it from thereafter leasing

EXHIBITORS RULE AGAINST EXHIBITOR

Lewis Goldstein, operator of the Capitol Theatre, Los Angeles, must play all unused product from Twentieth Century-Fox, which he booked for the 1939-40 season, under a ruling of three voluntary, neutral arbitrators, exhibitors Al Galfton and Frank Drew, and Norman Newman of the Columbia exchange in that city. It is said to be the first film arbitration case in that territory, without aid of an established trade practice or conciliation board. The territory, in fact, is alone in the country in having voluntary local arbitration, and satisfactorily, under the sponsorship of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners.

ESCAPE CLAUSE, CIRCUIT CONTROL

its features for exhibition on the run requested in the circuit theater specified in the complaint otherwise than by a separate contract or agreement which shall not be a part of any contract or agreement for the licensing of features to any other theater or conditioned upon the licensing of features for exhibition in any other theater.

Proceedings Subsequent to Award

After a final award has been made in favor of a complaining exhibitor under this section, such exhibitor may institute a further arbitration proceeding to be held before the arbtrator who entered the original award, if available, upon the ground that such award has not in good faith been complied with by a distributor against whom it was entered. If in any such proceeding the arbitrator finds that the distributor has not in good faith complied with the original award, the arbitrator may award damages to the exhibitor for loss resulting from the distributor's failure to comply with the original award. Any award of damages hereunder shall be purely compensatory, but in the case of first-run exhibition shall not exceed the amount of rentals received by the offending distributor from the circuit for its features licensed for exhibition in violation of the award, and in the case of subsequent-run exhibition shall not exceed twice the amount of such rentals.

Proceedings for an award of damages for violation of the original award must be commenced within sixty days after such violation has occurred, by filing with the arbitrator and serving upon the distributor a statement and specification of the facts constituting each violation for which damages are sought and of the exhibitor's damages resulting from such violation. There shall be no award of damages in any such proceeding for any violation of the original award of which complaint is not so filed and served within said period, but prior violations may, in any such proceeding, be considered by the arbitrator as evidence bearing upon the question of the distributor's good faith.

VIII. Acquisitions of or Changes with Respect to Theatres in Which Defendants Are Interested

(1) Each of the defendants will notify the Department of Justice immediately of any legally binding commitment for the acquisition by it* of any additional theater or theaters.

(2) Each defendant will also report to the Department of Justice on or before the tenth day of each month the changes in its theater position, if any, that have occurred during the preceding month, which shall include:

(a) Theaters contracted to be built or building;
(b) Theaters lost or disposed of;
(c) Theaters acquired;
(d) Interest in theaters acquired, stating the nature and extent of such interests;
(e) A statement of the reasons for such changes.

(3) If upon receipt of such information the Department of Justice requests further information with respect to any of the above transactions, such defendant will make a reasonable effort to supply such information promptly; provided, however, that no information furnished shall be divulged by any representative of the Department of Justice to any person other than a duly authorized representative of the Department of Justice, except in the course of legal proceedings to which the United States is a party or as otherwise required by law.

(4) For a period of three years following the entry of this decree, no defendant shall enter upon a general program of expanding its theater holdings. Nothing herein shall prevent any defendant from acquiring theaters or interests therein to protect its investment or its competitive position or for ordinary purposes of its business. Proceedings based on a violation of this sub-paragraph 4 of section 8 shall be only by application to the Court for injunctive relief against the corporate defendant complained against, which shall be limited to restraining the acquisition of or ordering the divestiture of the theaters or interests therein, if any, about to be acquired or acquired in violation of this section.

IX. Escape Clause

At any time after June 1, 1942, any defendant may move to vacate the provisions of sections 1, 2a and 2b of this decree by filing an application under oath stating that during any constructive nine months period preceding the filing of such application either (1) two or more distributors of motion picture films operating on a national exchange basis have leased their feature motion pictures* other than in accordance with the provisions of sections 1 and 2a of this decree or (2) 45 or more feature motion picture films have been leased other than in accordance with the provisions of sections 1 and 2a hereof. The petitioner and the other defendants who have signed the decree shall be served with notice of the filing of such application.

Upon such application, the Court shall enter an order relieving the defendants of further compliance with the provisions of section 1, 2a and 2b of this decree, but not before August 31, 1942, unless within 60 days after service of such application the petitioner shall establish to the satisfaction of the Court that during said nine months period (1) more than 72 per cent of the total gross income from licenses for the exhibition of motor pictures in the United States, excluding the gross income of State rights exchanges, has been derived from pictures leased by the defendants bound by this decree; and (2) the applicant distributor's percentage of the total gross income from licenses for the exhibition of motion pictures in the United States distributed by it and by all distributors not bound by this decree, excluding State rights exchanges, has not decreased more than 5 per cent of the percentage which such distributor's total revenues for the calendar years 1937, 1938 and 1939 is to the total for said three years of such distributor's revenue and the revenue of all distributors not bound by this decree, excluding State rights exchanges.

Each distributor subject to this decree agrees that upon the request of the Department of Justice it will furnish promptly all information and data which reasonably is required for the purpose of this paragraph.

*"Feature motion pictures" as used in this section shall not include "Westerns" and "Foreigns".*

X. Arbitration Machinery

(a) Selection of neutral arbitrators. A panel of not less than 10 neutral arbitrators for each exchange district shall be designated by the American Arbitration Association. Neutral arbitrators shall not have any past or present connection with the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures nor any interest in any theater, as either landlord, lessor or otherwise. The neutral arbitrators shall be paid at the rate of $..... per diem when hearing a case.

(b) Arbitration appeal board. There shall be an arbitration appeal board consisting of 3 members appointed by the Court, each of whom shall be a person of known impartiality and distinction. One member shall be designated by the Court as chairman of the board. The jurisdiction of the board shall be to hear and determine appeals. Members of the appeal board shall be compensated on an annual basis. The chairman shall be paid $..... Other board members shall be paid $..... The Appeal Board shall sit and its offices shall be located in Washington, D. C.

(c) Arbitration procedure. An exhibitor who has the right to arbitrate under any of the provisions of this decree may require the distributor to arbitrate the controversy, giving notice to the Secretary of the Arbitration Board located within his district. The parties to the controversy shall mutually agree upon a neutral arbitrator from the panel established for the exchange district in which the theater of the complaining exhibitor is located. If the parties cannot agree on the choice of a neutral arbitrator from the panel within a reasonable time, the American Arbitration Association shall select a neutral arbitrator from the panel.

(d) Costs of arbitration. The arbitrator shall award costs against either party or apportion them among the parties as he may deem proper. Costs shall be limited to the arbitrator's fee and the filing fee.

(e) Administration of arbitration machinery. The maintenance and functioning of the arbitration offices and personnel in each exchange district shall be under the jurisdiction of the American Arbitration Association. Among the responsibilities of the American Arbitration Association, it shall have the duty of budgeting the cost of operating the arbitration machinery, renting and maintaining offices, engaging personnel, etc. The American Arbitration Association shall prepare a budget setting forth the maximum annual cost of the arbitration machinery, which shall be submitted to the Department of Justice for its approval. Any increase in the amounts so fixed shall be made only after a majority of the companies have approved, except that the Court may, on the application of the petition, order such an increase if it finds that such increase is necessary for the effective operation of the arbitration machinery.

(f) Financing. The cost of the arbitration machinery shall be met out of a fund made up of (1)..... per cent of the gross receipts of each distributor and (2) a reasonable filing fee for each arbitration proceeding to be paid by the party filing the complaint.

The first nine sections of the proposed consent decree are the result of long negotiations, and have been tentatively accepted by some of the companies. The tenth section, on arbitration, is the work of one attorney and does not necessarily represent any unified opinion of the negotiators.

Films Increase Sales of Books

For some time observers have noticed that a successful motion picture based on a novel increases, or renews reader interest in the original book. The New York Public Library has been attempting to measure the actual increase in book circulation after the release of an outstanding film. Their survey on "Gone With the Wind" shows that 60 branches of the library in New York had 483 copies of "Wind" before the New York opening and now they have 617, an increase of 134 copies. In addition some 2,000 readers could not secure a copy when wanted and filed reservation blanks.

Last Fall another film-book survey was conducted by Gretchen J. Garrison, public relations, N. Y. Library. It was on "Wuthering Heights" and an increase of 34 per cent in the number of copies after the release date was noted.

The last annual report of the librarian of the Chicago public libraries credited a rise of 600,000 in book circulation to motion pictures.

"Wrath" Restored to Library

After a ban of 11 months, the board of education in Kansas City has restored "The Grapes of Wrath" to public library circulation on a restricted basis. The library's 13 copies of the John Steinbeck novel were ordered removed from circulation last August.

New Circuit

Planning a new Texas aggregration, P. R. Isley and W. P. Moran have purchased the Texas Theatre, Fort Worth, a second run. The two men were formerly with the Southwestern Theatres, Inc., operating in Oklahoma, Missouri, and Kansas.

Standard Announces Policy Change in Oklahoma City

New exhibition policies announced this week by Standard Theatres Corporation of Oklahoma City, Okla., will provide that city with six first run theatres, five in the downtown sector, thus bringing new screen product to Oklahoma City shortly after release dates. Second week holdovers had begun to cause a log jam in Standard's bookings.

The Warner theatre, for the last several years a double bill, subsequent run house, has inaugurated a double feature first run schedule; the Liberty's policy of double feature first run will not be changed; the Tower likewise will continue its present policy, which is first run single features, but the Plaza, a holdover first run, will be used for subsequent showings only. The Criterion and Midwest, downtown first runs, also will be Standard circuit's single bill first run houses.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

The twenty-fifth year of the modern screen
and
in its journalistic service

THAT YEAR OF 1915 when Martin Quigley came into the world of the screen, was like this 1940 of the twenty-fifth anniversary, a year of great problems, too, for the motion picture. It was a war year, first year of the war that now again tears at civilization—a civilization the screen has helped to make, and which it now helps to defend.

NOW, too, the motion picture must consider well its own defense in days when it is on trial, both before the public as an art and before social and political authority as an industry.

Fortuitously, the custodians, great and small, so called to accounting, may now find both occasion and voice in the medium, accepted and authoritative, built through the years of approved service and as part of the industry.

This year of 1940 is a time of taking inventory and gathering new courage for the years to come. It is to be given significant expression, with reaffirmations of faith, in the twenty-fifth anniversary edition of Martin Quigley's Motion Picture Herald, under date of Sept. 14, 1940

No other institution of the motion picture has survived so long, or so continuously grown, under a single administration and with a single basic policy—service.

ILLINOIS ALLIED RENEWS DEMAND THAT MAJORS END MULTI-FILM BILLS

Kirsch in Wires to RKO, Paramount, Small Asks Cooperation to End "Evil"; Kansas City Test Ended

The unceasing, militant, and vituperative fight against double and triple features in Chicago continued this week with the sending of telegrams to executives of film companies by Allied Illinois Theatres through its crusading president, Jack Kirsch, demanding that the distributors and producers in Hollywood exert pressure to bring an end to multi-film programs.

At a board meeting of Allied, in Chicago, full support was voted Mr. Kirsch by the directors in his fight to eliminate double and triple bills.

RKO Clause Cited

Immediately after the meeting telegrams were dispatched to Ned Depinet, head of RKO, in New York, to Y. Frank Freeman, of Paramount and Edward Small, in Hollywood. In the wire to Mr. Depinet Mr. Kirsch reiterated that paragraph nineteen of the 1930-40 and 1940-41 RKO contracts had a stipulation which gave RKO the right to require that five features of its entire release be used on single bill programs.

[In the RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., 1940-41 contract, in that section pertaining to "single feature programs," the following words appear:

"Nineteenth. If the Distributor shall feel that any picture licensed under this agreement is peculiarly suited for single feature exhibition, because of the subject matter of such picture, the length of the picture, or for any other reason, the Distributor shall have the right to require that such picture be shown on a single feature program and will notify the Exhibitor to that effect at the time of sending the notice of availability of such picture. The Distributor, however, shall not designate more than five (5) such pictures out of the entire number licensed hereunder."]

Mr. Kirsch pointedly asked Mr. Depinet, in the telegram, why, if the contract could be legal with a clause for five pictures, the entire product could not be included.

Explaining the purpose of the wire Mr. Kirsch made the following statement:

Awaits Answer

"It is quite certain and obvious that the attorneys for RKO are sufficiently informed of the laws pertaining to contracts that unless such a clause was entirely legal and enforceable, it would not be embodied in such a contract.

"Then," he continued, "if it is legal for five pictures, why, if the company is anxious to eliminate double and triple bills, does it not increase the number of pictures from the five as specified to the entire product. To date I have not heard from Mr. Depinet, but I hope to have an answer shortly," he concluded.

To Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of production for Paramount, Mr. Kirsch also dispatched a wire.

The telegram took exception to a remark attributed to Mr. Freeman, which appeared in a trade paper recently.

According to the statement in the paper, Mr. Freeman was quoted as saying that the most wasteful unit in the motion picture industry was the exhibitor and also deploring the use of two top pictures on dual bills.

Mr. Kirsch, challenged the truth of the first portion of Mr. Freeman's remarks, and then cited the case of the Belmont theatre in Chicago where, he said, a recent triple bill included "My Son, My Son," "Irene" and "Typhoon," the latter a Paramount picture.

The telegram asked Mr. Freeman, because of his position with Paramount, to aid Allied Illinois in eliminating a condition which Mr. Kirsch said, is doing untold harm to the industry.

Small Petitioned in Third Wire

Edward Small, producer associated with United Artists, also received a wire. Mr. Kirsch reminded him that he recently had been quoted as opposed to double and triple feature programs. The Belmont program which included Mr. Small's "My Son, My Son" again was cited and Mr. Kirsch pointed out that the combined running time of the three features was four hours and forty minutes, exclusive of trailers, newsreels and short subjects.

Mr. Small was asked to lend his aid to Allied to attempt to stop this type of program.

A conference between Mr. Kirsch and members of his board resulted in a planned campaign to attempt to stop the showing of double and triple bills in Chicago.

As outlined, the first step will be the compilation of a list of social agencies, leading educators, both child and adult, and the various local civic organizations. The plan calls for the preparation of a questionaire containing several questions concerning double and triple feature programs, with a request that the questions be answered and returned in an enclosed self-addressed envelope.

"If I personally have to send telegrams, letters and make phone calls to each and every executive of the film companies who is in a position to aid us in this fight, I'll do so to bring home to them the realization that unless they cooperate the industry will become so ill that not even a transfusion or an oxygen tent will help," Mr. Kirsch said.

"The fight against double and triples of course will gain added impetus if the result of the poll indicates that a majority of persons and organizations polled express themselves as being against dual and triple bills.

"But we'll still continue to fight to do two things—eliminate double and triples, and at the same time attempt to persuade the producer and distributor to join our fight. In the end I'm sure we'll win," he concluded.

Kansas City Ends Single Test

The four-week experiment with single bills on week-end changes was ended Sunday, August 4th by Kansas City, Kansas, subsequent run houses, although results of the experiment were said to be satisfactory, according to Jack Truitt, manager of the first-run Electric, and president of the Kansas City, Kas., Theatre Owners Association.

Some of the exhibitors will continue singling voluntarily, but the group believed that because of possible weak product between now and the fall they should forego the test until then. In the meantime some of the houses will voluntarily continue to single on week-ends. This includes the first run Granada and Electric, which did not participate in the single bill test.

If new product in the fall is as strong as producers say it is, the experiment will be revived, say the owners.

Another factor in the decision to forego the test temporarily is the 25-cent night balcony price in Kansas City, Mo., first runs, some of which double bill. Kansas City, Mo., first runs still have the same protection over Kansas City, Kas., houses as they used to have when 40 cents was the universal night price.

Those participating in the experiment (Jayhawk, Midway, Park, Osage, Home, Tenth Street and Gauntier) reported that business on singles was in some cases better than a year ago; in some cases not quite so good, but that receipts actually reflected only a seasonal drop. They said they were satisfied with grosses during the test.

Canadian Exhibitors Challenge Producers to Try "Unit" Shows

A "challenge" to the American motion picture industry to try unit shows—packages of one quality feature and one complementary short feature—was delivered this week, via open letter, from the Independent Theatres Association, of Canada, to the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. The letter, signed by H. A. Alexander, president of the Association, and N. A. Taylor, its vice-president, suggested the idea as a cure for the double feature "evil" and proposed that both pictures be sold together, part of the rental covering the smaller feature; that their combined length not exceed two hours; and that the exhibitor be allowed to complete the program with a newsreel or cartoon.

The effect to a producer, said the two Association officials, would be that:

"Your show will not be double-billed.

"The running time of your show will enable theatres to get a better turnover.

"A great deal of business which is now being lost because people have seen one picture of a double bill will be regained.

"Better business will result.

"Better rentals will accrue to you.

"Better showmanship will result, all around.

"A better motion picture industry will be born."

Eastman Profit Up $1,000,000

Consolidated net profit of Eastman Kodak Company amounted to $9,179,170 for the six-month period ended June 15th, it was reported Wednesday. The report did not include profits of companies and branches in the British Isles, continental Europe, Africa and Asia. Known losses from the excluded areas were deducted.

Net profit for the same period last year was $8,688,870 for all subsidiaries, and $8,070,457 for the same companies as included in this year's report. Earnings are equivalent to $3.63 per share of common stock after deductions for preferred dividends. This compares with $3.43 for all companies for the same period last year. Sales volume in the United States rose 7.82 per cent to $48,042,343 during the period and total volume in all companies accounted for was $57,015,524, an increase of 4.18 per cent.

According to reports received by the company, premises and stocks of subsidiaries and branches located in war areas are intact and undamaged. Although profits of subsidiaries in certain territories are excluded, profits resulting from sales by the company to subsidiaries and branches are included.

New York Sunday Shows Advocated

Sunday legitimate theatre shows in New York City will be discussed by the Actors Equity Council at its next meeting, August 20th. New York stagehands' and musicians' locals have already recorded support of Sunday shows, now barred.

It was said by James R. Reilly, executive secretary of the League of New York Theatres, who placed the Sunday shows question before the council, that the stagehands' and musicians' unions had agreed to regard Sunday as a weekday, in the new season, not demanding extra pay.

In May of last year, Equity also discussed the question, deciding to submit it to a membership referendum, provided the craft unions waived their right to extra pay. The unions did not, and Equity didn't hold the referendum.

Masterpiece Exchange Changes Hands, Name

Masterpiece Film Exchange, independent exchange in Philadelphia, operated by Louis Korson for the past 25 years, passed out of existence Thursday, August 1st, when Mr. Korson retired.

Benny Harris, Masterpiece booker for the last 20 years, has acquired the accounts and opened the American Film Company. Lew Kelman, who operates a news photo service in Philadelphia, is a partner in the new exchange.

Famous Theatre Closed

One of the most famous old-time vaudeville theatres in Minneapolis, the Seventh Street theatre, has closed its doors to make way for a parking ramp. The theatre, known in the days of vaudeville as the Orpheum, was built 36 years ago. In late years the theatre had a subsequent run film policy.

REINSTATE WAR NEWS

Tri-States Theatres, Des Moines, has returned war news to its theatres after a week's trial without them. The circuit had polled its patrons in regard to the matter with the result about even. The circuit then decided to reinstate the war news.

In the "Cheer-up" week the circuit's Des Moines, Roosevelt and Paramount in Des Moines played "The Ghost Breakers" and "Andy Hardy Meets a Debutante" to excellent business.

Ginsberg Named Vice-President

Henry Ginsberg, executive assistant to Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of the Paramount studio, was elected a vice-president of the parent company at a meeting of the board of directors Thursday, August 1st, at the company's home office.

Mr. Ginsberg succeeds George L. Bagnall, who resigned recently. Mr. Ginsberg joined Paramount early this year after serving with Selznick International studio in the post of vice-president and general manager. He previously had been general sales manager of Preferred Pictures and general sales manager of Educational.

Mr. Ginsberg was also at one time connected with the Hal Roach studio and had been an exhibitor in eastern Pennsylvania.

Special Durbin Trailer

A two-reel featurette on the screen career of Deanna Durbin is now being completed at the Universal studio. A sort of special trailer, the film will be released prior to Miss Durbin's next feature, "Spring Parade." The company is sending Garret J. Lloyd on a tour of approximately 40 cities to arouse interest in "Spring Parade" and to show the featurette to Universal salesmen, exhibitors and film commentators.

Harris a Republican Elector

John H. Harris, president of the Harris Amusement Company, of Pittsburgh, of the Arena Managers' Association, and the National Chief Barker of the Variety Clubs of America, has been named by Republican presidential candidate Wendell Willkie a Republican elector for Pennsylvania. Mr. Harris is a nephew of former state senator Frank J. Harris, Allegheny County Republican chairman.

Rogatnick in New Post

Joseph Rogatnick, booker for the Universal exchange in Des Moines, has resigned to join the Department of Commerce in Washington.

Named Ross Manager

W. A. Warner has been promoted to Philadelphia branch manager of Ross Federal Research Corporation and Fred P. Fielding to sales manager of the branch.

$4,000,000 Atlas Film Investment

Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas Corporation, in a letter to stockholders on Tuesday, said that the company's investments in RKO and other major holdings "have generally shown satisfactory progress." The report showed a total of about $4,000,000 in motion picture securities out of net assets with a market value of $53,932,487.

About 75 per cent of the Atlas Corporation's film holdings, according to the report, consist of 832,418 shares of RKO common stock with a market value on June 30th of $2,497,256 and 327,811 option warrants for RKO common valued at $122,929 and 29,881 shares of RKO first preferred, valued at $1,075,725.

Other Atlas film securities include 3,400 shares of Paramount first preferred stock, valued at $231,200; 5,000 shares of Paramount second preferred, valued at $36,875 and 7,000 shares of common stock of General Theatres Equipment Corporation, valued at $64,750.

Atlas reported a net profit of $3,930,055 for the six-month period.

Members of Nick Union Fight for Autonomy

Twenty-two members of Local B-2 of the Motion Picture Operators' Union, of St. Louis, dominated at one time by John P. Nick, have filed a petition with William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council, asking that control of the union be turned over to the workers themselves. Local B-2 is composed of ushers, ticket takers, cashiers and other miscellaneous theatre employes and was organized in 1937 by Nick and Clyde Weston.

Nick and Weston have been ousted from control of the operators' union and are now facing federal prosecution.

Local B-2 members say they have paid into the treasury $23,000 and no accounting of funds has been made by the executive board. Furthermore, they say, the members have never been permitted to elect their own officers and the full membership of the executive board itself is unknown.

Too, appeals have been made to George E. Browne, head of the IATSE, for aid, "but we are still awaiting a reply," says the unionists.

Said the St. Louis Star-Times editorially: "The prevailing sentiment in this community will be to wish Local B-2 luck in its efforts to achieve equal success in smashing the Nick-Weston-Browne partnership in exploitation."

Robertson Withdraws from Mutual

James N. Robertson, vice president and treasurer of Mutual Theatres, Detroit booking combine, has resigned from the organization, selling his stock. Mr. Roberston, one of the oldest of Detroit exhibitors, is retiring.

There will be an examination-before-trial on August 15th, in New York Supreme Court, of Lee Shubert, in the $25,000 damage suit brought against the producer by Sidney Wilmer and Walter Vincent.

GOLDWYN-GALLUP SURVEY REPORTS 57% AGAINST DUALS, 43% IN FAVOR

Poll Shows Double Bills More Popular Among Persons Under 18 and Those in Lower Income Levels

A cross-section of American opinion in all of the country's seven geographical divisions and 48 states reports 57 per cent against the double featuring of motion pictures and 43 per cent in favor.

This is the result of the Goldwyn-Gallup double bill poll, reported Friday, at Princeton, New Jersey, by Dr. George Gallup, whose American Institue of Public Opinion conducted the poll, starting in mid-May, at the behest of Samuel Goldwyn, and undertaken and paid for by the 125 newspapers sponsoring the various surveys conducted by the American Institute.

Announced by Goldwyn

Mr. Goldwyn, arch opponent of duals, on Wednesday morning, May 15th, summoned the press to his suite in the towers of the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, to hear the announcement that he had induced Dr. Gallup to conduct an investigation of American opinion on the duals subject.

Although Mr. Goldwyn said he had "offered to pay for the poll out of his own pocket," Dr. Gallup, also present, told the reporters that double billing of features was a question of sufficient public interest to warrant an Institute poll.

Dr. Gallup disclosed at that time that 30,000 persons would be questioned—emphasizing that it was the cross-section and not the total number questioned that mattered.

Even if the poll goes against his opinions, Mr. Goldwyn said in May that his mind was made up: "I'm not going to change my policy."

Although 57 per cent of the population prefers single features, the Gallup survey reported striking variations between different groups. Double features are more popular than single features among persons under 18 years of age, and among persons in the lower income levels. As the following table indicates, the youngest age group, composed of youngsters six to 12, vote for double features by a ratio of more than three to one.

AGE GROUPS	For Single Features	For Double Features
Ages 6 to 12	23 per cent	77 per cent
Ages 12 to 17	42	58
Ages 18 to 24	60	40
Ages 25 up	68	38

This variation is said to be the more important in the light of the fact, established in the study, that more than 60 per cent of the theatre admissions each week throughout the nation are accounted for by persons under 30 years of age.

The lower income levels vote in favor of doubles whereas the upper income groups vote against them.

INCOME GROUPS	For Single Features	For Double Features
Upper Income Group	75 per cent	25 per cent
Middle Income Group	63	37
Lower Income Group	47	53
On Relief	42	58

New England was the only section of the country where a majority of the whole population voted in favor of double bills. The vote of different sections of the country is as follows:

	Prefer Singles Features	Prefer Double Features
New England States	43 per cent	57 per cent
Middle Atlantic States	55	45
East Central States	62	38
West Central States	57	43
South	58	42
Rocky Mt. States	62	38
Pacific Coast States	56	44

There is little difference in the attitudes of the two sexes on the question of double versus single features, as the figures below indicate:

	Single	Double
Males	56 per cent	44 per cent
Females	58	42

The results of the survey are said to go a long way toward explaining "a seeming paradox" in the motion picture industry. "Theatre owners" reported Dr. Gallup's Institute, "have long known that most people say they prefer single features; yet when individual exhibitors have changed from a double to a single policy, their business has declined. Theatres which draw a large part of their business from children and the poorer classes, and theatres located in a part of the country which favors double features, would obviously suffer by changing to single features, particularly if the single features are not of sufficient quality to attract customers in the higher age and income levels.

"From the point of view of the motion picture industry itself the single feature policy, however, is clearly indicated," the report continued. "Only by making pictures of greater appeal to those people who have sufficient money and who could attend theatres more often can the revenues of the industry be materially increased; and it is precisely these people in the higher age and income levels who register the greatest opposition to double features.

From the point of view of the motion picture industry, perhaps the most important finding of the survey is the fact taht an estimated total of 32,000,000 persons, financially able to attend pictures frequently, actually go less than once a month.

"While a majority of the American public prefers single features, it would be untrue to say that double features are directly responsible for keeping many persons away from the box-office. The reasons go deeper:

"The adverse vote on double bills is more a reaction to 'poor' pictures commonly found on double bills, than to the fatigue and length of time involved in seeing a double bill.

"Persons interviewed who disliked double features were asked whether they would change their attitude if both pictures on a double bill were good. When this qualification is added, opinion divides 64 to 36 in favor of double features. However, the public seems to believe that this is an impossible hypothesis .

Note Increased Competition

"Competition is increasing from other forms of entertainment, particularly radio, making more necessary the building of programs of greater appeal to the public. Among all the persons interviewed, 55% say they are spending more time listening to the radio this year than last year, whereas only 15% report listening less. Even during the summer three times as many people say they stay home expressly to listen to the radio as say they go to motion pictures. A small but important gain is also recorded for night sports.

Another indication of the influence of the economic factor is seen in the vote for single and double features according to the price of admission.

	Prefer Singles	Prefer Doubles
Paying less than 30c	51 per cent	49 per cent
Paying more than 30c	67	33

"The reasons most frequently given by those opposing double bills in order of importance are: (1) that either one or both of the features is likely to be a 'poor' picture; (2) that sitting through a double feature is fatiguing and takes too much time; and (3) that seeing two full-length pictures is confusing because, as one woman put it, 'You generally think about a picture when you get home and a double feature gets you mixed up.'

"Those who like double features give as their chief reasons: (1) that a double bill gives movie goers more for their money; (2) if one picture is inferior, the other is likely to be good and in any event adds variety; and (3) a double feature gives those who attend a chance to 'kill more time.'

Three Reasons for Duals

"Although many complain that double features are too long, only 10 per cent apply their own remedy by walking out before the end. The remainder stay on 'to get their money's worth.' Said a life-guard in Portland, Ore.: 'I pick the picture that I want to see and then just put up with the other one.'"

ATTENDANCE FIGURE QUESTIONED IN POLL

In connection with its poll on double features the American Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) questioned the industry and Department of Commerce figure of 85,000,000 tickets sold each week at motion picture theatres throughout the country and stated that during the week of July 13th to 19th, 1940 the number of tickets sold, as estimated by the Institute, was 54,000,000. The report added "the weekly average for the year can only be established by subsequent checks."

Preparatory to the S. R. Kent Sales Drive, which begins next Monday and continues for 18 weeks, the final meeting of a series held in Twentieth Century-Fox branches throughout the country, was held on Friday, August 2nd, in New York.

Virginia Circuit Acquisitions

Sam Bendheim, Jr., general manager of the Neighborhood Theatres of Virginia, has announced that the company has closed a deal to take over the Eaco and Lee theatres in Farmville August 1st. The houses have been under the management of William Rippard. Russell Williams, of Pulaski, has been appointed manager of the two houses, which will bring the circuit's total to 25 theatres.

SENATE QUERIES SARNOFF ON 'DEALS' IN RCA SUIT

How Oswald Schuette Got His RCA Job, and the Story of Pat Powers' Law Suit

Hearings on the re-appointment of Thad H. Brown as a member of the Federal Communications Commission on Tuesday turned into an examination of various operations of the Radio Corporation of America during which David Sarnoff, president, admitted that two ex-Senators were hired by the company but denied any improper procedure, and also told of hiring Oswald F. Schuette, newspaper man at $20,000 a year after he had received credit for instigating the anti-trust suit against RCA. The name of P. A. Powers, of motion picture fame, also was brought up before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

On Wednesday Robert D. O'Callaghan, member of the RCA legal staff explained to the Senate committee the paying off of three men, claimed to have been concerned with transactions which resulted in the postponement of the suit in 1932, because of the "possibility of their becoming a nuisance."

Illegal Methods Charged

Mr. Sarnoff was summoned to appear before the Senate Committee to answer charges that illegal methods were used to secure a postponement of the Government's anti-trust suit against RCA in 1932. Senator Charles W. Tobey, who is fighting the re-appointment of Mr. Brown to the FCC, brought up the charges which were originally made by Representative W. D. McFarlane in 1938. It was asserted that RCA paid former Republican Senators George H. Moses and Daniel O. Hastings $5,000 each and H. C. Mahaffey, clerk of the Wilmington Federal court $15,000 to secure postponement of the case while a consent decree was prepared.

The suit against RCA was started, it was said, as a result of the attacks made by Mr. Schuette, who had formerly worked on Chicago and Washington newspapers, working with an independent group of radio interests. Mr. Sarnoff told the committee, on questioning by Senator Tobey, that Mr. Schuette had won out in his fight with RCA and said he had hired him because of his ability.

Senator Tobey also referred to J. Austin Smith, accountant, who had prepared a highly antagonistic financial report on RCA for P. A. Powers who had a suit against the company pending. The report purported to show that the company was being milked and the stockholders defrauded. Later Mr. Smith was hired by RCA to examine the records of bankrupt licensees.

Manton Davis, general counsel for RCA, explained that when Mr. Powers decided not to press the suit he had asked RCA to take Mr. Smith "off my neck." Mr. Smith, in a letter which Mr. Davis read, said the report was merely "tentative" and was based on information which he had not then checked up. Upon checking, later, he found that the actual facts did not support the conclusions he had reached. Mr. Smith admitted that he had been employed by Mr. Powers to make a report as adverse to the company as possible.

It was charged by Senator Tobey that the RCA employment policy followed the theory that persons who could oppose it successfully should be employed and thus taken out of circulation.

Mr. Sarnoff's appearance before the Committee was directly the result of an affidavit signed by E. O. Keller, described as a labor organization agent. Mr. Keller had been present at previous hearings but was absent when called to the stand by Senator Tobey. A subpoena was issued for his appearance and also for that of Roger Whiteford, Washington attorney, and Robert D. O'Callaghan, a member of the RCA legal staff at the time of the alleged bribery.

The affidavit of Mr. Keller said that Mr. Sarnoff, Mr. Whiteford and Mr. O'Callaghan went with him to Concord, N. H. in September, 1932 and conferred with former Senator Moses of that state in a hotel about securing a postponement of the pending anti-trust trial.

White House Visit Cited

It was further alleged that Senator Moses and others shortly afterwards saw President Hoover at the White House, who said he had consulted with Attorney General Mitchell and had decided there was nothing that he could do in the matter. The affidavit continued to say that Senator Hastings of Delaware was consulted in New York and at his suggestion H. C. Mahaffey, clerk of the Wilmington court came to New York, agreeing to notify counsel for all parties that the trial had been postponed.

It was then alleged that Mr. Sarnoff authorized payments of $5,000 each to the Senators and $15,000 of a promised $25,000 to Mr. Mahaffey and a year or so later when seeking a modification of the consent decree RCA employed a brother of Mr. Mahaffey who was paid $50,000.

Denied by Sarnoff

Mr. Sarnoff denied the charges and said the suit was filed in 1932 and that about September, 1932 an agreement in principle for the reorganization of RCA in accordance with the wishes of the Department of Justice had been reached. The trial was set for October and a continuance sought by RCA was opposed by the Department of Justice. However because of the illness of the presiding judge the court ordered a short postponement and the Department obtained later another short delay during which the consent decree was perfected.

The matter was closed until Mr. McFarlane made his charges in 1938, Mr. Sarnoff said, explaining that Mr. McFarlane had refused to hear RCA's story and up to this time no other individual or committee had showed any interest in the matter.

Answering Senator Tobey, Mr. Sarnoff declared, "No payments of any kind, so far as I know, have been made by the RCA to any Government official in connection with this case or any other case and I deny the allegation."

Discussing the story in the Keller affidavit Mr. Sarnoff said he had consulted with Senator Moses to secure his advice as to how a continuance of the case could be secured so the consent decree could be worked out and that Mr. Whiteford had retained Senator Hastings' law firm to handle the motion for continuance but before the motion could be filed the court ordered the postponement. The Hastings firm submitted a bill of $13,000 to Mr. Whiteford who paid it out of the money he received from RCA for services.

Summary Submitted to Committee

Mr. Sarnoff further explained that after the charges were made by Representative McFarlane, RCA officials made a complete summary of the matter and obtained statements from every person involved, copies of which were submitted to the committee. The witness also indicated that after the suit was settled the company had been approached by two men who threatened to "expose" the method in which postponement was secured unless paid off. He said he had not been approached directly but had been told of the matter.

Senator Moses, after he left Congress, made a study of conditions in the Balkans for RCA and rendered a bill for $4,000, which was paid, and because his services were valuable he continued for another six months and received an additional $4,000, Mr. Sarnoff explained. He said the company had been having difficulties in getting traffic agreements in the Balkans.

At the time of the Government's suit against RCA in 1932 Mr. Brown was chief counsel for the FCC and the present head of the Commission, Mr. Fly, was an assistant in the anti-trust division.

SPECIAL PRICES FOR 13 TO 15 AGE GROUP

The Associated Theatres chain operating houses in Detroit, Wyandotte, Trenton and Flint, Michigan, are admitting adolescents between the ages of 13 and 15 years for 15¢, no matter what the adult price scale is. The children's admission remains at 10¢. It was reported that the policy of lower prices for youths in their early teens has increased family business and helped the theatres' revenue, while building goodwill.

July Business Poor in Eastern Mountain Spots

Key vacationland theatres keenly felt the loss of July patronage in summer resorts throughout the Catskill and Adirondack Mountains in New York, the Berkshires in Massachusetts and Green and White Mountains in Vermont, exchangemen and exhibitors report.

The unseasonable weather prevailing through the first three weeks in July caused many cancellations in the hotels throughout the mountain area, although the hot spell at the end of the month helped somewhat.

Saratoga Springs, which acquires a six weeks' population of 75,000 from mid-July until Labor Day, opened a five weeks' racing season with the poorest attendance at the track and in theatres since the World War era.

Aside from the weather angle, however, both vacation territory exhibitors and hotel men say the summer vacationists are not allocating as much money per capita to amusements in 1940 as in any other year since the start of the depression. A few of the theatres in towns near the mountains have delayed reopenings until mid-September despite an earlier intention to open the houses August 1st.

Paramount's

"Golden Gloves"

Dedicated to the YOUTH OF AMERICA !

On February 14th, 1927, the New York Daily News announced the first Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament. The tournament was started to encourage amateur boxing, the manly art of self defense, to clean up conditions that then surrounded amateur boxing all over the United States.

So successful, such a mighty response did this Golden Gloves idea get from the youth of America that this year more than 200 cities and towns throughout the country now conduct their own Golden Gloves Tournaments. Today Golden Gloves is a national byword for clean living, straight-shooting American young manhood.

It is therefore with great pride that Paramount dedicates this first motion picture ever to tell in action-packed, thrill-packed, heart-stirring sequences the story of America's GOLDEN GLOVES. No time, we believe, could be more fitting than the present to honor this glorious proof of the vigor and the courage and the honor of American Youth . . .

Turn, please . . .

N.D. Owners Join Northwest Allied

At a meeting of eastern North Dakota independent exhibitors, held at John Pillar's theatre at Valley City, N. D., a resolution was unanimously adopted to rejoin Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest, after a several years' severance. Eddie Gannon, of Lidgerwood, made the motion which was seconded by M. A. Zimmerman of Lakota. In a second resolution, also unanimously passed, the group endorsed the policies and new officers of Allied of the Northwest.

Overmoe Elected

Julius Overmoe, of Hillsboro, who called the meeting was elected district governor on the board for eastern North Dakota. Problems confronting exhibitors were discussed.

Exhibitors at the meeting were: M. C. Cooper, E. C. Gannon, M. C. Lindsay, Don Tracy, J. J. Arnold, Guy A. Troyer, F. P. Anmoth, W. T. McCarthy, M. A. Zimmerman, C. E. Zimmerman, O. K. Engen, W. L. McWilliams, William J. Holesky, Kenneth Nappen, A. B. Cooper, Gordon Aamoth, R. T. Foley, Julius Overmoe, Mrs. Helen Lehman, John Pillar Jr., and John Pillar, all of North Dakota, and Andy Anderson of Detroit Lakes and Paul Mans of Minneapolis.

A meeting of exhibitors in the western part of North Dakota has been called for Aug. 17 in Mandan, N. D., and efforts to form another unit will be made. F. E. Wetzstein, president of the North Dakota Theatre Owners, is expected to take part in the conferences.

No Northwest 'Bolt'

Minneapolis reports that W. A. (Al) Steffes, former president of Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest, would join the Bennie Berger group in organizing a new exhibitor group, were exploded this week in a letter which Mr. Steffes sent from his summer home at Aitkin, Minn., where he is recuperating from an illness, to E. A. Peaslee, Stillwater, Minn., new president of Northwest Allied.

Mr. Steffes said he was not interested in promoting any new Northwest exhibitor organization and that he was confident the new officers would carry out the objectives of the present organization, adding that he would continue to support the organization.

Following the election last month of Mr. Peaslee as president and of Fred H. Strom as executive secretary, a new interest in Northwest Allied is reported current among exhibitors. New applications for membership are reported to be plentiful and the opposition of the Berger group is said to be the only obstacle to complete harmony.

PREPARING FOR NEXT HEAT WAVE

After experiencing a slump of more than 40 per cent at the box office during the heat wave the latter part of July, the Warner theatre circuit in Philadelphia has mustered a defense against the next onslaught of heat promised. The 3,700-seat downtown Stanley theatre will remain open all night, offering the public an air-conditioned house. Air-conditioned neighborhood houses also may be pressed into all-night operation to make up, in part, for the daytime slack.

PUTS HIS POLICY IN PRINT

The adjacent advertisement is reproduced from the pages of the South Coast News of July 26th, from Laguna Beach, California, where Ronald E. Vincent exhibits pictures with a certain obvious vigor of approach. Of special interest is the consciousness, denoted by the advertising, that the public, his public anyway, has a state of mind about theatre policies from dishes to double bills.

Roosevelt, UA Sued On "Pastor Hall"

James Roosevelt, the President's son, this week faced a lawsuit, as he continued to arrange for the American distribution, through United Artists, of the British-made "Pastor Hall," which he acquired from Grand National Pictures, Ltd.

On Tuesday, in New York Federal Court, George Garfield, administrator of the estate of the late Ernest Toller, German playwright, filed suit for an injunction to restrain Mr. Roosevelt and UA from distributing the picture; and for damages and an accounting of the profits. Mr. Toller is author of the play from which the picture was made; Mr. Garfield's contention is that none of the parties concerned now with the picture ever obtained the rights to film it, or to distribute the film. He also named as defendants Charter Film Productions, Ltd., the picture's producer, Grand National Pictures, Ltd., the British distributor, and the H. E. R. Laboratories.

Mr. Garfield's counsel insisted the contract to film the picture had been rescinded, that the party through which the deal was negotiated, in London, was a broker, not an authorized agent, that the money, dilatorily sent to Mr. Garfield in New York, was sent back, and that no copy of the contract with Grand National executives' signatures, had been received by him.

Meanwhile, UA has set the world premiere of the film in the United Artists Theatre, San Francisco, on next Wednesday.

Will Hays Reports To Coast Producers

Conditions facing the film industry in this country and elsewhere were outlined Tuesday night by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, to the monthly meeting of the Motion Picture Producers Association.

Another speaker was Homer Mitchell, attorney, who described recent hearings on reclassification of employees before the Wages and Hours Administrator.

The producers pledged cooperation with the session of the American Council of Public Relations, at the University of California at Los Angeles next week.

INDUSTRY IN PITTSBURGH ATTACKS 16mm SHOWS

Organized Exhibitors To Seek Cooperation of Exchanges, Unions Against Slot Machines

by MORT FRANK in Pittsburgh

Summoned to combat the actual and anticipated 16mm inroads here on theatre receipts, and in anticipation of an expected influx of coin-operated movies following installation of the first picture machine in a neighborhood grill, representatives of various phases of the film industry at a luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel appointed a committee to attack the exhibitors' competition both at the source of product, and on the scene of showing.

To Appeal to Producers

Headed temporarily by Morris A. Rosenberg, president of the Allied Motion Picture Theatre Owners, a seven-man board will ask producers to stop furnishing films to 16mm operators, while Larry Katz, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees agent, will demand that members of the moving picture operators' Local 171 be hired to service the coin machines at scale wages. Mr. Katz estimates that each union man should be given jurisdiction over five to eight machines, depending on the distance between locations.

The luncheon was attended by about 75 representatives of the industry. The committee comprises Mr. Rosenberg, representative of the organized exhibitors, Mr. Katz for the union, C. J. Latta for Warner Brothers Theatres, James Balmer, Harris Amusement Co., Guy Ida, unaffiliated exhibitors, Art Morrone, film supply houses, and branch manager Ira Cohn of Twentieth Century-Fox for the exchanges, who accepted the appointment contingent on its approval by his home office.

Exchanges represented at the luncheon, besides Twentieth Century-Fox, were Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, Columbia, and Monogram. Republic Pictures sent a message of regret.

Called by the AMPTO as the result of an epidemic of 16mm showings here in stores, schools, churches and miscellaneous auditoriums which are diverting, it is charged, an increasingly larger revenue from theatres, leaders of the meeting expressed a sentiment that competition is also expected from a predicted rash of coin-operated picture machines.

First Slot Machine Movies

The first coin film equipment, installed in western Pennsylvania, after four weeks' trial in the cafe atmosphere of Circus Inn in the industrial Homewood neighborhood, has been moved to Isaly's combination dairy store-dance hall in suburban South Park for another test period.

On both locations, according to operator Fred McNamara, the customers' reception has been extremely favorable, with band visuals the most popular features.

Mr. McNamara's son Lou, proprietor of the Inn, said that at 10 cents per showing for each of the attractions runing three minutes apiece, the machine was in use most of the time. Holding that he would be willing to place one in his store permanently if a picture exchange or some other base for product exchanges could be established. Mr. McNamara also said that cafe patrons willingly pay a dime to see as well as hear a band or other entertainers in action, "quicker than they'll spend a nickel just to listen to a record."

There seem to be more reasons than exhibitor opposition to retard the installation of movie "juke boxes," too. According to a compilation of opinion from the Circus Inn manager, its waitresses, a labor organizer, and a lawyer active in amusement circles, at least four other obstacles face the machines here.

One is a mechanical difficulty, another, product shortage, the third, an unforeseen tax burden, and the fourth, demands of the IATSE for jurisdiction.

Mechanical Trouble

The first installation, Bell & Howell equipment including seven-foot square screen and a sound box behind the screen, suffered occasional mechanical breakdowns at the Inn, observers said, and sometimes its sound wasn't as good as desirable. A scarcity of features available, particularly musical numbers, is also said to make the movie machine still a dubious investment.

Also expected to slow up installations is a recent ruling of the state liquor control board that cafes and other spots serving liquor must take out an annual $125 entertainment license, in addition to the $1 machine tax levied by the city. Spots with only phonograph machines need not pay the entertainment tax unless they include dancing.

The McNamara movie installation is the only one announced so far in this district, although one operator is reported to be trying to close experimental deals for 60 coin-operated machines he has on hand.

Indiana Exhibitors Aroused

Aroused by the fact that opposition by itinerant exhibitors this summer has reached a new high, Indiana theatre owners and operators are reported planning an appeal for legislative relief at the next session of the state legislature.

A state law requiring license fees for all forms of transient entertainment was repealed at the 1937 session, with the result that Indiana has been a fertile field for itinerants in the last few years.

Just what form of legislative relief will be requested is yet to be determined. There is an increasing demand that itinerants be forced to meet all state regulations that affect established film theatres.

Competition in Wisconsin

In Antigo, Wis., the Palace and Home theatres, charging 35 cents admissions, including tax, have to compete with the Shady View dance hall, which advertises a free "feature length program" as a come-one for dancing at a 15 cents admission.

The Antigo situation does not represent an isolated case in Wisconsin as theatres in other spots around the state are being plagued by simlar competition from ballrooms and taverns.

Milwaukee exchanges for the most part are cooperating with exhibitors to stamp out this type of entertainment, but they report there are many old films available for 16 mm showing over which they have no control.

Upstate New York Problem

The 16mm. films have obtained a good foothold in upstate New York, specifically around Faust, St. Regis, Brasher Falls and near Potsdam. Recently, however, a Utica exhibitor has announced his intention of opening in one or two towns where no theatre now operates.

Northwest Free of 16mm.

The Pacific Northwest territory at present is almost completely free from the competition of 16mm films, according to a check-up by James M. Hone, executive secretary of the Washington independent theatre owners. Exhibitors in the sector have not been confronted with the 16mm. opposition that is reported from other sections of the country.

In anticipation of future competition, however, the exhibitors in the Seattle district have joined with the Pacific Coast Conference of Theatre Owners in adopting a resolution against the distribution of 16mm. film by major producers, or the showing of such films by non-theatrical competition.

No Problem in Iowa

A check reveals that there is very little 16mm. film used in Iowa. Those that are in operation for the most part are with the use of portable machines in the summer months in situations where there are no theatres.

Films Sponsored in Ohio

A survey of northwestern Ohio and nearby communities reveals that businessmen are again sponsoring free films, largely 16mm., in outdoor spots.

The Chicago Operators Union has made a special rate for 16mm. commercial film shows of $7.50 for a showing of not more than two hours, in order to stipulate the use of union operators for this type of work.

Loew's Transfers Bell

Ray Bell, publicity representative for Loew's theatres in Washington, is being transferred to New York and will handle newspaper contacts. Mr. Bell has won several awards for campaigns in his city, including the Quigley Silver Grand Award for 1939.

In a realignment of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer publicity department, Bernard Sobel of the staff will be placed in charge of special promotion for "The Ziegfeld Girl." Mr. Sobel handled Broadway publicity for Florenz Ziegfeld. Gertrude Gelbin, formerly editor of Loew's Weekly, which has been discontinued, will join the fan magazine publicity staff.

Set Cinema Lodge Ball

The first annual banquet and ball of the Cinema Lodge No. 1366, B'nai B'rith, will be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, October 26th. Committee chairmen are Arthur Sachson, arrangements; Col. A. Ralph Steinberg, souvenir journal; Robert Weitman, entertainment; Joseph Tisman, art; Max B. Blackman, finance; and A-Mike Vogel, publicity.

PCCITO Trustees Meet

Robert Poole, executive secretary of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, led the meeting of the board of trustees of the coast groups, on Thursday and Friday, in Seattle.

EXHIBITORS SELL 16MM. PRINTS

Some major distributors continue to make 16mm. prints available, directly or through 16mm. distributors, for the non-theatrical and itinerant traveling show fields.

At the last count, in Motion Picture Herald, May 25th, pages 13-14, some 200 features were listed as having been reduced from 35*mm. to* 16*mm.,* 40 of them one year old or less.

Never much given to the making of films about its own activities, with such few successful exceptions as "Once in a Lifetime," "A Star Is Born" and "Hollywood Cavalcade," Hollywood is now concerned, through Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with the depiction of the rabid autograph hunter.

Starring will be Judy Garland, as a fifteen year old who stalks the film stars, organizes fan clubs, and generally behaves in a manner to inspire publicity departments. The story is based on "The Youngest Profession," forthcoming novel by Lillian Day.

War or no war, Hollywood continues to keep up the production pace which has placed every major studio ahead of schedule and release date on its completed product.

Latest to submit figures on production is Warners, with 12 films completed and awaiting release, three in the cutting room and six in production.

Completed are "The Sea Hawk," just previewed; "River's End," "Flowing Gold," "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," "Knute Rockne—All American," "No Time for Comedy," "A Dispatch from Reuter's," "Money and the Woman" and "Ladies Must Live."

Currently in the cutting room are "The Letter," Bette Davis vehicle; "City for Conquest" and "Calling All Husbands."

Now in work are "Meet John Doe," the Frank Capra production; "Santa Fe Trail," "Honeymoon for Three," "Four Mothers," "High Sierra" and "East of the River."

Wire reports from England declaring that Alfred, giant gorilla in London zoo, faces destruction because of his great appetite, Jack Moss, Paramount producer, last week set wheels in motion to bring the animal here.

Alfred's great maw is costing Zoo officials $48 per week, and the authorities think that is too much for one animal, especially in war time.

The hitch in Moss' plan is the lack, at present, of proper transportation facilities.

Dorothy Lamour, Paramount star, is reported to be entering an early protest against any possible plan to use Alfred as one of her playmates in her next jungle film.

Just completed by Alexander Korda are plans for a picture based on the lives of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton, with Vivien Leigh to play the latter and Laurence Olivier the former role.

This will be the first American film to be produced and directed by him, with production slated to start September 15th, on the completion of "The Thief of Bagdad."

The new film's screen play is now being completed by Walter Reisch, with R. C. Sheriff doing the dialogue.

SILENCE! GENIUS AT WORK!

For exactly one year, Hollywood correspondents have been wondering, in print, just when and if Orson Welles, fondly(?) called in some quarters "Little Orson Annie", would start his many announced pictures for RKO.

At least four had been announced, schedules had been shifted about, and then secrecy abounded in the publicity department.

But last week RKO's press agents, determined to prove, it seems, that Welles actually has started a picture, invited the press to a look.

The press, some thirty in number, arrived, visited one of the sound stages and saw: Welles, some of his cast and some extras, making a scene for "Citizen Kane", the actor-writer-director-producer's first film.

Musicals

Turning ever more to the production of "light" films as an antidote to a war-depressed public, Hollywood currently has some 15 musical pictures before the cameras or completed and awaiting release.

Leading the list is Paramount, which alone accounts for six of the type. Currently before the cameras is "Love Thy Neighbor," featuring the feud between Fred Allen and Jack Benny, with the singing of Mary Martin and the dancing of the Abbott troupe. Miss Martin also appears in Bing Crosby's "Rhythm on the River," soon to be released.

Mr. Crosby, along with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, is also to appear in "Road to Zanzibar," while Miss Lamour will sing in the forthcoming "Moon Over Burma." Rounding out the list are "A Night at Earl Carroll's" and "There's Magic in Music."

At Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are "Strike Up the Band," with Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney, and "Bittersweet" with Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald teamed. RKO also has two: "Dance, Girl, Dance," with Maureen O'Hara, and "No, No, Nanette," starring Anna Neagle.

Universal has its Deanna Durbin in "Spring Parade" and young Gloria Jean in "A Little Bit of Heaven," while Betty Grable and Don Ameche are set for "Down Argentine Way" at Twentieth Century-Fox.

GREGORY RATOFF will produce and direct "Ballerina," starring LORETTA YOUNG, at Paramount.

JACK MURTON has been signed as casting director for Boris Morros-Robert Stillman's National Pictures.

VERREE TEASDALE joins the cast of "Love Thy Neighbor," JACK BENNY-FRED ALLEN picture, at Paramount.

HARRY SHANNON has been signed for "Too Many Girls," George Abbott production for RKO.

Warners has tied IDA LUPINO to three pictures a year, because of her work in "They Drive By Night."

HENRY KING will direct "Chad Hanna," from Walter D. Edmunds' novel, at 20th Century-Fox.

ARLEEN WHELAN will have the feminine lead in 20th Century-Fox's "Charter Pilot."

ALBERT MANNHEIMER, now completing final comedy scenes for "Dulcy," has been given a term writing contract at MGM.

WILLIAM HOLDEN will share top honors with Ray Milland in Paramount's "I Wanted Wings."

"South of Suez," costarring GEORGE RAFT and GERALDINE FITZGERALD, at Warners will start within two weeks.

BASIL RATHBONE and GALE SONDERGAARD join "The Californian" troupe at 20 Century-Fox.

ARTHUR FREED, MGM producer, has been given a new contract.

MARIE WILSON has been set by Paramount for a role in "Virginia."

KURT SIODMAK is working on the screenplay of "The Ape," Boris Karloff vehicle at Monogram.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public.

Boom Town

(MGM)

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Full Tilt

Had the House of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer set out to test beyond question the status of the public's attitude toward entertainment in 1940 —its responsiveness to showmanship, its alertness to star-values and its willingness to spend money for the materials of amusement it cut its teeth on—the studio would have made "Boom Town." For here are star-values unmatched for magnitude and underwritten by the nation's exhibitors in their response to the MOTION PICTURE HERALD-Fame poll for the box-office year, here is investment on a scale which takes no heed of world-market conditions and here is action, conflict, romance and all the other ingredients of entertainment which the peoples of the earth have herded together to behold ever since the films began to tell stories.

The selection of the stars for the picture is of a sort to make the exploitation of the film by exhibitors a pleasure. Clark Gable, never missing from the HERALD'S list of Money-Making Stars since he came to the screen, was paired with Spencer Tracy, Academy Award winner by habit and custom, in "Test Pilot," a picture to be recalled to the customers in advertising this one. Claudette Colbert was paired with Mr. Gable in 'It Happened One Night," another production to be mentioned to the prospects in the sales-talk for this reunion. Hedy LaMarr's is a name of its own kind with respect to ticket-sales, due to the consistency with which it appears in the syndicated newspaper columns, and Frank Morgan, seen previously with all of these and commanding a following in his own right, are presences to be capitalized. The cast contains others.

The story that these players enact is a chronicle of the days when Burkbennett was an oil camp ankle-deep in ooze and full of fight, strife, competition, enterprise and guile. It is here that Gable and Tracy, strong men pursuing fortune, come to seek oil, meet, quarrel, join forces and start an association that is to endure, with variations, throughout the growth of the oil industry. It is to this place that Miss Colbert, portraying an Eastern miss weary of teaching school, comes to meet Tracy, meets Gable instead and marries him forthwith. It is from this start that the story moves forward through two decades with the speed of an express train and the force of a gusher, terminating, after all have made and lost millions and arrived finally at realization of their importance to each other, with all back on the land again, prospecting for oil as in the beginning. (Miss LaMarr's assignment is minor.)

It is for critics addressing the public to elaborate upon the merits of the performances turned in by the stars and others in the film, for your reporter to confide only that you can feel safe in going as far as your supply of adjectives will carry you in your promises to your customers. It is for him to tell you, also, that the action of the story demands dialogue which is not at all times phrased for junior ears and that the nature of the services rendered by the character played by Miss LaMarr, although indicated as having business significance, might be considered by some to call for definition.

Previewed at the Four Star theatre, Los Angeles, before a press and professional audience which expressed an unanimous opinion that this was one of the pictures that Loew's President Nicholas M. Schenck meant when he said: "There's nothing wrong with this business that a good picture can't cure."—WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

Comedy About Communism

Dealt with here for purposes of humor are the experiences of a Communist organizer in Paris whose flight from the police following his firing of a bullet at a banker takes him to the apartment of the banker's wife under circumstances which impel her to shelter him for a number of days and nights during which time they fall in love with each other. His stay is complicated for both of them by visits from her husband, whom she is in the process of divorcing, and a newspaper publisher who has believed himself next in line.

To the extent that the plot pertains to romance, it may be said to conform to what have been called continental standards. It is not a comedy in the Parisian pattern that the film commands interest and provokes laughter, however. It is, on the contrary, in the procedure and dialogue by which the Communist defines himself and his beliefs, "organizes" the lady's maid, denounces capitalists, Fascists, the wealthy classes, preaches revolution, champions Stalin, reversing himself at picture's end and, under influence of romance and the lady's argument that there are only two classes, male and female, announcing he's going to America and vote for Roosevelt—it is in these things that the picture bids for attention.

As newspaper columnists have remarked to their readers with emphasis, Melvyn Douglas is seen as the Communist in the picture. It is to be noted that the script provides for a change of heart on his part late in the role. His and all the parts are played for comedy and several of the situations and speeches drew bursts of laughter from the Hollywood preview audience. Loretta Young, Alan Marshal and Eugene Pallette are the other main characters in the cast.

The Paris represented is as of before the war, which does not figure in the story. Names of persons, places and parties are used without disguise, Stalin, Lenin and Roosevelt being referred to directly—the latter in a tone of approbation, although in a gag—as well as Communism and Fascism, not Nazism.

Produced with care and lavishness by B. P. Schulberg and directed by Alexander Hall, the film is based upon the late Sidney Howard's adaptation of a French play by Michel Duran put in screen play form by three writers of rank. The humor, evolving from dialogue pertaining to politics and situations pertaining to parlors, bedrooms and baths, suggests presentation to audiences mature by calendar and in understanding.

Previewed at the Pantages theatre, Hollywood, where it drew considerable laughter and appeared to entertain a majority of those present.—W. R. W.

The Lady in Question

(Columbia)

Continental Character-Study

Presented here with emphasis on the side of character study is the tale of a shopkeeper in peacetime France, Paris, or another large city thereof, who serves on a jury in the trial of a young woman accused of murder and is moved by her plight to take her into his employment and his home following her acquittal. How coincidence and misunderstanding combine to complicate his existence and bring his family to the verge of dissolution before his wife's perception of his motives bring about a happy ending is told with deliberation and artistry in a film that steers clear of cliches throughout.

Brian Aherne's performance of the shopkeeper role is being talked about among Hollywood professionals as one of the ranking character studies of the season. To B. B. Kahane's production and Charles Vidor's direction, both of which rate as departures from norm, the community is also pointing with pride. Rita Hayworth, Irene Rich, Glenn Ford and Curt Bois have been receiving plaudits, also, for their performances in the film.

Hollywood comment is less unanimous with respect to the picture as an item of commerce. Rating it an achievement in the artistic bracket, some expect it to experience the public neglect sometimes meted out to product in kind. Others argue that the force of the Aherne performance, plus the word-of-mouth publicity due a picture

Queen of Destiny

(RKO Radio)

Victoria, Part II

The American release of this sumptuous and stirring historical tribute to the little lady of Windsor comes at a time when conditions make it more than a family picture album of the Victorian age and of the tiny Queen who gave the period her name. The screen saga, shot in the halcyon and pre-Munich days of 1938, now may appear through the ironic twistings of time to convey new significances.

The picture, a variation on its predecessor, "Victoria the Great," reviewed in the pages of MOTION PICTURE HERALD September 25, 1937, was also produced by Herbert Wilcox on the same lavish scale of pageantry and again played with high skill and effect by Anna Neagle and Anton Walbrook as the royal couple, Victoria and Albert. Under this film's original title, "Sixty Glorious Years," Aubrey Flanagan reported in the HERALD on October 29, 1938, that is was "a production of which Britain and her studios can be proud, a magnificent spectacle, a studied chronicle of its era and a human document which poignantly traces the womanly life of Britain's great Queen."

Whereas the first Victoria offering contained but two color sequences, its successor has been given an entire color treatment and the succession of court scenes, royal weddings, balls and visits to the regal estates in England and Scotland, the Empire's war activities in the Crimea and the Sudan forms a panoramic mural of rich pictorial display. Although historical and governmental matters enter importantly into the drawing of the Windsor family portrait, the human and personal qualities of the Queen and her Prince Consort emerge with fresh and natural appeal.

Seen at a special showing for an invited audience in New York, where the assemblage sat through the biography with evident interest and sympathy, especially during the Jubilee and holiday scenes of the aged monarch and the sequences devoted to her demise, when several ladies in the gathering were forced to resort to their handkerchiefs.—JOSEPH F. Fugitive from a Prison Camp

(Columbia)

Prison Uplift Problem

Jack Holt rides out as a quixotic sheriff against the windmills of prison evils in this quasi sociological melodrama of big house reform. Engaged either for or against Mr. Holt's uplift endeavors for the "stir" boys are Marian Marsh, as sister and sweetheart of two of the inmates, Robert Barrat in the role of a chiseler-civil servant, Phillip Terry around whom much of the trouble brews, and Dennis Moore, Jack LaRue, George Offerman, Jr., and Frankie Burke. Lewis D. Collins staged the penalogical cleanup from the script recommendations of Albert DeMond and Stanley Roberts.

"Sheriff Lawson" has the idealistic plan of establishing a work-prison camp, a cross between a WPA project and a CCC camp, to which young first offenders against the law may be sent in order to keep them apart from the hardened criminal personnel of the prisons. The enterprise, a road building project, is sabotaged from several sectors, chiefly through the underhand work of the county's engineer, "Russell," who becomes estranged from "Lawson" and falls into the moneyed hands of a private contractor personally and financially interested in ruining the new prison scheme. But the opposition is no match for "Lawson."

A mid-afternoon audience, composed mostly of men and unusually small in the auditorium of the Rialto theatre in New York City for the weekly display of melodramatic and murderous moments, inspected the penal proceedings with not much evident interest or excitement over either the social or action message of the film.—J. I Love You Again

(MGM)

Comedy-Romance

Co-starring the principals of the "Thin Man" series, but placing them in roles far removed from those of "Nick and Nora Charles," this tale, taken from an Octavus Roy Cohen novel, treats lightly of amnesia and its effects on romance.

When William Powell is first seen, he appears as a typical small town booster, and one who is a teetotaler. By mischance he falls overboard from a boat with a drunken confidence man while they both are returning from a pleasure trip. From the time Powell is hit on the head during the rescue, until the end of the film he reverts to his former identity of nine years before as a confidence man.

Involved in this is his wife, depicted by Myrna Loy, about to divorce him for his stuffiness and pomposity. The re-winning of the lady, accomplished in the end, involves the thwarted sale of bogus oil land, along with farce which includes Mr. Powell's interpretation of the love song of a love bird.

Lawrence Weingarten produced and W. S. Van Dyke II directed the screenplay by Charles Lederer, George Oppenheimer and Harry Kurnitz. Leon Gordon and Maurine Watkins wrote the original story, based on Mr. Cohen's novel.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Westwood, Cal., where it was most enthusiastically received. —WALTER SELDEN.

Comedy-Romance

Latest of the series made by Universal with titles based on song successes, "I'm Nobody's Sweetheart Now" has in its cast Dennis O'Keefe, Constance Moore, Helen Parrish, Lewis Howard, Laura Hope Crews, Samuel Hinds, Berton Churchill and Marjorie Gateson.

Its story is that of a boy and a girl who are, respectively, the son of a state senator anxious to get a gubernatorial nomination, and the daughter of a man whose influence can swing a large portion of the state to him.

Despite, rather than because of, their parents' anxiety to have the two young people fond of one another, they fall in love, after complications resulting from their former affections.

In addition to the title song, "There Goes

South to Karanga

(Universal)

African Action

Laid in Africa during a native rebellion, "South to Karanga" is an action melodrama based on the efforts of a group of white men to quell the uprising, save a mine, and at the same time open a railroad through the jungle. Charles Bickford enacts the principal role, that of an American consul, and James Craig, Luli Deste, John Sutton, Maurice Moscovich, Paul Hurts, Abner Biberman, Ben Carter, Frank Reicher and Addison Richards constitute the cast.

Harold Schuster directed from an original screenplay by Edmund L. Hartmann and Stanley Rubin. Marshall Grant was the associate producer.

Several mysterious characters insist upon taking the first train from the ocean to the mine in the interior, despite warnings of a native revolt. Two murders are committed, the natives unsuccessfully attack the train, and the passengers arrive at the mine in time to rescue the beleaguered miners.

Laughing at Danger

(Monogram)

Mirth and Murder

This number in the Frankie Darro series of amateur-detective comedies profits by setting and an increase in emphasis on the assistance by the colored comedian, Mantan Moreland, here given more dialogue and importance than heretofore. Scene of the mystery, which has to do with two murders and a suicide, is a beauty parlor operated by crooks who have fitted it out with dictaphones for the purpose of recording conversations of the patrons and using wax recordings of same for blackmail.

Mr. Darro is on the scene in this one as page-boy in the beauty parlor and as irrepressible assistant to the detective called in to delve into the mystery surrounding the death of a beauty operator, whose body tumbles out of the linen chute. As it turns out, this death has no connection with two others that follow, each of which is caused by murderous blackmailers inadvertently come upon in the practice of their trade. It is well down toward the close of the picture, however, that all this is made clear to the audience.

Lindsley Parsons produced the picture, with Howard Bretherton directing. Joseph West wrote the story and collaborated with John Krafft on the screen play.

Previewed at studio.—W. R. W.

The Girl from Avenue A

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

"The Brat" Revived

In what appears to have been an enterprise calculated to permit Jane Withers to grow up on the screen, the Sol Wurtzel division of the 20th Century-Fox studio presents the young star in a revival of the Maude Fulton stage-play, "The Brat," and it is to be reported that a Friday night audience in Glendale, Calif., did not indicate relish of the idea. The casting does give the young lady opportunity to wear long dresses for a part of the distance.

The scene is of course New York and the time is shortly after the turn of the century. The episode on which the story is based—wherein a playwright takes into his home a child of the street in order that he may study her for purposes of copy—has been used many times in pictures of many titles. Glendale audience reaction was of a sort to indicate that this circumstance may have been accountable for some of the disinterest noted.

This treatment of the subject is by Frances Hyland. It is directed by Otto Brower.

Produced and distributed by 20th Century-Fox. Producer, Sol Wurtzel. Directed by Otto Brower. Screen play by Frances Hyland. From the play, "The Brat," by Maude Fulton. Slightly Tempted

Crook Comedy

Portraying a kleptomaniac and confidence-man released from prison and active thereafter in the affairs of his daughter and her young man friend in a small town, Hugh Herbert keeps humor bubbling for an hour, without, as it turns out at film's end, fracturing the Production Code regulations against delineation of the processes by which crime is committed. A bit of strategy in preparation of the script, which purifies the character's motives and means in the finale, accounts for this. The amusement is not diluted but enhanced by this artifice, keystone of the screen play by Arthur T. Horman from a story by Max Marcin and Manuel Seff.

Peggy Moran as the daughter in the case and Johnny Downs as her fiance have most to do with the enactment of the story, Elizabeth Risdon as a lady of capital desirous of more and George E. Stone as a crook who has not yet been caught up with by the forces of reform rank fourth and fifth in prominence.

Convolutions of the plot, wherein the ex-convict employs methods of the nether world to achieve results sought by honest members of a community in need of expansion, resist brief synopsization. Produced by Ken Goldsmith without ostentation and directed by Lew Landers with speed and humor, the film is designed for entertainment purposes and without other objective.

Military Academy

(Columbia)

School Life

Like many of its predecessors "Military Academy" is a picture of the lives of boys from different walks in life assembled in one institution for the purposes of education. Tommy Kelly, Bobby Jordan, David Holt and Jackie Searl are the four principals in the picture, each with different social views who, in the end, see things in the same light.

Director D. Ross Lederman has taken the script by Karl Brown and David Silverstein and has produced an interesting, if not absorbing, picture of the effect of such school life on boys.

"Tommy Lewis," son of a big-time racketeer, is enrolled in the institution under an assumed name to protect him from the ill reputation of his father. His room mates are "Dick Hill," egotistical school athlete, and "Sandy," a pampered rich boy. Jackie Searl is seen in his usual role of "Prentiss Dover," school officer and bully. Each boy has obstacles to overcome, all of which are accomplished at the climax of the picture, when they unite for the good of the school.

The picture is without romance but the orderly continuity of the developments are such that this element is not missed.

Reviewed at the Globe theatre in New York at an early afternoon showing to an unresponsive audience.—GEORGE SPIRES.

Produced and distributed by Columbia. D. Ross Lederman, director. Adapted for the screen by Karl Brown and David Silverstein from a story by Richard English. Assistant director, Wilbur McGaugh. Allen G. Siegler, A.S.C., photographer. Film editor, Gene Milford. Sound engineers, Lodge Cunningham and Lambert Day. P.C.A. No. 6399. Running time, 66 minutes. Release date, July 18, 1940. Spoils of Conquest
(RKO-March of Time)
Dutch East Indies

The Nazi conquest of Holland has focused attention on the Dutch colonial empire and particularly the some 20,000 abundantly fertile islands known as the Netherlands East Indies. Hitler, no doubt, would like to have the islands but the Fuehrer has other matters more urgent to keep him, for the time being, in Europe. But the islands' proximity to Japan and Japan's interest in the islands—three vitally important war materials, tin, rubber and oil are Indies' products—has posed the question of aggression.

This issue of the March of Time, No. 12, Vol. VI, tells a film story of the islands, Bali, Java, Borneo and the rest, the natives and the Dutch rulers, industry and now that war threatens, the defense measures being taken. From the March of Time's cameras one gathers that the islands, with all the speed-up in defense, are in no position to repulse a major power and from March of Time's commentator the statement is made that the only hope of the Dutch East Indies is that America will continue to stand guard nearby in the Philippines. And, it is pointed out the islands are the chief source of rubber and tin for America.

A timely subject, the issue is presented in the customary style of March of Time. Running time, 17 minutes.

Streamlined
(RKO Radio)
Railroad Reelism

A flattering look at the latest in railroad transportation is given in this subject from the Reelism classification. With a few words and shots to indicate the past history of the iron horse, the main business of the rail study is an inspection of the latest product of track traveling, the streamlined style of coach construction. Excellently photographed shots are offered to indicate the modern comfort offered, from a visit to the trim bar and game rooms to a look at the dressing and sleeping quarters. The camera accompanies one of the sleek, swift streamliners as it travels westward and catches in the course of the trip some superlative glimpses of the countryside as it unrolls past the train window. There is also a side excursion southward to Florida. Train addicts, whether of passenger or engineer variety, should have fun going along for the ride.—Running time, nine minutes.

Tom Turkey and His Harmonica Humdingers
(MGM)
Cartoon

In a lazy small townish setting where unambitious cartoon characters loiter around the general store, Tom Turkey is the only live wire extant. Tom comes a-strutting into the store playing his harmonica for all it's worth and gradually the lassitude falls away and the other characters take in hand their harmonicas to make harmony under the leadership of Tom Turkey. The subject has a good deal of comedy and is entertainingly presented. Running time, seven minutes.

Vacation Time
(Twentieth Century-Fox)
Florida Sports

The many sports offered to visitors of Florida have been captured by Jack Painter and his color camera. Horse racing, motor boat regattas and speed boat racing are the highlights of the subject while less tiring sports as checkers and shuffle board also have their enthusiasts. The subject concludes with aquaplaning and underwater shots of Florida mermaids at play. All the scenes are enhanced by color and described by Ed Thorgenson.—Running time, eight minutes.

Corralling a Schoolmarm
(RKO Radio)
Cowboy "Miles Standish"

A reenactment of the Miles Standish-John Alden-Priscilla triangle, at least in situation similarity, is transposed from Pilgrim times and setting to wide western locale in this bronco musical advice to the lovelorn. Ray Whitley plays a bashful and tongue-tied sagebrush romeo in love with the district's pretty school teacher. The instructress is also the object of affection from the neighborhood's richest rancher. Ray is persuaded into acting as the mouthpiece for the old boy's proposal. The "schoolmarm" believes the romantic proposition to be more financial than personal and consents. The girl confesses to her rich benefactor that she is in love with Ray. The aged romantic withdraws and through some loud whispering from the school room, as the children recount the Miles Standish episode, Ray finds his tongue to speak for himself. Sections with a liking for prairie and hill country ditties should give an attentive ear to the Whitley recital.—Running time, 20 minutes.

Billy Mouse's Akwakade
Terry-Toon

The first of the new season's Terry-Toons is a satire on the New York World's Fair Aquacade with mice performing in a bathtub as Billy Rose's performers do in a pool. The finale of the show is interrupted by the appearance of the household dog and cat. A prolonged and bitter combat ensues with the mice victorious and continuing their performance. An amusing color cartoon. Running time, 7 minutes.

Stranger Than Fiction, No. 80
(Universal)
Oddities

Number 80 of this series, with Alois Havrilla handling the commentary, brings to the screen a number of oddities, the first being a young woman who has taken up the art of metal welding since being left a welding business on the death of a relative; secondly a girl 8 years old of Venice, Calif., who is as strong as a grown man and can lift a 200-pound wrestler with ease. In Bondsville, Mass., one man operates his own factory manufacturing key holders and turning out some 6,000 a day, while in Tennessee a woman makes bath mats and dresses from old inner tubes. The subject concludes with scenes of a miniature railroad large enough to carry a few passengers, and a dentist in New York City who makes scale models of various engineering projects using only toothpicks and household cement.—Running time, 9½ minutes.

Information Please, No. 13
(RKO Radio)
Excellent

Another round for the fabulous savants of this intellectual series is run off and the brain busting workout chalks up another entertaining and instructive cinematic classroom session. Elmer Davis, noted radio commentator and literateur, appears as guest guesser and acquits himself notably both in the information and quick retort departments. The remainder of the panel with the encyclopedic memories remains the same. Clifton Fadiman still looks owlish at the inquisitor. The boys miss a few head ticklers and the cash register rings up the loss several times but neither the stymied lads nor their sponsors should regret the errors for the mistakes carry into the Will Rogers fund several twenty-five dollar contributions. The questions involve dating styles of dresses, quoting the last word of each lines for a set of poems, identifying famous men from certain cities, naming musical instruments and connecting some Shakesperean character with bits of acted pantomime. If the genius gentlemen do not know the answers, they have replies that are funny, even if not so accurate.—Running time, nine minutes.

Social Sea Lions
(MGM)
Pete Smith Specialty

What a family of trained seals, mother, father and baby seal can do to a house party is shown here by Pete Smith in his latest Specialty. The seals are first introduced swimming and basking in the California sun. From there they migrate to a beach house, attracted by the odors from a plate of hors d'oeuvres. Climbing through the window they devour the delicacies, enter the living room and interrupt the party by blowing on horns and when the guests have gone create a minor domestic problem with "Papa" seal slipping into bed beside his host. Running time, 9 minutes.

Eskimo Trails
(Twentieth Century-Fox)
Alaskan Adventures

Another in the series of adventures in Alaska by Father Hubbard takes the audience to the land of ice, snow and Eskimos and reveals their characteristics and mode of living. The subject opens with the Eskimos of the expedition building a walrus skin boat for the trip while the camera captures the delicate care and clever handiwork of the natives. The expedition, once under way, visits many other tribes of Alaska and then returns to its base before winter storms set in. Off-screen conversation by Lowell Thomas and Father Hubbard offers a description of what is being shown and relates a few of their adventures.—Running time, nine minutes.

Going Places, No. 80
(Universal)
Boots and Saddles

Seven varied subjects have been combined to make an interesting picture of the modern everyday life in the city and on the plains and mountains of Texas. Such items as the "shoot-em-up" welcome given to visitors, the crack First Cavalry Division of El Paso, the mountain ranges and animal life, the manufacturing of candy from cactus and hand made boots and saddles all are interestingly described by Lowell Thomas.—Running time, 9½ minutes.

Donald's Vacation
(RKO Radio)
A Wonderful Time

Donald Duck goes vacationward in this newest romp from the Disney drawing tables. The rambunctious bird does not have such a restful or pleasant time but the audience accompanying the little fellow on his holiday jaunt should have the time of its collective life. There is a continuous chuckle from the first sight of Donald as he is paddling into vacation land and the fun keeps steadily on as he sets up his camp equipment, particularly the riot sequences wherein the tight tempered character mixes it up with a recalcitrant folding chair. Denizens of the leafy paradise appear on the scene to complicate Donald's vacation plans and include cute but thieving chipmunks and a testy grizzly bear. The end of the lark finds the Duck beating a hasty retreat homeward.—Running time, eight minutes.

Varsity Varieties
Peppy Youth Frolic

A generous and sprightly supply of fresh young talent is on display in this tuneful and snappy musical interlude. In a soda store setting the juveniles give a spontaneous session of modern youth performances for the edification and entertainment of their stern faced teacher who is opposed to the blessings of a jam period. The youngsters sing, dance and offer novelty acts in high and talented spirits. The demonstrations should buck up any program.—Running time, 17½ minutes.

THEY SAW "BOOM TOWN!"

Here are the Reviews you've been waiting for!

"Something to Crow About!"

"There can be no doubt that 'Boom Town' will be the biggest grosser and most widely acclaimed feature offered by Metro or any other company since 'Gone With The Wind', possessing as it does every proven element to bring in a record-shattering box-office gusher."
—Ivan Spear, *Box Office

"Should get smash grosses, probably as this season's runner-up on the 'Gone With The Wind' record . . . Here is man stuff and woman stuff calculated with shrewdest showmanship to hit all classes on a level of universal entertainment . . . Each one of the creative contributions is a top job."
—Daily Variety

"M-G-M will hit the bell with 'Boom Town'. If there ever was a box-office natural . . . it's it. Highlighted with its four star names, a terrific supporting cast, a great yarn, top-notch production and direction, the picture combines all those elements into top entertainment. It's the type of production that must win single billing, longer runs and advanced prices." —Hollywood Reporter

"Its got everything in the way of entertainment the motion picture ever had in its best day . . . Production is on a scale seldom ventured even in the most roseate eras of cinema prosperity . . . Direction by Jack Conway is of a quality few directors attain once in a career." —M. P. Daily

"Action, romance and comedy blended into sure-fire, star-studded entertainment; should click heavily at box-office. An ideal vehicle for the lusty and vigorous talents of Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy."
—Film Daily

"'Boom Town' plus Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr combine to make it tops in entertainment."
—Harry Crocker, *King Features and L. A. Examiner

"A movie in the super-dooper category . . . Action-packed and giving a thorough pictorial account of its huge cost."
—Paul Harrison, *N. E. A.

"As long as it's human nature to laugh, to cry, to love a good fight and success stories, a picture with the qualities of 'Boom Town' will bring them rushing to the box-office. I don't think there's any doubt in the world that M-G-M has struck a gusher in this epic. Don't miss seeing 'Boom Town'."
—Louella O. Parsons,
Universal Service and Los Angeles Examiner

"Get in the 1940 boom for 'Boom Town' and you'll really sing 'Happy Days Are Here Again'."
—Hedda Hopper,
Los Angeles Times Syndicate Writer

"This swell picture will spell box-office history."
—Sheila Graham, *N. A. N. A.

"'Boom Town' is swell entertainment."
—John Chapman,
N. Y. Daily News Syndicate Columnist

"'Boom Town' is a 5,000-barrel gusher for the box-office and a boom picture for M-G-M."
—Jimmie Fidler, *National Syndicate Writer

"LET'S GO! THE SKY'S THE LIMIT WHEN YOU PLAY 'BOOM TOWN'!"

"The stellar array is as bright a cluster as has been gathered together in any feature in ages. Add everything up and they spell showmanship of the first order. A modern big winner."
—Edwin Schallert, *Los Angeles Times

"No marquee could line up a bigger drawing card than Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr."
—Virginia Wright, *Los Angeles News

"'Boom Town' is spectacle, romance and boisterous laughter. M-G-M shows the Rockefellers a new way to make a fortune out of the oil business."
—Harrison Carroll, *King Features and L. A. Herald

"Swell entertainment. If you think Clark Gable was terrific as Rhett Butler, just get a load of him as Big John McMasters, ready-fisted battler of the oil fields . . . A gusher of entertainment from start to finish."
—Jimmy Starr, *Los Angeles Herald

Production, Exhibition, Technical Affairs Coordinated by Academy Council

Program of Standardization in Sound Reproduction, Acoustics and Procedures

THE Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences has completed another series of sessions on technical matters pertaining directly to motion picture exhibition, extending and strengthening its program of standardization in sound reproduction and acoustics, and in release print procedure.

Thus does the Research Council, born of and nurtured by film production, continue its plan to relate more closely the technical interests of production and exhibition.

Enters New Phase

This plan was instituted about three years ago, bringing the Academy, as represented by this branch of it, into a province theretofore regarded as somewhat exclusively that of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers. The Academy had been organized primarily as a forum of creative talent. Soon, however, came charges that it was a "company union," seeking to effect for the major companies, control of actors, directors and writers. Today, without large influence in talent organization, the main body of the Academy is significant chiefly as an annual bestower of "Oscars" — those statuettes given in recognition of achievements during the year in picture making.

Its Research Council, however, has steadily grown as an influence on practical motion picture affairs, embracing both production and exhibition. Its interest in the theatre is based on the natural desire of the production community to assure its pictures the best possible presentation to the public.

Authorities have long felt that the effect of the division of the physical and administrative branches of the industry, into production, distribution and exhibition, was not working to the best advantage of the entire business, and the Research Council has sought to effect a liaison between them, through the promotion of technical standards and operating co-ordination.

The Council, in other words, asserts that technologically the industry should be organized in practical recognition of the fact that the creation of motion picture entertainment and its presentation to the public in theatres is all of a piece.

Committees Lay Groundwork

Groundwork for any Academy Council technological progress is now laid by basic committees in photography, sound (including projection), optics, laboratory and cine-technical development. These committees were set up to "multiply the past benefits resulting from the Research Council's activities and will return the utmost value to the industry from their efforts," so promises Darryl F. Zanuck, head of production for Twentieth Century-Fox, speaking as chairman of the Council.

The Council was originally organized by the Academy in 1929, for the stated purposes of "advancing the arts and sciences of motion pictures and fostering co-operation among the leadership of the motion picture industry for cultural, educational, and technical progress." But more and more the Council, which is maintained on a pro-rata basis by the Hays organization's producer members, has turned its attention to the theatre, in ultimate aid of the box-office.

The Academy's by-laws say that within the Academy the motion picture industry has set up its Research Council, the entire purpose of which is the "scientific advancement of the industry through co-operative research, investigation, and development of equipment, practices, techniques. Also the promotion of the interchange of ideas and information as pertaining to the motion picture industry; the furtherance of professional and vocational education of motion picture technicians; and the dissemination of information throughout the world by means of conferences, meetings and publications."

THEATRES TO AID BOMBING SEARCH

Motion picture theatres will aid in the search for person or persons who placed a bomb on July 4th in the British Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, causing the death of Detectives Ferdinand Socha and Joseph J. Lynch. A sound track made by Lewis Valentine, New York Police Commissioner, describing the crime and the nationwide manhunt, was inserted in newsreels for display throughout the country.

Only recently the Council issued a bulletin on its Theatre Sound Standardization activities, as prepared by John K. Hilliard, chairman of the theatre standardization committee. This paper described the facilities of the Academy Council available to exhibitors.

In an accompanying letter sent to the heads of the 57 exhibitor organizations throughout the U. S., Mr. Zanuck pointed out "the practical value to exhibitors of the information included in the bulletin."

Council Interested in Problems

Mr. Hilliard in the bulletin told exhibitors that the Council, handling technical problems for the industry, is, by its very nature, interested in many of the problems confronting theatre owners, because its fundamental purpose is getting pictures of better quality upon the screen at a lower cost through higher net efficiency.

When the Council at the outset was devoting most of its time to problems of production—especially the co-ordination of sound recording among the various studios—it found that the sound reproduction in different theatres varied to such an extent that it was impossible to obtain uniform quality under existing conditions. They found it "very evident" that a co-ordinating program was "vitally necessary." As a result the Research Council Theatre Standardization Committee was appointed late in 1936.

As a first step in this program of aiding exhibition technologically, the Committee conducted hundreds of actual listening tests in many different theatres, in order that each member of the committee would have a wide experience with field conditions and so that all committee members would have a common understanding upon which to base this program.

Early in the program the committee assembled a test reel containing a short length of a regular release print from each of the studios in Hollywood. This assembled reel, with both picture and sound, was used as a means of coordinating listening tests held in the theatres.

The test reel proved so helpful to the committee in Hollywood, that prints were made available, at cost, upon request, to theatre service companies, equipment manufacturers, and theatres. Since its original release, the committee has revised and shortened the reel. There are several hundrd prints in use, and all of the major theatre service and sound manufacturing companies are now using the reel to adjust theatre equipment on a uniform quality basis as they release new equipment or make their periodic tests of existing equipment in theatres.

The committee's ultimate aim in this connection is to make sound from all studios reproduce equally well in each theatre—at least to bring all theatres up to a commercially acceptable quality-level.

From an engineering standpoint, the committee's ultimate aim in exhibition is the specification of acoustical standards which will place its listening tests upon a scientific basis. At present there is not sufficient acoustical information available upon which to base any standard acoustical specifications. The Research Council now has a committee working on this problem, which it hopes eventually will assemble enough data to permit setting up standard methods of acoustical measurements that will be of use in adjusting theatre equipment.

As a result of the Theatre Standardization Committee's experience and listening tests with its theatre reel, a standard method of theatre adjustment for all of the better known sound systems has been set up and wherever possible, equipment manufacturers and sound service organizations are following these specifications when installing and maintaining equipment.

Standard Adjustment Successful

"Experience has shown," declared Committee Chairman Hilliard, "that the use of these standard adjustments leads to the best overall quality obtainable with current sound recordings as reproduced on theatre equipment with two-way horn systems. In most cases," he continued, "a slightly different adjustment is necessary for each make and type of loud speaker system. However, hundreds of recent installations have borne out the fact that if theatres are so adjusted, the product of any one producer is not penalized, and the overall quality of all product is more uniform.

"The quality obtained is modified, of course, by acoustical conditions in the theatre itself, but it has also been found that even where bad acoustical conditions exist the effect of these conditions on the product is minimized if these standard adjustments are used.

"Because the usual manner in which this type of theatre sound standardization takes place through the manufacturer and service organizations—as they are in closer touch with the studios and with technical advancements—the exhibitor is not always conscious of the fact that this sort of progress is taking place. Accordingly, we are striving to make out activities of actual, tangible benefit to the exhibitor," added Mr. Hilliard.

Another matter to which the Council's Theatre Sound Standardization Committee has given attention for exhibitors, continued Mr. Hilliard, "is to prepare recommendations on performance standards for theatre sound reproducing equipment. Previous to the issuance of these recommendations, exhibitors were forced to rely primarily upon statements of salesmen for information as to equipment which you might be considering for purchase.

"After conferences extending over a year's participated in by representatives of the studio sound departments, equipment manufacturers, and the theatre service groups, the Research Council published these recommendations, and exhibitors now have an impartial source of information on the standards to which any sound equipment should measure up to.

"While we of course do not advise on specific equipments by name, we have set up minimum requirements for equipment performance which are sufficient to guide exhibitors in these matters. One thing they may be sure of—if they follow our recommendations, they will avoid buying equipment which is not representative of the best available. On the other hand, such equipment will have no unnecessary features which would add to the cost of installation and maintenance.

"Our standardization activities have been considered so important by the sound equipment manufacturers that during the past few years all of the major equipment manufacturers have sent representatives to Hollywood to consult with us every few months. In addition, permanent Hollywood representatives are maintained here by a number of companies who cooperate with the Committee and with whom we are in constant consultation.

Designs Discussed

"The Committee has spent many hours in conference with representatives of manufacturers, discussing the design of individual equipments so that new equipments brought out from time to time will give the best quality with current studio recordings.

"As a result of this phase of our program it is now possible for the exhibitor to purchase better sound equipment at a lower price than would have been possible without the Committee's coordinating efforts. While the Committee cannot of course claim credit entirely, we believe, for example, that we have contributed to making it possible to now purchase 50 watts of power in equipment for the approximate price of two and a half watts ten years ago," Mr. Hilliard concluded.

Headed by Mr. Zanuck, as chairman, and Nathan Levinson, of Warner Brothers, as vice chairman, the Academy's Research Council consists of John Aalberg, RKO Radio; Bernard B. Brown, Universal; Farciot Edouart, Paramount; E. H. Hansen, Twentieth Century-Fox; John Livadary, Columbia; Thomas Moulton of Samuel Goldwyn; Elmer Raguse, of Hal Roach and Douglas Shearer, MGM—each being associated with those companies' studios in Hollywood. Gordon S. Mitchell is manager of the Research Council.

Sommers in New Post

Henry Sommers, manager of the RKO Shubert in Cincinnati for the last year, has resigned to become general manager and booker of the Sam Lee circuit, with three houses in Frankfort and two in Winchester, Ky. He replaces Sam Lee, who is retiring. Mr. Sommers, who was in charge of the Palace, a Monarch unit, at Akron, Ohio, before going to Cincinnati, will make his headquarters in Frankfort.

Brandt Gets Theatre

Harry Brandt's Rayhope Theatres Corporation has acquired the 1,247 seat Alhambra at Torrington, Conn., and will begin operating the house September 1st. The house will show first run pictures and vaudeville.

Pindat to Supervise Two Republic Offices

Jack Pindat, Republic home office contract manager, has been named supervisor of the New York City and Philadelphia exchanges, following the resignation of Herman Gluckman, who recently sold his franchise for the two cities back to Republic. Si Borus has replaced Mr. Pindat in the contract manager post.

The personnel of the two branches otherwise remains the same under Republic's direct operation, with Morris Epstein continuing to be branch manager in New York and Max Gillis the Philadelphia branch manager.

Mr. Gluckman sold his franchise interests to the company about a month ago, but remained manager of the branches until last week.

Farrell to Detroit

Tom Farrell, former booker at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange in New York and more recently at the Boston branch, has left for Detroit to assume a post in the sales department.

Set Warner Outing

The New Haven, Conn., Warner Club will hold its annual outing for employees of the theatre and exchange departments at Castle Inn, Saybrook, August 15th. Francis Flood of the theatre department is in charge.

Screen Actors Guild Voting; Publicists News

The Screen Actors Guild's Class B members were voting, via mail ballots, this week in its election. The balloting ends at midnight Saturday. Class A members in good standing will vote September 15th, date of the annual meeting, for 11 members of the board of directors, the president, three vice-presidents, the recording secretary and the treasurer.

18 Candidates

The Class B nominating committee proposed the names of 18 candidates for the 15 council offices: Nellie Farrell, Max Pollock, Bill Brandt, Harry Arras, Harry Mayo, Bill O'Brien, Dorcas McKim, Ralph Lynn, Paul Keast, Bill Wilkerson, Larry Steers, Benny Corbett, Syd Jordan, Jack J. Ford, Francis Kellogg, Freeman High, Jim Thorpe and Barbara Whitson.

The Class B nominating committee included Major Philip Kieffer, chairman; Adabelle Driver, Captain Charles E. Anderson, Buck Moulton, Tudor Williams, Harry H. Evans, Kenner Kemp, Merle Farris and Boone Hazlett.

In the Class A election, the board of directors will select a nominating committee by August 15th. Eleven members of the board of directors each year are elected for three year terms. Directors whose terms expire this year are Ralph Morgan, Lucile Gleason, Jean Hersholt, Russell Hicks, Boris Karloff, Claude King, Noel Madison, Jean Muir, Franchot Tone, Erin O'Brien-Moore and Morgan Wallace.

The board this week was to have stricken from membership rolls several hundred delinquent extras, casual workers for the most part who put in less than 10 days a year on the sets.

The board has also raised initiation fee for all adult membership in the Guild from $25 to $50. Dues remain unchanged.

Claims 230 Members

The New York Screen Publicists Guild claims membership of 230 with the admission last week of 46 new members, prior to the August 1st deadline calling for an initiation fee for those joining after that date.

The Screen Publicists Guild claims the New York publicists' field now is "almost completely organized." Plans are being made for organization of an associate division of the guild for free lance and part time publicists and field exploiteers.

A meeting at which will be adopted a constitution for the joint organization of the New York and Hollywood publicists guild has been tentatively set for August 21st on the coast. Three delegates from the New York group will attend.

Philadelphia Officers Quit

John Leary, president of the Philadelphia local of the American Guild of Variety Artists, and Jack Herbert, a vice-president, have resigned because of internal differences with other members of the union's administration.

William Mayo, first vice-president, becomes president; Charles Arthur becomes first vice-president, and Lee Travers, third vice-president.

End Scranton Controversy

A long standing controversy between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress for Industrial Organization was ended in Scranton, Pa., this week, when CIO leaders announced that a CIO charter issued more than a year ago for a motion picture operators local had been revoked.

British Loans Of $1,500,000 Retired by "U"

Universal has just completed the retirement of British loans which, at the maximum, amounted to about $1,500,000. All the payments in retiring this obligation made during the past nine months were with the company's block currencies in England. At the beginning of Universal's fiscal year last November 1st the British loans amounted to $1,100,000.

Besides paying off in full the British obligations Universal was able to withdraw from England all but $60,000 of the amount which it could take out under the currency agreement made between the film companies and the British government which permits a withdrawal of up to 50 per cent of the company's revenue.

The fact that Universal has been able to retire its British indebtedness and withdraw most of the money permitted indicates that the company's British distribution revenue, by November 1st, will be over $2,000,000. This would represent a substantial increase in business in England for Universal.

J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, arranged the British financing in 1936. The plan provided for a revolving credit of $1,000,000 maximum with the National Provincial Bank of London and a maximum of $500,000 with General Cinematograph Finance, the financial affiliate of C. M. Woolf's General Film Distributors of London, in which Arthur Rank and Lord Portal are principals.

Universal has increased its special amortization reserve to provide for contingencies resulting from increasing losses of foreign revenue to $10,000 per week retroactive to November 1, 1939. During the first quarter the reserve was established at $5,000 per week and was later increased to $8,000 per week during the second quarter. The company has just begun its fourth fiscal quarter.

Two Color Features Set by Monogram

Monogram Pictures will make two color features, in and around Phoneix, Arizona. They will be "Black Stallion," to start production next Thursday; and "College Sweetheart."

Contracts for the pictures were signed last week between W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, and T. H. Richmond, representing Charles Goetz, president of Golden West Productions, which will make the two features.

Oklahoma City Changes

Carl Peppercorn, head booker and office manager for RKO Radio in Oklahoma City for the last 18 months, has been transferred to a similar position in Pittsburgh for RKO. Ben Tullius, assistant booker in Oklahoma City, succeeds Mr. Peppercorn.

F. R. "Buddy" Moran, booker for Republic's Oklahoma City branch, has been transferred to Des Moines as branch manager. He is succeeded in Oklahoma City by Fred Lawrence, former booker for Bader Busby, Little Rock, Ark., Republic franchise holder.

Republic Studio Faces Screen Publicists Strike

The Republic Pictures studio in Hollywood this week faced a possible strike by the Screen Publicists' Guild and other Hollywood labor organizations, after the collapse of negotiations between it and the Guild for a closed shop contract. The Guild charges Republic refused to sign the pact for five publicity department workers. It has threatened a strike, and is asking other studio unions for support.

Guild members on Thursday night met to discuss action.

The Motion Picture Painters Local 644 notified the Guild that its members would not cross a publicists' picket line; and it was understood that the Hollywood Guild Council would support the publicists, this support including the writers', interior decorators', script clerks', and set designers' guilds.

Fox Intermountain Meeting August 21

The Fox Intermountain Theatres will hold their annual managers' meeting in Denver August 21-23. Spyros and Charles Skouras will be at the meeting for the three days, and the convention will be presided over by Rick Ricketson, division manager.

The meeting will be adjourned in time for the men to attend the Rocky Mountain Screen Club picnic August 23rd at Eddie Ott's On-the-Lake and the Evergreen golf course at Evergreen, Col., 40 miles west of Denver in the mountains. Jack Langan, Universal exchange manager in Denver, is general chairman.

Colli, Dunn in U. S.

Peter Colli, Warner Brothers' supervisor for Cuba, Mexico, Panama, Peru, Puerto Rico, Trinidad and Central America, is visiting the home office, New York, for conferences dealing with plans for selling next years' product in his territories.

Harold Dunn, Warner supervisor of operations in the Far East, arrived on the west coast from Shanghai this week and is continuing on to New York for home office conferences.

Stern Rejoins Standard

Bert Stern, formerly with Standard Theatres Corporation, Oklahoma City and for the last two years concert and theatrical manager of the Shrine and Oklahoma City municipal auditoriums, has rejoined Standard as director of advertising for the eight Standard houses in the city. In addition he becomes active manager of the Criterion, succeeding Forrest Swiger, who has taken over management of four northside Standard suburban theatres.

20th Century-Fox Signs Muni

Paul Muni, who terminated his long standing contract with Warner Brothers recently, has been signed by Twentieth Century-Fox for the role of "Pierre Raddison," French-Canadian trapper, in "Hudson's Bay," which is the new title for "Hudson Bay Company."

Set Commonwealth Meeting

The annual fall meeting of Commonwealth Amusement's theatre managers will be held September 4-5 at the Hotel President in Kansas City.

Film Alliance Schedules 10 40-41 Releases

Film Alliance of the United States has scheduled 10 films, one to be released every two weeks, for the first part of the 1940-41 program.

All Action Pictures

The films are "Spies in the Air," with Barry Barnes, Roger Livesey, Basil Radford and Joan Marion; "Murder in the Night," Jack La Rue; "Hell's Cargo," Robert Newton, Walter Rilla and Kim Peacock; "False Rapture," Otto Kruger, Mary Maguire; "Let George Do It," George Formby; "The Chinese Bungalow," Paul Lukas; "Death at Broadcasting House," Ian Hunter; "Sensation," John Lodge; "Secret Journey" and "Tiger Bay," Anna May Wong.

High spot in the first block is "Let George Do It," according to Film Alliance. Arrangements for first run situations in the western division will be made by Norman Elson, who left New York Monday on an eight-week sales trip covering the west, middle west and far south. The eastern runs will be set by Sol Edwards, the company's new sales chief. Mr. Edwards was formerly sales manager for Fine Arts and eastern sales head of Grand National.

Besides the 10 films scheduled for release the company has 15 other features and 12 westerns on the 1940-41 program. The features are "10 Minute Alibi" (tentative title), "Debt of Honor," "The Silent Battle," "Meet Maxwell Archer" (tentative title), "Queer Cargo," "Larceny Street" (tentative title), "This Man in Paris," "Queen of Crime" (tentative title), "House of Vengeance" (tentative title), "Undercover Racket" (tentative title), "Secret Journey," "Lucky to Me" (tentative title), "Inquest," "Things Are Looking Up" (tentative title) and an exploitation special.

Expect Bondy Decision On RKO Allowances

Decision by Federal Judge William Bondy, in New York, on allowances to applicants for services rendered during the RKO reorganization proceedings was expected this week or next. The allowances applied for total $1,732,984. The Securities Exchange Commission and special counsel for RKO have asked the court to cut this amount to approximately $600,000.

RKO Closes Deal

RKO Radio has closed a deal with the L. L. Dent Westland Circuit for 1940-41 features, short subjects, March of Time, Walt Disney short subjects, RKO Pathe News, "The Ramparts We Watch" and the Walt Disney Festival of Hits. Theatres in Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Greeley and Grand Junction are involved in the transaction. Cresson E. Smith, western sales manager, and Herb MacIntyre, western district manager, acted for RKO and Louis Dent and Tom Noble, acted for the circuit. A two-year deal had previously been negotiated with Mr. Dent for his Oklahoma City and Lincoln, Neb., first run theatres.

Open Poster Exchange

Blackwell's Advertising Service, independent Poster Exchange, has been formed in Kansas City by George Blackwell, who has had experience of seven years with the Independent Poster Exchange and three years with Premier Advertising Service.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Studios Active

No cessation of production since the War has been recorded yet by the Strand Film Company, leading producers of documentary films in Great Britain. Three have recently been completed for the Ministry of Information and four others are in current production.

The three ready for showing are varied in subject. One is "Britain's Youth," a study of the fitness movement amongst the young people in this country in wartime. "The Big City," which is inspired by the story of London Transport, the immense traffic trust which has virtually a monopoly of travel by tube, underground, tram and bus in the metropolis, is a record of how London's traffic is handled in peace and war. "The New Britain" is a survey of material and social achievements in this country during the past twenty years.

To follow are films on the Bren gun, on Oxford, on British architecture, and on Scotland's war effort. With the exception of the film on the Bren gun, all these have been or are being made with one eye on Dominion appeal.

Strand's "These Children Are Safe," dealing with evacuation, is to go to America via the British Council under the new title "And What of the Children."

Thriller in Work At Shepherds Bush

With the completion of "Baloonatics," the Crazy Gang comedy, at Shepherds Bush, the studios have now been turned over to Twentieth Century Productions who are making "Inspector Hornleigh Goes To It," a comedy thriller.

Walter Forde is directing this new Hornleigh subject, with Gordon Harker and Alistair Sim, who played in its two predecessors, again in the leading roles.

A part also has been found for Phyllis Calvert, Gainsborough's screen "discovery," as another build-up to her ultimate stardom.

"Inspector Hornleigh Goes To It" is a story of two detectives detailed by Scotland Yard to investigate Army thefts—colloquially known as "scrounging." Whilst at this task they stumble into a network of Fifth Column activities.

Others in the cast include Raymond Huntley, Richard Cooper, O. B. Clarence and Wally Patch.

Locations Sought for "This England"

In its early but material stages at present is "This England," British National's epic of the English countryside. David MacDonald, who is directing, is at present engaged in finding suitable locations, a task not easy in these days, partly because of the English weather, but more so because of the restrictions imposed by the military and the incessant drone of English planes. With MacDonald is producer Tony Nelson Keys.

"This England" will chronicle English history from the time of the Norman Conquest to the present day, treating the subject of invasion as a motif recurring as a threat right down to 1940.

LONDON LETTER

The following memorandum was received this week from Aubrey Flanagan, London representative of MOTION PICTURE HERALD:

In the issue for June 22nd R. C. Sherriff (British writer and director) from the distant and sequestered shores of Canada is quoted as saying:

"It is now almost impossible to make pictures in England. Not only is there wartime disruption of things generally but other uses are being found for most of the studios around London."

This is nonsense.

On alternate weeks Motion Picture Herald prints a page of reports about British films being made in the studios around London. Some of these wartime films have even got to New York, some of them to Montreal.

The disruption which exists, and the commandeering of sound stages for Government stores, et alia quid, have not interfered with production nor are they likely to.

Tell Mr. Sherriff to turn his telescope around. He's looking through the wrong end.

Mr. Sherriff's opinions were made the basis of reports from Canada that British production would move operations to the Dominion. He was in Montreal on behalf of Alexander Korda, with whom he is associated.

Emlyn Williams and John Clements will play the leads.

The story is by A. R. Rawlinson and Bridget Boland.

New Company Completes First

Recently completed in what is probably record time, certainly to schedule, is a new British film, "Mr. Smith Wakes Up," responsible for which is a new company, Pioneer Films.

The story is a story of plain John Smith, ordinary British citizen, who has his eyes opened to the menace of the Nazi by a dream.

Producer of "Mr. Smith Wakes Up" is Frank H. W. Cox, with Dora Nirva in association. The director of the film is Jiri Weiss and the script was written by Jeffrey Dell, author of "Nobody Ordered Wolves." Eliot Makeham has the role of Mr. Smith.

From "Mein Kampf" To "Eternal Mystery"

Pyramid Pictures, who announced with considerable flourish their intention to make a film of "Mein Kampf," would seem to have changed their mind. They now announce "Eternal Mystery," which is based on a story by Catholic novelist Father Robert Hugh Benson and the script of which has been devised by Miles Malleson.

John Harlow will direct the film and names of those to be included in the cast are Derek Farr, Diana King and Marion Spencer.

Fifth in Production At Welwyn Studios

The fifth film to be made at Welwyn since the outbreak of war, "The Farmer's Wife," under the production eye of Walter Mycroft, is now in its elementary stages. Directing this adaptation of a successful Eden Philpotts play, will be Norman Lee and screen writer Leslie Arliss. Claude Friese-Greene will be the chief cameraman and is already at work on exteriors.

New Producer of Sponsored Films

Recent addition to the list of producers of sponsored films is Verity Films, Ltd., formed in May last by journalist-dramatist Sydney Box and J. Gardner Lewis, both of whom were associated with the Publicity Films, Sound Services and Merton Park Studios group.

Already the company, Verity Films, have made eight pictures for various enterprises. Their schedule includes six more for immediate production.

Swing Injected In Shaw Play

The modern vogue for "swing" is manifested in Gabriel Pascal's production of Shaw's 'Major Barbara." William Walton, the English composer who is doing the score, has arranged a swing version of "Comin' Through the Rye" for a scene in the film.

Recent work on the "Major Barbara" film has been an elaborate dock side set built on Denham's largest stage and representing a riverside scene, features of which are the Salvation Army Shelter, an oil refinery, a row of grimy tenements, a barren patch of earth as a children's playground and a tiny church complete with graveyard.

One of the sequences to be filmed is a mass meeting of the Salvation Army in the Albert Hall when what is described as an inspired address by Sybil Thorndike as General Baines will be one of the highlights of the scene. Mr. Pascal declares his intention to "capture the religious fervor and mass feeling of the meeting by carefully selecting each of the hundreds of crowd artistes to take part."

Film Planned On Red Cross

The history of the international Red Cross which is centred at Geneva, Switzerland, is planned by Oscar Deutsch and John Corfield, who have already set writer Miles Malleson to work on the script. It is their intention to line up all the leading screen artistes of Britain, who would be asked to play without financial recompense. A like purpose is intended in regard to technicians and other workers. Both the sponsors hope to make a £100,000 production for about one-third of that cost and to donate all proceeds to the Red Cross, with whose approval and co-operation the film would be made. It is intended that the film should not be a propaganda picture, but a dramatic story devised chiefly around the life of Henri Dunant, the Swiss banker whose work ultimately gave birth to the Red Cross.

Denham is now spoken of tentatively as the scene of RKO-Radio's forthcoming production in this country headed by William Sistrom.

BRITISH EXHIBITORS SEE CHANCE FOR ADMISSION INCREASE IN NEW TAXES

Revised Scale Planned to Raise £4,000,000 Allows Theatres the Opportunity to Share the Increased Revenue

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Though on the face of it the swift decision of the Chancellor to extract another £4,000,000 from the box offices of Britain might seem too severe a strain, exhibitors have quickly decided that it may well be a blessing in disguise. The new scale of duties, in the formation of which the CEA have played no inactive part, is essentially elastic, allowing the exhibitor, who has three clear months to make up his mind, to adjust his admissions so that they help him meet the swollen overheads of the wartime era.

Tactical Victory Seen

Already exhibitor groups have begun to meet and examine the new scale of entertainments tax in the light of a new scale of admissions. There is much obvious discontent. There is, however, much gratitude that it will now be practicable to step up admissions, gratitude too, that the sum total of taxation demanded is much less than was threatened. By skilled negotiation, and a conciliatory attitude the CEA have, it would seem, scored a tactical victory.

Sir Wilfrid Eady initially demanded a Purchase tax and an increased entertainments tax. The former was abandoned. British exhibitors were told they would be expected to pay another £5,500,000 annually. Under the new and increased theatre duty they will not have to pay more than £,5300,000 a year.

Annual entertainments tax payments made by British picture houses have previously totalled £5,000,000. Sir Kingsley Wood estimates the new duties will, in the ordinary way, bring him in another £4,000,000. Of this the picture house will probably pay £3,500,000.

The living theatres, i.e., theatres with living actors have a special and more moderate scale all to themselves.

Picture house patrons who will have to pay approximately more for their seats in most districts are by now prepared for the increase. It is likely that the four-penny seat (eight U. S. cents), a staple factor in provincial business, on which there is now a tax of a halfpenny, will be raised to fivepence (10 cents). The other halfpenny will go to the exhibitor to help him meet his overheads. Sixpenny (12 cents) seats, the basic seat in British picture house business, have a new tax of three farthings (1½ cents). In most cases this seat will be raised to sevenpence (14 cents).

First run houses on the circuits will probably raise their sixpennies to eight pence and ninepence. On the old ninepenny gross seat, the tax is reduced from three halfpence to three farthings. Thus the ninepenny gross price probably will remain, with the exhibitor netting a useful share. The ninepenny gross seat thus is likely to be extremely popular with picture house proprietors.

The old shilling (25 cents) gross seat will probably go to a shilling and twopence, a penny (two U. S. cents) going to the Chancellor and a penny to the exhibitor.

All along exhibitors have clamoured for machinery whereby they could increase their admissions without the process being uneconomic. Now they have got that machinery. Whilst the exchequer will benefit, so too will the trade, provided the war situation does not become critical.

The history of the negotiations which preceded the tax is a history of a fight for sheer economic survival. The trade was faced with taxation increases which were considered extortionate and impracticable, which would almost certainly have driven many exhibitors out of existence, certainly would have meant an increased payment to the state without the exhibitor getting another penny. Close examination of the scales old and new will reveal this clearly.

Agreement Difficult

Consistently unwilling to concede the principle of higher taxation the CEA negotiators, presented with a virtual if friendly ultimatum from the Customs and Excise, refused to suggest a taxation scale to Sir Wilfrid Eady. Sir Wilfrid, without guidance on detail can possibly be forgiven that his first scale, presented to the shocked exhibitor committee, included, as reported in Motion Picture Herald, a tax on the two pennies of a halfpenny, or twenty-five per cent. On the seats between two pence and fourpence the tax was to be a penny—again a twenty-five per cent duty. On the sixpennies the tax was to be three halfpence. This would, it is true, have allowed the exhibitor to raise his sixpennies to eightpence whilst retaining a halfpenny for himself. The seats between eightpence and tenpence would have had a tax of twopence halfpenny, compelling the exhibitor to put his ninepennies up to at least a shilling. Other increases were equivalent.

All told it would have cost the industry an extra £7,000,000.

With such a scale the CEA would have no truck. It was dismissed as unworkable, uneconomic and unjust. It was far away from the CEA's own scale upon which they had been discussing among themselves, which started at a halfpenny tax on all grades between threepence and eightpence. Such a scale would have allowed careful adjustment of admissions so as to cover costs as well as taxation.

On the Saturday before the Budget the exhibitor committee and Sir Wilfrid Eady sat and wrangled for three hours. Sir Wilfrid had evolved a milder scale which was as yet not mild enough for the CEA negotiators. There were heated tempers. Deadlock seemed reached. A halfpenny tax on the twopennies, a three halfpenny on the sixpennies, twopence on the eightpennies could not be reconciled with economics.

Lower Categories Taxed

The new taxes, do, it is true, bring in lower categories which hitherto have been tax free, notably the fourpennies and the sixpennies. But as already shown they permit these grades to be increased by a penny or three halfpence and in so doing to allow the exhibitor a share of the increase. The picture house can now adjust its seating according to its clientele and to the best box office advantage. No longer is the exhibitor increasing his sixpennies compelled to increase them to eightpence of which he gets only a halfpenny. He need increase only to sevenpence and net a same proportion of the extra.

It is a complicated business but the essential factor now is the concession by the Treasury of the right for elastic machinery.

Present and Proposed Scales Of Admission Taxes in Britain

The table below compares the present rate of tax on box office admissions in England with the scale proposed by the Government and accepted by exhibitors after long discussion:

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Russell B. Porter cables graphically to the New York Times from Buenos Aires about how the Nazis spend $50,000 to $100,000 a month for propaganda, including films.

Through diplomatic efforts, combined at times with direct action, the Nazis have been able to prevent the showing of pro-British or anti-Nazi films to the Chilean public. Ambassador von Schoen protested against the British Royal Air Force propaganda film, "The Lion Has Wings." His protest failed, but when the picture was shown, Nazis in the audience created a riot and threw stench bombs.

"The Confessions of a Nazi Spy," Warner feature, was passed by the censor but banned by the Provincial Governor of Santiago as likely to create public disorder. The "Nurse Cavell" film, RKO release, was permitted by the government and shown in Santiago, but was not shown in Southern Chile because German communities there raised the funds to pay theatres not to show it.

In contrast pro-Nazi films are exhibited virtually without hindrance. Two Santiago theatres display Nazi propaganda films regularly, including the Nazi-made film record, "Baptism of Fire," which uses the German invasion of Poland in an effort to create an impression of irresistible power in the German military machine and thus break down any spirit of resistance among potential foes.

Wherever Nazi films are shown, all Germans and German-Chileans are ordered to attend by Nazi party officers operating through local consuls. If a German or a German-Chilean does not go, he is put on the blacklist. If he is a business man, his business is boycotted. If he is a worker, he loses his job. In any event, he is told something will happen to him or to his family or his relatives in Germany if he does not go, so he goes.

The British colony attends films in a typically British well-bred manner. British protests apparently lack the effectiveness of Nazi agitation, as the Germans keep on showing their films.

Al Span, West Coast director of CBS radio sound effects, reports that his department has completed construction of a new triple-turntable sound effects unit "that will do everything—including talk." Any sound effect, from a steam whistle to a termite gnawing a cellar support, according to Span, can be made to "talk" by blending with an "electro-voice" unit in the machine. The "electro-voice" has two small circular wire units which are held to the throat of an operator. The later forms words with his lips, but utters no sound. Then the sound effect is dubbed in, picking up the words formed by the lips and thus acquiring a strange voice of its own.

The new Republican members of Roosevelt's Cabinet, Secretaries Stimson and Knox, may be alike in their views on war, but they differ vastly on their appearance in motion picture newsreels. Secretary of the Navy Stimson, 72, grave and intense, has no time for such "fol-de-rol" as newsreel pictures. Secretary of War Knox, 66, long a newspaper publisher, is most friendly to the newsreel boys at the Capital, poses willingly.

THEATRES RENAMED AFTER COUNTY SEATS

The K. Lee Williams Theatres, Inc., Oklahoma City, Okla., operating in that state and Arkansas, has changed the names of four theatres to the names of the county seat towns in which they are located. The Gem at Nashville, Ark., becomes the Howard, after Howard County; the Amusu, Fordyce, Ark., is now the Dallas, after Dallas County; the American, Wilburton, Okla., is changed to Latimer, after Latimer County, and the Pines, Waldon, Ark., recently acquired by the circuit from Johnny Forrester, becomes the New Scott. Waldron is the county seat of Scott County.

Motion picture theatres originally brought the first mass attention to air conditioning for big public consumption. Now everyone uses it, everywhere. They even have new air conditioned beds, a brainchild, if not brainstorm, of the laboratories of the University of Washington, at Seattle.

The bed warms a person in winter and cools him in summer. He dials his own weather for the night with a knob at the head of the bed.

An air-cushion under the sleeper and a new form of air-blanket over the sleeper makes this possible. The air-cushion affords, furthermore, another easily installed possibility.

If Pop won't get up when called, Mom downstairs may press a button, and plop goes Pop's air-cushion.

The bed is a sheet-metal box, minus a top. Over this open space is stretched a fabric sufficiently air-tight to form a cushion when the box is filled with compressed air.

Strict enforcement of the Mexico City law requiring men to remove their hats at cinema shows has had some queer results. One patron in a local theatre insisted upon keeping on his hat. To all urging to obey the law he said, "It will be far worse if I take it off."

When finally he was made to remove his big sombrero there was revealed a super Paderewski hair display resembling something like the tall corn of our cornbelt. The man was urged to continue as a law breaker, to put back his hat.

Monroe Rubinger, Warners theatre press agent in Chicago, can't bring himself to realize that Jack Moffitt, erstwhile Kansas City Star movie critic, is writing a Gene Autry picture story, for H. J. Yates Republic Pictures.

"If it's true," he said, "Autry will certainly have to sing one song dealing with social significance."

Captain Billy Bryant, oldtime showman, who has an oldtime showboat anchored at a downtown wharf on the Ohio river in Cincinnati, where oldtime melodramas and modern operas are enacted, has offered his craft to General Julien L. If the good General gets himself a regiment of Sally Rands and Gypsy Rose Lees for the star showboat attraction, he might get some place with recruiting.

Mr. Al Williams, oldtimer, reposing on the rocky heights of Sea Cliff, overlooking Long Island Sound, writes about our recent item anent the early history of motion picture trailers, those abbreviated versions shown to customers in advance of a playdate, intended to show them what to expect, or, as they do more often, what not to expect in a forthcoming film.

There are some who say that trailers got their name from the fact that in earlier days they trailed the rest of the show, as sort of a "chaser" during an audience turnover from one performance to another.

Mr. Williams says that in 1915 when the old Essanay company made "Graustark," "The Slim Princess," "White Sister" and others, Essanay sold to exhibitors what they called 50-foot strips of advance excerpts from new films. Before that and for some time subsequent advertising slides were used by others to announce coming pictures. The trailer itself was tacked to the end of each current picture, with the title of the coming film and the old familiar announcement: "Coming to this theatre soon." At first they called them "tail pieces," later changed that to "trailers."

Some indication of the supervisory eye which Uncle Sam can be expected to keep over media of public expression in a national emergency is seen in the new regulations requiring all of the nation's 55,000 commercial and amateur radio operators to register and be finger-printed by August 15th, in order to ferret out fifth columnists. Beside finger-printing the radio people, the Government wants information about the operators' husbands, wives, fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, all birthplaces, citizenship, antecedents, etc.

FULL TIME FM PROGRAMS START; BROADCASTERS HOLD CONVENTION

Mutual Network in New York Operating; NAB's Chief Topic at San Francisco Meeting Is ASCAP

Frequency modulation, new "staticless" radio, started this week its first full-time daily operation. W2XOR, the Bamberger department store's FM transmitting station, atop 444 Madison Avenue, New York, commencing on Thursday, August 1st, a 15-hour daily transmission of 13 hours of regular WOR-Mutual programs plus two hours of special programs.

Two-Hour Special Programs

Regulations of the Federal Communications Commission require that every FM station devote one hour each day and each evening to original programs so that the public may learn the benefits of FM broadcasting through programs especially selected for that medium. WOR plans to present special programs of light orchestral and semi-classical music for its two hours originating in the FM studios.

Major Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of wide-band FM broadcasting, who threw the key that put W2XOR on the air, pointed out this winter that FM has special advantages for showmen in that a greater variety of sound effects, including a "stage whisper," can be transmitted than on the regular radio system. W2XOR operates on 43.4 megacycles and uses a 1,000-watt synchronized transmitter developed by Western Electric. The range of the new station, according to WOR engineers, is approximately 48 miles, though the programs have been heard at Riverhead, Long Island, 70 miles away.

At present there are only a few thousand FM receivers in the metropolitan area, but WOR executives estimated that within a year the figure would rise to at least 50,000. A number of companies are now making FM radio sets.

John Shepard, 3rd, president of the Yankee Network in New England, also a pioneer in the FM broadcasting field, said that in 1941 there would be at least 40 FM transmitters in key-cities, linked by low-power radio relay instead of the present method of using telephone wires.

"Our experience with FM indicates that complicated relay outposts are not necessary," he said. He added that the new FM transmitter on Mount Washington, N. H., would open this Fall or early in 1941.

At least three FM broadcasting stations will be in operation by January in Kansas City, it was reported. Local radio stations KMBC and WDAF are both expected to file FM applications. E. L. Dillard of Commercial Radio Equipment plans to ask for modification of the company's present FM experimental license and space has been leased for a transmitter and studio in the Medical Arts Building at 34th Street and Broadway in Kansas City.

Broadcasters Meet In San Francisco

More than 1,000 representatives from all branches of the radio industry were in San Francisco this week for the 18th annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters which opened Sunday at the St. Francis Hotel. The NAB golf tournament and special meetings were held Sunday.

On Monday the convention formally opened with official greetings from Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, and speeches by Neville Miller, NAB president, and James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. Mr. Miller said that the past year had been radio's greatest with 9,000,000 sets sold, bringing the national total, including homes and autos, to 45,000,000.

"With less than seven per cent of the world's population, our country has nearly half of all broadcasting stations and receiving sets," he said. The audience of listeners was put at "over 100,000,000 men, women and children."

Mr. Fly told the delegates there was "no grain of truth" in the reports that the Government would take over private radio in time of emergency. He denied that there would be any Governmental censorship of radio.

On Tuesday Louis Johnson, former assistant Secretary of War, asked the radio industry to urge all Americans to unite in face of the world situation.

Various business and technical sessions were held each day. On Tuesday night a television demonstration was held with Harry Lubcke, of the Don Lee television station in Hollywood one of the principal speakers. Wednesday afternoon was given over to discussions of FM radio. Opinion on FM among the delegates was divided.

ASCAP - Radio Industry Battle Continues

The convention continued plans to find a way to break what it asserts is "the ASCAP monopoly" and ASCAP officials were not permitted to address the convention.

Neville Miller, NAB president, asked for the right to buy music "in a free and competitive market" and claimed the radio industry would refuse to pay the estimated $8,750,000 asked by ASCAP for 1941. Details of Broadcast Music, Inc., the broadcasters' music organization were explained.

ASCAP sent greetings to the members of the NAB assembled for convention and asked permission to address the group. The message said a previous request had been denied. Mr. Miller, in his opening speech to the convention, answered the request of John G. Paine, ASCAP general manager, by saying that the NAB had not changed its position since the first ASCAP request was made. Mr. Paine addressed a telegram to each delegate asking that he and Gene Buck, president of the society, who also is in San Francisco, might address the gathering.

Answering an appeal to advertisers for cooperation made last week by Sydney M. Kaye, vice-president and general counsel for Broadcast Music, ASCAP, through its president, Gene Buck, addressed a long letter to advertisers. The radio networks have asked member stations to gradually cut down on ASCAP music and plug Broadcast Music materials because after January 1st ASCAP music may be banned by the networks.

Mr. Buck explained the purpose of ASCAP to the advertisers and how its right to collect fees has been attested by all courts, including the supreme court.

It was said that the networks wished to supervise every detail of their clients' radio presentations and advertisers and advertising agencies were told that the radio networks, for this reason, wanted the boycott against ASCAP. The letter also pointed out that radio interests could not force advertisers or musicians on the radio to abandon music, in ASCAP's library, which they wished to play.

Mr. Buck, at a special meeting of ASCAP members in Los Angeles Tuesday night, said that Bing Crosby would quit radio if he was prevented from using the Society's songs and said that the other artists would do the same.

L. Wolfe Gilbert, meeting chairman, said BMI was vulnerable because stations were allegedly instructing bands and artists to include BMI music music and programs.

10 PER CENT INCREASE IN CANADIAN RADIOS

The total number of radios licensed in Canada now is 1,345,157, an increase of nearly 10 per cent over the preceding 12 months, according to the Ministry of Munitions and Supplies, Radio Division. In the Province of Ontario 520,503 radios were licensed at the end of March, which is an increase of 4.5 per cent over the 497,858 the year preceding.

A total of 71,503 receivers, with a retail value of $3,524,190, were manufactured in Canada during the first quarter of 1940. This figure represents an increase of 76 per cent over the first quarter of 1939. One of the reasons for radio expansion was interest in news created by the war, it was reported.

Florida Anti-ASCAP Law Ruled Illegal

After three years in the courts, Florida's law, which would have prevented ASCAP from establishing or collecting royalties for the public performance of its music for profit within the state, was declared unconstitutional by a Federal statutory court at Gainesville, Florida. The case is now concluded if the State does not appeal to the U. S. supreme court.

Radio Revenue in 1939 Reached $89,990,646

A material increase both in the gross revenues of broadcasting stations and the stations among which it was divided as shown for 1939 over 1938 in figures now being analyzed by the Federal Communications Commission.

Financial reports filed by the broadcasters showed that 705 stations had total revenues in 1939 of $89,990,646, compared with 660 stations having revenues of $79,128,760 in 1938.

The number of stations in the major networks jumped from 350 in 138 to 397 last year, and the amount received by stations from the chains was $22,500,941 in 1939 compared with $19,-645,447 in 1938.

The report showed that in 1939 a total of 519 stations reported net time sales in excess of $25,000, their aggregate sales being $80,306,134, as compared with sales of $71,082,465 by 485 such stations in 1938.

The FCC announced that there were 2,452 regular broadcast stations throughout the world, including 814 in the United States, as of December 31, 1939.

$2,000,000 Expansion In Short Wave Forecast

About $2,000,000 additional will be spent by broadcasters for more powerful short wave transmitters, according to Neville Miller, head of the NAB. Mr. Miller told Thomas Burke, head of the Division of International Communications at the State Department, that more than $1,000,000 would be spent in the next year to erect transmitters to bring American programs to the rest of the world, particularly to South America. American short wave stations are now broadcasting about 450 hours of programs to South America each week; of that total about 14 hours are devoted to news broadcasts. Since the principal countries in Europe "beam" special news and other programs to Latin America for propaganda purposes, it was felt that American broadcasters should do more to counteract foreign influence in Latin America.

Television Construction Permits Given to Balaban & Katz and NBC

On Monday the Federal Communications Commission approved construction permits for the National Broadcasting Company television station for Washington and that of Balaban & Katz for Chicago. Both stations will operate on the 60 to 66 mc. band and have 1,000 watt power.

Paramount home office executives said that equipment for the Balaban & Katz television station had been ordered and final plans were about completed. It was said that construction of the station would begin after details of the plans are finished.

Last week the joint all-industry television committee began operations. The chief purpose will be to solve the problem of television standards so that telecasters may present a united front to the FCC and obtain full commercializations which is desired by almost all parties interested in television.

Chairman Fly of the FCC addressed the first meeting of the National Television Systems Committee held last week at the Hotel Roosevelt. The committee was sponsored by the Radio Manufacturers' Association, which is headed by J. S. Knowlson. Mr. Fly told the group that the commission was waiting for them to agree. Dr. W. R. G. Baker, chairman of the committee and director of the RMA engineering department, announced the purposes of the committee and E. K. Jett, chief engineer for the FCC, asked that standards be selected that would permit future development and not freeze the art.

The organizations represented were: CBS, Don Lee Broadcasting System, DuMont Laboratories, Farnsworth Television & Radio Corp.; Television Productions; Bell Telephone Laboratories; General Electric; Hazeltine Service Corp., John V. L. Hogan, Hughes Tool Co., Institute of Radio Engineers, Philco, RCA, Stromberg-Carlson, and Zenith Radio.

The following subcommittees, with their chairmen, were appointed: System Analysis, P. C. Goldmark; Subjective Aspects, A. N. Goldsmith; Television Spectra, J. E. Brown; Transmitter Power, E. W. Engstrom; Transmitter Characteristics, B. R. Cummings; Transmitter-Receiver Coordination, I. J. Kaar; Picture Resolution, D. E. Harnett; Synchronization, T. T. Goldsmith; and Radiation Polarization, D. B. Smith.

Frank E. Mullen Made NBC General Manager

Frank E. Mullen, vice-president of RCA, has been appointed vice-president and general manager of NBC. Mr. Mullen was elected at a board of directors' meeting on Friday and assumed his new post on Monday. At present he is attending the NAB convention in San Francisco.

The radio career of the new NBC executive began in 1923 when he became radio editor of the Stockman and Farmer and producer of a radio program over station KDKA in Pittsburgh. Shortly after NBC was formed in 1926 Mr. Mullen joined the organization and for eight years was director of agricultural activities, including the "National Farm and Home Hour." Mr. Mullen then served for five years as manager of RCA's information department, becoming a vice-president in 1939.

MGM's "Boom Town" In 14 Engagements

Beginning Thursday, MGM's "Boom Town" started pre-release "promotion engagements" in fourteen cities, at advanced prices.

On Thursday, the picture opened at the Apollo, Atlantic City; the Orpheum, Tulsa; the State, and Chinese, Los Angeles; the Loew's, Harrisburg; the Loew's, Reading; the Mayfair, Asbury Park. On Friday, it was to open at the Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky; the State, New Orleans; the Community, Saratoga; the Palace, Indianapolis; the Capitol, Cincinnati; the Palace, Lake Placid; and the Rialto, Glens Falls, New York, where a midnight showing preceded actual opening.

On August 16th, the picture is to open at the Criterion, Oklahoma City.

Million Dollar Sets Release on Two Films

Million Dollar Distributing Company, Atlanta, Ga., has set release dates on the first two of a series of eight all-Colored cast features for the 1940-41 season. The first is "While Thousands Cheer," with Kenny Washington, Negro football star, and Mantan Moreland, set for release September 15th, and the second is "Four Shall Die," with a release date of October 15th. The series will be produced by Million Dollar Productions, Inc., in Hollywood.

McCarthy on Coast

Charles E. McCarthy, director of publicity and advertising for Twentieth Century-Fox, arrived in Hollywood this week to discuss the campaign for "Brigham Young" with Darryl Zanuck. He was accompanied by Rodney Bush. "Brigham Young" is scheduled to have its world premiere in Salt Lake City August 16th at advanced prices. The national release date is set for September 15th.

Selznick Directors Convene

What was described as a routine meeting of directors occurred at the Selznick International New York home office, on Tuesday. John Hay Whitney presided. Others were David O. and Myron Selznick, Robert Lehman, and Lloyd Wright.

Parks Handles "Pastor" Publicity

Jackson Parks, newspaper and publicity man, has been appointed publicity director for James Roosevelt in connection with the latter's distribution through United Artists of "Pastor Hall," anti-Nazi film made in England. Mr. Parks formerly was associated with Russell Birdwell's publicity group and handled publicity for the Conference of AFL Studio Unions.

New RKO Series

RKO Radio in Hollywood this week announced plans for a series of four films starring Lupe Valez and Leon Errol, who are in "Mexican Spitfire."

Purchase Star's Contract

Warner Brothers has purchased Ida Lupino's contract from Paramount.

"Sea Hawk" Trade Shown

Over 7,000 exhibitors were invited to attend the trade showings of Warner Brothers' forthcoming release of "The Sea Hawk," held in the company's 37 exchange centers in the United States and Canada last Monday.

Each of the screenings was preceded by a trailer featuring an address by Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, who informed the gatherings of the purpose of the screenings. Following the showings there were open forum discussions, which were presided over by the company's branch manager in each territory.

In the trailer Mr. Sears spoke of the cost of making a picture such as the "Sea Hawk" and said the company wanted to go on making big pictures, but, he added, "none of us are in the business for our health. And, please remember, gentlemen, that if these big producing companies find by bitter experience that high-class, costly pictures don't pay, they will be obliged to stop making them."

He concluded with an expression of belief that the picture would mark the turning point of exhibition in the direction of the single feature standard.

"Brigham Young" in Salt Lake August 23rd

The Twentieth Century-Fox "Brigham Young" will open on August 23rd in four theatres of Salt Lake City, in Utah, the company announced this week. The theatres are the Centre, Paramount, Utah, and Capitol; and the opening top admission will be $1.10, to be followed by advanced admissions at the Center, where it will continue.

As announced by the company, the scale for the run will be raised 25 per cent in the afternoon and 33-1/3 per cent in the evening.

The premiere, at the four theatres simultaneously, will be featured by the usual celebrations, ballyhoo, banquets, and by personal appearances of the company's stars, including Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell.

Critic in Exhibition

Cecile Lane is doing advertising and promotional work at the Riverside Theatre, Milwaukee's only films-and-stage show house. She was formerly, and at various times, motion picture critic, women's editor, and feature writer on the Wisconsin News, that city; and on the promotional staff of the Boston Store, same city. Manager of the Riverside Theatre is Ed. J. Weisfeldt.

New "Stooges" Contract

"The Three Stooges" (Moe Howard, Larry Fine and Jerry Howard), have signed a new two-year contract with Columbia. The trio have just completed a new comedy, "How High Is Up?" which is scheduled for early release.

Autry in Rodeo Deal

Gene Autry, Republic's singing cowboy, has signed with Madison Square Garden for a three-week personal appearance engagement at the New York Rodeo this summer. He will be paid $4,600 weekly.

Second Quarter Earnings for Paramount $1,478,000, Increase of $648,000 Over 1939 Total

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Tuesday afternoon reported a consolidated net operating profit of $117,213 after all charges, including provision of $800,000 for reserve against foreign assets, for the 26 weeks ended June 29, 1940. This compares with a profit of $2,325,525 for the first 26 weeks of 1939.

Second Quarter Given

For the second quarter ended June 29, 1940, the consolidated net operating loss, after all charges, including provision of $700,000 for reserve against foreign assets, was $236,163 compared with first quarter profit of $353,376, and a profit of $1,101,275 for the second quarter of 1939.

The purpose of the additions to special reserve against foreign assets is to exclude from current profits those profits earned during the period in foreign currencies, principally sterling, which are not currently realizable in United States dollars and are therefore not available for use in the corporation's operations in the United States. These profits are now represented by foreign current assets (principally cash) and at such future time when they may be converted into United States dollars, they will be included in the profits of the period in which realized.

The consolidated profit and loss statement of Twentieth Century-Fox and subsidiaries, with the exception of Roxy Theatres, Inc., for the subsidiary, 26 weeks ended June 29, 1940, follows:

Income:
Gross income from sales and rentals of film and accessories	$23,934,628.96
Dividends	2,370.00
Proportion of profit of controlled company	52,123.58
Miscellaneous	437,370.19
	$24,426,492.73
Expenses:
Operating expenses of exchanges, home office and administrative expenses, etc.	5,488,394.43
Special provision for foreign assets	800,000.00
Amortization of production and other costs	15,760,572.16
Participation in film rentals	2,054,415.34
	$24,103,381.93
Net operating profit before interest, depreciation and federal taxes on income	323,110.80

Paramount Reports Profit

Paramount Pictures, Inc., estimates its earnings for the second quarter ended June 29, 1940, at $1,478,000, after interest and all charges, including additional foreign and Federal taxes from January 1st. This amount includes $323,000 representing Paramount's direct and indirect net interest as a stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings for the quarter of partially owned non-consolidated circuit and other subsidiaries and $58,000 profit on purchase of debentures.

Earnings for the corresponding quarter ended July 1, 1939 were $830,000 including $300,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries. The increase in the second 1940 quarter was $648,000.

Earnings for the six months ended June 29, 1940 are estimated at $3,084,000, including $1,039,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries and $66,000 profit on purchase of debentures. Earnings for the six months ended July 1, 1939 were $2,130,000 including $978,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries.

After deducting $295,645 of dividends accrued for the quarter on preferred shares, the remaining $1,182,355 of estimated combined consolidated and share of undistributed earnings for the quarter represent 48 cents per share on the 2,465,927 shares of common stock outstanding on June 29, 1940, which compares with 21 cents per share for the quarter ended July 1, 1939. Computed on the same basis, the estimated combined consolidated and share of undistributed earnings for the six months ended June 29, 1940 represent $1.01 per share on such common stock outstanding, which compares with 62 cents per share for the six months ended July 1, 1939.

Consolidated Profits

For the three months ended June 30, 1940, the consolidated net earnings, after deducting depreciation and normal Federal taxes, but before provision for Federal surtax on undistributed profit of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., and subsidiaries, amounted to $195,468, which is equal to 49 cents per share on the 400,000 shares of $2.00 preferred stock outstanding.

For the six months ended June 30, 1940, the consolidated net earnings, after deducting depreciation and normal Federal taxes but before provision for Federal surtax on undistributed profit amounted to $374,767, which is equal to 93½ cents per share on the 400,000 shares of $2.00 preferred stock outstanding.

RCA Reports

The report of the Radio Corp. of America and subsidiaries and interests in RCA, Victor, NBC, RKO, et al., for the first half of this year, released Saturday, August 3, by David Sarnoff, president, showed a net income of $3,728,621 after all operating expenses, taxes, interest, depreciation and other charges. The net was equal, after full preferred dividend requirements, to 15 cents each on the corporation's 13,881,016 shares of common stock outstanding. It compares with a net of $2,172,201, of four cents a common share, in the first half of 1939.

Gross operating income for the six months aggregated $56,559,704, compared with $48,041,640 last year, an increase of $8,518,064. Other income in the period, including interest and dividends from investments, amounted to $294,477, against $248,471 the year before.

Operating expenses, including cost of goods sold, rose to $50,154,198 from $43,530,175 in the six months ended June 30, 1939. The sum of $1,588,437 was set aside for depreciation compared with $1,782,833 last year. Provision for Federal income taxes amounted to $1,036,500, against $442,100.

At a regular meeting of the board, directors declared a dividend of 87½ cents a share on the $3.50 cumulative convertible first preferred stock from July 1 to Sept. 30, payable on Oct. 1. to holders of record of Sept. 6. A dividend of $1.25 a share on the corporation's outstanding Class B preferred stock also was declared, payable on Oct. 1 to holders of record of Sept. 6.

SEC Reports Stock Deals

Trading by officers, directors and principal stockholders in the securities of film companies continued active during June, it was reported Thursday by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its first summary for that month, released in Washington.

Most important series of transactions was the acquisition of 28,800 shares of Radio-Keith-Orpheum common stock and 300 shares of preferred by the Atlas Corporation, giving it at the end of the month 564,189 shares of common held direct and 268,230 shares held through the American Company, 327,812 warrants for common stock and 29,881 shares of preferred stock.

Also in Radio-Keith-Orpheum, L. Lawrence Green, director, New York, disposed of 1,000 shares of common stock, reducing his interest to 4,250 shares.

Rubin Reduces Holdings

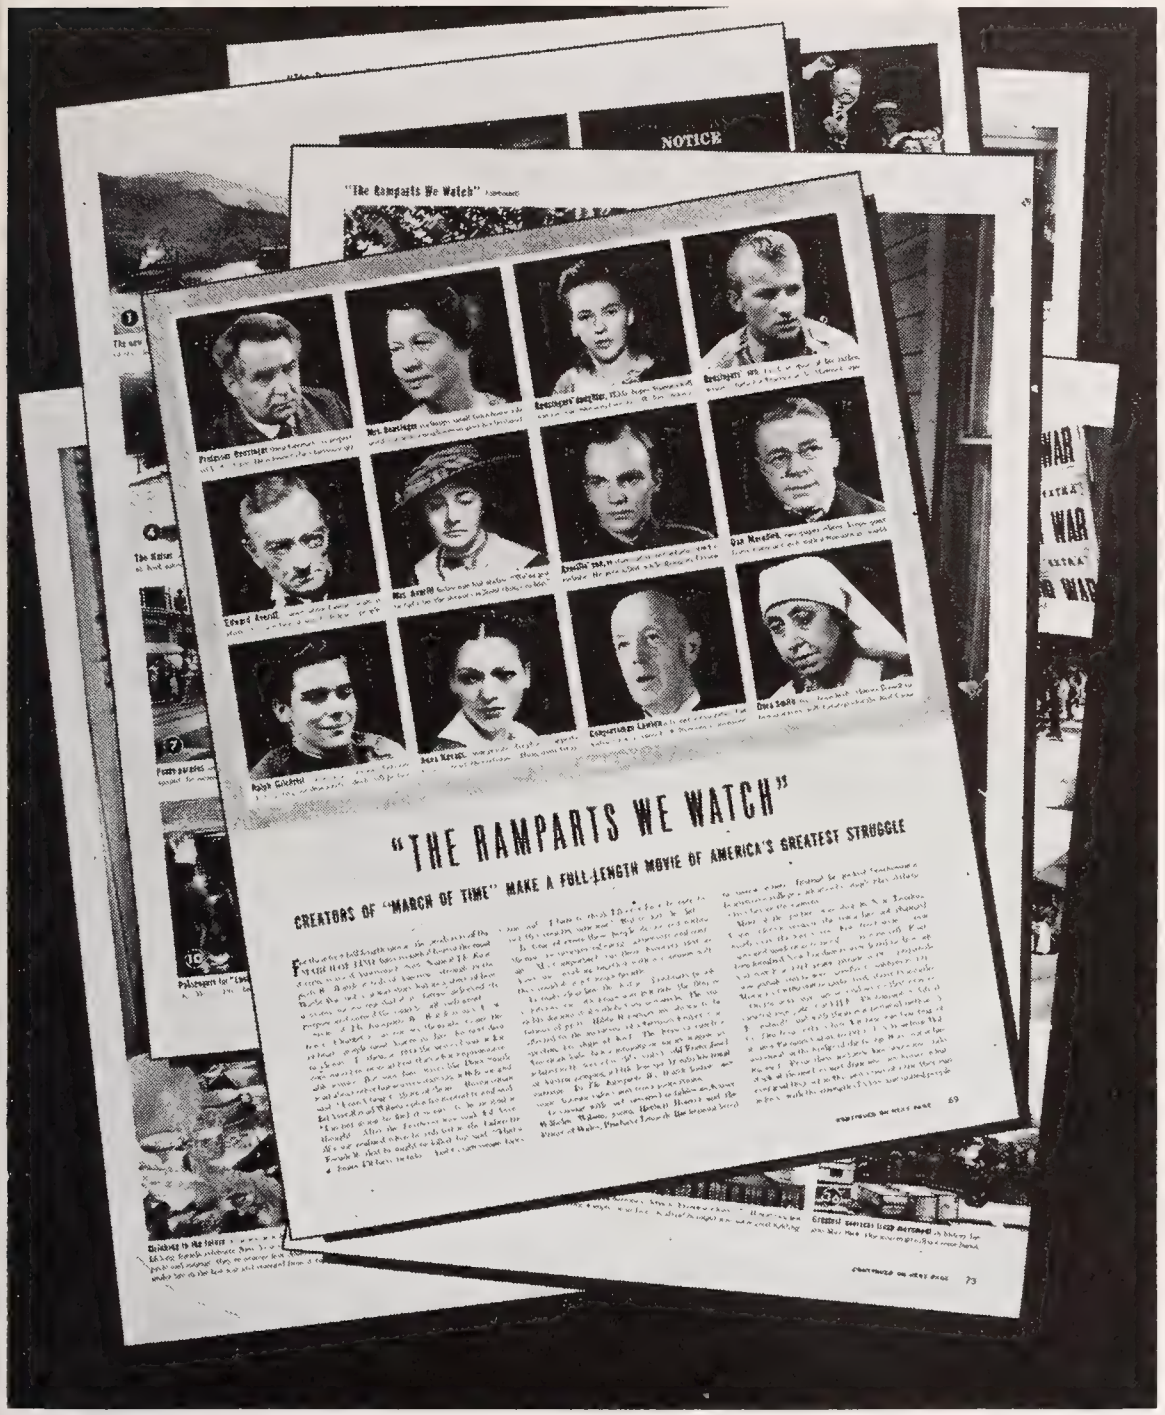
The only other large transaction reported was the disposition of 2,000 shares of Loews Inc., common stock by J. Robert Rubin, vice president, New York, reducing his holdings to 25,615 shares.

In General Theatres Equipment, Edward C. Delafield, director, New York, reported the acquisition of 100 shares of capital stock giving him a total of 200 shares, and late reports showed that Walter E. Green, executive, New York, acquired 20 shares in December, 1939, and 10 shares in March, 20 shares in April and 210 shares in May, 1940, giving him a total of 260 shares.

Kenneth M. Young, Pathe Film officer, New York, disposed of 100 shares of the company's common stock, reducing his holdings to 400 shares. In Twentieth Century-Fox, the only transaction reported was the acquisition of 25 shares of common stock by Sidney R. Kent, president, New York, raising his interest to 3,180 shares.

Loew's Acquires Stock

The only other transaction was the acquisition of 30 shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common stock by Loew's, Inc., which had a total of 117,436 shares at the end of the month.



Included in the SEC summary was a report of the holdings of officers, directors and principal stockholders in Radio-Keith-Orpheum when its registration became effective June 14, last. The report showed that no equity stocks were held by Ned E. Depinet, William Mallard, W. J. Merrill or George J. Schaefer, officers, or James G. Harbord, John E. Parsons, N. Peter Rathvon, W. G. Von Schmus or Lunsford P. Yandell, directors, while R. C. Patterson, Jr., director, held 589 shares of common stock, Rockefeller Center held 563,629 shares of common stock and Radio Corporation of America held 316,328 shares of common, 555,254 warrants for common and 44,757 shares of preferred stock.

T. C. Davis, Port Washington, N. Y., who became a director in Monogram Pictures April 2, last, held no equity stocks at the time of his election, another report showed.

"THE Ramparts We Watch"

A NEW KIND OF MOVIE . . . FIRST FEATURE PICTURE PRODUCED BY THE MARCH OF TIME

WAR DEFERS THEATRE BUILDING IN CANADA

Cost of Labor and Material Causes Postponement; Ortus Unit Starts Production

The war has deferred the construction of new motion picture theatres which had been announced or considered in dozens of towns in Canada. Typical are the situations in New Brunswick, where theatres for Campbellton, Moncton, Bathrust and Milltown, and in Nova Scotia, where houses for Halifax, Turo, Windsor, Belford, Antigonish and Reserve Mines, have been called off.

The primary cause of postponements in building operations has been the advancing cost of materials and labor. Famous Players Canadian had announced its intention to build its third house at Moncton but the operation is now deferred.

Anglo-Canadian Film

British Columbia has been taking keen interest in the work of the Ortus Film Company's production unit from England, now working on sequences for "49th Parallel," feature being produced in cooperation with British and Canadian governments.

The entire unit started work about July 1st in the Canadian Rockies, part of the company moving east, while John Seabourne and 35 technicians and others moved west to Vancouver to spend about two weeks in that center. O. H. Borradaile, discoverer of Sabu, is chief cameraman.

Michael Powell is in charge of the party working east from the Rockies. Elizabeth Bergner, Leslie Howard and Raymond Massey head the cast, which includes a number of Canadian players. The story is by Emeric Pressburger.

Associated Screen News of Montreal loaned cameraman Robert J. Martin for work throughout Canada, and Lucien Roy and Arnold Hague, western newsreel crew, are assisting in work in the west.

Dr. Melvin Brodshaug, Ph.D. (Columbia) is in Vancouver from New York to conduct a 10 day extension course in motion picture technique for the University of British Columbia at Vancouver.

War Savings Drive

Official returns released by the War Savings Committee, show that the fruit-growing center of Penticton, of 4,000 population, had the highest per capita return for Canada in the "Win the War" special performances arranged by the motion picture industry on July 15th. With a theatre seating 700, the town raised $3,386, an average of $5 per seat, from the sale of war savings stamps and certificates, which served as admission for the special performance.

British Columbia tied with the province of Quebec and Nova Scotia in raising approximately $60,000. In all, 47 British Columbia communities participated, with more than 60 theatres staging special shows.

Gracie Fields, English film comedienne, and Anna Neagle, star of RKO's "Queen of Destiny," last Monday staged the first of about 40 concert appearances in a tour of Canada. All proceeds are going to the Navy League of Canada for war work.

The Moving Picture Operators Local No. 257 of Ottawa, has made a donation of $500 from the union funds to the Canadian government for its war chest, according to William Hartnett, secretary-treasurer of the local. In addition, the projectionists have donated their services for voluntary war activities, including various patriotic shows.

The war organization of Britain and Canada is the substance of "The Front of Steel," fourth in a series of short subjects produced by the National Film Board, in cooperation with the Director of Public Information, according to J. A. MacKinnon, chairman of the Film Board.

Released to Canadian theatres "The Front of Steel" describes the full implications of modern war, and what Canada is doing to meet the challenge.

Form Esquire Films

Esquire Films, Ltd., has been formed in Toronto by Archie J. Laurie. The company will be the exclusive Canadian distributors for Associated Talking Pictures and Ealing Studios in England, of which Michael Balcon is in charge of production. Esquire will release through Empire-Universal Film exchanges and has announced a program of 15 pictures, 12 of which are completed and available, including "Convoy," "Let George Do It," "Proud Valley" and "Return to Yesterday."

Joseph Lieberman, part owner of the Maritime Film Exchange, and also an independent exhibitor in St. John, N. B., was one of the five members of a committee which handled arrangements for the annual eastern convention of the Canadian Jewish Congress, at St. John.

Pettijohn, Jr., Named Assistant to Breen

Charles C. Pettijohn, Jr., has been named a staff assistant to Joseph I. Breen, head of the Production Code Administration. Mr. Pettijohn, who is the son of the general counsel of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, left for the coast Friday, August 2nd, to assume his new duties. He was graduated from Georgetown University a year ago and has been engaged until recently in experimental television work at Rye, N. Y.

Connecticut MPTO Golfs

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Connecticut held their fifth annual golf tournament on Tuesday at the Race Brook Country Club, near New Haven. The organization will hold its next regular luncheon meeting on August 26th, at Ceriani's Cafe Mellone, in New Haven, with Arthur Lockwood, presiding. The Associated Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania will hold its eighth annual corn roast and outing on August 18th, in Carnegie.

Carkey Acquires Theatres

Lawrence J. Carkey, independent Utica exhibitor, has taken over operation of theatres at Norwood and Norfolk, formerly owned by Amos Curry, and also in New York State. A Rochester syndicate is taking over Mr. Carkey's Carole, in Utica, while he retains his Family, same city. Harry Savett has opened the Adirondack Theatre, in Faust, New York.

Plans Travel Series

Walter Bibo of Atlas Films Exchange, Inc., is preparing a series of "Travelcades" in color, to be supervised by Jack Kemp.

Pennsylvania Vote On Sunday Films Seen in November

Pennsylvania probably will vote again at the November elections on whether or not they favor Sunday motion pictures. Reverend W. B. Forney, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, in Philadelphia, is seeking signatures to place an anti-Sunday film referendum before Philadelphia voters, a question they answered with 357,555 votes for and 133,034 against, five years ago. While Philadelphians in 1935 registered the two-to-one preference for Sunday movies, which until then had been banned under Pennsylvania's ancient "blue laws," the referendum at that time provided that the question could be resubmitted after five years.

Will Fight Sunday Films

The Reverend Mr. Forney said he was confident he could obtain more than the required 19,000 signatures necessary, representing five percent of the voters at the last general election.

"The motion picture interests got the edge on us before by flashing diagrams on screens throughout the city, showing people where the question would appear on machine or ballot and naturally they were educating proponents of Sunday pictures. But we'll be ready for them this year. Through the churches and Sunday schools and through various patriotic organizations, we will conduct a thorough campaign of education before election day."

In 1935, the Reverend Mr. Forney said, 158 of Pennsplvania's 2,563 municipalities voted against Sunday film, while 167 voted for them. A similar drive will be made by the Lord's Day Alliance in each of these 167 communities this year, he said, to bring them back into line. Petitions and material have been sent out to workers in those places.

At Allentown, Joseph E. Gehringer, district attorney for Lehigh County, is waging a campaign to bar all Sunday motion pictures in the county, no section of which voted favorably on the Sunday film question in 1935. Mr. Gehringer's stand is directed specifically against drive-in and outdoor amusement park showings at or beyond the city limits of Allentown, some of which are showing and charging admissions for Sunday films. The outdoor theatres are at the Dorney and Central amusement parks, adjoining the city, and the Shankweilers and 7th Street Drive-In theatres, several miles outside the city limits.

The district attorney said that after warnings, the owners of the 7th Street drive-in had been taken before a justice of peace and fined according to law.

A concerted movement for Sunday films is reported at Harrisburg, the State capital. Theatre managers announced they would circulate petitions to have the question placed on the ballot in the November election. The five-year interim required by law has passed since Sunday movies were rejected here by a vote of 19,710 to 9,120.

In addition to the State capital, four communities which also rejected Sunday films in 1935—Northampton, Bethlehem, Nazareth and Roseto—are circulating petitions to re-submit the question to voters.

15 CITY STOCK ROUTE COMPETITION IN NORTH

Producer Organizes Stock Company in Minnesota with Subscription Audience

Motion picture theatre owners in the northwest, heretofore unbothered by the inroads of any stage stock touring competition, this winter will get their first taste of stage show opposition, from Henry Adrian, New York and Hollywood producer, who has formed the Minnesota Stock Company to tour shows in at least 15 large cities and towns in and around Minnesota.

The producer reports a "guaranteed audience" from a statewide subscription campaign which set up a definite quota of season subscription memberships in each city of the contemplated circuit. Mr. Adrian says the quotas are well past the halfway mark in 11 cities, and will be established shortly in other places.

The circuit will start at the beginning of the regular show season, on October 8th, in Minneapolis and St. Paul, to run the full seven-month course of the stage season. After opening engagements in both St. Paul and Minneapolis, each of seven productions already set will play two or three night stands over the circuit. In most cases the shows will be put on in newly built high school auditoriums.

It is Mr. Adrian's plan to purchase new shows as they are established, after their performance has been proven. The minor roles in the plays will be cast from a standing stock company, but Broadway and Hollywood stars will be engaged for chief parts.

Mr. Adrian believes that his stock company should prove good ground for rising young screen players to test their ability to act before an audience.

The plan is said to have been endorsed by civic and cultural leaders over the state. His conception became a reality when Mayor George E. Leach of Minneapolis called a conference of Minnesota mayors early in this summer to discuss a plan for creating a state-wide legitimate theatre circuit. The mayors returned to their towns to act as chairmen to put over the local subscription drives.

The cost of a season membership is $12, which admits two persons. However, in the case of families, two children between the ages of 12 and 18, are to be admitted to a matinee performance each month.

Supporters are reminded that for the past 10 years Minnesota has been "almost entirely deprived of the professional, living theatre," dramatic stock companies having almost entirely disappeared from the state, and vaudeville almost in a total eclipse. The Bainbridge Players in Minneapolis and the Arthur Casey Players in St. Paul were among the last of the stock companies.

FILMS MOBILIZING WAR FUNDS, TECHNICAL CREWS

Benefit Shows, Films Planned; Boon to Exhibition Seen in Army Expansion Spending

War preparedness in this country is more and more occupying the attention of motion pictures, from the studios in Hollywood to the theatres in the field and home offices in New York.

Already well under way with the production of "The Rafters Ring," by the British movie colony, as a relief fund measure, releasing through RKO, Hollywood this week extended its war charity activities to embrace a series of stage plays to raise additional funds. In both cases, talent gives its services gratis.

Charity-wise, exhibition is about to undertake what is described as its greatest effort to raise funds, for the American Red Cross.

Of a more militaristic nature is Hollywood's beginning of mobilization of technical crews to aid the Government in war filming.

Meanwhile, from Washington, came word that new opportunities for motion picture theatres are seen by Administration officials through the national defense construction now being undertaken by War and Navy Departments throughout the country.

New Housing Plans

Not only are existing facilities, such as naval establishments and Army posts being expanded but new air fields are planned and in the near future the Government will build munitions plants, to be operated by private companies in the interior of the country.

An indication of the extent of the possibilities for exhibitors is seen in plans of the United States Housing Authority to extend aid in the construction of more than 20,000 new dwellings within the next few months at points where defense projects are under way.

This number of homes does not include those which will be required at other points where permanent forces will not be needed for some time, as, for example, at Quonset Point, R. I., where a $25,000,000 naval air base is being constructed in an area a considerable distance from any existing settlement.

The plan to construct new housing was necessary because of the fact that so many additional employees and their families will be located at the various defense facilities as to create housing shortages.

Points at which exhibitors can look for new opportunities are, so far, Maxwell Field, an Army air base at Montgomery, Ala., and Corry Field, a Naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., where construction of 624 Government-financed homes already is under way, in addition to private building; Portsmouth and Newport News, Va., where ship building is expanding, and Corpus Christi, Tex., where a new Naval air base is to be opened, where 1,350 homes are to be put under construction in the immediate future, and eight localities where 3,350 dwelling units will be started before the end of this month, as follows:

Portsmouth, N. H., 400 homes; Puget Sound, Bremerton, Wash., 400; Charleston, S. C., 400; Mare Island, Cal., 600; Jacksonville, Fla., 400; Hampton Roads and Norfolk, Va., 500, and Newport, R. I., 250.

While 435 homes are now being built at Montgomery, Ala., to serve workers at the Maxwell Field Air Base, the War Department estimates that, after completion of the base, still more homes will be required for the families of enlisted personnel and civilian workers who will be stationed there.

The War Department also plans immediate construction of 600 dwelling units at Columbus, Ga., to care for expansion of operations at Fort Benning, and 300 at Rock Island and 100 at East Moline, Ill., to house increased personnel at the Rock Island Arsenal.

Montgomery Looks Up

Montgomery, Alabama, exhibitors, this week were appraising the United States Army's plan for a Southeastern Air Training Base in that locality. They anticipated expenditure by the Government of $5,000,000, and an influx of 5,000 military persons.

Several miles from the city, at Selma, there will also be started an air pursuit flying school, in which more money will be spent by the Army.

A new drive-in theatre has been opened in Montgomery, and a theatre of 1,200 seats is under construction.

Hollywood British Benefits

The Noel Coward series of playlets for the British War Relief Association of Southern California, on Monday began, at the El Capitan Theatre, Hollywood, with presentation of a group by the Theatre Guild of Southern California.

The first group, "We Were Dancing," "The Astonished Heart," and "Red Peppers," starred Constance Bennett, Nigel Bruce, June Duprez, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Frieda Inescort, Reginald Owen, Henry Wilcoxon, Claude Allister, Binnie Barnes, Freddie Bartholomew, Ernest Cossart, Reginald Gardiner, Blanche Yurka, Gladys Cooper, Lillian Kemble Cooper, Muriel Hutchinson, Morton Lowry, Basil Rathbone and Henry Stephenson.

"Fumed Oak," "Still Life," "Hands Across the Sea," "Family Album," "Ways and Means," will star Brian Aherne, Heather Angel, Paul Cavanaugh, Judith Anderson, Wendy Barrie, Melville Cooper, Joan Fontaine, Ian Hunter, Herbert Marshall, Edmund Gwenn, Elsa Lanchester, ZaSu Pitts, Elizabeth Risdon, Rosalind Russell, Edmond Stevens, Dame May Whitty and Roland Young.

Staging will be done under the direction of George Cukor, Edmund Goulding, Dudley Murphy, Robert Sinclair and Margaret Webster, with sets being designed by Robert Edmond Jones.

Theatres' Red Cross Campaign

The 1940 Annual Roll Call and membership drive of the American Red Cross will begin November 11th, and will be marked by a nationwide theatre campaign, plans for which were approved Friday, August 2nd, at a meeting in New York, of the Red Cross Theatre Campaign Committee, chairman of which is RKO circuit head Major Leslie Thompson.

Representatives of exhibitors' associations, national theatre circuits, and producers and distributors of motion pictures on July 9th had designated the committee to draw plans for cooperation with the Red Cross. On the committee are:

Major Thompson, E. L. Kuykendall, Walter Vincent, Harry A. Cole, Nathan Yamins, Harry Brandt, Robert H. Poole, C. C. Moskowitz, Spyros P. Skouras, Leonard Goldenson, and Joseph Bernhard.

An organization of Hollywood technicians, to aid the Government, in wartime, has been formed by Major Nathan Levinson, head of the Warner Brothers sound department, and commanding officer of the Signal Corps Photographic Laboratory of the United States Army Reserves. The unit, culled from the studios' best, will number 26 commissioned officers and 304 enlisted men, and will function only in wartime, attached to U.S. Army General Headquarters.

It was formed by the Major, it is understood, by request of the Army, and after a six weeks' investigation of Hollywood technicians. Its purpose will be to make newsreels to keep a record of the war, by films, for Government files, and to make propaganda pictures.

Major Levinson has been authorized by the Army to grant commissions within the industry, ranging from major to second lieutenant. Among those recorded in the unit, thus far, are Gordon Mitchell, manager of the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, as adjutant; Samuel Briskin, production executive for Columbia Pictures, in an editorial post; Bryan Foy, Warner producer; Ray Enright, and Edward Sutherland, directors; and Byron Haskins, head of the Warner laboratories.

"RAMPARTS" PRELUDE A MILITARY DISPLAY

With a "Preparedness Day" celebration and a four-mile-long parade as its prelude, the March of Time's "The Ramparts We Watch" was shown to an invited audience of the state's politicians and notables, and to Army officers, at the Northio Paramount Theatre, Hamilton, Ohio, on Friday evening, August 2nd. The "Preparedness Day", first of its kind in the U. S., was attended by 45,000 visitors, who saw a parade including patriotic floats and delegations from the U. S. Army infantry and artillery and from many civic and industrial groups. The affair was covered by radio, newsreels, newspapers and news syndicates.

Netter on Southern Tour

Leon Netter, Paramount theatre executive, left New York on Tuesday for Asheville, N. C., and Atlanta, Ga., to confer with southern theatre partners, Messrs. Wilby, Bamford, Lucas and Jenkins, S. A. Lynck and E. J. Sparks. Mr. Netter is expected to be gone about a week.

Set Pittsburgh Outing

The second annual Northern Exhibitors and Salesmen's, Pittsburgh, get-together will be held at Conneaut Lake Hotel August 20th. Honored guests will be Ed Lebby and Bob Lynch, former film representatives, who have recently entered into private business. Jack Ludd is general chairman.

Move Republic Office

The Little Rock office of Republic Pictures has been moved to Memphis. B. F. Busby, former manager of the Little Rock office will continue with Affiliated Company with offices in Little Rock. Fred Lawrence, formerly with Republic in the Little Rock office has been moved to Oklahoma City.

Sign Joan Bennett

Joan Bennett, who recently completed the leading feminine role in "The Man I Married" for Twentieth Century-Fox, has been signed on a two picture contract by that studio.

Prosperity Clubs Ruled Bank Night

The six Omaha exhibitors, mentioned in a recent state supreme court order to show cause as to why they should not be cited for contempt of court for operation of Prosperity Clubs, this week filed for dismissal of the action in court in Lincoln.

The court took the stand that Prosperity Clubs were revamped Bank Nights, the court previously having ruled Bank Night a lottery. The exhibitors, Will Singer, Brandeis; William Miskell, Orpheum Tri-States; Ralph Goldberg, Independent Theatres; Sam Epstein, Neighborhood Theatres, and two representatives of the Tri-States-Paramount Theatres, claim there is a distinct difference between Bank Night and Prosperity Clubs.

Attached in Kentucky

In response to a letter from E. S. Lowe, Inc., New York, manufacturer of game paraphernalia, Jesse A. Lewis, attorney general of Kentucky, last week said, "It is a thousand times more reprehensible for religious and charitable groups to violate the gambling and lottery laws of the state by conducting Bingo games than for the ordinary individual to do so."

The letter had inquired whether Bingo games were legal in Kentucky if conducted by private persons or clubs, or if conducted by charitable organizations.

The attorney general also pointed out that the Kentucky Constitution prevented his office from instituting criminal action, and that enforcement came solely within the jurisdiction of the circuit and county courts.

Exhibitor Fined

A jury in superior court in Pittsfield, Mass., has returned a verdict of guilty against Bernard Payne, manager of The Mohawk theatre, North Adams, finding that the game Lucky Strike, operated at the theatre, constituted a lottery. Mr. Payne was fined $450. The theatre is owned by E. M. Loew of Boston.

Some 41 Chicago theatres as of last week were using premiums, advertising ovenware, glassware, ruby ware, dinner ware and enamel ware.

The Harmony theatre in Detroit, operated by the Krim circuit, has been playing Hosiery Night, which is handled nationally by Distributors, Inc.

Bingo in Cincinnati decreased in June from the record high of May, although it still was well above the previous months of this year.

The June report, compiled by the police department, shows attendance of 241,923 at 232 parties, at which the gross was $185,029.47. Awards totaled $44,827.05, leaving a net of $140,202.42 to sponsoring organizations. Net cost per player was 58 cents.

May figures were 263 parties, attended by 294,778 players, with gross of $214,994.97; awards, $52,026.14, and net of $162,968.83.

Set Photophone Deals

Contracts for the installation of RCA Photophone sound equipment have been signed by the following theatres: LaSalle and Regent, Cleveland; Victory, Charleston; a new house at New Philadelphia, Ohio; Lakewide, Ocean Lake, Ore.; Drive-In, Milford, Conn.; New, McCrory, Ark.; State, Madison, Me., and the Milo, Rockville, Md.

Keyes Elected

William A. Keyes, owner of the Victory, Columbus, has been elected president of the Ohio Real Estate Association.

Forum Films To Make Educational Pictures

Forum Films, of Hollywood, expects to produce 26 one and two-reel subjects, and two features, for showings in educational institutions.

It has acquired rights to 15 playlets by Allyn Findlay, supervisor of visual education for the Los Angeles Board of Education and by Esther Blair Findlay.

The pictures will be on 16 and 35 mm. in color. Distribution will be through exchanges, probably state rights.

J. Samuel Berkowitz is president and general manager of production; Jess J. Gilbert, vice-president and associate producer; Samuel Nathanson, vice-president and general sales manager; and Lewis Rustein, treasurer, and chairman of the board of directors.

Wisconsin Summer Shows

Summer theatres have flourished into full bloom in Wisconsin with seven such groups holding forth from one to seven days a week. Companies include the Coach House Players at Oconomowoc, the Mummers' at Mukwonago, the Belfry Players at Williams Bay, Port Washington Players at Port Washington, the Columbus Players, Green Bay, the Fish Creek Players at Fish Creek and the Elkhart Lake Summer theatre at Elkhart Lake. In addition, the Players O'The Lake, comprised of Chicago radio performers, are appearing each Monday at the Lake Lawn Hotel at Lake Delavan.

Fineman Rejoins MGM

B. P. Fineman has rejoined Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in a producer berth.

Nazis Invade Greek Market

The American domination of the Greek market is being challenged by Germany, according to Thanos Skouras, circuit operator and distributor of Athens, now in New York on an annual buying trip. Mr. Skouras is the nephew of Spyros, George and Charles Skouras.

The German films, which are of a propaganda nature, are rented to exhibitors without charge or for almost nothing, Mr. Skouras said. He indicated that the war virtually has ended the distribution of French films in the market, formerly a lucrative field for the French industry.

Mr. Skouras operates the D. P. Skouras Theatres Corporation with seven theatres in Athens and is the distributor for several American major companies in Greece.

The 200 film theatres in Greece, Mr. Skouras said, are suffering from the general uncertainty pervading all Europe, especially in view of the Balkan unrest and the possibilities of what nearby Italy may do.

Concerning film shipments from this country to Greece, Mr. Skouras said there are no difficulties so long as Greek steamers are used. The route taken is via Lisbon.

Open Ohio Theatre

Maurice Chase, who formerly operated an independent exchange in Cincinnati, has opened his new 440-seat Roselawn theatre, named for the Cincinnati suburb in which it is located. Mr. Chase also operates the suburban Avon, in Cincinnati, and is interested in a house in Columbus, Ohio.

Columbia

BLAZING SIX SHOOTERS: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Sons of the Pioneers—Here, gentlemen, is a good western. Plenty of what it takes. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

DOCTOR TAKES A WIFE, THE: Loretta Young, Ray Milland, Gail Patrick—A fine comedy drama with plenty of laughs and enjoyed immensely by everyone. Nice business two days. Excellent acting and fine cast. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 4-5.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

HIS GIRL FRIDAY: Rosalind Russell, Cary Grant, Ralph Bellamy—A fast moving comedy. Too much dialogue for small towns.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

I'LL TAKE ROMANCE: Melvyn Douglas, Grace Moore—No good for small towns.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RETURN OF WILD BILL: Bill Elliott, Iris Meredith—Fair draw but not much of a western. A Bill Elliott western generally has my back row patrons slugging it out with him against all odds but this didn't even raise a single encouraging cheer for him. Running time, 58 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

First National

ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO: Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Virginia Weidler, Barbara O'Neil, Harry Davenport, Walter Hampden—One of the outstanding pictures of the year and dramatic playing of the highest order. Miss Davis is seen at her very best and played her very difficult role superbly. Boyer was excellent. Barbara O'Neil's acting as the sex neurotic wife was par excellent. Young Virginia Weidler, a second Jane Withers in acting ability. Harry Davenport and Walter Hampden, each furnished superb bits and the balance of the cast all very good. Capacity houses should greet this truly great picture wherever shown. Running time, 143 minutes. Played July 25-31.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

ESPIONAGE AGENT: Joel McCrea, Brenda Marshall, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh—A film which gave an excellent inside picture of how the foreign service operates and the great work the organization is doing. I found this quite an interesting picture. Our audience gave this one some thought. Running time, 83 minutes. Played July 19-20.—Simon Galitizki, Coed Theatres, Topeka, Kansas. General patronage.

FOUR WIVES: Lane Sisters, Gale Page, Eddie Albert, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains, Dick Foran, Frank McHugh, May Robson—Very good picture to fair business. Running time, 99 minutes. Played July 14-15.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers' patronage.

FOUR WIVES: Lane Sisters, Gale Page, Eddie Albert, Claude Rains, Jeffrey Lynn, Dick Foran, Frank McHugh, May Robson—Good picture that failed to bring them in. Running time, 99 minutes. Played June 28-30.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

MURDER IN THE AIR: Ronald Reagan, John Litel, Lya Lys—Fair only for a double bill and hardly that. Just another quickie. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

'TIL WE MEET AGAIN: George Brent, Merle Oberon, Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Binnie Barnes—One of the best pictures we have played in some time, enjoyed by all and pretty nice business two days. George Brent and Merle Oberon wonderful. George Brent a perfect lover. This story on same order as "Dark Victory." A perfect cast; a perfect picture. Running time, 99 minutes. Played July 21-22.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

TORRID ZONE: Anne Sheridan, James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Andy Devine, Helen Vinson—A pretty good picture and good cast. Drew satisfactorily two days. James Cagney is popular here, especially with the male trade and Ann Sheridan, although not so good at the box office, is very pretty. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 11-12.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

EDISON, THE MAN: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Gene Lockhart, Charles Coburn—The film is good in every way, even though it did not give Tracy the opportunities for the display of the dramatic ability he has. All he had to do most of the time is to look very studious. Our patrons were thoroughly satisfied and gave us many compliments. Business was considerably above average but not top. Played June 30-July 1.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

EDISON, THE MAN: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Gene Lockhart, Charles Coburn—Swell. Had crowded houses and everyone pleased. Spencer Tracy is "tops." Running time, 107 minutes.—Played July 17-18.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

FLORIAN: Robert Young, Helen Gilbert—If you are in a small town where they like action and horses, do not run the MGM trailer. With it you will sell them away from the picture. But you can get them in on the horse angle and will not disappoint them either. Business was below average but am convinced that it could have been a little better had I sold it properly. Played July 12-13.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

FORTY LITTLE MOTHERS: Eddie Cantor, Rita Johnson, Bonita Granville, Judith Anderson—In spite of extra efforts in selling this due to our anniversary, they did not come to see it. Audience reaction was very good, however. But we wish to share our opinion with those who say that Cantor is washed up at the box office and hope that producers will waste no more efforts on him. MGM did make a splendid effort in this and built around Cantor a good and different story. But, what is the use if the cash customers stay away. Played June 16-17.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer Garson—We expected business from this picture but another classic that missed the boat with us.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

JUDGE HARDY AND SON: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker—One of the best Hardy pictures to date but did not do the business. My patrons have been seeing too much of Rooney. Running time, 86 minutes. Played July 6-7.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

MAN FROM DAKOTA: Wallace Beery, Dolores Del Rio, John Howard—Not up to the Beery standard and he is well liked here, which did not help his popularity. Running time, 74 minutes. Played July 4-5.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

MORTAL STORM, THE: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan, Frank Morgan, Bonita Granville, Maria Ouspenskaya, Irene Rich—This is an indictment of Hitler's ways and it is tops as that kind of a picture. Cast perfect and this Maria Ouspenskaya can say more with her grim features and eyes than a lot of actresses can in a dozen lines of dialogue. But something has gone haywire with business and I will lay part of it at the hands of the war hysterical outfit at Washington. They are banging the war drums with conscription and so on. That is not doing the country or business any good.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

SECRET OF DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day—This picture was well taken but patrons say one is too much like the one before. Running time, 85 minutes.—Played June 14-16.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

SHOP AROUND THE CORNER: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan, Frank Morgan—There was not enough action in this picture for my patrons but some of them liked it. I thought it was a very fine picture. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 19-21.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Rita Quigley, Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey, Bruce Cabot, John Carroll, Rose Hobart—An excellent picture. Not sacrilegious. Business fair. Joan Crawford plenty good in this one.—Played July 3-4.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

TWENTY MULE TEAM: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau—We played this to really good business even though many people vacationed away from town over the holiday. I guess it is made up of what people look for. Beery is his usual self, the way they like him best. However, it is not quite the production "Bad Man of Brimstone" was. Played July 2-4.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN: Jack Benny, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Andy Devine, Ellen Drew—The customers ate this up and I myself who never have been a Benny fan enjoyed it thoroughly. This is so much better and different from anything Benny ever did before for the screen that it simply was a hit with everybody. Business was good but as usual when business is good we paid too much for it.—Played June 23-24.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

GERONIMO: Preston Foster, Andy Devine, Ellen Drew—Picked this up late which may account for the below normal box office. Also that women stayed away from it may account for some of the poor business. It has plenty of action and suspense and though they lifted some of the scenes from "The Plainsman" and "Texas Rangers" the picture was fairly good for its type. Yet it was not the epic Paramount must have hoped it would turn out to be. Played June 28-29.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

HONEYMOON IN BALI: Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll, Allan Jones, Helen Broderick—Very good picture to good business. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

ROAD TO SINGAPORE: Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope—Everyone enjoyed this show immensely. There is more good comedy in this than there has been in many another show. The music and songs went over big. Business did not quite come up to expectations. Word of mouth helped it the second night. Played June 9-10.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

Republic

CARSON CITY KID: Roy Rogers, Bob Steele, George "Gabby" Hayes, Pauline Moore—Good picture; good business. Republic pictures are getting better. Running time, 57 minutes. Played July 26-27.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DARK COMMAND: Walter Pidgeon, Claire Trevor, John Waynes—One of Republic's finest pictures that appealed to all classes of patronage. Pidgeon is excellent. Also, Trevor and Wayne. All customers came out with a good word for picture. Runnning time, 96 minutes. Played June 5-6.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

GRANDPA GOES TO TOWN: James, Lucile, Russell Gleason—Good comedy which pleased on family night. Fair business. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 23.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GRANDPA GOES TO TOWN: James, Lucile and Russell Gleason—This one is the best of this series. Our patrons liked it and said so. Good biz. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 12-13.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

IN OLD MISSOURI: Weaver Brothers and Elviry—A picture well made that absolutely fits into the New England week-end trade perfectly. A howl from start to finish. We need this type for a change. Running time, 67 minutes. Played July 5-6.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

RANCHO GRANDE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey, Mary Lee—After our success with single-billing "South of the Border" we did the same with this and it certainly stood on its own. It is the stuff they go for in these small towns. Though business was good, it did not come up to "South of the Border." Personally I thought it to be a better picture. I hope they'll keep Mary Lee with Autry. They like her. Played July 16-18.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

VILLAGE BARN: Richard Cromwell, Doris Day, Lulu Belle and Scotty—Played it on a single bill to satisfactory business in spite of heat wave.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

YOUNG BUFFALO BILL: Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Pauline Moore—The answer. Even the heat didn't keep them away and that is what we are all looking for.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

EVERYTHING'S ON ICE: Irene Dare, Eric Linden, Edgar Kennedy—Here is a cute one and it is chuck full of amusing skating sequences with Irene at the helm. The plot is one which will not weigh too much. A fine light moving picture which will please all. Played July 21-23.—Simon Galitizki, Coed Theatre, Topeka, Kansas. General patronage.

MARINES FLY HIGH, THE: Richard Dix, Chester Morris, Lucille Ball—Satisfied a slightly increased attendance. A very good action picture. Played July 13.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

PRIMROSE PATH: Ginger Rogers, Joel McCrea—Splendid. Attendance small but those who were present were impressed. Played July 10-11.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

THAT'S RIGHT, YOU'RE WRONG: Kay Kyser and His Orchestra, Adolphe Menjou, May Robson, Lucille Ball, Edward Everett Horton—A good comedy that pleased fair business. Played July 17-18.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BARRICADE: Alice Faye, Warner Baxter, Charles Winninger—The idea the picture carried was fine but the plot needed more substantial conviction of details. For example, the attack upon the consul presented a weak plot link. General public found no faults; it is worth your attention. Running time, 71 minutes. Played July 14-15.—Simon Galitizki, Coed Theatre, Topeka, Kansas. General patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN IN PANAMA: Sidney Toler, Jean Rogers—Can't say much for this. Business rotten. Running time, 67 minutes. Played June 26-27.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

EARTHBOUND: Warner Baxter, Andrea Leeds—Always you can tell when a star has been let out; it is the old army game. Kill 'em off with bad pictures and here is one that you can put in the top flight for a no good imitation of Roach's "Topper" pictures. He knows how to make them and Fox does not.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

FOUR SONS: Don Ameche, Mary Beth Hughes, Eugenie Leontovich—Good picture; good business. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 28-29.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GIRL IN 313: Florence Rice, Kent Taylor—We did very well for this feature as showers apparently sent the patrons into the theatre. Satisfied. Played July 20.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Warren William, Edward Arnold, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—Another stupendous film that flopped and flopped big. Sold as a top allocation picture by this company, it just was too disappointing. In parts the picture drags too much. Patrons' comments were divided. I know you will all play it if you have Fox but just don't hope for too much from it. Played July 19-20.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—Pretty good picture but rental too high. We cannot make any money as all of the gross goes for film rental. Fox pictures do not seem to go over here. "Jesse James" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band" top anything they have made. Running time, 127 minutes. Played June 27-28.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

SAILOR'S LADY: Jon Hall, Nancy Kelly—Had fair business but was the money I had to give away that drew them and not this dud. Characters in this were entirely too wooden to even get the laughs, they were entitled to, so it didn't do a thing but die until Joan Davis woke the people from their nice quiet, undisturbed slumber and added the only real fun to it. Running time, 66 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SHOOTING HIGH: Jane Withers, Gene Autry—I couldn't call this picture just another Autry as we usually do business with his pictures but we surely missed the bus at the box office with this one. Jane Withers played her part well as usual in that she did all of the talking but Fox went to sleep at the switch when they left Smiley Burnette out of this one. They want comedy relief in their Autrys and the only one that can give them that is named Burnette.—Harry F. Blount, Plaza Theatre, Potosi, Mo. Rural patronage.

STAR DUST: Linda Darnell, John Payne, Roland Young, Charlotte Greenwood—Very good picture. But business was poor. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 1.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

VIVA CISCO KID: Cesar Romero, Jean Rogers—Good picture of its kind but with us ordinary westerns do as well and cost less. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 5-6.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

United Artists

HOUSE ACROSS THE BAY: George Raft, Joan Bennett, Lloyd Nolan, Walter Pidgeon, Gladys George—One of the best pictures released by this company. Entire cast good. Joan Bennett lovely, George Raft a good draw at the box office. Do not be afraid of this one as it is excellent. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 18-19.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatre, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

MY SON, MY SON: Brian Aherne, Madeleine Carroll, Louis Hayward, Laraine Day—A very good dramatic offering but I guess they do not go for that sort of thing at this time. The business did not deserve the Sunday booking we gave it. It is of class appeal apparently because the results we had from tie-ups with literary groups were good and those groups were pleased too. Played July 7-8.—Egon W. G. Wieselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

MY SON, MY SON: Madeleine Carroll, Brian Aherne, Louis Hayward, Laraine Day—Excellent picture and nice business. Every player did a swell job. Not as good a picture as "Rebecca" but do not be afraid to give it your best playing time. Running time, 117 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

ONE MILLION B.C.: Carole Landis, Lon Chaney, Jr., Victor Mature, John Hubbard—Business was only average on this. We believe the producers themselves muffed the great possibilities this film had with their animal imitations. The fact that for the most they only relied on trick photography (i.e., making lizards and other known animals appear to be big monsters) failed to impress people. The animals still looked like lizards to people. Had these same lizards been changed by building them up with putty or something to make them look something people never saw, maybe we then would have had another "King Kong" box office. Played June 7-8.—Egon W. G. Weiselmann, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

OUR TOWN: William Holden, Martha Scott, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Beulah Bondi, Guy Kibbee, Stuart Erwin, Frank Craven—A flop at the box office and picture cost too much money. We did not do any business. Lowest Sunday gross in some time. Picture did not please so well. Personally, I though it a good picture but the public did not seem to think so. Running time, 90 minutes. Played July 14-15.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

RAFFLES: David Niven, Olivia de Havilland—The perfect answer why small town theatres have giveaway and double bills. Absolutely nothing to it. Pay for it and forget it. In fact, Mr. Goldwyn, of Saturday Evening Post blabbings, has not given us a box office picture this season. Running time, 71 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

REBECCA: Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders, Judith Anderson—One of the best pictures we have run this year, including "GWTW." Business was only fair, however. Possibly for the reason that they do not care for drama nowadays. Literary group tie-ups brought fine results. The only trouble with that is that in a small town there are not enough of these literary groups. Played July 14-15.—Egon W. G. Wieselman, Cactus Theatre, Limon, Colo. Small town patronage.

Universal

PRIVATE AFFAIRS: Hugh Herbert, Nancy Kelly, Roland Young, Robert Cummings—Owing to carnival sponsored by American Legion, business poor but picture swell and good enough for any theatre any old time. Play it by all means. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 17-18.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

SPIRIT OF CULVER, THE: Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper—We had a fine attendance on this and we heard no comment either for or against so it must have pleased. However, I am inclined to think this type of film is overworked at the present time. Running time, 90 minutes. Played July 19-20.—Simon Galisizki, Coed Theatre, Topeka, Kansas. General patronage.

ZANZIBAR: Lola Lane, James Craig—This, gentlemen, is a sleeper. All the excitement in the world, scenes you never even hoped for and a very pleased audience, indeed. A surprise to us all. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 1-2.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BOTHER ORCHID: Edward G. Robinson, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sothern, Ralph Bellamy—A fair picture but certainly not worth your best play dates. Robinson is not strong enough in our situation for a good draw. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BROTHER ORCHID: Edward G. Robinson, Ann Sothern, Ralph Bellamy, Humphrey Bogart—Only fair picture to fair business. Title misleading and not one bit helpful in selling show. Running time, 91 minutes. —A. E. Elasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

BROTHER RAT AND A BABY: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Jane Bryan, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman, Eddie Albert—Nothing very heavy about this picture. The film should click anywhere because subject is one which will appeal to the old as well as the young, to the clods as well as the fashionable. It is light and spicy with humor sprinkled throughout, making an ideal movie dish. Running time, 78 minutes. Played July 14-16.—Simon Galitizki, Coed Theatre, Topeka, Kansas. General patronage.

SISTERS, THE: Errol Flynn, Bette Davis, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Alan Hale—Here is commendable acting with an excellent plot and nicely presented. Many came to see it for their second time. Personally it pleased me much. Everyone who saw it was entertained and commented highly. Running time, 102 minutes. Played July 21-23.—Simon Galitizki, Coed Theatre, Topeka, Kansas. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BLACKBOARD REVUE: Color Rhapsodies—Good color cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

FLAT FOOT STOOGES: Three Stooges—Always good. This no exception.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FOOLISH BUNNY: Color Rhapsdies—O. K. Cartoon market overdone.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GREYHOUND AND THE RABBIT: Color Rhapsodies—Not so good.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

HAPPY TOTS' EXPEDITION: Color Rhapsodies —Very good cartoon.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HIS BRIDAL FRIGHT: Charley Chase—One of their best.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

JAI ALAI: Sport Thrills—Good filler.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MOUSE EXTERMINATOR, THE: Phantasies Cartoons—A fair cartoon. Have seen better.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

NUTTY BUT NICE: Three Stooges—Pretty good. Our folks go for these.—Ray Peacack, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

OH, YOU NATZY SPY: Three Stooges—Timely. Clever and another Stooges' laugh. They are tops here. Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 8—Verry good.— Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SOUTH OF THE BOUDOIR: Charley Chase—Very good comedy.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

TOMORROW'S STARS: Sport Thrills—Good sport reel. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

HIDDEN MASTER, THE: Passing Parade, No. 13—Excellent as have been all this series. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NEW PUPIL, THE: Our Gang—Average Our Gang comedy. — E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY: Still plumb full of stale war news.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

PUSS GETS THE BOOT: MGM Cartoons—Good. —Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronge.

RADIO HAMS: Pete Smith Specialties—Pete Smith shorts always good. Only thing wrong is the price we pay.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General ptronge.

SEE YOUR DOCTOR: Robert Benchley—The best Benchley to date.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

TOM TURKEY: MGM Cartoons—Amusing cartoon. — Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

Paramount

FOUL BALL PLAYER, THE: Stone Age Cartoons —Average black and white cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor

GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

SHOTGUNS AND BEARS

"Satisfactory as far as it goes. But it doesn't go quite far enough."

The speaker—a visiting brother. The subject—our "Strong Medicine" editorial in the issue of July 20.

"Besides the usual burden of launching the new season," the member continued, " managers have an extra job to do this year in exploiting their Fall bookings." He turned to the editorial in question and quoted:

"the tempo of showmanship demands stepping-up to battle the competition of changing world events now invading the attention-capacity of theatre patrons"

"In short," he pounded the book for emphasis, "the job from now on calls for exploitation guns big enough to be heard above the sound and fury of war. And you can't fire big-bore guns with small-caliber ammunition."

"Well, what's your answer?" this scrivener was eager to know.

"Obvious," the theatreman snapped. "Point out today's weaknesses in conventional exploitations that might have served in easier times. Hammer home how much more profitably campaigns would function if the time, money and effort spent on a lot of run-of-the-mill tieins were concentrated on one or two big exploitations that would really count.

"Tell 'em," the visitor shouted as he rose to go, "a shot-gun never brought down a bear."

ANOTHER WAY TO DO IT

To impress his operation more profitably upon community consciousness, Manager M. E. Ferrara, Dixie, Abbeville, La., struck upon the sound idea of a year-round charity fund for the city's underprivileged. Since there appeared to be no obvious theatre tiein, the Round Tabler was able to enlist cooperation of conservative big names, support from the hard-to-crack newspapers. Success of the project has opened important local doors to the theatreman who will be making use of these contacts when occasion demands.

Where communal goodwill is worth going after, it can be done without involving the boxoffice in prestige-builders of dubious worth. Ferrara's ability to look ahead is an instance of how it can be done without "giving away" the theatre.

The announcement of Ray Bell's promotion to the Loew's home office publicity department marks an almost perfect score of advancement to winners of the Quigley Grand Awards. Voted the Silver Grand for his outstanding work in the 1939 Competitions, the Round Tabler now takes his place among the other winners who have stepped up to bigger jobs after taking down Award honors.

Thus, again the Quigley Awards demonstrate their not inconsiderable strength in helping to clear the way for the theatreman determined to get ahead.

"COOLING" IS NOT ENOUGH

In these debilitating days of intense heat, weary sufferers seeking relief in the theatre demand the most perfect of service to assuage nerves torn raw by high temperatures, raucous street noises, monoxide-scented atmosphere. In battling these conditions, your knowing manager realizes the most elaborate air-conditioning is no more important than the quiet that should go with it. Thus, spoken communication between personnel will be subdued, all equipment will operate noiselessly, "loud-speaker" patrons will diplomatically be hushed.

Sensibilities stand much less wear-and-tear in the summer heat. Theatremen who meet seasonal annoyances by exerting themselves accordingly might advantageously change advertising copy to read:

"Comfortably Cooled — and Quiet"

In striking upon the elaborate truck tiein for "They Ride by Night," described elsewhere in this section, the keen-eyed Warnermen again demonstrate their expertness in developing national exploitation. The Einfeld idea of investing the conventional truck-and-trailer with glamour and excitement is already proving out. Returns are somewhat indicated in the wide publicity arising from participation in the promotion by state and city heads.

Round Table in Pictures

The old-fashioned blackboard was Carl Rogers' inspiration for an unusual lobby news bulletin on "Our Town" at Loew's, Harrisburg, Pa., current happenings in "our town" taken from the local papers. In addition, Rogers plugged some of his forthcoming attractions.

Reported by ad man Ed Goth was effective lobby telephone gag rigged up for "Doctor Takes a Wife" at the Fabian Paramount, in Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., by Eli Glass. Card planted next to desk with telephone invited patrons to hear Loretta Young speaking from Hollywood. When receiver was lifted, concealed recording of voice impersonating Miss Young started playing and was transmitted over wires to the phone.

The unexpected addition of a local beauty as atmosphere in his elaborate "Pago Pago" display brought a lot of extra attention aimed for by Manager Francis Deering at Loew's Theatre, in Houston, Tex. Girl in native costume posed at certain hours during the day and tied up a lot of lobby traffic, according to the Round Tabler.

Labelled the "Maryland Handicap" was the horse racing game set up in the lobby of the Troy, in Troy, N. Y., as part of Leo Rosen's advance campaign on that picture, starting ten days ahead. Carrying out the "horsey" atmosphere, entire ushers' staff was dressed as jockeys.

Civic Heads Tied to 'Ride by Night'

Originating in Chicago, the 60-foot "truck and trailer" ballyhoo turned out by Warners for national promotion on "They Ride by Night" completed its cross-country journey after stopping in various key cities to tie in with local dates on the various campaigns. Wide publicity was obtained as was cooperation of governors, mayors, and other celebrities on the announcement that the truck was being driven to Hollywood as a gift for Ann Sheridan, star of the picture.

Selection of the star by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters as their "ideal riding companion" allowed for a hookin whereby all truck drivers met on the road were invited to autograph the gift. In Denver, Governor Carr and Mayor Stapleton added their signatures, as did the famed auto racer and Mayor of Salt Lake, Ab Jenkins, who met the truck at the outskirts of the Mormon city with a police escort and appropriately bannered cars.

In Kansas City, Marty Weiser, Warner exploiteer, tied in with the Journal to send a photographer with the truck on the stretch to Tulsa, Oklahoma. The result was a Sunday page layout, headed by the title, of "truck" pictures taken on the trip, captions explaining the hookup and crediting the picture. Interspersed in the layout were scenes from the feature, run as comparison shots.

City Playground Tieup Plugs Lampe's Shows

As a means of getting the attention of kids in Syracuse, Gus Lampe, district manager and Harry Unterfort, manager of the Keith Theatre has effected a tieup with all the playgrounds in the city whereby a large sign is posted on the bulletin boards calling attention to the current picture, cast and playdates. In return for this privilege, Lampe offers guest tickets to one girl and boy each week from each playground, who during that week has shown the greatest general improvement. In addition to the break on the bulletin boards, the playground directors make daily announcements calling attention to the shows at the Keith.

For "Ghost Breakers" a lad dressed in white sheet with eyes, nose and mouth cut out and appropriate back banner paraded streets ahead and during run at busiest hours. Also in connection with this picture a safety quiz contest was held in front of theatre by the police department. Pulling up in radio car with portable equipment, policemen asked people in the crowd various questions pertaining to safe driving. A dollar was given to those answering correctly and three times during the one minute program the picture was plugged.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Excuse It, Please

In the issue of July 27th, a program layout by Manager Arthur Rothafel at the Cove, in Glen Cove, L. I., was inadvertently credited to Max Cooper, former manager. Cooper is now at Skouras' Pascack, in Westwood, N. J.

MALCO NEWSPAPERS

Published and distributed by the theatres as a supplementary avenue of advertising, the various "Movie News" tabloids put out by Malco-men are representative of effective circuit mediums that help build the grosses. Among those recently received are the publications sponsored by W-Clyde Smith, city manager, Hot Springs, Ark., and Manager Hiram Meeks of Malco's Rialto, Morrilton, Ark.

The weekly, by Smith, is a four-page, 10 inches by 14 inches, and publicizes attractions at the three houses under his direction, the Paramount, State, and Central. Delivered direct to homes on Fridays, miss-outs are covered by an arrangement with Postal Telegraph wherein messengers are sent out with copies, which service is advertised in the paper's masthead which also announces over 20,000 readers. In addition to picture publicity, Clyde runs a number of outside ads which help pay off the cost. The local touch is maintained with an "Around the Town" column of personals, as well as publicity for advertisers upon occasion.

Of a smaller size, and a monthly, Meeks' four-page, while confined to the theatre and running no outside ads, does an excellent job of coverage, according to the Round Tabler. Also delivered direct to the home, the tabloid features a full listing of the month's attractions. Circulated a few days ahead of the first of the month, the theatreman finds the paper well received, especially in his trade territory. With each copy goes a monthly cardboard calendar for further attention to the Rialto's programs.

Turtle Race Used For "Susan and God"

Using the old attention-getter, MGM exploiteer, N. Edward Beck, cooperating with Bill Browne, at the Mission Theatre, in San Jose, Cal., for "Susan and God," reports putting five turtles in the local Postal Telegraph window, each with a letter of the name "Susan" on their backs. Passersby were then invited to wait until the turtles lined up so that spelled the name correctly. Supplementary copy carried plugs for the picture. The boys also arranged a full page of co-op ads, each carrying the names of three motion pictures and merchandise prizes and guest tickets were offered for readers who could pick out the films in which either Joan Crawford or Fredric March had previously appeared.

As to be expected, the story of "Turnabout" is being adapted for newspaper attentions, a current instance being the page promotion secured by Charley Schlaifer for the date at the United Artists, San Francisco. Tiein with the Call-Bulletin resulted in a by-line feature by the paper's widely-read James G. Chesnutt, wherein the columnist related his experiences in exchanging places with Mrs. Chesnutt in the manner of the picture. Topping the story was a banner cartoon layout of scenes from the picture and comic treatment of the subject.

In addition to a flock of laugh slants for the date at Loew's State, Providence, Ed McBride, also used the title for copy tieins hookup on merchant tieins. With his local Richfield filling stations, for instance, Mac promoted posters planted conspicuously at the stations, copy reading: "Stop for service, then 'Turnabout' to Loew's State," etc.

Co-op ads suggested by pressbook hookups with national advertisers were incorporated in the "Turnabout" campaign put on by Francis Deering, for the date at Loew's, Houston, Texas. Promotions with the leading public utilities companies brought a series of two and three column displays in which the modern kitchens stressed in the picture were used by the merchants to emphasize their wares. In every instance, the picture and stars topped all advertising.

Monster Parade Aids Grimes on "Flag Speaks"

Giant parade of the American Legion drum and bugle corps, the Elks and other leading organizations, to the Warner Theatre, in Erie, Pa., was part of Ken Grimes campaign for "The Flag Speaks." Each group carrying banners heralding the opening, created much attention as they covered the downtown area. Cooperating paper came through with six column cut of the American flag in colors in addition to full page devoted to the Declaration of Independence, border done in red, white and blue.

For "The Biscuit Eater," Grimes invited heads of various sportsmen's clubs to attend a special screening, which brought permission to circularize memberships, urging that they attend the show. Lobby display consisted of dog house covered with scene stills and toy pup in front, card alongside reading: "I'm waiting for my pal," etc., etc.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Deering's "Hardy" Campaign Highlighted by Smiles Stunt

For a week ahead of his opening on "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," Round Tabler Francis Deering at Loew's, in Houston, Texas, effected a tieup with his local newspaper whereby cash and tickets were awarded in connection with a "smiles" contest. Photographer from the paper walked through the downtown district and snapped three smiling people at random. Following day these pictures were run, first one receiving a five dollar cash award and next two the guest tickets. In addition, paper was generous with stores and art on the show at Loew's.

Davis Talks About Theatre Operation In Town of 1200

Running a village theatre is not so hard to take, according to the way Walt Davis tells it. Recovered from a recent illness, and keeping his hand in, Davis is now at the helm of the first theatre in Randolph, N. Y. (pop. 1,200). Asked for some of his impressions in operating this spot, smaller than others he has managed, the Round Tabler finds much to commend.

Vital statistics, forwarded by Walt, show a population break-down of one each of Jewish, Polish, Greek and Italian families. There are no negroes. Businesses show one department store, three groceries, one drug store, four restaurants, one hotel, three gas stations, one garage, one liquor store, one shoe repair shop, two beauty parlors, two barber shops. There is a volunteer fire department, one policeman and one mail carrier.

The locals, it seems, are well organized in social clubs, and this setup is what Davis is trying to break through in making the folks more movie minded. With this in mind, he has been putting on benefit drives and ticket-sales, the organizations getting a slice of what they sell. This also includes the churches. Jamestown is 17 miles away, has 30 day protection, and how the pictures fare in the larger city reflects somewhat on how they do in Randolph. Walt has been able to ward off adverse criticisms on dates through these close tieins.

The Davises Greet Patrons

Rural districts are constantly covered via the mailing lists. In addition, the Round Tabler is in the lobby from opening to closing extending personal welcome and service. Mrs. Davis is also on hand to help patrons with children and these extra services have been publicized sufficiently by patrons to bring in added business. In addition, the glad hand brings in a lot of home-made gifts with which the locals show their appreciation. These include pies, preserves, and other mouth-watering eatables which the city-reared Davis writes, "sometimes makes our room at the hotel look like a delicatessen."

The member finds that surrounding papers are willing to cooperate on publicity features, and one of Davis' favorites, a story on lost-and-found articles has been given a wide play. Daily programs are planted wherever possible and all fan printed matter distributed to those interested.

Honor Students Guested

Tieins that have helped at the boxoffice, according to Walt, are a school hookup wherein youngsters, 12 or under, making 90 on their monthly report cards, are guests of the theatre. Names are placed on bulletin boards and theatre receives list of winners. Those on the honor role are encouraged to keep scrap books, with Davis giving them all material that comes to the theatre and suggesting the fan magazines also be used. When books are finished, they are brought to the theatre where three winners are selected and each rewarded with guest card good for four admissions.

Samuels Aims for Personal Touches In Program Copy

Members in similar situations as well as those who give more than the usual attention to programs will note with interest the various treatments accorded this medium of advertising by Manager W. S. Samuel, of the Rex, Arp, Texas. Reproduced on this page is the cover of a recent layout, representative of the personal note that the theatreman endeavors to inject in his copy. The illustration, incidentally, is from the Lobby Laff department of the Round Table.

In most instances, Samuels confines the front page to institutional copy, comic or otherwise, to spotlight the theatre. The program size remains the same, six inches by nine, in four pages. Inside spread and back page are devoted exclusively to program copy for the week and advertised mainly by regulation ad mats or cuts. Page one is relied upon to "stop 'em."

For instance, the manager tied in on the recent Confucius craze with a face cut of a Chinese oldster framed by Chinese lettering. Under the usual heading, copy read: "Man who take best girl or family to Rex Theatre often will make Big Hit." Beneath was further theatre copy, the entire layout purposely made up in a scrawling hand.

Mat Service Found Helpful

The local newspaper ad mat services are also tapped by Samuels for illustration, as represented by another of the layouts wherein copy emphasized the "happiness" angle. Here, small cuts were used, one showing two women conversing across their windows, reading: "We always go to the Rex, always a good show." A second cut below shows a traffic officer stopping a woman motorist with the driver saying: "Officer, I'm in a hurry to get to the Rex"; the cop replying, "Okay, sister, be careful."

The "personal signature" layout is also developed in various ways. One cover, for instance, shows a full length photo of the theatreman with superimposed hands grasping mouth, shoulder, arm and leg. Tiein copy reads: "Unseen hands grip me when I try to find words to express how thrilled I am over the grand pictures we have for your entertainment this week, I can only insist you get the family together and don't miss one," etc., finishing with the manager's signature cut.

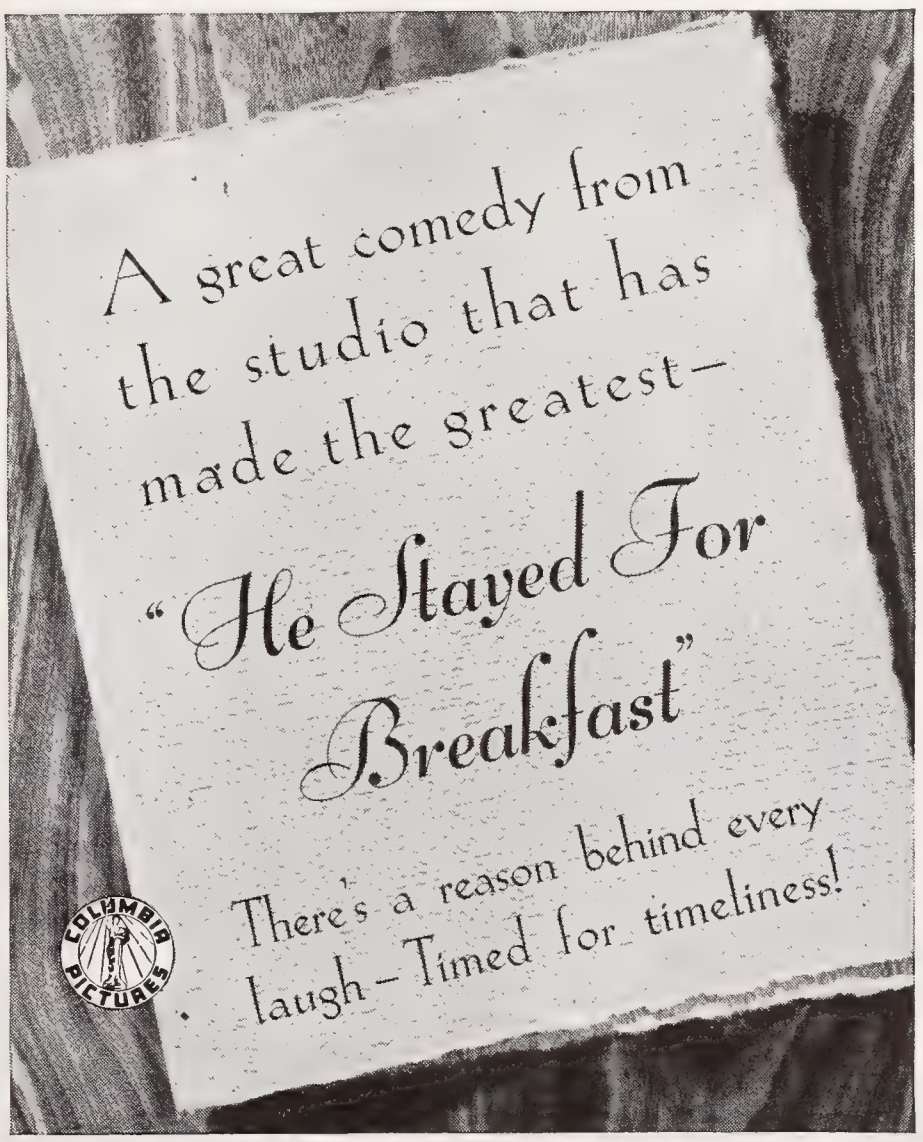
Trick Copy Pulls

Another sample of the same is topped with large panel copy illustrated with a Napoleonic character fishing in a pail of water. Copy is headed: "You'd be crazy, too," and follows the line that the manager has been in town for over a year writing copy for the theatre but he is "going nuts" because he cannot find adjectives big enough.

Trick slants are also emphasized with such layouts as the one showing a piece of tied string headed by the line: "I'm not trying to string you along. This is just to remind you," etc. Also standing out is a cover occupied almost entirely with block display lettering reading: "Brand New Fords at $23.50," and followed by smaller light face, "would not create the sensation that the outstanding pictures will create this week.

ONE OF SAMUELS' PROGRAMS

Gill's "Debutante" Bally



Five girl ushers dressed as debutantes and a young man dressed as Mickey Rooney toured the streets of Bakersfield, Cal., in bannered car as part of Homer Gill's "Debutante" date at the Fox, in that city.

Warnerites Work A Treasure Hunt

Revising the window "treasure hunt" idea wherein the public is invited to study merchant displays for supposedly hidden items, Sid Mesibov, Warner Philadelphia zone exploiteer, reports a new twist worked out at the circuit's Warner, in West Chester, Pa., that proved more successful than the old routine.

The usual procedure, Mesibov notes, is for merchants to use items that are easily spotted and thus do not return sufficient attention by the "hunters" in examining windows to make the tieins entirely worthwhile. To insure a better break for the stores, the Warnerite's new twist is to have the merchant select an article he usually does not sell to be arranged alongside of similar sized items. In the West Chester tiein, for instance, the hardware store placed a garter among a group of stilson wrenches, the sporting goods window contained a toothbrush amidst rifle shells, the electrical supply display featured a nail file with spark plugs, etc.

Each merchant filed with the theatre, his name, store and hidden article. Details were widely publicized in advance, entrants required to submit list of what they saw and where they saw it. The result, according to Sid, was that entrants spent thrice as much time in studying the windows as they did on the previous type of hunt. Thus, the merchants were gratified with the response, the theatre received many more entries and the local paper has offered cooperation.

EXPLOITATION BRIEFS FROM A-FIELD

Sponsored by Sears, Roebuck and conducted by Seymour Morris, Schine's Palace, in Rockport, N. Y., was the recently concluded four-week Safety Bike Club with prizes given to the children to stimulate business at the weekly Saturday matinee.

Special trailer was run each week explaining the purpose of the club, heralds were distributed by all the schools and coupons were available at the store and theatre for drawings in connection with the prizes.

Stressing the spook angle of "The Human Monster," Robert F. Griffith, at the Capitol, in Whiting, Ind., distributed heralds house-to-house containing life-size cut of Bela Lugosi as he appeared in the picture. Instructions for use were carried at bottom, advising holders to cut out the mask outline, punch holes at each and use cord to attach to head. Cooperating furniture store planted large chair in window with item card reading: "This chair especially reserved for the Human Monster."

As part of his "Susan and God" campaign, Ed Fitzpatrick, Loew's Poli, Waterbury, Conn., had an attractive girl pass out small white cards to women in shops and along busy streets. The cards carried the message: "Having domestic troubles? Don't go home to Mother—Call Susan at 3-7632." The gag brought a flood of phone calls.

FRANKLIN COMPILES MANUAL ON "VILLAIN"

In advance of the pressbook by RKO Radio, Harold Franklin, producer, has issued a merchandising manual for "The Villain Still Pursued Her", presenting a number of departmentalized ideas, stressing what to sell in the picture.

Incorporated are sections on special accessories, audience participation, fronts and lobby ideas, ballyhoo, advertising copy and layouts, publicity stories. The manual is headed by a message signed by the producer, emphasizing the wide newspaper and magazine attentions already given this unique entertainment.

A radio voice contest to find the local Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy was the highlight of the "New Moon" campaign put over by Everett Steinbuch and Joe Longo for its Loew's State, Cleveland, showing. Record receptacles were also made up carrying copy and art on the film, and several thousands of these were distributed through music and department stores.

Special screening was held by John Duffus, Buckingham Theatre, Arlington, Va., for "Young Tom Edison" for teachers, club heads, PTA's and newspapermen, which brought readers and favorable comments. Cooperating merchants devoted windows to appropriate tieins, plugging the event in their ads and storewide. Special inserts with cut of Mickey Rooney were distributed by utilities company, as were tinted heralds in a house-to-house canvass and through tieup with chain druggist small pay envelopes with candy enclosed were distributed, copy on outside to the effect that the confection was with the compliments of "Young Tom Edison."

One of the features of the campaign for "The Mortal Storm" put over by Frank Murphy, Loew's State, Syracuse, was a contest planted in the local Shopping Guide offering passes to those able to glean the most words from the film's title.

A radio contest on the subject: "Why do you like Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart as a romantic team?" was part of "The Mortal Storm" campaign put over by L. Ward Farrar, Loew's, Indianapolis. Listeners were reminded of the fact that these two had been co-starred in "Shopworn Angel" and "Shop Around the Corner."

Manager E. Smith of the Strand Theatre, Ipswich, Mass., gave the March of Time unit, "U. S. Navy—1940" a campaign of feature proportions.

One advertisement carried to newspapers was an endorsement by the local American Legion post commander. Letters prepared by the management were read to various Boy Scout troops and other organizations. The U. S. Navy recruiting office placed an "A" board in front of the theatre. Booklets and folders were distributed from the theatre front by four men in uniform from the new plane Carrier U. S. S. Wasp.

Manager Nelson of the Fox Theatre, Montrose, Colo., tied in with two score of local merchants for a star identification contest in his campaign for "Irene." Stills of 37 RKO Radio stars and players, including Miss Neagle, were placed in as many windows of the town and prizes were awarded for identification.

Offering to purchase the material if the girls would make the dresses themselves, Bill Fowers for "Irene" at the Wilma Theatre, in Missoula, Montana, was taken up on the offer, with usherettes creating "Alice Blue Gowns" which they wore during the entire run of the picture.

Before leaving the Rialto in Woodbury, N. J., for the Fox in Burlington, Round Tabler Gene Stutenroth created an animated display for his lobby ahead of "One Million B. C." The jaws of prehistoric monsters opened and closed, while the tails swished around, and simulated red fire flared up and then down at the mouth of a miniature volcano.

YOU ARE INVITED TO JOIN UP

NORMAN H. BAILEY
has been in the moving picture industry over ten years, during which time he has held down various jobs. In 1928 he was an usher at the Warner Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa., and then made chief of staff. He moved to the Stanley, doing the same work and then went to the Enright in East Liberty, Pa. A rise brought him into an assistant managership and the next promotion made him a manager at the Liberty Theatre in Sharon, Pa. When this house was closed Norman returned to Pittsburgh, doing relief managing for a while. He left Warners to go with an independent as manager, but six months later obtained an assistant manager's position at the Orpheum in Philadelphia, following with a managerial post at the Germantown Theatre, in the same city.

RALPH J. BATSCHELET
divides his time between the Blue Bird and Hiawatha Theatres in Denver, Colorado, which houses belong to the Fox Inter-Mountain circuit. He has been in showbusiness for almost seven years, starting at these theatres, in a managerial capacity. We should like to be informed, from time to time, Ralph, on what you are doing for the box office, so please keep us advised.

FORREST M. SWIGER
manages Standard circuit's Plaza Theatre in Oklahoma City, Okla. In 1928 he was at the Palace, Ft. Smith, Ark., and the next year moved to Bisbee, Ariz., working at the Fox West Coast Theatres. He left to enter business for himself in 1931 and came back to showbusiness in 1937. Let's hear about your activities, Forrest, for they should prove interesting reading for our other members.

DAVID F. PERDUE
began in showbusiness in 1928 at the Connelle Theatre in Eastland, Texas, acting as janitor and billboy. For a few years he was the operator and then came the Strand in Binjimin, Texas, to manage the house. He leased and ran the Petersburg Theatre in Petersburg, Texas, after that. For the past five years David has been with the R. E. Griffith circuit and is now assistant manager at the Star, Hereford, Tex.

Seitz Theatre Company Wins $230,182 Award

The Seitz Theatre Company has been awarded judgment of $230,182 by Judge E. H. Savord in Sandusky, Ohio, from General Theatre Company, a Warner subsidiary, for alleged breach of a lease on a theatre building.

The suit had been submitted to Judge Savord some weeks ago with jury waived. Flynn, Frohman, Buckingham, Py and Kruse appeared for the plaintiff and Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, Cleveland and Krueger, Rosino, Moyer and Moore for the defendant.

RCA Sued on Patent

A patent infringement suit against Radio Corporation of America was filed Wednesday, August 31st, in federal court in New York by Ben Chromy for an injunction and triple damages. The complaint charges infringement of a patent called "Use of Apparatus and Method of Sound Reproduction and Radio Receiving System."

Tax Refund Ordered

The Allied Owners' Corporation, owner of the Brooklyn Paramount theatre, has won an order directing the city to pay it a tax refund of $17,656, plus interest. Frank E. Johnson, New York supreme court justice, condemned red tape and official lethargy and also assessed $50 in costs upon the city.

Appeals Educational Ruling

Harry G. Fromberg, trustee in bankruptcy of Grand National Pictures, Wednesday, July 31st, filed notice of appeal in federal court in New York from an order of Edward A. Conger, federal judge, which dismissed Mr. Fromberg's petition to set aside the appointment of James A. Davidson as trustee of Educational Pictures. Mr. Fromberg sought to obtain his own election as trustee and claimed that Mr. Davidson, as a former officer of Educational, was disqualified.

OBITUARIES

Charles Lamb, Showman, Dead

Charles Lamb, 73, oldtime showman, died July 29th at the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago. Mr. Lamb operated the new Lamb theatre at Mt. Morris, Ill., up to the time of his death. He was also associated with his son, Russell, who operates the Oregon theatre at Oregon, Ill.

Mr. Lamb spent his entire life in show business. One of his first jobs was with the Buffalo Bill show. Later he became associated with the Murray and Mack comedy company, which he later bought in partnership with Russell Smith. Deciding to quit the road he was offered the job of manager for Chamberlain and Harris of the old Opera House at Aurora, Ill.

After seven years he transferred to the Grand Opera House at Rockford, Ill. One year later, 1913, he formed a company and built the Palm theatre at Rockford—the first large theatre outside of Chicago which was built solely for motion pictures. In partnership with ex-Governor Sterling and others, he acquired the Midway theatre and the Strand theatre, also at Rockford.

Mr. Lamb was active in this capacity until a serious auto accident in 1928 which brought about his retirement until 1932 when he again entered the business by acquiring the Granada theatre at Mt. Morris, which he operated until the erection of the new Lamb in March of this year.

William Robson Dies in Toronto

William James Robson, 72, one of the first film men in Canada, died in Toronto July 29th. He was a brother of Clarence M. Robson, an original executive of Famous Players Canadian Corporation. He was for years a concert manager, later becoming manager of the Royal Alexandra theatre in Toronto. Another brother, Frank, manager of the Orpheum, Ft. William, died a short time ago.

Gus Meins Dead

Gus Meins, 47, film director, formerly employed by Republic Pictures, was found dead in his automobile August 4th in Los Angeles. He had been dead apparently for several days. Officials expressed belief he may have committed suicide by inhaling carbon monoxide fumes.

Charles E. Taylor

Charles E. Taylor, 64, for 29 years a traveling exhibitor, died at his home July 28th at Great Village, Nova Scotia.

Sues Dutch Bank

An action for $52,998 has been filed in New York supreme court by Conrad Veidt, actor, against Bankierskantoor Albert Grief, N. V., a Dutch bank. He charges the bank with refusing to return bonds and gold bars he deposited with it in 1939.

File Republic Suit

Anna Sten has filed suit in superior court in Los Angeles against Republic for $4,500 charging a breach of an oral contract under which she was to make a film.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) symbol indicates picture is of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

THE GREAT REVIEWS!

HEY OSCAR!

"A masterpiece. Don't let it slip by!"
—JIMMIE FIDLER
Famous Hollywood newspaper and radio correspondent

"Orchids to 'The Great McGinty'!"
—WALTER WINCHELL
Famous newspaper and radio columnist

"A genuine 'sleeper,' rich in entertainment, that should click with all audiences. You are entertained hilariously and continually from beginning to end!"
—FILM DAILY

"Fresh, breezy, vital and as thought-provoking as it is entertaining. Gives Paramount one of its most promising properties of the season. As timely as the coming national election!" —DAILY VARIETY

"Something new, different and exciting to attract the strays back from the beaches. The liveliest, freshest and different-est picture of the month. A slam-bang, rough-and-ready, brainy-brawny comedy ...stimulating is the word for it. A most unusual, powerful, swift and entertaining comedy!"
—M. P. DAILY

"The answer to any exhibitor's prayer. Will definitely send more ticket buyers home pleased with their buy than many million and two-million dollar pictures! A socko!"
—HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

"A preview audience laughed itself sick to the verge of hysterics. 80 minutes of humor!"
—M.P.HERALD

"A full measure of swell entertainment. At any time the feature could be pegged as a surprise hit. As writer-director, Preston Sturges rates raves!" —BOXOFFICE

MAY WE INTERRUPT THE "BOOM TOWN" TALK FOR JUST A MINUTE!

Excuse it please! We know you're waiting to hear all about "Boom Town" business (which is GREAT!) but here's a flash report from the sneak preview of "STRIKE UP THE BAND," a New Season M-G-M hit, and we just couldn't wait to let you know!

(From Stanley Brown, United Artists Theatre, Long Beach, Cal.)

"Tonight we previewed Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's *Strike Up The Band, starring Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Paul Whiteman and his Orchestra, June Preisser, William Tracy. The running time was two hours twenty minutes. There aren't enough adjectives in the book to describe this picture. The udience reaction was simply terrific, spontaneous applause greeted the pening title and intermittently throughout the picture sustained rounds of pplause completely drowned out dialogue. Mickey Rooney tops anything e has ever before been seen in. He is simply stupendous. He sings, dances, ays the drums like a Gene Krupa, directs huge swing bands and steals very scene he appears in. Judy Garland slayed them with her singing umbers and her overwhelming personality completely matched Mickey's ugging. Not a soul left theatre throughout entire two hours and twenty inutes of Strike Up The Band and without a single exception the com- ent cards acclaimed it to be great entertainment. Great credit is due usby Berkeley for his marvelous direction. The ensembles are typically his, ut the production as a whole excels anything he has ever directed. Strike p The Band should be a top grosser and without question is A-plus."

*Screen Play by John Monks, Jr. and Fred Finklehoffe Produced by Arthur Freed

TROJANS and HORSES

A CONSENT decree embodying prescriptions of trade practises is a concession of necessity for regulation.

In the anti-trust case against the major concerns of the motion picture, there is an influential sector of opinion, thus far not publicly articulate, which holds that a trial, regardless of the immediate outcome, would be preferable to any consent decree from the long viewpoint of all branches of the industry.

There are conservative and well established showmen who would rather face any procedure than the round-tabled programs of the present decree conferences; would rather put the issues of the industry before the elected legislators of Congress than have them settled by a corps of lawyers for special clients, by what would be in effect, if not technical fact, special legislation.

A consent decree could be, would be in the judgment of some, but the first of a series of steps which would eventually deliver the complete, detailed control of the motion picture to a bureau and a set of commissars—new law, of sweeping implication.

UNHAPPY uncertainty, not to say suspicion, surrounds and pervades every aspect and contention in the negotiations of the current trade practise conference which appears to have taken the place of the suit at law.

There is, to be specific, a decided wondering if the government's program of suggesting and seeking a consent decree is (A) a device for keeping the theatre screens at least neutral in this especially perplexed election year, (B) or the further pursuit of a totalitarian program, first disclosed by the Blue Eagle movement and more recently evidenced by the rise of the Collectivists in Washington, (C) or a detail of that larger plan, contemplating a debacle of negotiation creating bigger and stronger background and setting for either litigation or legislation.

That procedure of the Government toward a consent decree is hardly to be taken as indicating any reluctance to go to trial. Abundant devices for indefinite postponements were available.

The procedures have been controlled by program, not bungling, whether that be the program of Mr. Thurman Arnold, for the Department of Justice, or a merging into an over-riding program of someone else for the Government.

Much of the current melange is being created by the inevitable weight of interests involved but not in court.

THIS mid-August of 1940 presents some manifestations that may be considered either remarkable, indicative, or merely of passing interest. The motion picture industry, with a product which consists of and lives by a public state of mind, packages of shadows wrapped in publicity, has done and is doing very little about its public, or even its own vast internal personnel, through these months in which it has been under charges of commercial malpractise. Dimly one can recall that ever so long ago a public relations counsellor "for the majors" was announced as retained. If so he must have decided there was absolutely nothing to be said.

But for the last two years, concerning the anti-trust suit and elsewise, a very great deal has been said by and about special segments of the motion picture institution. It has been mostly controversial, adversely critical, the bad news, the public hashing of trade policies, dire cries of lost markets, labor scandals.

Of such the current repute of a great industry is made. The real story is better than that. It is not told.

The rights of industry are to be maintained, in Government suits and elsewhere, best with the support of an informed public opinion.

UTTERLY "CUPPED"

ALL in all, what with the war news, the cold spring, the heat wave, Japanese beetles and two national conventions, this has been a tough season so far. One of the most remarkable manifestations here in New York has been the emergence of PM, an experiment in daily publication, and held by some to pertain to the newspaper field. It runs without advertising, and a good many other things one expects in a newspaper are left out, too.

In fact, PM has at least one constant reader, charter subscriber, who reads it to see what it can leave out next. A specially able demonstration was made with a piece last week about McSorley's ale house in the Bowery in which Mr. B. R. Crisler, one time picture critic, devoted all his space to the fact that they do not serve women. There was no information addressed at a reader interested in perhaps a mug of ale.

Now at hand is PM's Weekly, which would be its equivalent of a Sunday edition. This contains a much promoted and announced analysis of the movie fan magazines. It is in fact an analysis of how they affect Mr. S. J. Perelman. He says:

The sensations one undergoes while reading a movie magazine are like nothing else on earth. They are somewhat akin to inhaling dental gas or being cupped by an inexpert barber, and yet they suggest eating a banana under water. The stifling pressure, the intolerable suspicion that the brain has burst and the creeping paralysis of the motor nerves are as marked as though you were suffering an attack of the bends. . . .

Mr. Perelman must have gone out looking for it.

THE Gallup poll has come and passes now into the amber of history. It proved to be a tremendously revealing corroboration of what showmen already knew from the experience of the box office. It did, of course, tend to indicate that it found several people who could afford to patronize the motion picture who said they did not. That has been known also. Despite the fact that the poll was inspired and promoted by persons opposed to double bills, it returned no evidence of the alleged vast public objection to them. The box office has recorded that for quite a while, too.

This Week in the News

Slice Fight Field

PEACE came this week to the fight picture industry, newly legitimatized by federal statute and organized into Sports Features Distribution, Inc. The nation's market was sliced from Lake Itasca to Lake Pontchartrain, in other words right down the middle of the Mississippi, on the basis of motion picture affiliations of members of the board of Madison Square Garden. So the East goes to Odlum-Rathvon and RKO, and the West to Stanton Griffis and Paramount. Meanwhile there has been a studying of the experience table on fight pictures, legal and illegal. The actuarial returns indicate that nothing except a fight for the heavyweight championship of the world is worth more than two whoops in the Superheated Hence.

Sports Features Distribution will picture the next Joe Louis match in defense of the heavyweight title. It may be staged in September. Television rights to the film are yet to be sold. It was reported that DuMont television, Paramount affilicate, would have first claim.

Mr. Aylesworth, Arbiter

MERLIN HALL AYLESWORTH was being considered in New York, Wednesday, as the arbiter of the virulent controversy raging between the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers and the National Association of Broadcasters—a controversy which has resulted in the establishment, by the NAB, of Broadcast Music, Inc., which, the NAB hopes, will supplant ASCAP as a music source for radio, screen and stage at the end of the year, when ASCAP's present five-year contracts with the broadcasters expire.

(On page 19 are chronicled the latest developments in the broadcasters' attempt to take ASCAP tunes off the air, attempts which may deprive the film industry of a means of exploiting its musicals.)

Mr. Aylesworth, former executive of the National Broadcasting Company and RKO Radio Pictures, then a publisher of the New York World Telegram for the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, and now an independent lawyer whose practice embraces Radio Corporation of America affairs (especially those relating to the Federal Communications Commission)—this week was proposed before both sides, ASCAP and NAB, as a prospective mediator.

ASCAP officials in New York regarded comment on Mr. Aylesworth's designation as "premature" and added "unless our relationships with the networks become much worse than they now are, there is no reason to believe we can't speak to each other directly." They were then reminded that NBC and Columbia Broadcasting System officials had walked out of the meeting at which the ASCAP new five-year contract terms were first submitted; and that, at the recent NAB convention in San Francisco, ASCAP officials had been refused permission to speak.

Mr. Otterson

JOHN EDWARD OTTERSON has entered the nickel-in-the-slot movie machine business.

Mr. Otterson's device is called "Talk-A-Vision, in which he is associated with Yermi Stern, of Yermi Stern Commercial Attractions, Inc., New York, so-called financiers of night clubs and night club shows.

The company will have headquarters at No. 250 West 57th Street, New York, from where Mr. Otterson held forth for many years as the president of the American Telephone Company's Electrical Research Products, purveyors of millions of dollars worth of Western Electric sound equipment to the motion picture business.

The new Talk-A-Vision will have Mr. Otterson as president and treasurer, Yermi Stern as vice president.

Mr. Stern said Wednesday the company would produce its own pictures, to be screened as ten three-minute subjects through the nickel-in-the-slot machines which are to be placed in bars, ballrooms, cafes, restaurants, cocktail lounges and waiting rooms. The machines, he said, will be manufactured from the company's own designs, embracing a "new type projector." Factory facilities are to be set up shortly in New York, where Mr. Stern said a 5,000-machine turnout in October is anticipated.

John Otterson was with Western Electric for years, became vice president of WE's Erpi in 1927, and Erpi president in 1928, continuing until 1935, when he became president of Paramount Pictures, Inc., for one year. Since then he has been associated with Inter-Allied Films, Tri-National Films, Radio-Wire Television, et al.

CBS Taking DuMont

PARAMOUNT'S position in television was strengthened this week by the application of the Columbia Broadcasting System for a television transmitter in Los Angeles which would use equipment made by DuMont, Paramount affiliate. CBS also asked for a station in Chicago which would use General Electric apparatus. To date, CBS has been testing RCA television equipment at its New York studios.

CBS asked for permission to build television stations on Mount Lee, Los Angeles and at One La Salle Street, Chicago, for expansion of the research which has been carried on in New York and to develop data to assist in the ultimate determination of standards for nationwide service. The FCC has announced that commercial status will not be given television until the industry agrees on standards.

The two new stations would operate on the 66-72 mc channel (No. 3 television band) with 1,000 watts power. The applications disclosed that each station would cost $114,000 for construction and $67,000 per year each for operation. Five months will be required for construction. Each of the stations, when completed, will give not less than ten hours weekly of television programs, it was promised.

RCA Mystery

THE Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, on Tuesday in Washington, resumed hearings on the reappointment of Thad Brown as a member of the Federal Communications Commission, and again turned to events and payments leading to the postponement of an anti-trust suit against the Radio Corporation of America in 1932.

Called to the stand was Roger Whiteford, Washington attorney, who with others, is said to have talked with former Senator George Moses, of New Hampshire, about securing the postponement.

A mysterious angle entered into the case Tuesday when Mr. Whiteford, who had been requested by the Senate investigators to furnish his books and check stubs for 1932, testified that all of his office records were intact—with the exception of the ledger for 1932, the firm's check stubs for 1932, his personal check stubs for 1932 and a check for $2,500 made out to Albert Hislop, former Mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., in October, 1932, for a loan.

Mr. Whiteford said he had no explanation to offer for the absence of these records and admitted that it was "very singular" that these and no other records had been abstracted, but did state that on occasions dusty footprints had been observed in the morning on the blue carpet of his office which, the evening before, was spotless.

Recalled for final questioning, David Sarnoff, RCA president, admitted that the "bright idea" of Robert O'Callaghan, RCA lawyer at the time of the trust suit manipulations, for getting a postponement through the methods followed, now did not seem so bright and, he admitted also, it was a mistake to bring in "these real estate brokers who grew on trees."

The Senate Committee, Wednesday, returned to the report on RCA which J. Austin Smith, financial analyst, testified he was commissioned to write for P. A. Powers, of motion picture fame, for Mr. Powers' use in an action contemplated against RCA.

Hollywood Goodwill

HOLLYWOOD and National Broadcasting Company will take to the short-wave airlanes to South America, starting next month, "in the double interest of strengthening our (U. S.) economic frontier in Latin American nations and bolstering national defense."

Joint announcement was made in Hollywood over the weekend, almost at the same time as the U. S. Department of Commerce in Washington was reporting on Hollywood film losses in Europe and Hollywood gains in South America. (See page 31.)

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Warner Brothers, RKO, Paramount and Universal announced they would participate in twice weekly broadcasts, in Portuguese and Spanish via NBC to Latin-America.

The radio shows will be produced in Hollywood and will be transcribed on records sent to New York for broadcast by the short wave stations, WRCA and WNBI which, it was said, can "meet and top any short wave propagandist programs originating in Nazi and Fascist countries which seek to win Latin-American markets."

Lunsford P. Yandell, director of international commercial broadcasting for NBC and member of the board of directors of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, said in discussing the new programs, "It is not at all beyond reason to look upon short-wave broadcasting as our first line of defense against penetration of unsound foreign economic and political systems in Latin America."

Publicity Control

A NEW press relations system to include a field force is being considered by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. Following the resignation two months ago of Tom Pettey, Coast public relations contact for the MPPDA, who has become Hollywood correspondent for PM, New York daily news magazine, the whole question of Hollywood's relations with the press has been under consideration.

Will H. Hays, president of the MPPDA, Francis S. Harmon, eastern representative of the Production Code Administration and Isroy Norr, public relations counsel, have been conferring on the West Coast on a plan which is reported to include a small field staff which would regularly contact the press throughout the country. The plan would also include control over Hollywood publicity material deemed harmful to the industry.

Behind the reported plannings for coordination of motion picture news by the Hays office on a national basis favorable to all branches of the industry, Hollywood saw the old east-west coast struggle for control of outgivings from the production capital.

Lorentz Plans

PARE LORENTZ, film critic, writer and more recently producer under Federal auspices of "The Plow that Broke the Plains," "The River" and lastly "The Fight for Life," now without appropriation support for the U. S. Film Service, plans to go into the production of commercial product, according to Film Bulletin of Philadelphia, which devotes its editorial page to the subject.

"What we like best about Lorentz," observes Moe Wax's paper, "is the way he has successfully overcome financial limitations."

Jimmy's "Pastor"

WHILE James Roosevelt, the President's son, and a film producer-distributor, moved discernibly to appease labor circles in the film industry on Tuesday, United Artists, which is to release his first release, the British-made anti-Nazi film, "Pastor Hall," continued to plan for heavy exploitation at, and an opening in, Warner Brothers' Aldine Theatre, Philadelphia, on Thursday.

For nine months, Philadelphia musicians' Local No. 77 has been striking against the Warner theatres in that city, and picketing some. Last week, it asked Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who appears in the film's prologue, not to attend the opening—she is supposed to—lest she be forced to pass a picket line; it also offered to withdraw such a picket line, if she attended.

On Tuesday, A. Rex Riccardi, secretary of the Philadelphia local, received a telegram from the Los Angeles local, forwarding a request from James Roosevelt for the names of other Philadelphia theatres in which the picture might open. The union immediately suggested four independent houses: the Carman and the Fays', outside the downtown area, and the Locust and the Erlanger theatres, occasionally used for stage plays.

Local 37 Again

MEMBERS of the former Hollywood Local 37, IATSE, this week filed an amended complaint in Los Angeles superior court asking that the Alliance be compelled to reestablish the local, dissolved in the course of last year's conflict between the Alliance and United Studio Technicians Guild. The complaint set forth that the dissolution was unconstitutional because no "extreme emergency" such as is specified in the bylaws as necessary, existed. Awards of $25,000 each for George H. Davis and nine other petitioners were asked and the petition quoted the "apology to Bioff" which, it was claimed, they refused to sign as a condition of reinstatement after their expulsion by the Alliance.

U.S. TELLS FOX, PARAMOUNT TO JOIN IN CONSENT DECREE OR GO TO TRIAL

Anti-Trust Suit Melange Brings New Militancy from Exhibitors, New Legislation Talk and Some Hints of New Coalitions

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

Twentieth Century-Fox and Paramount Pictures were told Wednesday by the U. S. Department of Justice that they must join with MGM, RKO and Warner Brothers in the consent decree proposals the latter trio have worked out in settlement of the Government's trust suit or stand trial when the current recess ends October 7th.

The Department disclosed that it had received proposals from Twentieth Century-Fox for a separate decree, had found those proposals not to be acecptable and had informed the company of its decision to accept only one decree.

It was said at the Department of Justice that the consent decree draft of August 3rd had not yet been approved by Attorney General Robert Jackson but it was intimated that no difficulty was anticipated in securing his acceptance of the proposals which were worked out in lengthy negotiations between the five companies and the Department counsel over a period of nearly three months.

While it was said at the Department there never was any intention of holding a meeting at which several thousand exhibitors could give their several thousand varying views of the consent decree, copies of the proposals have been sent to a number of exhibitor organizations for comment.

No proposals had been received from Paramount, it was disclosed, and although it is known that that company is in agreement with Twentieth Century-Fox on the decree's escape clause, Department spokesman said no information was available at the Department as to what that company's attitude would be towards the consent decree to which the three companies have subscribed. However, it was said, "Paramount is in the same boat as Twentieth Century-Fox—it must either accept the consent decree as now written or stand trial."

At mid-week, "consent" decree negotiations in the Federal anti-trust suit in the motion picture industry went into their seventy-second day with complexities, dissents, arguments multiplied—agreement apparently farther away than the day the suit was filed in July, 1939, at the U. S. Court house in New York's Foley Square.

Latest official, externally recorded and manifest development was rejection of the decree draft, as was, by Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, after a day of conference with his board of directors, and his proffer of counter terms with a new "escape clause." This would be perhaps partly Mr. Kent, showman, and the Chase National Bank, banker with large stakes in exhibition.

Yet to be heard from, of the two "Big Five" hold-outs of the last fortnight, was Paramount Pictures, Inc. Paramount was saying nothing. It was no secret that Paramount, stiffened, if not ordered, by its exhibitor partners in 1200 theatres, desired no part of any consent decree, and that it would hold out as long as Twentieth Century-Fox held out, beyond which there would be little advantage, in some expert opinion.

The scope of the opposition of those militant and dominant exhibitors of the Paramount Partners group was within the week considerably extended.

Some mystery, much secrecy and no little speculation vibrated over the "cruise to nowhere" in the Chesapeake of E. V. Richards' best yacht, The Northwind, which has been for a spell riding at anchor in the very warm waters of Norfolk, Virginia. No passenger or guest list was available. It was no fishing trip.

Nowhere was there indication of what if any eventuation in the consent decree negotiations, or any aspect of the suit, was to be expected.

Meanwhile, deep in the South and West so far as the place where the Rio Grande trickles through the sand, there were murmurings that there were still state's rights

"Why not whole Hog?" —says Wilby

Under the broad general text of "who threw the shirt in Mrs. Murphy's chowder," the editor of Motion Picture Herald did a piece a couple of weeks ago about the influences of "a group of well intrenched and especially able exhibition interests" upon the Government anti-trust suit trade practise conference, sometimes called consent decree negotiations.

Came then Robert B. Wilby, Wilby-Kincey Service Corporation, Atlanta, in a letter saying:

"However much that 'group of well intrenched and especially able exhibition interests' might desire not to be upset or not to go to work, that particular desire is not the real basis of the objection to the proposed consent decree.

"The objection to the so-called trade showing for the purposes of eliminating 'blind buying' is only that it is an extremely expensive device which does not accomplish its purpose. In only rare cases, as you so well know, can an exhibitor pay the cost in either time or money to look at the pictures which he buys and the pictures which he does not buy. In this detail at least, the chains do not suffer, for we are organized to look at the film—as a matter of fact we generally do with regard to booking anyway—and can do so with no particular cost or inconvenience.

The objection is simply that it costs a lot of money and doesn't accomplish anything. And it particularly doesn't accomplish anything when taken along with the Clause Three, which provides for the sale of five pictures. You may be very sure that that means a minimum as well as a maximum group of five. I do not suppose that there is any conceivable objection to so-called block booking which is not accentuated by this provision.

"I think it to be very evident that the distributor of films will make up his own blocks in such a manner that he will have the great ones carry the terrible ones, and the fine ones carry the fair ones, and so on, so that any quart of strawberries will be at least half rotted. Those of us who operate in single feature territories see in that the end of that policy.

"Under the present 20% cancellation clause it is quite evident that in order to play the best pictures from any distributor you do not play the worst 20% from that distributor. It is equally as evident that under the block sale of five, in order to play the best pictures of any distributor, you will play the worst pictures from that distributor. It can then only result in more bad and fewer good pictures in any situation which does not in fact use all of the pictures which are produced.

"It appeals to us too as probably the most vicious type of selling so far as the buyer is concerned, for more than ever before it forces the bad with the good. It seems to us too that it must have the inevitable result of further fattening the now established values in motion pictures, whose incomes are already fantastically fat, for the simple reason that four pictures can be tied to the one highly desirable one and the excessive cost of that one distributed in the five places. It seems to us that it opens wide the avenue for a good deal of public ballyhoo for a given picture, thereby building up a demand for it which can be met by the exhibitor only by the purchase of five rather than the one ballyhooed picture.

"We are rather sure that it will slow up the selling process, so that the average period of time between the release of a picture and its exhibition in the smaller towns, whether ours or someone else's, will be increased. Since a part of the market value of pictures comes from the publicity which accompanies its first run, from the radio comment, from newspaper commentators, and from those other things timed with that release, the spread of the time between the release and the exhibition in the smaller towns is necessarily going to lessen the value of the picture on the one hand and cause some public dissatisfaction on the other.

"I contend that each of those objections is just as much the objection of an independent, or of a small town operator with or without competition, as it is of the chain.

"And then that Six. Cut right down to its quick, it is only an effort to reduce the chain buying power in this country, which buying power may also be termed 'sales resistance.' There are conditions under which an exhibitor goes to arbitration with a problem and he arbitrates against a distributor who has only to gain if the exhibitor win it, for the award is only a reduction of the buying power of the exchange's strongest customer. We sort of wonder why arbitrate, since both parties to the arbitration will want the same result.

"In spite of all the buying power of the chains, it's still in the record that film costs to the exhibitor—chain and independent—have gone up each year, just as the fantastic payments at Hollywood have gone up. Anything which takes as a philosophy the breaking down of this sales resistance seems to us to be a reward to the defendants at the expense of some people who, as you say, are not defendants in the case. Since independent film rentals pretty well follow behind the pattern of chain film rentals, the whole exhibitor species is going to suffer alike from any severe reduction in sales resistance.

"You refer to the higher film rentals in England, where of course the films are not locked together in blocks of five but are sold as few or as many at a time as the seller and the buyer can agree upon. But of course you know as well as I that this very method of selling in England has resulted in probably the tightest of the chains and buying associations and has at the same time resulted in those higher film rentals to which you refer. It would seem rather evident then that if you combine the block of five, which is worse than the English method, with the destruction of chain buying power, which wasn't done in England, you are going to get some results far beyond those of the English 44% film rental average. If you do, I can assure you that it isn't just 'presumptiveness' on the part of this writer at least that he raise his voice in protest. So long as most pictures are played on a percentage basis, I do not think that your statement holds that declining revenues are 'in closed situations, where prices are controlled by long-range wholesale deals, unresponsive to the actual regional market created by the retailers and their customers.

"And if you want to get rid of 'a continuing program of specially favoring arrangements with dominant customers,' then why not let's eat the whole hog and sell pictures individually after the Neely Bill principle? Certainly we are going to pay most of the cost of doing so with these trade showings, which has, I believe, been one of the distributor's greatest objections to letting films compete individually one with another."

Mr. Wilby's letter may be considered in essence the platform of the group known as "Paramount Partners" and other sympathetic, concurring interests perhaps yet to be revealed.

in the United States, and that all else failing, a program of state legislations would be organized. This came, too, from camps of conservatives, which remained not unmindful that this would bring them somewhat into alignment with some Allied States Association programs of not so long ago.

From the Southwest, where a schism was reported, there arrived in New York, on Tuesday, Bob O'Donnell, partner with Karl Hoblitzelle in 134 theatres in Texas, who held himself incommunicado on the ninth floor of the Astor Hotel.

Chief exhibitor opposition to the decree document that is now in the hands of Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, in the Department of Justice, at Washington, is the section specifying selling of features in blocks of five. They oppose for the reasons outlined for Paramount Partners by Robert Wilby, of Atlanta, as described in adjoining columns, and for reasons mentioned by Allied States, MPTOA and other exhibitor interests, likewise described in adjoining columns.

New Escape Clause

Twentieth Century-Fox would substitute the present escape clause, Section IX, with the following:

"At any time after June 1, 1942, upon the filing of an application under oath by any distributor defendant which has consented to the entry of this decree, with proof of service upon the other consenting defendants and the petitioner, stating that during the nine months' period next preceding the filing of such application an aggregate of 25 or more feature motion picture films (Feature motion picture films as used in this section shall not include westerns and foreigns) have been licensed by one or more distributors of motion picture films operating on a national exchange basis to an exhibitor or exhibitors other than in accordance with the provisions of Sections 1 and 2 hereof (Trade Showings; Unit Selling in Blocks of Five), and setting forth the titles of at least 25 such feature motion picture films, the name of the distributor or distributors so licensing the same and the name of an exhibitor or exhibitors to whom they have been so licensed, the court shall forthwith enter an order relieving all such consenting defendants of further compliance with the provisions of Sections 1 and 2 hereof, except with respect to agreements to be made prior to September 1, 1942, licensing feature motion pictures to be released prior to said date."

The intention of this is to have the decree become operative nine months after it goes into effect, or at any time after June 1, 1942, if Columbia, United Artists and Universal have not been brought under its provisions by then.

Justice Department Receiving Protests

Department of Justice spokesmen at Washington, last week disclosed that many small, independent theatre operators, as well as operators of circuits and large chains, had protested against the proposal in the aborning consent decree for selling of pictures in blocks of five.

The protests are being received in letters, the Department men said, which point out that industry problems are not uniform through the country, and that, therefore, there cannot be a single cure-all. These same informants said that the small exhibitor, from the tenor of the communications, is in favor of two measures: the right to cancel applied to wholesale buying; and the handling of clearance by arbitration.

Small and large exhibitors differ in one respect, on the blocks-of-five selling plan, it was noted. The small exhibitors claim that a large operator can protect his theatre run by long term franchises; whereas the small exhibitor cannot do the same, because of his limited purchasing power.

Exhibitors with a double bill policy, and several changes a week, are particularly vehement against the proposed selling plan, it is said. They feel they cannot gain enough product.

The loss of cancellation privileges is also particularly resented, the Government men said; and many of the communications expressed belief that the Government would not harm them by allowing the practice to be eliminated.

Independents Against "Blocks-of-Five"

Objecting to the proposal that distributors furnish their pictures in blocks of five, Harry Brandt, president of the Independent Theatre Owners Association, of New York, insists that negotiations on a consent decree to settle the Government's New York anti-trust case, may be prolonged by exhibitor opposition to what the majors who favor the decree consider equitable practices.

Mr. Brandt displayed an invitation to confer with Paul Williams, special assistant attorney general, and indicated he would accept in order to argue against booking pictures in blocks of five, and to battle for an arbitration system which would be fair to the subsequent run exhibitor, which Mr. Brandt is, largely, and to which category most of the ITOA members belong.

"The 'groups of five' plan will never work," Mr. Brandt declared. "It will just put more small town exhibitors out of work than the situation before. A small town exhibitor doesn't want to see every picture; no exhibitor wants to see every picture. They certainly don't have to see the picture, to know what they are buying. And the small town man can't afford the rail fare to an exchange, to buy pictures. And, in the new setup, the exchange is not going to send salesmen to him. The small town exhibitor wants to make one or two trips a year, to buy. And, while I know it has been said that the majors may offer perhaps five groups of five pictures at one time, to enable the theatre owner to buy many pictures at one time, you can't tell me that they will do that."

Reminded that his own group of theatres, and those of the ITOA members were not in the "small-town" category, Mr. Brandt replied he was arguing objectively; and that, in his own situation, he and the ITOA members did not mind block booking but blind selling. Furthermore, he added, subsequent run exhibitors would especially want good runs, which, he remarked, he did not see assured by provisions of the consent decree, so far.

Arbitration would assure that factor, he said. But the consent decree must provide arbitration boards supervised by an impartial head "who will have the power to render decisions as the consent decree is interpolated"; and he will battle for that, he said.

Allied Confers on Circuit Opposition

At a specially called meeting of the National Allied States Association executive committee in Washington Tuesday, attention was given to the opposition of certain large circuit operators to parts of the tentative consent decree, and particularly to the belief of some large cirucit operators that exhibitors would be better off with single-film buying, as proposed in the Allied-sponsored Neely Bill, than with the consent decree clause requiring sales in blocks of five.

No comment was made by any of the Allied men after the meeting.

Allied's Cohen Proposes Meeting

Action on the consent decree by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America would be premature now, and the organization will act at the proper time, Edward L. Kuykendall, president of the organization, replied this week to the plea for a mass meeting of exhibitors, voiced last week to him by Max Cohen, president of the New York Allied, recently affiliated with the MPTOA.

Mr. Kuykendall said the MPTOA executive committee was studying the consent decree, and he added:

"However, negotiations on the decree are still in progress, and the present one is rather vague, and far from complete, or official, and may be changed completely because of so much dissension among the distributors themselves, as well as exhibitor interests. Any decision at this time by exhibitors would be premature, and without basis for sound reason which is so essential in a matter of such importance.

"The MPTOA will be very much heard from, at the proper time."

Mr. Cohen's plea last week read:

"As an independent subsequent run exhibitor, I plead with you to call a national indignation meeting of the MPTOA, to protest against the onerous provision in the consent decree which provides for sales in blocks of five. You are the leader of the majority of independent subsequent run exhibitors in the nation, and we are looking for you to save us. Answer quick."

"Block Booking With a Vengeance"

Edward Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, this week, in an organization bulletin, assailed that part of the decree which provides for selling of pictures in blocks of five. He called it "compulsory block booking with a vengeance, but in smaller blocks."

He said the proposal was likely to establish a "sellers' market" and that it was unfortunate that the consent decree was being negotiated by lawyers in secret conferences, intimating that exhibitors' views should be considered.

Mr. Kuykendall examined other aspects of the decree, as it appeared last week. Of the trade showing provision, he remarked that it appeared to have been designed, not to help the theatre owner, but to "appease organizations outside the business, who have been yelling, for years, to abolish blind selling."

Mr. Kuykendall remarked that a distributor might have 10 or 15 pictures completed, and could then sell them at the same time, in blocks of five; and he reminded the MPTOA members that such deals, whether for single blocks of five, or more, would not be accompanied by a cancellation right.

"Furthermore," he remarked, "a company selling 50 pictures a year obviously will have 10 times the selling expense and effort, and you will just about have to live with the film salesmen, to keep enough product under contract to run your theatres.

"How much will that increase your film costs?" he asked.

"The distributor can, and probably will, offer you these blocks of five, on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. If you don't want one or two of the pictures, you won't be able to cancel them. If two or three blocks of five each are offered, the distributor can always reject the contract for any particular block, or withhold approval while he tries to sell you the other blocks.

"In effect, the smaller independent theatre that uses five features a week will be forced to make a film deal at least once every week the year around, negotiate prices and terms on a block of five pictures, sign a contract, have it sent into New York for approval, perhaps have it rejected, negotiate a new contract at higher prices, have it sent again to New York, receive the approved contract, and only then be able to book the first picture."

He continued: "Can you imagine what will happen . . . if the distributor knows you desperately need his five pictures to keep running? Do you think you will be able to buy better pictures for less money, under this system? Why shouldn't the big distributors go for this scheme?

"It is unofficially announced," Mr. Kuykendall's bulletin message adds, "that public hearings may be held on the final proposals, but where, or when, is not stated. . . . A lot of the the more important exhibitor problems and grievances will not be solved or even mentioned in the consent decree, and we suspect it will contain a number of unimportant provisions and several vague and ineffective clauses on problems that are difficult, if not impossible, of solution."

Adverting to the lawyers' part in drawing up the consent decree, Mr. Kuykendall said, "Apparently it can be done in no other way under the circumstances—but, in effect, our business is being cut up, and rearranged, in star sessions in New York City, and we will not really know what they are doing to us, until the final decree is officially announced."

Connecticut Against Blocks of Five

Connecticut owners voted unanimous disapproval of the method of selling pictures in blocks of five as presented in the consent decree, at Tuesday's regular luncheon-meeting of Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut, in New Haven. They stated their preference for the method of selling as outlined in the Neely Bill. Buying problems of the season were discussed. Charles Repass, operator of the Crown, Hartford, presided. The next meeting was scheduled for Tuesday, August 27.

ANSWERS SEPT. 15TH IN OKLAHOMA SUITS

Major distributors and the Griffith circuit have until September 15th to file objections to answers to the United States Government's interrogatories, the latter's anti-trust action against them in Oklahoma City Federal Court, under an extension of time granted last week by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught.

Meanwhile, in the A. B. Momand $4,500,000 triple damages suit also against Griffith and the distributors in the same city, Mr. Momand's attorneys last week filed interrogatories asking 585 questions on contracts in force between 1926 and 1932; and, similarly, the defendants have until September 15th to answer or to file objections.

New Selznick Corporate Setup

David O. Selznick Productions, Inc., has been formed in Sacramento, Cal., with Charles E. Millikan, Glendale; Richard M. Goldwater, Los Angeles; Herschel B. Green, North Hollywood; S. Earl Wright, Playa Del Rey, and Earl C. Morris, Los Angeles, directors.

Mr. Selznick, now at Washington, Conn., where he leased an estate for the summer, declined to make any statement as to the reason for the forming of the new company and the status of Selznick-International until after a meeting later this month of the directors and stockholders.

Selznick-International was founded in 1935 by Mr. Selznick in association with John Hay Whitney, chairman of the board. The company's board of directors held a closed meeting in New York a week ago Tuesday with Robert Lehman of the banking firm of Lehman Brothers, Loyd Wright, film attorney; Mr. Selznick and his brother Myron, film agent, were in attendance. Details of the meeting were not disclosed.

On May 14th Mr. Selznick and Mr. Whitney announced that Selznick-International was retiring its $2,900,000 issue of six per cent debenture bonds, leaving only the common stock outstanding.

BARRING OF ASCAP TUNES ON AIR TO CUT FILM MUSIC TIEUPS, SHEET SALES

Threat by Broadcasters to Ban All but Own Music Will Hit Exploitation of Hollywood's Song Hits

The motion picture industry faces the loss of radio as a means of musical exploitation of ASCAP music on January 1 if networks and many independent stations refuse, as they have announced they will, to play music of any composer or publishing house member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. The ban would include those affiliated with motion picture companies. The film companies' music publishing subsidiaries also face losses in sheet music sales.

Effect Studied

Broadcast Music, Inc., formed by the broadcasters as a source of music and a weapon in the organized broadcasters' fight to resist ASCAP's new contracts, has given some consideration to the effect of the struggle on motion pictures. Sydney M. Kaye, vice-president and general counsel of BMI, who said six months ago, when the broadcasters' music company was being formed, that it was desired to cooperate with the motion picture industry without asking any financial assistance, has had some conversations with motion picture interests.

At present the film companies are planning no moves. It is recognized that there is a strong possibility that ASCAP music will be off the chief networks and some other stations for a short time after January 1st. But film music interests feel that within a short time after that date the fight will be settled.

The motion picture industry, it is said, believes that it is not, and should not be, a party to the struggle. However, the major film companies and exhibitors, to a lesser degree, will be affected by the dispute if it results in a ban against ASCAP numbers on the air. Playing and singing musical numbers from coming and current films has been considered a good way to draw public attention to the pictures. Some industry opinion, however, believes that the exploitation value of film music over the radio has been exaggerated.

Direct Loss Seen

The major film companies themselves have an even greater stake threatened if a large part of the radio stations do not broadcast ASCAP music. Any ban on music by the Society would probably affect adversely the sale of sheet music published by firms affiliated with motion picture companies. Also, if the fight between the Society and sections of the radio industry continued for any length of time ASCAP payments to music publishing companies would probably be cut because the bulk of ASCAP's income in 1939 came from radio.

BMI in a pamphlet issued as one of the "weapons" in the fight against ASCAP said, "Eight of the largest ASCAP publishers are wholly controlled by film companies, while five other prominent ASCAP firms are affiliated with the motion picture industry. It is estimated that these 13 music firms affiliated with Hollywood interests received 65 per cent of the $2,500,000 that ASCAP paid its complete membership of 136 publishers in 1939—considerably more than the fees ASCAP charged the film industry."

Since April, 1935, when exhibitors and ASCAP made an agreement retroactive to October 1, 1934, relations between the Society and the film industry have been generally peaceful. In 1934 ASCAP asked rate increases from 20 to 1,000 per cent from exhibitors. In the final agreement medium size theatres accepted a 50 per cent increase and large theatres a 100 per cent rise.

Up to the present the principal negotiations between broadcasters and film interests on the music question have been on a plan to purchase from Loew's, Inc., the Robbins, Miller and Feist music catalogues. The radio music group recognized that if a large collection of hit tunes of recent years could be acquired its position would be much stronger, and public protest might be avoided in the event that ASCAP music was kept off the air.

Two problems have blocked the sale of the MGM music catalogue properties, one financial and the other legal. It was reported that the asking price was $4,000,000 and BMI, it was said, is not in a position to ask advance fees from member radio stations to cover such an amount. The legal question hangs on the point of who really owns the broadcasting rights, the author or the publisher. Both authors and publishers are members of ASCAP so that is no problem for the Society. It is possible that the matter may be taken to the courts.

The Associated Recorded Programs Service Library reported that the percentage of non-ASCAP music recorded has risen substantially in the past year. It was said before the ASCAP-radio industry dispute the ratio of ASCAP to non-ASCAP music recorded was about 9 to 1 and numbers recorded now are nearly reaching an equal figure.

Bell Music Company has assigned performance rights to the new song, "We're All Amerisons," to Broadcast Music, Inc.

Metro Music Royalties Up

Jack Robbins, head of "The Big 3" music publishing group, affiliated with Loew's, Inc., and comprising Robbins Music Corporation, Leo Feist, Inc., and Miller Music, Inc., announced that the companies' music royalties for the first six months of 1940 amounted to $120,476, an increase of 22 per cent over the same period last year, when the total was $97,000.

Royalties of the three companies were as follows: Robbins Music Corporation, $63,678; Leo Feist, Inc., $46,388, and Miller Music, Inc., $10,410.

FCC STUDIES FILMS AND TELEVISION

James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, left Hollywood for Washington after a five-day survey of coast television problems, and, according to Mr. Fly, "particularly the relation between the motion picture processes and television."

He will make no public report of his findings on returning to his headquarters in Washington, but will make informal reports on the tie-up between film production and television, of which he said: "The answers are not at all simple." Television on the west coast has "the same general problems as in the east," according to the FCC chairman.

Majestic Radio Elects Officers

Majestic Radio & Television Corporation of Chicago, recently reorganized under a plan which gave control to the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, an affiliate of Paramount, elected last week the following officers: Walter Glenn Scott, director of the old company and at one time engineer for the National Union Radio Corporation, president; Allen B. DuMont, head of DuMont Laboratories, vice-president; Elmer Upton, assistant secretary of the Balaban & Katz Company, treasurer; Curtis Franklin, treasurer of Automatic Products Corporation, one of the underwriters, secretary and C. V. Cook, assistant secretary.

To Make Recorders

Mr. Scott, head of the radio manufacturing company in which Paramount Pictures has an indirect interest, announced that work would start immediately on a complete line of radio and phonograph recorders. The announcement was made after the assets of the company had been turned over to the new president by Claude A. Roth, trustee appointed last October by the Federal Court.

In addition to its radio and phonograph equipment Majestic will manufacture television coils for the DuMont television company and television radio sets will be manufactured under and in cooperation with DuMont.

Of more than $1,270,000 in debts last October 24th when the voluntary petition for reorganization was made, $380,000 was repaid to a bank and finance company. The other creditors who agreed to the reorganization plan received stock in the new company.

Equipment needed to manufacture the new line of radios has been installed in the factory located at 2600 West 50th street in Chicago and Mr. Scott is hiring the necessary personnel. Mr. Scott said he planned to apply automobile factory assembly methods and to keep only a minimum of manufactured products on hand.

Grand Jury Hears Communism Charged

Hollywood actors, actresses, directors and writers were named as members of the Communist party, as secret sympathizers or as heavy contributors to the party in a transcript of testimony before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury made public late Wednesday. The witness who gave the Hollywood names was John R. Leech, said to be a former leader of the Communist party in Hollywood who was called before the Grand Jury two weeks ago. He testified to having had personal contact in his former capacity with the persons named.

'GREAT DICTATOR', 'BOOM TOWN' TO BE SPECIALS

Public Set "Boom Town" Policy, Says Rodgers; September 15 Release for Chaplin Film

Exhibition details and contract requirements, including a single feature, a minimum admission price, extended playing time and high rental for "The Great Dictator," Charles Chaplin's film produced at a cost of over $2,200,000, while not definitely determined are reported to embrace a "special policy" such as that applied to "Gone With the Wind." With the running time five or ten minutes over two hours some kind of a road-show method of distribution will be adopted, it was said.

Advances for "Boom Town"

Exhibitors will be asked to increase admission prices for "Boom Town," said William F. Rodgers, MGM sales head, in a statement in New York Tuesday.

"The public has set the 'Boom Town' policy," said Mr. Rodgers, "in nine test engagements this past week-end.

"We are not demanding that exhibitors increase prices," he added. "But the results of these tests prove the advisability and practicability of the price increases."

"Boom Town" admission increases will run about 25 per cent for matinees and 33 1/3 per cent evenings. Children's admissions will be raised five cents.

It is understood that a majority of Paramount's 1,250 affiliated partnership houses and National Theatres-Fox West Coast, and 250 other houses, already have indicated "Boom Town" increases.

Playing on percentage, the admission raises will bring to the distributor an additional rental of approximately $2,500,000 in the national gross.

Personal Appearance Possible

Maurice Silverstone, United Artists chief executive, said this week that Charles Chaplin was not averse to making a personal appearance at the world premiere of "The Great Dictator."

After the scoring of the film is completed, within a week or two, the sales policy will be decided. A decision may be made in New York by Mr. Silverstone, Harry Gold and L. J. Schlaifer, sales managers, and other home office executives, and referred to Mr. Chaplin on the Coast, or a party from New York will go to Hollywood to see the finished production before determining methods and terms of exhibition.

It was reported that "The Great Dictator" would have initial openings late in September in two theatres in each of six key cities. One house would play the film on a two-a-day basis, with the top admission $1.50 and the other would play continuous run, at 50c, 75c and $1.00 scales. Theatres or cities have not been selected yet. Release date has been set for September 15th.

"Boom Town" Above Normal

"Boom Town," starring Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr, is playing 20 test engagements at advanced prices. MGM reported that receipts varied from 260 per cent to 431 per cent above normal business. For the runs the price scale was increased from 25 per cent to 40 per cent. Records and percentages over normal reported by the home office included: Los Angeles, 252 per cent; Indianapolis, 345 per cent; New Orleans, 310 per cent; Reading, 232 per cent; Tulsa, 239 per cent; Atlantic City, 431 per cent, and Cincinnati, 453 per cent. Engagements topped in many cases figures on "San Francisco" and "Test Pilot," previous record highs for summer business with MGM films.

Denver Opening for "Kit Carson"

The world premiere of "Kit Carson," Edward Small production released by United Artists, has been set for Denver August 26th. The event will be sponsored by the Rocky Mountain Screen club and will mark the start of "Greater Movie Season" for that city. The premiere will be held at both the Denver and Paramount theatres on the night of August 26th, with numerous stars and newspaper men in attendance. After the opening night the film will continue at the Denver. Both are Fox houses and are across the street from each other. The day will open with a parade of stars and others who will arrive by train. A luncheon at noon, with more than 1,000 attending, will be sponsored by the chamber of commerce, and the Denver Post has promised the event plenty of space.

Harry E. Huffman, Denver city manager of Fox Inter-mountain Theatres, has been appointed chairman of the general committee to handle the Colorado celebration to mark the premiere.

"Brigham Young" in Salt Lake City

Charles E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity for Twentieth Century-Fox, has announced that the world premiere of "Brigham Young" will be held August 23d in the Centre, Paramount, Utah and Capital theatres in Salt Lake City. Opening night prices will be $1.10 top and the film will run at the Centre theatre at advanced prices of 25 per cent above normal for afternoon performances and 33⅓ per cent higher in the evening.

"Sea Hawk" Prints Increased

Warner Brothers has increased its order on the number of prints for "The Sea Hawk" by 25 per cent. The company reported that exhibitors were alloting increased advertising budgets and special promotion campaigns for the film.

A total of 268 simultaneous playdates have been set for the week of national release, August 31st. Requests for playdates have followed the national trade showings held last week in 37 exchange centers.

Columbia Trade Show; Triple Premiere

Columbia this week held a series of national trade screenings of "He Stayed for Breakfast," comedy starring Loretta Young and Melvyn Douglas, in 31 key centers.

"The Howards of Virginia" will open at three theatres in Richmond, Virginia, on September 4th. The film stars Cary Grant and Martha Scott and is based on "The Tree of Liberty" by Elizabeth Pages.

Frank Lloyd, producer-director, Martha Scott, Jack H. Skirball and home office executives will lead the delegation attending the opening at the Byrd, State and Westhampton theatres. Simultaneous runs will continue at all three theatres.

Trade screenings on "He Stayed for Breakfast" were held, as follows:

August 11th at the Strand Theatre, Memphis, Tenn.; Carolina Theatre, Greenville, S. C.; and the Rialto Theatre, Atlanta, Ga.

August 12th at Warner's Colony Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio; Boyd Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa.; Oriental Theatre, Portland, Ore.; St. Louis Park Theatre, Minneapolis, Minn.; State Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Melrose Theatre, Dallas, Texas, and Madison Theatre, Albany, N. Y.

August 13th at the Uptown Theatre, Boston, Mass.; Broadway Theatre, Denver, Colo.; Fox's Boulevard Theatre, Los Angeles, Calif.; Poli-Palace Theatre, New Haven, Conn.; Adams Theatre, Detroit, Mich., and the Ritz Theatre, Tulsa, Okla.

August 15th at the Orpheum Theatre, New Orleans, La.

"The Westerner" in Fort Worth

Samuel Goldwyn has announced that the world premiere of "The Westerner" will be held in .Fort Worth, Texas, on September 19th at the Hollywood and the Worth theatres. The national release date has been set for September 20th, starting with special showings at the Majestic and Palace in Dallas.

Track Preview for "Rhythm"

On Friday Paramount's "Rhythm on the River" is scheduled to have a special preview at the Del Mar Race Track. The entire musical score will be played and sung by the film's stars over the Blue Network of the National Broadcasting System.

Those scheduled to participate include Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Lillian Cornell, John Scott Trotter and his orchestra, Ken Carpenter, William Le Baron, managing director of production at Paramount; Pat O'Brien, vice-president of the Del Mar Turf Club; William Fawley, featured in the cast.

Arrangements were made by Buddy Twiss, of NBC's special events staff, and Robert Hussey, radio contact man of Paramount's studio advertising department.

A radio tieup with A. L. Alexander's "Court of Human Relations" program is planned for "I Want a Divorce," Dick Powell and Joan Blondell. The opening is tentatively scheduled for Reno for sometime in September.

A Vox Pop broadcast took place last Thursday at Charlottesville, Va. Edward H. Griffith, producer director, Madeleine Carroll, Fred MacMurray, Marie Wilson and other members of the cast of "Virginia" participated.

"Daltons Rode" in Loew's, New York

"When the Daltons Rode," Universal picture, will have its first New York showings in 12 theatres simultaneously. The film will open at Loew's State on Thursday and at 11 Loew neighborhood houses on the same date. The houses are 83d Street, 72d Street, Lexington, Metropolitan, Olympia, Ziegfeld, 175th Street, Mt. Vernon, New Rochelle, White Plains and Yonkers.

Republic Closes Deal

Republic has closed a deal for its new season lineup with the 75 theatres in the Sparks-Publix Florida circuit, according to J. R. Grainger, president of Republic. Mr. Grainger and Arthur C. Bromberg, southern franchise holder, represented Republic and Frank Rogers represented the circuit.

PATHE POLL FOR "PICTURE PEOPLE"

Theatre circuits throughout the country are cooperating in a nation-wide poll by RKO Pathe to ascertain what motion picture audiences would like to see in a film about their favorite star, according to the company. The poll is being conducted through 300,000 query cards for distribution in theatres, in connection with the "Picture People" series of short subjects.

Court Sustains Injunction Against "Credit" Checks on Marked Up Articles; New Giveaway Promotion Planned

The practice, widely used in exhibition, of tying in with local merchants, manufacturers or dealers, for the issuance of "special discount" purchase coupons to patrons, is illegal, the California courts ruled this week in a test case in which merchandise was found to have been marked up so as to give no effective value to the discount.

Establishing a precedent, the decision would appear to give grounds to prosecuting agencies and Better Business Bureaus for investigation or action in other places where similar conduct prevails. The Los Angeles Better Business Bureau prosecuted in this instance.

Injunction Granted

The California decision outlawing the offering or giving away of merchandise tickets or coupons purportedly giving "discounts" on the purchase of articles, household or otherwise, was made by Judge Henry M. Willis, in Superior Court, Los Angeles, in the successful test conducted by the Business Bureau for a permanent injunction against the Consolidated Appliance Dealers which offered the coupons to persons whose names appeared on various lists for "drawings" at film theatres, food shows and other public gatherings.

According to Robert Bauer, executive of the Business Bureau, who pressed the civil action, it was found through investigation that the coupons, or checks, did not constitute a "prize," but that the discounts were made on articles whose prices were increased over real prices, and that substantial cash payments had to be made before the articles were obtained.

The practice was this, according to court testimony: Consolidated Appliance dealers obtained from theatres, food shows and other places, the ticket stubs containing names and addresses of persons registering for various drawings.

Then letters containing "checks," usually for $50, would be mailed the registrants. Upon presentation to the stores or dealers, the "winners" found that the $50 was a so-called "discount," applicable only to articles costing more than $100.

Mr. Bauer added that these articles were marked up, and that persons not having the coupons could get $50 taken off the plainly marked purchase price.

In many cases, the discounts applied only to obsolete, discontinued models.

The case was taken to court, and Judge Willis, in supporting a temporary injunction granted by Superior Judge Emmet Wilson, found that the California Unfair Practices Act, the California Advertising Law dealing with false advertising, as well as a penal act, had been violated.

The permanent injunction is described as one of the most widespread restraints ever issued by the court and, according to the Better Business Bureau executive, will be used in warning practioners of similar devices to cease and desist.

The practice was brought to light, according to Mr. Bauer, when a Pasadena woman whose name was obtained from a theatre list sold her merchandise discount certificate for $25. The purchaser used it to buy a marked up article, obtaining a face discount of $50. Then the purchaser discovered, according to testimony at the suit's trial, that the same article could have been obtained at another store for $5 less than what was paid for it in cash, less the discount.

Another Would Have Cash Put Up by Advertisers

This week, in that field of promotion to devise new methods of luring people into the motion picture theatre—methods in lieu of showmanship and of product—one more giveaway plan appeared blooming.

It would be a nationwide giveaway, enlisting at least 10,000 theatres weekly; and it would have national advertisers pay the bill instead of the exhibitor. It proposes that such advertisers pay an amount weekly in prizes to patrons of local theatres, proportionate to that which the advertisers now pay for national network radio programs.

The idea, not new (it was broached, in a somewhat similar form, last month by Mitchell May, Jr., New York film industry insurance broker, and by George Fecke, New England film man) is now being propelled by Eddie Bonns, and Walter Hall, both also of New York, and both former film industry men.

Mr. Bonn has been with Edison Talking Pictures, a state rights salesman, in charge of "unit road shows" in the early days of films, a director of advertising and publicity for Warner Brothers in silent film days, a director of exploitation for Samuel Goldwyn, and also for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in charge of sound for Warners' Broadway theatres, when sound first entered pictures; and was, roughly, from 1933 to 1938, shorts product sales manager for Universal Pictures. Mr. Hall has worked in sales promotion, in films, and in the legitimate theatre; has written motion picture scripts, and has been a playwright; and, recently, has been writing for radio.

The plan, subject to change, is roughly, as follows:

The exhibitor will run a trailer, for his audience, mentioning the sponsor, and showing the operations of the contest and he will allow ten minutes on one night per week, for announcement of the award winners.

For the contest which determines the prizes, the details of which have not been disclosed, the patron has nothing to buy, nor skill to test, nor words to write.

The sponsor will donate the amount which it is spending, for instance, on one radio hour, for weekly awards through local theatres, the awards to be product of the sponsor. Various sponsors would be donors on various weeks.

Messrs. Bonn and Hall assert they have worked up a "special staggered booking arrangement," so that contests in one locality will not occur on the same night at different theatres.

The plan does not violate the various lottery laws, Harry G. Kosch, New York film attorney, said in New York Wednesday.

Other Game Developments

Bingo in Franklin County night spots, outside Columbus, Ohio, city limits, has been ordered stopped by Sheriff Jacob Sandusky, because, it is claimed, the "stakes" are becoming excessively high, thus bringing the game into the gambling classification, rather than an amusement project.

There were 24 fewer Bingo games in Cincinnati in July compared with June, although 19,530 more players attended, according to figures released by the Police Department.

The total attendance in July was 261,453 at 208 parties. The gross amounted to $197,961.55, and awards, $47,262.25, leaving a net profit of $150,699 to sponsoring organizations, the average net cost per player was 57.6 cents. At two games, merchandise was given away.

The Great States Circuit, Chicago, will start a Movie Quiz program next Tuesday from the Palace theatre in Peoria, Ill. Hal Tate, who originated the Movie Tattler program in Chicago, will handle the program with six assistants over station WMBD. The program will be extended to other key spots of the Great States circuit, if it is successful.

Ten theatres of Golden State Theatres, Inc., San Francisco, have begun featuring Giant Ten-O-Win, a stage giveway game, two nights a week instead of one, owing to "increased business" as a result of the game, according to Roy Cooper, general manager of the circuit.

Offices for Questo Quiz are being opened in the Majestic Hotel, Detroit, by Charles T. Danke, newly appointed Michigan distributor. Three houses have started using Questo: the Colonial, Detroit; Esquire, Grosse Pointe, and Wyandotte, Wyandotte.

All of the 17 theatres in Jersey City and its suburbs are using some sort of giveaway, it is reported.

WAGE CAMPAIGN ON RECKLESS DRIVING

In cooperation with the Traffic Safety Council of Cincinnati, which is waging an intensive campaign, short subjects on how to avoid auto accidents, and stressing the dangers of excessive speed, drunken driving, weaving, and other bad driving practices, are being shown in 68 Cincinnati theatres.

"The free contribution of this time on local theatre screens is a fine example of real civic cooperation in attacking a common danger, and brings our safety message to practically every Cincinnatian who drives a car," A. F. Sommer, president of the council, said this week.

Vaughn Paul Named Associate Producer

Vaughn Paul, assistant director at the Universal Studio, has been appointed an associated producer. Mr. Paul's father, Val Paul, is production manager for Edward Small and was at one time studio manager for Universal and RKO.

Vaughn Paul was born in Los Angeles and attended the University of Southern California. Prior to joining Universal he worked in various production capacities at Paramount and Warner Brothers. He was assistant director to William Seiter on the new Universal film, "Hired Wife."

White Forms Own Company

Gordon S. White, for many years advertising and publicity director of Educational, and later of Grand National, and Luther K. Bell and associates have formed the Bell-White Organization to conduct a general publicity and public relations service. Mr. White will continue to handle advertising and publicity for Terry-Toons.

Schine Managers Discuss Plans for Season's Selling

The new season's product and merchandising plans and policies were discussed Tuesday and Wednesday at the semi-annual district managers meeting of the Schine Circuit held in Gloversville, N. Y.

Vogel Is Speaker

A-Mike Vogel, chairman of the Managers Round Table of Motion Picture Herald, was guest of honor at the banquet Tuesday evening and gave the principal address, stressing the importance of "fighting vigorously" for a share of the nation's entertainment money and having loyalty and faith in the industry.

Business sessions, attended by over 50 field and home office executives, was held in the Circuit headquarters building. Attention was given to special campaigns in the three exhibition zones in New York, Ohio, Kentucky, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, where the 150 units of the circuit are located.

J. Myer Schine, president, presided over Tuesday's sessions. Louis W. Schine, vice-president in charge of operations, gave an address of welcome. Other speakers, all home office executives who analyzed various phases of the circuit's operations, included Frank Boucher, George Lynch, Lou Goldstein, Gus Lampe, Lou Lazar, Harold Sliter, E. Douglas Leishman, Florence Thompson, J. Guy Selmser, Dewey Lederer, Bill Graham, Morris Glockner, Francis Barter, John May and Howard Antevil.

The dinner climaxing the opening day meetings was held at the Hotel Johnstown in Johnstown.

Mr. Vogel in his speech dwelt upon the significance of loyalty in theatre operation, pointing out that "vexing exhibition problems in the coming year would yield solution if box office endeavor was sufficiently stimulated."

Ways and means of exploiting the new season's product were also discussed by Mr. Vogel. He enumerated many pictures ready for release and in production which have great promotional possibilities. He also dwelt upon the value of institutionalizing exploitation in making community contacts.

"The menace to our business today is the competition of war crowding the attention-capacity of the public," he said. "The screen has long been decried as nothing more than an escapist medium. Today that charge is to be welcomed. Proudly we offer motion picture entertainment to soothe war-torn nerves.

"But offering is not enough," he continued. "We are required to fight harder today for our share of entertainment money. In order to do so we must top previous endeavor in the direction of the box office. We must lay out a direct path between screen and audience."

Golf Tourney Held

On Wednesday afternoon the business sessions were interrupted for an intra-circuit golf tournament. Business meetings continued Thursday with individual district round table meetings.

The social program was highlighted by a Schine Brothers' steak roast on Wednesday evening at Sacandaga Park. Guests included Charles Coburn, Hollywood player and director of the Mohawk Valley Festival, Jean Muir and Walter Hampden.

In addition to those mentioned, Schine district managers at the convention included Lou Hensler, Bill Selman, Pat McGee, Marsh Gollner, Clint Young, Bill Tubbert and F. K. O. Kelly. City managers present were Bud Silverman, Milt Schosberg, Joe Schwartzwalder, Larry O'Neil, Harry Unterfort; bookers—Joe Golden, Harold Raives, Bill Fischer. Other home office representatives at the sessions included Bill Kramer, Arnold Vandenberh, Herb Brown, Al Marqusee, Seth Field, Jimmy Sanford, Dave Salvione, Sandy Lazar, Ed Henly, and Lou Hart and Herman Addison, Jr., from Gloversville.

Other guests were Jack Marpole, National Screen Service; Seymour Stern, Seymour Distributing Company, and Gertrude Merriam, associate editor of the Managers' Round Table.

The second annual picnic of Schine Theatre employes will be held August 20th at a lakeside resort spot. Wallace Folkins, manager of the State, Rochester, is general chairman, with Bob Meagher, advertising manager, handling the publicity.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bertha Gordon Schine, mother of J. Myer and Louis W. Schine, were held last Sunday in Buffalo. Mrs. Schine died in Buffalo August 9th.

Preview Wanger Film Paintings

Walter Wanger, producer, played host to screen celebrities, the motion picture trade press, artists, and others, at a reception and preview of an exhibition of paintings made from his latest production, "A Long Voyage Home," by noted American artists Thursday at the Associated American Artists Galleries, New York. The artists were Grant Wood, Thomas Benton, Ernest Fiene, Luis Quintanilla, Robert Philipp, George Biddle, Raphael Soyer, Georges Schreiber, and James Chapin.

After the exhibition, which will remain on public view through September 10th, Mr. Wanger will send the paintings on a two year tour of principal art museums.

At the reception were, besides Mr. Wanger, Joan Bennett, his wife, Joel McCrea, George Raft, Robert Benchley, and others.

Al Fields Loses Suit

Murray Hulbert, federal judge, in New York this week dismissed an infringement suit of Albert H. Wolsfield, orchestra leader known as Al Fields, against the National Broadcasting Company, RCA Manufacturing Company and Gray Gordon, band leader, for an injunction, accounting and damages. The plaintiff claimed exclusive right to the title "Tic-Toc Music" and an accompanying design.

Rubinger Transferred

Monroe Rubinger, district exploiteer in Kansas City for Warner Brothers, has been transferred to Chicago, where he will be manager of the midwest division's exploitation department. Martin Weiser, assistant to Sam Clark in Los Angeles, covering the coast, succeeds Mr. Rubinger. Mr. Rubinger will cover Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines and Memphis.

SUPPOSE IT HAD GOOD PICTURES!

For about one year, customers of McCarthy's Grill, fringing one of the Syracuse business sections, have been able to stand at the bar or sit at a table, buy a drink occasionally, and see two hours of sound and silent 16mm. films. The two-hour show is given twice nightly. The grill seats 225 persons. It is prospering.

ASCAP Dispute Brings Broadcast Groups Together

Most significant feature of the National Association of Broadcasters' convention last week in San Francisco, according to delegates, was indication that in its current row with ASCAP the radio industry at last has found a medium to cement its various factions.

A united front of the broadcasters, determined not to yield to what they term a "monopoly of radio's lifeblood—music," was the immediate result of the sessions.

BMI To Continue

But whatever the outcome of the squabble over music, which some radio leaders still privately regard as facing eventual compromise, it appears certain that Broadcast Music, Inc., will be continued.

This subsidized organization, set up to develop and control new music and so enable the broadcasters to better deal with ASCAP announced its intention of paying composers "forty per cent more" than they would receive for their songs under ASCAP. BMI estimated that in three months the author of a hit tune would make between $1,000 and $1,800 from radio rights. Beginning on January 1, 1940, the minimum payment by BMI will be one cent per station per performance. BMI attacked ASCAP's classification system of payment, claiming "It has been estimated that the majority of ASCAP members would fare better if ASCAP adopted BMI's method of compensation." BMI published examples of "test cases" to show how a writer of a hit tune could make much more money from performance rights under the BMI scheme than by ASCAP's present methods.

Sentiment among delegates was united in support of BMI, although some, mostly smaller station representatives, plainly were worried about whether BMI would be able to provide enough good music by the first of the year to maintain the stations' music schedules, if the fight actually reaches the showdown stage.

If and when NAB stations find it necessary to use BMI music, rather than the tunes controlled by ASCAP, it was said that they would find the cost less. The scale will be a minimum of $225 yearly on $15,000 gross, based on 1939 income. Increases will be based on one-twentieth of one per cent for 16 additional steps, each step based on an additional $5,000 income.

In addition to pledging unswerving support of BMI, the delegates, on the plea of President Neville Miller, further indicated their determination to see the music fight through by pledging "personal" cooperation with the Department of Justice, in its anti-monopoly inquiry into ASCAP.

Mr. Miller said that 354 stations, representing 85 per cent of the dollar volume of the radio industry, are members of BMI. During the meeting 43 radio stations joined the music group. At the time of the NAB convention the San Francisco local of the American Federation of Musicians offered to cooperate with NAB and BMI in their fight against the Society. This action was taken, it was said, because results of a questionnaire sent to members indicated that ASCAP fees have had an adverse effect on the employment of musicians.

The directorate of BMI was increased from 23 to 26, enabling Mutual to obtain a network representative on the board, along with the NBC and CBS.

A vote of confidence was accorded Mr. Miller, who has been a dominant factor in building up BMI, when his contract, with a year yet to run, was extended an additional year. A substantial salary increase also was voted him.

THEATRE BUILDING FOLLOWS SHIFT OF POPULATION TO CITY SUBURBS

Movement Away from Large Cities Shown in Census Report on Municipalities of Over 250,000 Persons

Indications that a substantial part of the future of motion picture exhibition lies in the suburbs of the large cities and in the small towns surrounding such centers were seen this week in Census Bureau reports of shifts of population during the past decade in the 37 cities having populations in excess of 250,000 persons.

"The theatre business, which constantly watches for the development and growth of new communities, has been aware of the shift in population from central to outlying areas of cities for the past five or six years, and these population shifts have formed one of the prime factors in the lively expansion of the exhibition plant during this period," explained George Schutz, editor of Quigley Publications' Better Theatres, in New York on Wednesday.

Contrast to 1920's

"Altogether," continued Mr. Schutz, "this period has been characterized by a movement which may be described as 'taking the motion picture to the people,' in contradistinction to the policy which marked the 1920's, of building relatively large units in central business sections, with expensive architectural tricks, stage shows and so on to attract patronage from every section of the city.

"Someone has said that the small town boy works like the devil to get to the city, where he works like the devil to get back to the country. In an earlier period it was chiefly the city millionaire who returned to the country to live; he acquired for himself a grand estate. During the past five or six years, the middle classes have also been seeking a quiet, green spot of their own, and the Federal Housing Administration has been helping many of them to build homes.

"Industry, too, has been moving to the rim of cities, and new residential sections for its workers have risen nearby. The construction of new theatres to serve these communities has been observed in all industrial areas of the country during the past five years," concluded Mr. Schutz.

"Commuter" Mode of Life

Eleven of the cities which could boast of more than 250,000 inhabitants in 1930 actually lost population in the last ten years, one of them—Akron, Ohio—dropping out of the list entirely when its population dropped from 255,040 to 243,130, to be succeeded by San Antonio, Tex., where population increased from 231,542 to 253,143.

Equally significant was it that in 14 other cities the increase in population was less than 10 per cent during the decade, not including cities of 1,000,000 or more inhabitants.

The trend to the suburbs is particularly marked in the 30 cities with populations in excess of 300,000, nine out of 30 showing a drop in population.

These shifts in population are not the results of a "back to the farm" movement, although there are more people on farms today than for many years, nor are they a reflection of migration from large cities to larger ones. They are the demonstrable evidence of the spread of the "commuter" mode of life.

Major Factors Cited

Major factors accelerating this movement are cheap automobiles and cheap and efficient public transportation, high city taxes, the noise and crowded conditions of the cities. With the growth of these suburban areas has come the construction of well planned "shopping centers," often containing branches of department stores, creating situations in which motion picture theatres can and do thrive.

Just what the effect of this new trend in living has been on the "downtown" theatres is problematical, although in many cities there is evidence of a declining business.

From the standpoint of the industry, the most important factor affecting the future of these "downtown" houses will be the Government's New York suit.

If the effect of that suit is to break the first-run monopoly which the "downtown" theatres have enjoyed heretofore, it is quite probable that many of the heavy investments in such houses will become unprofitable.

Viewed from the standpoint of exhibition as a whole, the metropolitan areas offer a greater audience than ever before. The problem created by shifting populations is one affecting the theatres individually.

In the near future, the Census Bureau will begin the issuance of reports on its canvass of business, and within the next few months preliminary statistics on the motion picture industry are expected to be made available. When the figures for individual cities are published, it may be possible to secure some idea of the effect of the trend to the suburbs, coupled with high business taxes, lack of parking facilities and other factors.

Better Business Forecast

While officials in Washington hesitate to predict the future of any individual business, there is some belief that the spread of population will make for better theatre business on the whole. The greater ease of access by automobile and the slightly lower admissions which are generally asked by the suburban houses may tend to influence people to go to theatre more often; the metropolitan areas will do a greater business, on the whole, but more houses will participate in it.

On the whole, it is said, the hegira to the suburbs is of too recent origin for any conclusive results yet to have been developed.

POPULATION SHIFTS SHOWN BY CENSUS

Thirty-seven cities in the United States had populations exceeding 250,000 as of the Government Census Bureau's 1940 census, which, for the same places, compares with the 1930 count as follows:

RANK	CITY	1940	1930

Hoffberg and Sack Set Eastern Deal

Future sales and physical distribution of all Negro features distributed by Sack Amusement Enterprises will be handled in New York, northern New Jersey, and the eastern belt by the J. H. Hoffberg organization as the result of a deal completed this week by Mr. Hoffberg and Alfred N. Sack, head of the Sack company.

Under the deal, the Sack New York office and personnel heretofore operating at 723 Seventh Avenue, will move to the Hoffberg office at 1600 Broadway, where all Sack business will be handled. Mr. Hoffberg becomes sales director, but the individual identities of both companies will be retained.

Twelve all-Negro features, including the exploitation subject, "Son of Ingagi," are currently in release. "Dark Manhattan," Ralph Cooper reissue; "She Devil," with Laura Bowman and Negro cast, and 10 additional all-Negro features will be released in the 1940-41 season.

Cooper and Dent Deal Collapses

The extended negotiations between J. H. Cooper and L. L. Dent, designed to eliminate their opposition interests in Lincoln, Neb., and in Oklahoma City, Okla, have collapsed.

The projected deal would have given Mr. Cooper a half interest in and operation of Mr. Dent's State theatre in Oklahoma City, in return for a half interest in and operation of Mr. Cooper's Nebraska theatre in Lincoln for Mr. Dent. The negotiations had been in progress since the first of the year.

The Old Subscribers' Roll Call

In connection with the preparation of the forthcoming special issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of Martin Quigley's service in the journalism of the screen, a recording of the older subscribers to the publications of the House of QP is being compiled.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD is prideful of the fact that its subscription rolls of today include the names of men who have been identified with the motion picture from the earliest days of organized exhibition—some of whose names were first inscribed on the rolls of Moving Picture World, beginning in 1907 and acquired by The Herald in 1928, and Motion Picture News, absorbed by The Herald in 1930—all today fused into the institution of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

It is desired to hear from those older subscribers from such a period as fifteen years ago, on back to the beginning. To make response convenient, a reply coupon is offered:

Will Reemploy "Conscripts"

Loew's, Inc., will re-hire employees called for 12 months' military training by the proposed conscription act, now under consideration in Congress. This assurance was given last week by Nicholas M. Schenck, company president, in a letter to H. Russel Gaus, MGM film salesman in Oklahoma City, who had asked Tom Connors, MGM eastern sales manager, what the company would do with the vacancy. Mr. Gaus is a member of the Officers Reserve Corps.

First on Record

Mr. Schenck's pronouncement marked the first to come from a major company on this question, agitating many of their personnel. It was followed by similar expressions from other company executives, and by a statement from Maurice Silverstone, chief executive, who said, "It is the only decent thing to do."

Mr. Schenck wrote, in part, to Mr. Gaus, "Should you be called for service, as you feel you will be, you may take this as your assurance that you will be welcomed back to our organization when you have completed your military services.

"I trust this relieves your mind; and we hope that it will not be too long before all of us can be back in normal activities."

Company spokesmen said this week that the matter had not come up for action in their cases but all agreed with Mr. Schenck. The latter declared, "We had not intended making any announcement as to our emergency policies at this time; but, since some of our employees may be worrying about the matter, we want to set their minds at ease."

Mr. Silverstone remarked that his company had held jobs open for employees in France and England and, "We certainly would do no less for our own."

Loew's has about 10,000 employes in the Culver City studios, MGM film exchanges, and approximately 200 theatres.

Paramount Affiliate, NBC Get Television Permits

The FCC last week approved two more construction permits for television stations: one for Television Productions, Inc., Paramount affiliate, for a 78-84 mc station at Los Angeles and one to NBC for Philadelphia on the 102-108 mc band. Power for both stations was set at 1,000 watts.

The NBC permit for Philadelphia is in place of a tentative grant for Chicago. NBC originally asked for both places but, with a station in New York and a permit for Washington, only one additional station is allowed under the FCC's maximum of three to one company. The FCC explained that it appeared that a Pennsylvania station will make possible "a more concentrated study of television systems by the entire RCA research organization." With stations in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, NBC-RCA will be able to experiment with a television relay and perhaps develop the first "television chain."

The FCC also authorized the Zenith Radio Corporation in Chicago to use the 50-56 mc channel, the new number one television band.

Renew Altec Service

Basil Brothers Theatres has renewed Altec service for Basil Theatres in Buffalo and Niagara Falls. A. J. Rademacher negotiated for Altec.

Border Red Tape Boosts Business in New Brunswick

Business at the New Brunswick theatres along the U. S. border, has shown a big increase, now that Canadians face barriers of red tape in getting over the border and in securing U. S. money.

Currency Restricted

Even at 11 per cent premium, American money cannot legally be spent for pleasure by Canadians in the U. S. Nor can trips be made into this country except on business. All the theatres on the Canadian side along the Maine-New Brunswick division, are finding patronage good. In addition, New Brunswick theatres are drawing more people from the U. S. side because of the extra value of their money in Canada.

The passport and currency restrictions also have caused the establishment of a municipal motion picture theatre on Campobello Island, which is separated by a channel about 100 yards wide from Lubec on the Maine side of the border. Campobello Islanders, in the past, have been consistent patrons of theatres in Lubec and Eastport, Me.

Border cities in the northwest territory have also been hard hit by the stringent regulations on travel between the United States and Canada. In some instances the drop in attendance is reported as high as 50 per cent and may force closings of a number of theatres at or close to the Canadian border.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and International Falls, Minn., are among the cities hardest hit by the restrictions. In the latter city a drop of from 2,000 to five was reported in Sunday attendance in a period of two weeks at the two Baehr Brothers theatres there.

Organize Pioneers' Unit

A maritime provinces' unit of the Canadian Picture Pioneers has been organized in St. John, N. B., by Sydney Taube, of Toronto, official organizer of the Dominion organization. Mr. Taube previously had organized a British Columbia unit at Vancouver. In his organization work he has traveled about 8,000 miles within a month, and all by auto.

At the St. John meeting, A. J. Mason, of Springhill, N. S., was chosen president; Reginald G. March, of St. John, secretary for New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, and Robert C. Roddick, of Halifax, manager of the Capitol, secretary for Nova Scotia.

Affiliated with the unit are Joseph M. Franklin, St. John, and Myer Herschorn, Halifax, heads of the Spencer circuit; A. A. Fielding, St. John, manager of the Spencer circuit; Fred M. Gregor, New Waterford, exhibitor; Abe Smith, Reginald March and Mitchell Bernstein, St. John, exchange managers; W. H. Cuzner, Sydney Mines, N. S., exhibitor; A. J. Mason, exhibitor; John Butler, Moncton, B. B., exhibitor and former exchange manager, and Robert Roddick.

Final officials returns of the Win the War Campaign sponsored in 977 theatres by the Canadian film industry show that $716,104 was raised at the special shows July 15th. This amount has been turned over to the Government by the Post Office Department, which collected through the sale of 25 cent war savings stamps as tickets of admission to the shows. Nothing was deducted for campaign expenses. The patrons retained the stamps, which will be redeemed by the Government in due course.

The average take per theatre was $733, while the average sale of war savings stamps for each seat on the one night was $1.20. The total attendance was 560,898.

EXHIBITORS, AUTHORITIES HIT SLOT-MACHINE FILMS

Ohio Leads Opposition to 16mm. Machines; Censor, License Fees To Be Imposed

Distributors and manufacturers of the new nickel-in-the-slot movie machines found their path thornier this week as, in various sections, exhibitors, projectionists, and local censors or politicians passed or drew up laws to hamper the new medium. Action was evident in Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania, symptomatic of action to come elsewhere.

Censor Fee Imposed

In Ohio the opposition was led by the state's active exhibitor organization, the Independent Theatre Owners, and its executive secretary, P. J. Wood. In that state the reels shown in the slot machines will be subject to review and approval by the state censors, at the same fee as regular films for theatre exhibition: $3 per reel.

Projectionists' locals of the state are discussing servicing of the machines. It is thought they may require the user of a movie machine to employ one regular union projectionist, at perhaps $100 weekly.

In Columbus, the city council has passed an ordinance defining an "assembly room" as "any restaurant, public eating room, night club, public bar room, public dance hall or any place other than a theatre, motion picture theatre or public auditorium, where the general public gathers for any purpose whatsoever."

This ordinance makes mandatory compliance with certain requirements governing both the building structure and the premises within where the machines are installed.

Mr. Wood, primarily responsible for the passage of the ordinance, even anticipated television; and had the council, in another ordinance, define the phrase "motion picture theatre" as "any place to which the general public is admitted where moving pictures or televised pictures are shown."

In a service bulletin to ITO members, Mr. Wood asked them to be "vigilantes" to make certain that the movie machines were used according to law.

License Fees Proposed

A proposed ordinance in Detroit would have the films used in the movie machines subject to the same censorship requirements exercised upon standard theatrical films; would compel the ownership of the machines by the store or other owner (or operator) of the property where they are placed; and would levy an annual license of $2 per machine, and of $50 per distributor. John Hamilton, City Councilman, is the ordinance's author.

Pennsylvania real estate owners and operators of any non-theatrical film exhibition building were warned, last week, by Lewis G. Hines, state Secretary of Labor and Industry, that his department must approve the exhibition place, before the showing of films.

He also pointed out that, under the Fire and Panic Act of 1927, amended, no person can project films, in that state, without a Department license.

Meanwhile, various manufacturers of the nickel-in-the-slot machines continued preparations to enter the field now occupied by nickel music machines, in restaurants, hotels, and taverns, and announced production of special short subjects, building and distribution of their machines, and entertainment talent signed by them.

James Roosevelt's Globe Productions this week announced completion of eight 100-foot short subjects to comprise its first reel of 16mm. sound film for exhibition through the company's automatic projection machine, "Pan-O-Ram," now being made and soon to be distributed by the Mills Novelty Company of Chicago.

The pictures completed by Globe are: "Darn That Dream," with Bill Roberts, Martha Mears, and Lorraine Page's girl orchestra; "Jungle Drums," with Carmen D'Antonio, under the direction of Reggie Le Borg; "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," with the Music Maids, and Stearns and Deane; "Hold that Tiger," an original arrangement by Victor Young and orchestra; "Row, Row, Row," with Joy Hodges, the Rio Brothers trio, and Rudolph Friml, Jr.'s orchestra; "Havana Is Calling Me," with Bernice Parks, Theodore, and Eddie Durant conducting a Victor Young arrangement.

Also, "Song of the Islands," with the Music Maids, Dick Winslow's orchestra, and a Hawaiian ensemble, and "Sweet Sue," with Victor Young's arrangement of "Six Hits and a Miss," his new song, played by Lorraine Page's orchestra.

Mr. Roosevelt, two weeks ago, saw the first of the Mills machines off the production line. The publicity department of Globe in Hollywood said 10,000 of the machines would be playing and using Globe product before the end of six months.

In New York, where Frank Orsatti, Hollywood talent agent, and Sam Sax, former Brooklyn Vitaphone Studio head and Warner British production executive, have been marketing their Phonovision machine, signing talent, distributors, and manufacturers, etc., it was said last week that the productions for the new machines would possibly be made at the Twentieth Century-Fox Movietone Studios in Manhattan; and that there would be two shorts per day turned out.

The Wurlitzer Company, manufacturers of nickel-in-the-slot music machines, is said to have abandoned experiments on a film machine, which it had reportedly been making.

National Decency Legion Classifies 14 Pictures

Of 14 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week nine were approved for general patronage, three were listed as unobjectionable for adults, one was cited as objectionable in part and one was condemned. The films and their classification follow.

UA TO PROTECT FILMS FROM TRIPLE BILLING

Samuel Goldwyn and Jack Kirsch Say That the Gallup Poll Confirms Their Opinions

Dr. George Gallup's poll on double features, instigated by Samuel Goldwyn, which showed that 57 per cent of those questioned disliked the practice (MOTION PICTURE HERALD, August 10, page 21) this week motivated a declaration from United Artists that it would resort to law, through its exhibition contracts, to bar its pictures from triple bills. Conclusion of the poll also invigorated the Illinois Allied campaign against multiple feature programs and elicited a statement from anti-duals champion Samuel Goldwyn which amounted to an I-told-you-so.

The UA policy statement was given this week by the company's chief executive, Murray Silverstone, following his return to the New York home office from the Coast. Every legal means will be used by the company to keep its product from a triple feature screen, he said. Triple bills he labeled wasteful and "unwise" at the present time in the industry when distributors see a possibility of fewer pictures, and exhibitors fear a product shortage.

He indicated that Charles Chaplin's latest, "The Great Dictator," may be protected by contract from double bill showings.

Kirsch Commends Poll Findings

Noting that, in the Gallup poll of the east central states, 62 per cent were shown favoring single features, Jack Kirsch, president of the Illinois Allied, in Chicago, where he has been carrying on his campaign against duals and triples, said: "It simply bears out my contention that the majority of the public are against double and triple bills.

"However," he added, "you will note that only one-third of those polled in the upper brackets, people who pay more than 30 cents for admissions to theatres, are for double bills. Here we have a situation where two-thirds of a certain income bracket are against double and triple features. Yet this great majority, people who pay more than 30 cents for admission to a theatre, are forced to sit through double and triple features in spite of their expressed distaste for this type of program."

In Chicago, spokesmen for the circuits, against whom Mr. Kirsch battles, declared that no change in plans was contemplated, despite the poll. An executive of one of Chicago's largest circuits, who declined to be quoted directly, said their theatres, with double and triple bills, were showing a profit and that so long as this continued there was no point in changing to singles.

However, Mr. Kirsch and his organization this week were readying a questionnaire on film preferences, to be sent to civic agencies, social clubs, civic leaders, educators, and the like. Said Mr. Kirsch:

"The poll we expect to undertake will be concentrated and confined to a group who are in daily contact with people of all types. . . . Our poll will not only indicate the opinions with respect to double and triple bills, but will go further by asking what types of pictures most people like to see."

Samuel Goldwyn, producer who instigated the Gallup poll on double features, last weekend declared the poll spoke for itself. "It is conducted," he said, "by the most scientific organization yet created for fact finding. It behooves everyone in the industry to study it, whether he be exhibitor or producer.

"To me, there are three outstanding facts in the poll.

"The first is that we are guiding our business by what children up to 17 years of age, and persons on relief, like; while there are 30,000,000 persons economically able to attend films, who do so not at all, or rarely. This large group is three-to-one for single feature programs.

"The second is that 40 per cent of the people are kept up past bedtimes, when they go to the movies, and they evidently don't care to be kept up by lengthy double feature programs.

"The third is that women do not want to be confused in their romantic illusions after returning home from theatres, by having two heroes to dream about instead of one."

Radio Debate Scheduled

Mr. Goldwyn has been invited, by the Columbia Broadcasting System, to participate in a debate on the subject, over a national hookup, on Saturday, August 24th, at 7:00 P.M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

With Mr. Goldwyn, and also against the double bill, will be Karl Holblitzelle, head of the Interstate circuit, Texas; and Mrs. Leo Hedges, state chairman of the motion picture division of the Parent-Teachers' Association of Southern California.

Opposing them will be I. E. Chadwick, and Trem Carr, independent producers, and Mrs. Arthur Beck, a housewife. The debate, informal, unrehearsed, will be supervised by Professor F. P. Wellner, of the University of California and Los Angeles.

Jack Truitt, manager of the Electric Theatre, Kansas City, and president of the local Theatre Owners Association, said last week that many of the city's theatres would continue their experiment of using a single bill on the Sunday change. Mr. Truitt's theatre occasionally single features a strong picture, though it is not included among those trying the Sunday single policy.

In St. Louis, Fanchon and Marco on August 23rd will convert their first run 3,018 seat Ambassador Theatre into a single feature house. Warner Brothers' "The Sea Hawk" begins on that date. The theatre will open at 11:00 A.M., and the single feature will be exhibited three times before 8.30 P.M., on an unreserved seat basis. After that time, for one performance, there will be reserved seats.

In Chicago, the New Studio Theatre was scheduled to change to duals next week, with "The Lost Horizon" and "The Awful Truth."

In Detroit, the United Detroit Circuit's United Artists Theatre will reopen with MGM's "Boom Town" at the end of the month, and may play singles thereafter.

Meeting last week in Minneapolis, exhibitors who comprise the Fifth District unit of the Northwest Allied authorized a letter to all of the city's exchanges, criticizing double features, and stating that the exhibitors would refuse to play pictures which had been double billed.

Regulation of double features by local voting, was suggested by Edward Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, in a late bulletin. He noted that the idea had been rejected before, but declared it better than having the issue "decided for you arbitrarily in New York, or Hollywood."

Five Units Plan Outings, Tourneys

Despite wars in Europe, multiple feature bill, Government anti-trust suits, conscription, taxes, pronouncements by industry leaders who view with alarm or point with pride, America's Variety clubs continued this week, to plan golf tournaments, outings and banquets, which will give fun to members and money and benefits to local unfortunates.

In Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Kansas City, plans for such affairs were being made this week.

Tournament in Philadelphia

The Philadelphia club's annual golf tournament will be held at the Philmont Country Club on September 13th; and its annual banquet on December 5th or 12th, at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia. In addition, the club will hold its annual beauty contest to select "Miss Philadelphia" to compete for the "Miss America" title in Atlantic City in September.

Milton Rogasner is chairman of the tournament, with Harry Ball and Dave Milgram assisting. Jack Beresin is general chairman of the annual banquet, with David E. Weshner chairman of the entertainment committee, and Ted Schlanger head of the dais committee.

William McAvoy has succeeded Ben Amsterdam as treasurer.

An annual picnic and family out will be held by the Pittsburgh Variety Club on August 15th at Camp O'Connell, in Warrendale. Sam Feinberg is chairman, assisted by Mike Gallagher.

The Cincinnati Variety Club will hold its annual golf tournament at the Summit Hills Country Club on September 16th. Heading the tourney committee are William Devaney and Andrew Niedenthal.

The Kansas City group's affair will be held August 26th at Ivanhoe, and will feature a turtle race, golf tournament, picnic, and a "Days of '49" celebration. In charge are Charles Gregory, chairman; O. K. Mason, C. H. Shafer, Arthur Cole, Earl Jamison, Beverly Miller, Jerry Zigmond, Sam Abend and F. C. Hensler. Elmer C. Rhoden is in charge of attendance and publicity.

On October 15th, the Detroit Variety Club will hold its second annual Tag Day, for the School Childrens' Food and Clothing Fund. The goal is $50,000, which is $15,000 more than last year, according to Edgar Kirchner, of the Family Theatre, chairman. Charles Perry is chairman of the preliminary drive for funds. On various committees are Wade Allen, Nat Haase, Sam Seplowin, Moe Dudelson, Alex Schreiber, Mac Krim, Frank Ketsman and others.

Berkowitz Leaves Fine Arts for Forum Films

J. Samuel Berkowitz has resigned his post of vice-president and executive manager of Fine Arts Pictures and Distributing Corporation, headed by Franklyn Warner.

Mr. Berkowitz joins the newly formed Forum Films which will produce a minimum of 26 one and two reel subjects and two features for exclusive distribution in educational institutions, according to the company. Mr. Berkowitz is president and general manager in charge of production; Jesse J. Gilbert, vice-president and associate producer; Samuel Nathanson, vice-president and general sales manager; Louis Rutstein, treasurer and chairman board of directors; John Fisher, secretary and comptroller.

Forum will have its own stock company juvenile players.

U. S. FILM SHIPMENTS TO EUROPE DROP 6,000,000 FEET IN 6 MONTHS

Decrease of 50 Per Cent in Prints Sent to Continent This Year Shown; English Feature Imports Down

The United States Government reports a drop of 6,434,677 feet in Hollywood feature footage exports to Europe in the first six months of 1940, a reduction of nearly 50 per cent in actual print shipments, and a drop of 46,104,957 feet in raw stock—the latter indicating the wide extent to which European production has been curtailed.

No Values Given

The Government's Department of Commerce Motion Picture Division, reporting the tremendous losses abroad in footage shipments, cannot supply the actual monetary losses in film rentals accruing to U. S. distributors, because the values placed by American shippers are merely declared print and negative values for export purposes only.

England, as of July 1st, was the lone European country remaining among the ten top buyers of Hollywood film, and even there, in the first six months of the year, print shipments dropped from 704 feature prints in the 1939 six-month period, to 307, more than 50 per cent, during January-July, 1940.

In France, the losses were far greater, as expected from the Nazi conquest, 461 feature print shipments, of 3,395,263 feet in the first six months of 1939, dropping to 194 prints, of 1,474,577 feet, in the first six months of 1940.

And the drop in Hollywood exports to Europe are expected to become even greater.

However, Latin American countries, with some of their previous sources of film supply cut off in Europe, are cited as making remarkable strides towards balancing some of our film footage losses. Argentina increased U. S. feature print imports in the first six months of 1940 from 944 to 971, Brazil from 842 to 953, Mexico from 532 to 602, Cuba from 324 to 384, and in Canada, with British production away off, 283 features prints were imported, against 205 in the same six months one year ago.

Increase to South America

But, while the shipments of prints and footage to Latin America are on the increase, this by no means makes up for the monetary losses in Europe, which are far greater as a result of the comparatively higher rentals and much greater markets than in South America. Europe, before the war, boasted of some 35,000 theatres, as against South America's 5,000—a ratio of seven to one, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

During the first six months of 1940, a total of 78,230,583 linear feet of negative and positive film was exported to the foreign markets of the world, as compared with 79,402,568 linear feet during the first six months of 1939.

Positive film exports for the first six months of 1940 totalled 74,351,131 linear feet, as compared with 75,734,690 linear feet for the first six months of 1939.

Negative film exports for the first six months of 1940 amounted to 3,879,452 linear feet as compared with 3,667,878 linear feet for the same six-month period of 1939.

The following table shows the ten largest importing markets for American motion pictures in point of footage (but should not be considered so in dollars and cents return) for the first six-months of 1940, with comparative exports to those countries for the same period of 1939.

U. S. exports of negative and positive films to Europe during the first six months of 1940 show a 6,000,000 foot decrease, as compared with those for the same period of 1939, as shown below:

The following table indicates total U. S. exports of negative and positive 35mm. sensitized not exposed (raw film) to all markets of the world; total exports for 1940 show a decrease of nearly 50 per cent as compared with the first six months of 1939 (the lower portion of the table covering U. S. exports of raw film to Europe is even more significant, in that U. S. exports of this type of film during 1940 are but one-fourth of our exports for the same period of 1939).

U. S. exports of positive and negative 16mm. sensitized not exposed motion picture films during the first six-month period of 1940 totalled 18,042,849 linear feet, as compared with 28,353,321 linear feet for the first six months of 1939.

Sound reproducing exports decreased for the period under review totalling $432,453 as compared with $515,529 for the first six months of 1939.

Comparative figures for sound recording equipment totalled $57,741 as compared with $102,119 for the first six months of 1939.

Exports of 35mm. standard-gauge motion picture cameras show a drop to 52 with a value of $31,920 for the first six months of 1940 as compared with 72 valued at $22,864 during the same period of 1939. Motion picture cameras sub-standard less than 35mm. totalled 4,935 valued at $131,666 during the first six months of 1940 as compared with 10,484 valued at $282,136 for the same period during 1939.

Exports of standard 35mm. motion picture projectors during the first six months of 1940 totalled 548 having a value of $215,187 as compared with 596 projectors valued at $194,951 for the first six months of 1939.

Sub-standard silent motion picture projector exports totalled 6,885 with a value of $182,310 during the first six months of 1940 as against 9,509 projectors valued at $220,845 for the same period of 1939.

Sub-standard sound motion picture projectors exports for the period under review amounted to 921 valued at $115,838 as compared with 915 with a value of $133,271 for the first six months of 1939.

FEDERAL TAX ON CUT-RATE TICKETS

The Internal Revenue Department has ruled that students or persons over 12 admitted at a reduced rate which is under the tax minimum of 21¢ must pay the regular tax on the full adult admission if the latter is over 20¢. The rule is enforced if the students or other beneficiaries of the reduced rate are allowed to sit in the same section of the theatre as adults.

Distributors Lose Cuban Law Protest

The protest of American distributors against enforcement of the Cuban anti-block booking and blind selling law was rejected by the Cuban Government, at Havana last weekend, according to news dispatches, which added, however, that the way had been left open for further considerations of the American companies' objections.

A committee was designated by the Government to confer with distributors on their objections and to report back later to the proper governmental department.

Home office foreign departments said they had received no notification that their protests had been rejected but, nevertheless, assumed the news dispatches to be authentic. It was said that one of the reasons why notification might not have been made to New York was that Arthur Pratchett, Latin-American manager for Paramount, who made the formal protest to the Cuban Government on behalf of the industry, is now aboard ship return returning from Chile, and other industry representatives in Cuba may not have been notified of the action in his absence.

Universal has acquired the American distribution rights to "The Fugitive," a Josef Somlo British production, starring Ralph Richardson and Diana Wynward.

The Return of Frank James

(20th Century-Fox)

The Saga Continues

No pig in a poke is this continuation of the story of the James boys of Missouri told in part under the title of "Jesse James." If ever a showman knew in advance what he was getting, and could tell his customers about it in terms they could not mistake, this is the time. For this picture opens with the scenes from "Jesse James" in which that bandit's buddies shot him for the reward on his head and proceeds from that point with the telling of what the dead desperado's brother did about arranging vengeance.

The circumstance may or may not be without precedent but none is recalled without research. It is as if the first picture were Part One and this picture Part Two of one attraction split by an intermission of months instead of minutes. That may be a way for showmen who played the first picture to exploit the second. (It might be an idea, also, for showmen who didn't play the first picture—and any of those who did play it with results suggesting a return engagement—to get both pictures and exhibit them end to end, with an intermission of minutes instead of months.) The cast is identical, as to principals, and the story of the James boys is picked up where it was left off and told in the same manner.

Henry Fonda, who played "Frank" in the first picture and was credited by the critics with stealing the picture from Tyrone Power up to the point where the writers dropped him out of the script, is presented here as determined to lead a life of rectitude but forced to take the trail in pursuit of his brother's killers when they are granted a pardon for the killing. Reasoning by which he brings himself to the robbing of an express office by way of financing his man-hunt—in a scene oldsters will associate with "The Great Train Robbery"—are brought out with clarity but not endorsed. Likewise his motive in detaining a mail-train, which he does not plunder, and the tactics employed by his attorney in obtaining his acquittal when tried for a murder he didn't commit but can't prove it. Neither does the film indicate that Frank James killed the Ford boys, furnishing an accidental death for one of them and another killer, promptly disposed of by gunfire, for the other. None of these provisions detract, however, from the intensity of the melodrama nor the total of riding, shooting, surprise and chase.

Second in prominence in the casting is Henry Hull, again the newspaper editor and this time the defense attorney as well, with Jackie Cooper, as the youngster whom the bandit tries to dissuade from following his footsteps but fails, in third spot. John Carradine again plays the role of Bob Ford, Jesse's assassin, and J. Edward Bromberg continues the railroad-detective characterization performed in the first picture. Gene Tierney, new to pictures, is seen as a girl reporter enamoured of the avenging bad-man but the romantic side of the story is not developed to a clinch. Donald Meek reappears as the railroad executive anxious to get the outlaws disposed of one way or another.

Written by Sam Hellman and directed by Fritz Lang, the picture is in Technicolor, as was "Jesse James," and contains exteriors, chases over open country and river bed, canyon and peak, which do for eye and pulse all that was done for them in the first production.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Westwood, to a mixed audience, paid and guest, which displayed all the symptoms of complete satisfaction. —WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

Sweepstakes Comedy

Ronald Colman in the pink and Ginger Rogers surpassing herself in the field of humor supply here 95 minutes of comedy deriving from a Sacha Guitry play rebuilt for America without sacrifice of subtlety or point. The film had its Hollywood preview audience at its fingertips from start to finish.

The screen play by Allan Scott and John Van Druten is sewn with situations which pile complication upon complication, dialogue twist upon twist, which gain charm and potency with the minutes and culminate in a court room sequence packed with surprises. It is a script of the kind that goes along without words when action, gesture or facial expression suffices to carry the point, and it is in these stretches, which are many, that the principals demonstrate the capacity of their talents. Harry Davenport's performance as the judge is one for the book.

Colman plays a noted artist hiding out from his public who meets a girl addicted to sweepstakes drawings, shares a ticket with her on her hunch, first extracting her promise, and that of her sweetheart, that in case they win she will accompany him on a trip, brother-and-sister fashion, before marrying her fiance. The sweetheart finds himself unable to credit the innocence of their excursion and pursues them to Niagara Falls, where developments disclose to the artist and the girl that they are in love. But it all comes out as it should in the finale with no moral codes violated.

George Haight was producer under Harry Edington's supervision and Lewis Milestone directed, the film reflecting credit upon all.

Money and the Woman

(Warner-F. N.)

Melodrama

Things that happen when a bank-employee confuses the institution's money with his own are depicted in detail in this melodrama which proves again that crime does not pay. Motives animating the principals in their plannings are dealt with for the most part, but there is shooting, chase, capture and excitement in the ending.

Jeffrey Lynn is seen as a bank vice-president who discovers a shortage in an employee's accounts but withholds notification of the bonding company, supplies funds from his own account to balance the books, etc., on learning from the employee's wife that the man has been spending the stolen money on another woman. Love animates the vice-president. In the finale the screen play takes steps to punish the guilty, reward the virtuous and square the picture with banking standards.

Comin' Round the Mountain

(Paramount)

Hillbilly Farce

Paramount's "Comin' Round the Mountain" is a story of feuding and singing of Tennessee folk, some of whom, according to one character, "live so far back in the mountains that they haven't seen Mrs. Roosevelt yet."

It stars Bob Burns, features Una Merkel and the radio performers, Jerry Colonna, Pat ("Uncle Ezra") Barrett, Don Wilson, Bill Thompson, Harold ("Gildersleeve") Peary, Cliff Arquette and Mirandy.

Encouraged by reception accorded other of its offerings recently, the studio, long before the preview of this film, began referring to it as another "sleeper." The preview audience in Los Angeles, however, failed to concur.

The story has the favorite son of a mountain family return, after working in the city for several years, and influence his folks to go on the local radio station as entertainers. Come feuding time, the kinfolk return to the mountains to resume their shooting scrapes with their enemies, blasting a chance to go on a national hookup.

Then the favorite son runs against the small town's mayor, who is stealing the poorhouse funds, and wins, with the support of the mountain folk. He marries, and the family gets a network program.

It is told by means of a flashback, with the former mayor applying to the WPA for employment and explaining to a clerk his background and qualifications for a job.

George Archainbaud directed the screenplay by Lewis R. Foster, Maxwell Shane and Duke Atteberry, who adapted Foster's story. William C. Thomas was associate producer.

Previewed at the Paramount theatre, Los Angeles, where the audience laughed, but not much. —V. K.

Oklahoma Renegades

(Republic)

Mesquiteer Western

This time the triumvirate of bronco "Mr. Fixits," the Three Mesquiteers, are engaged in a little early governmental resettlement work. They come across a landslide, narrowminded bigotry, thievery, a very distasteful form of murder and almost lose their own lives in a tight squeeze of gun play.

The time is the close of the Spanish American War and the Three Mesquiteers take some of their wounded buddies out to Oklahoma where the government has offered free homesteads. However, cattlemen in the district are hostile to the new arrivals. The Mesquiteers stage a minstrel show to raise money for the veterans' supplies. The gross is stolen by the bullies and in gaining it the Mesquiteers kill the brother of the opposition leader. For vengeance, the gang chief captures one of the veterans and has him tied to a pair of runaway horses, thus causing his death. This act causes a crisis between the two opposing camps and a victorious outcome for the Mesquiteers and the veterans.

The boys still ride and handle the firearms expertly. The scenery is again clearly photographed and the musical background swells up the action.

The Secret Seven

(Columbia)

Crime Detection

James Moore, onetime talent scout and stage producer, has taken the original story by Dean Jennings and Robert Tasker, and directed a crime melodrama on the modern methods of police detection. Bruce Bennett, in his first prominent cinema portrayal, is an ex-convict who organizes the "Secret Seven" to combat crime. Co-starred with him are Florence Rice, as the daughter of the police commissioner, who aids the amateur detectives in uncovering the crime ring, and Barton MacLane as the racketeering beer-baron.

A group of professional men, skilled in microphotography, chemistry, psychology, ballistics and other fields essential in crime detection, join to fight the underworld of a small city. At first they receive little cooperation from the police department but when the police chief's daughter is kidnaped they are given a free hand and they succeed in tracking down the ring.

The picture is an orderly procedure, revealing the careful steps taken in crime detection, so directed as to lift it above the usual crime melodrama. Robert Tasker, co-author of the original story, adapted the screen play.

(Twentieth Century Fox)

Comedy Drama

Casting Lynn Bari and Lloyd Nolan in the leading roles, executive producer Sol Wurtzel and director Eugene Forde have turned out a piece of entertainment best defined as brisk.

The story, by Barry Connors and Philip Klein, with screen play by Stanley Rauh and Clark Andrews, concerns a policeman whose beat is "Pier 13" in New York. Made a detective in short order, he is assigned to track down a thief and murderer who has been hiding behind the protection afforded by a former sweetheart.

Said sweetheart is the sister of the detective's finance, but her efforts to hide him are overlooked when he is the loser in a gun fight. Joan Valerie and Douglas Fowley portray the sister and the crook, respectively.

Comedy of the wise-cracking variety is interspersed with the more tense sequences.

Son of Roaring Dan

(Universal)

Western

A western of the Johnny Mack Brown series, "Son of Roaring Dan," is one of the best in the series to date. It addition to abounding in action, it has an entertaining and well rounded story capably directed and acted. Humor and romance take a more prominent part than is ordinarily called for in the formula and these elements also fit more snugly into the story itself.

Sharing honors with Brown is Fuzzy Knight, who appears regularly in this series, but never to better advantage than in this picture. Jeanne Kelly plays opposite Brown, for romance, and Nell O'Day appears as a cowgirl. The cast also includes Robert Homans as "Roaring Dan" and John Eldredge as "Thorndyke," the heavy.

The story concerns the nefarious operations of "Thorndyke" and his stooges in a small western town, and the feud between him and "Roaring Dan McPhail," a loud but honest rancher. A bit of cleaning up is called for so "Jim Reardon," two-fisted fighting man and quick on the draw, poses as "Roaring Dan's" tenderfoot son from New York, to do the cleaning up.

story material for the entertainment it provides. It contains a measure of humor sprinkled in the path and wake of road wrecks and fights occurring in the course of a plot animated by revenge.

Produced by Cliff Reid on the Lee Marcus side of the studio setup, and directed by Frank Woodruff, the film offers Fay Wray as the general manager of a bus system sabotaged by wildcat opponents in the employ of a woman whose husband, a defaulter, the girl's father has caused to be imprisoned. Charles Lang portrays a rich man's penniless son who aids in exposing the criminals and marries the girl.

The Higgins Family

The latest in the "Higgins Family" series of pictures depicting the lives of a typical American household again has for its stars the three Gleasons—James, Lucille and Russell—aided by Harry Davenport, Lois Ranson and Tommy Ryan.

The title is derived from the bogus honor assumed by "Joe Higgins" by the enterprising father-in-law in an effort to place the family in a higher strata of local society. "Grandpa" hires an imposter to pose as a lawyer from England who brings the rights to a British title and an estate left by the death of an uncle. Many adventures are enjoyed by the family and suffered by the instigator of the idea until an expose by a jealous socialite reveals the fraud.

Romance is supplied, but only secondarily to the main plot, by Lois Ranson and William Brady while Eric Blore continues in his familiar role of butlering adding comedy to a plot already based on that element.

King of the Royal Mounted

(Republic)

Mountie vs. Spy Serial

Based on what may be no more than the title of a work by Zane Grey and rather the more up to date work by a quintet of scripsters, this installment thriller about the upholder of law and order across the Canadian border is concerned not with getting a lone offender but in keeping the seas safe for the British. There has been discovered as coming from a Canadian mine a compound X which, because of its magnetic qualities, is valuable in depth bomb composition. England's enemy learns of this fact and sends an agent to Canada. A supply of the mineral is stolen and the owner of the mine murdered. "King" is assigned to the case. Allan Lane plays "King" and looks the part. Others in the cast are Robert Strange, Robert Kellard, Lita Conway, Herbert Rawlinson, Harry Cording and Bryant Washburn. William Witney and John English codirected. A great deal of the action is shot out of doors in the big tree and lake country and the scenery is eye filling. It will take twelve episodes for "King of the Royal Mounted" finally to get his man.—Release date, September 20, 1940. First episode, 30 minutes. Other episodes, two reels, each.

Pinky Tomlin and His Orchestra

(Paramount)

Music and Montage

Pinky Tomlin has long been known for his versatility, a band leader he is also the author of such hit tunes as "The Object of My Affections" and "The Love Bug'll Bite You." His Orchestra having recently completed one of its numerous tours of the country, Tomlin has selected several songs, which, he says, represents the tastes of various sections of the country. Also, Tomlin sings a new song of his, "I Did It and I'm Glad." The music is accompanied by montage, which is mostly concerned with buses in motion, ferris wheels and merry-go-rounds and the band on location. Running time, 11 minutes.

Lew Lehr

Wrestling bouts in newsreels have always provided the audience with numerous laughs. Now a short subject has been assembled with off-screen commentary by Lew Lehr, in which wrestlers continue to throw each other around and out of the ring, mostly for the appreciation of the spectators. Sound effects emphasize the blows struck and the bodies bouncing while Lew continues his description through the melee with his humorously accented dialogue. Such personalities in the professional wrestling world as "King Kong," "The Angel," recently brought to this country from France and who has received much attention from the press due to ugliness and out-of-proportion body, and "Chief White Feather," are shown in action and supply the laughs.—Running time, nine minutes.

Popeye Cartoon

The proceedings have been reversed to good advantage in this Popeye cartoon. No longer is the one-eyed, spinach eater and Bluto, of gargantuan proportions, the unbending enemies of old. Now they are friends, fighting friends to be sure, but friends. Bluto, incidentally, has become an explorer and off to Africa he goes. When he is reported lost, Popeye sets out as a one-man searching party. After trampling through "dark" and "darkest" Africa for days on end Popeye, in a much weakened state, finds Bluto surrounded by a bevy of native girls. Refreshed by the inevitable spinach, Popeye goes to work on Bluto. Running time, 8 minutes

Magic Carpet

What is, with some optimism, called "the greatest contest ever conducted in the motion picture industry" is currently being conducted on behalf of MGM's forthcoming "Strike Up the Band."

Launched officially last week-end, the contest is in the field of amateur bands; is known as the "Mickey Rooney-Paul Whiteman Strike Up the Band Contest."

Staged in each of the 48 states, the contest will boil down to 16 key spots, half from the east, half from the west; then to two bands for the finals, again representing east and west. To the winners will go a week's personal appearance engagement in New York and a visit to the Fair. The runners-up will receive, respectively, diamond studded, and gold, silver and bronze tipped batons.

The tentative committee of judges drawn up includes the Messrs. Rooney and Whiteman, Deems Taylor, Arturo Toscanini, Rudy Vallee, Kay Kyser, Guy Lombardo, Glenn Miller, Harold Bachman, Paul Yoder, Gene Krupa and Tommy Dorsey.

Starting dates for five new films have been set by Paramount's William Le Baron, managing director of production, as the studio continued its recent production pace.

Started last week-end was "The Roundup," Harry Sherman production, while "I Wanted Wings" begins at Randolph Field, Texas, August 26th. Mr. Le Baron is to produce "Shepherd of the Hills," in Technicolor, beginning September 4th.

PRUNE PICKER PROTEST

Warners' publicity department this week announced that the studio had received a complaint from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce protesting the use of the term "prune-picker" to denote a native Californian.

The publicity story quoted J. L. Van Norman, chamber president, as declaring himself "righteously indignant" over the use of the word.

The name "prune picker", according to the publicity department, is used several times in the Warners' film, "Flowing Gold", story of the oil industry which has not yet been publicly exhibited.

Van Norman was quoted by the studio as saying:

"The blanket reference is both unfair and untrue. We are proud of our farmers. They are the backbone of our state. The slighting colloquialism, 'prune-picker', is unjust to them and to the countless thousands of Californians engaged in commercial, industrial and cultural pursuits."

[The issue would seem to be balanced on the point of what California thinks of a prune.—THE EDITOR.]

On September 23rd work will start on production of "Reaching for the Sun," with Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck, and "You're the One," with Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker's band.

Among others currently in work at the Marathon Street plant are "Virginia," also in Technicolor; "Love Thy Neighbor" and "Second Chorus."

"All Work . . "

Not tasting the flavor of unemployment these days is Cary Grant, who last week wound up work in MGM's "Philadelphia Story," in which he appears opposite Katharine Hepburn, and with James Stewart. From Culver City Mr. Grant journeys to Hollywood, there to start this week in RKO's "Passport to Life," after which a short trip down Gower Street brings him to Columbia and "Penny Serenade."

Now some 14 picture commitments ahead, Mr. Grant says he tries to maintain a program of two comedies, one drama and one costume picture a year.

Further consolidating its interests in distribution, Monogram this week, through its president, W. Ray Johnston, announced that it had purchased the interests of A. M. Goldstein in Monogram Pictures of the Northwest, Inc., operating company for Monogram exchanges in Seattle and Portland.

The company will be operated in conjunction with Monogram Pictures of California, Inc.

Animal Notes

Following last week's report in HOLLYWOOD SCENE to the effect that Jack Moss, Paramount producer, was trying to find a Hollywood home for Alfred, the London Zoo's giant gorilla, comes word that MGM has purchased two young Indian elephants for use in the next "Tarzan" picture.

Sent from Bombay, the elephants are to be charges of George Emerson, the studio's animal trainer. Now in the MGM Zoo is a considerable stock acquired for "The Yearling."

This week, also, 200 sheep and 100 head of cattle were taken in to the same studio's lot Two for Irish farm sequences in "Little Nellie Kelly."

Shortly set to make her film debut is Tamara, stage singer and actress, most recently seen on Broadway in "Leave It to Me." She will appear under the RKO banner in Herbert Wilcox's "No, No, Nanette," starring Anna Neagle.

Tamara has also been seen in "Tide Rising" and "Right This Way" and introduced the song "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" in the original stage version of "Roberta."

Four pictures are set to begin within the next three weeks at MGM, with the sound stages being made ready for "Go West," Marx Brothers comedy; "Flight Command," starring Robert Taylor; "Come Live with Me," Jimmy Stewart-Hedy Lamarr comedy, and "Ziegfeld Girl," to be produced by Pandro Berman.

The busy Alexander Korda, in addition to his producing and directing chores, has announced the completion of an original screen play for Mrs. Korda, sometimes known also as Merle Oberon.

Taken from a Dante Gabriel Rosetti poem, the title is "I Have Been Here Before," and Mr. Korda will produce and direct the picture as well as contributing the screen play. Production is set to follow "Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has signed Edwin L. Marin, director, to a new long term contract. His pictures include "Gold Rush Maisie," "Maisie," "Florian," "Henry Goes Arizona" and "Society Lawyer."

Pat O'Brien, who recently severed his ties as an exclusive Warner contract player, will make three films a year for Warners and be permitted outside pictures.

BRITISH DEBATE ADMISSION SCALES AS ROAR OF WAR BOMBS INCREASES

Organization Unable to Agree on Minimum Prices under New Tax; Circuits, First Run House to Take Lead

Having by common assent made up their minds that the new Entertainments Tax scale can only be met by a new admission scale, British exhibitors, while the roar of bombs increases, are hard at work deciding what this admission scale will be. Though in many areas the most notable decision has been for the time being to remain indecisive, certain corollaries are now clear.

New Minimum Seen

It is obvious that, thanks to pressure from the circuits, a new minimum, probably 9d., will be set up for British first-run houses. Many exhibitor groups have postponed consideration of the problem until the circuits give a lead.

[The British penny, or pence, of which the symbol is d., is equivalent at normal exchange rates to two cents in U. S. money. A shilling is equivalent to 25 cents. Combinations of shillings and pence are written with a fraction bar separating them, thus 1/5d. is one shilling, five pence (35 cents U. S.)—EDITOR].

In some areas the minimum admission will be 7d. or 8d. The situation will be governed by the position and strength of the first-run house. It is unlikely, however, this lead will be followed universally. Already one exhibitor group has set 4d. as a national minimum. The divergence of view which exists is seen in a demand from two CEA sections, Devon and Cornwall, and the war-stricken Kent area, that a shilling shall be the national minimum.

The view is gaining increasing strength that if exhibitors do not demand higher rates now they will never get them. The knowledge that the CEA influence was marked in the arrangement of the new scale, that it asked for a scale which was elastic and would permit the exhibitor to take his share of increased admission rates, has naturally inspired local groups to take a broad view of the matter.

A factor in the situation is the attitude of the theatre employees' union, the NATKE. Through their secretary, T. J. O'Brien, they have stated that where exhibitors have not negotiated with their employees on a wage increase or on a wages and hours agreement, they will use local propaganda advising the public not to pay more for their cinema seats.

The attitude of one exhibitor section was voiced by Victor Sheridan of the Twentieth Century Cinemas group, a small circuit of small theatres who this year registered a loss of £12,000. Sheridan lamented that exhibitors did not, in spite of the Government's advice, pass on the original entertainments tax, which was imposed as an emergency duty during the last war. They were afraid, he claims, of public reaction. Now exhibitors are paying 95 per cent of the tax which the public should have paid. Openly admitting the loss of £12,000 on the year's trading, Sheridan pointed out that the company had paid in entertainments tax alone over that period £18,000.

Manchester Asks Penny Increase

The only CEA branch yet to have decided formally on the matter, or, more correctly, to have advised its members formally on how to adjust business in the light of the new tax, is the Manchester and District CEA. They have decided on a penny increase on seats up to 1/0d. these ranging from 3d. upwards, and a 2d. increase on seats over and above 1/0d. This formal lead, the first of its kind, will almost certainly prove an example to be followed in other areas.

Differences of opinion exist upon precisely how much shall be added to present admissions to cover the new tax scale and to bring in that little extra bit which will help to meet exhibitors' overheads.

In Sheffield an interesting scale was drawn up and presented by Dennis C. Walls of the North country Emery Circuit, an influential group with houses in Lancashire and Yorkshire. Walls suggested the following increases:—4d. seats to 5d.; 5d. seats to 6d.; 6d. seats to 7d.; 9d. seats to 11d.; 1/0d. seats to 1/2d.; 1/3d. seats to 1/5d.; 1/6d. seats to 1/9d.; 2/0d. seats to 2/4d.

The scale does not allow a great deal per seat for the exhibitor. On the 4d. seat he pays ½d. tax keeping ½d. for himself. On the 5d. seat likewise. On the 6d. seat he pays ¾d. and has only ¼d. for himself. The 6d. seat is probably the most popular in most of the Emery houses. It now becomes 7d. gross. The 1/0d. seat which yesterday was actually a 10d. seat with 2d tax, would now become an 11d. seat with 3d. tax, an extra penny going to the exhibitor, and so on up the scale. Out of these minor increases the exhibitor has to meet his overheads and pay his rental. Thus the ½d. he retains on the 4d. seat is divisible between the renter and exhibitor. If he is showing a 50% picture ¼d. of it goes to the renter. If a 33 1/3% picture 1/3 of a penny goes to the renter. Out of what is left the exhibitor has to pay his staff, his lighting, his rates, his advertising, and so on over the whole range of expenses.

May Rearrange Seating

Of course, in many areas there will be a majority of 4d. seats, whilst in some there will be a majority of more expensive admissions. Local picture theatre owners will adjust their seating so as to bring in the best returns to themselves.

Conscious of the wide field of increased overheads which have to be met, the circuits are working feverishly for a worth while increase. In two cases the 9d. minimum is favored, in the third there is still a lingering belief that 8d. will be enough. All three, however, and the independents on the wider field, are conscious of the increased cost of carbons, transport, employees' wages, lighting, and so forth. A narrow margin would probably be inadequate in most cases to foot the swollen exhibitor expense bill. The independent thus has a problem to solve, that of how to reconcile the decreased spending of the working classes with the increased cost of his own overheads. Hence the diffidence with which, so far, this question of the minimum has been tackled. On the other hand, the emphatic support for the 1/0d. minimum from Cornwall on the one hand and from Kent—the British front line—on the other indicates that there is a feeling that this question of educating the public to pay more for entertainment, which has greatly appreciated in quality, is being considered seriously and courageously.

Higher in Cities

A 9d. minimum in the large towns is almost certain for both circuits and first-run independents. Outer surburban houses and probably what are called better-class towns in the country will incline towards the 8d. minimum. Difficulties of adjusting the incidence of the tax prevent a round figure scale of 1/0d., 2/0d. and 3/0d. A fair average this winter is likely to be 9d., 1/2d., and 1/9d.

The present discussion has brought renewed interest in the recent Nyman scheme, outlined in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, under which it was suggested that first-run houses should have a minimum admission of 1/0d. This would be bound up with relaxation of bars on distant halls which could or would operate on a first-run basis, and the relaxation of time bars for subsequent run houses.

The fact is, of course, that the whole situation of increased admissions is wrapped up inextricably with the question of first or subsequent runs. Fourth, fifth and sixth run houses could never operate on the 9d. minimum. It would be ridiculous, on the other hand, for first-run houses to operate under the new scale on less than 8d. minimum. It is certain, however, that the bar question will come in the forefront of exhibitor discussion in the near future. The war situation has stirred up a great deal of discontent. The tax developments will renew the problem.

FOUR NAMES FROM START TO FINISH

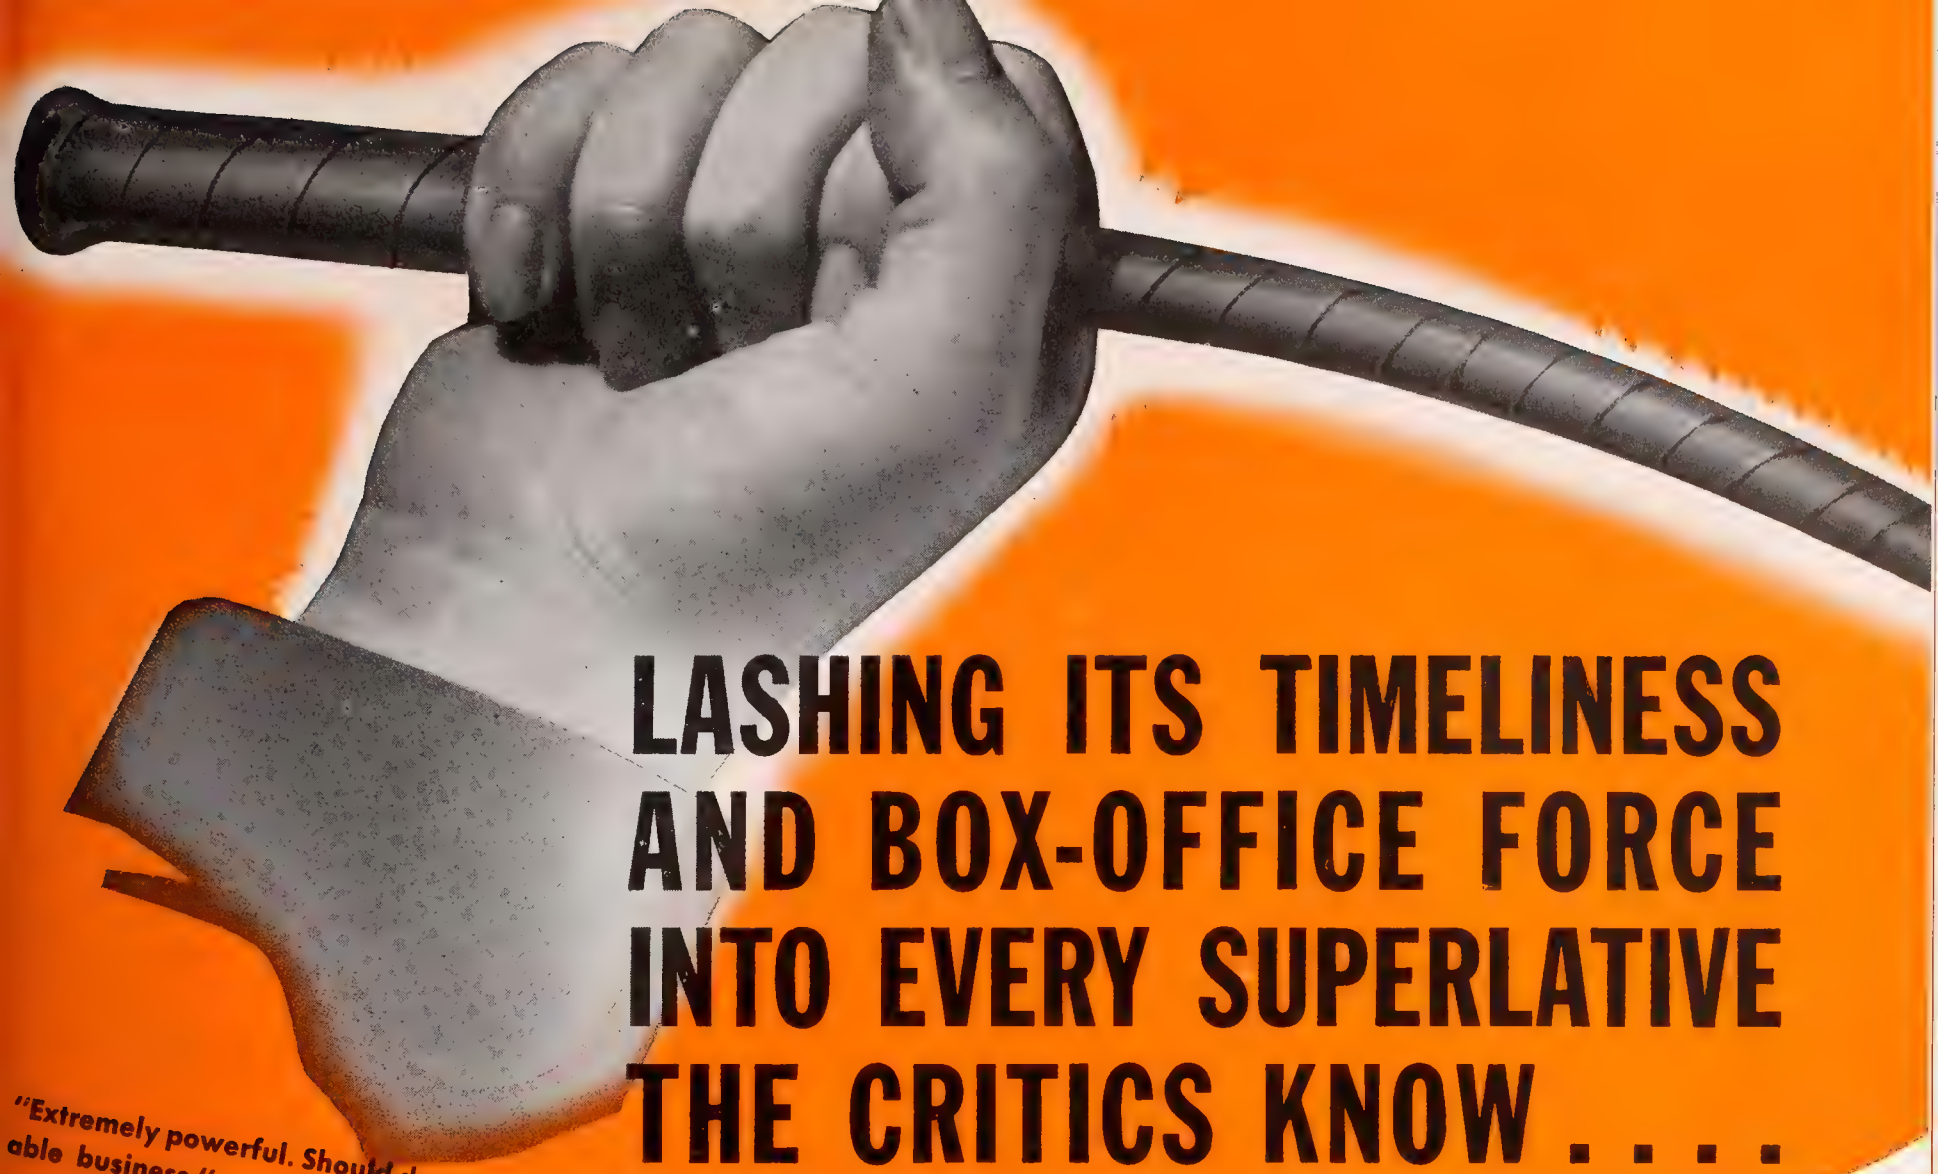
Conceived as "Twirps in Trouble", born as "Balloonatics", christened "Gone with the Wind-Up", the new Crazy Gang film, which has been completed at Shepherds Bush, London, has now been retitled "Gas Bags". There will now be no confusion with Metro's super.

The film will be released by General Film Distributors.

Hugon Completes New Film

Franspan Pictures, New York, has received word from France that Andre Hugon, French producer and director, has completed a Spanish dialogue picture "Crillos en Montmartre," which features South American dances, songs and atmosphere. Made in France, the film also has a French version available. The cast includes Georges Rigaud, Pierre Brasseur, Paloma de Sandoval and Raphael Medina.

Jurgens to Mexico



Victor Jurgens, staff cameraman for the March of Time, who returned to the U. S. recently after two years in the Far East, left New York last Monday to join Jack Glenn, March of Time director, to complete assignments in Mexico and Central America.

Parks on "Hall" Campaign

Jackson Parks, former publicity director for the American Federation of Labor conference of studio unions, has been placed in charge of the publicity campaign on "Pastor Hall," by James Roosevelt.

Yorke Gets Italian Film

Emerson Yorke, producer, has acquired the United States and Latin American distribution rights to an Italian film, "Inside Ethiopia."

LASHING ITS TIMELINESS AND BOX-OFFICE FORCE INTO EVERY SUPERLATIVE THE CRITICS KNOW . . . .

"We believe the greatest thing that could happen to this nation would be the effect accomplished as a result of every man and woman seeing the picture and being forced to digest its message. There is no question about its truth, and the manner in which the story has been told, directed, acted and produced highlights those truths into THE MOST INTENSE DRAMA WE HAVE EVER SEEN ON THE SCREEN. The effort should merit high box-office returns."

Mary Pickford on War Relief Work In Native Canada

Mary Pickford has announced that she has offered her services to the Canadian Government for the duration of the war. One of her plans for raising money for the Canadian Red Cross proposes a series of shows with prominent Hollywood stars in the chief cities of the Dominion. She said that all services would be donated free and all receipts would go to the Red Cross. A representative of Miss Pickford will work out details with Norman Sommerville, head of the Canadian Red Cross.

A cavalcade of Mary Pickford films is being edited for showings for the benefit of the Canadian War Relief Fund. The cavalcade will include scenes from "Coquette," "Daddy Long Legs" and "Tess of the Storm Country."

American Actors Aid Britain

The American Artists Ambulance Association has been formed in London. Members include Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon, Claire Luce, Vic Oliver, Leigh Stafford, Samuel Eckman and David Rose. Mrs. Winston Churchill is honorary president of the association. It was said that the organization was planning to raise funds for large quantities of trailer ambulances from members of the theatrical professions in the United States.

Warner Crew at Fort Knox

The fourth of a series of two-reel motion pictures "glamorizing" Army life will be made at Fort Knox in the next two or three weeks. W. L. Guthrie, national location manager for Warner Bros., announced Thursday in Louisville.

Mr. Guthrie, accompanied by Maj. William M. Wright, Jr., of the War Department, and Owen Crump, Warner Brothers writer, arrived in Louisville Tuesday night and visited Fort Knox Wednesday to get an idea of what life is like inside a tank. The picture will follow shorts already made of life among youths who take air training courses offered by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, life in the infantry and in the Marine Corps. The shorts are being produced by Gordon Hollingshead.

Warner Brothers announced Wednesday that the Army planned to send two bombers to transport the production unit to film "The Tanks Are Coming" at Fort Knox. The company also has announced a feature, "You're in the Army Now," described as a comedy dealing with civilian Army training camps.

Grainger at Republic Southern Meeting

Republic held a southern regional sales meeting on Thursday, at the Peabody Hotel, Memphis, with president James R. Grainger presiding.

Attending were William G. Underwood and Claude C. Ezell, Dallas franchise holders; Lloyd Rust, manager of the Dallas office; Arthur C. Bromberg, Southeastern franchise holder; Henry Glover, Atlanta branch manager; Harold Laird, Tampa manager; J. H. Dillon, Charlotte, manager; L. V. Seicshnaydre, New Orleans branch manager; William M. Snelson, Memphis branch manager; and Sol Davis, and Morris Loewenstein, Oklahoma City franchise holders.

Four A's Committee To Control Benefits

A special committee of executives from the unions comprising the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent actors' union last week took control of theatrical benefits from the Theatre Authority, in New York, of which Alan Corelli is the head.

The action was allowed by resolution of the boards of the Authority and the Four A's; and it means that Mr. Corelli must now merely police the benefits under the committee's instructions; that he cannot approve, or sponsor, any benefit; that he must not obtain talent for them; and that he may not act as manager for any group participating in a benefit.

On the special committee, first meeting of which was to be held in New York this week, are Mrs. Florence Marston, eastern representative of the Screen Actors' Guild; Paul Dullzell, Actors Equity; Joseph Tonge, American Federation of Radio Artists; Blanche Witherspoon, American Guild of Variety Artists: and Hoyt S. Haddock, American Guild of Variety Artists.

Republic Sets Deal With Butterfield

Republic has closed a deal with the Butterfield Circuit for the company's 1940-41 program. The deal for the Michigan circuit of 110 houses was set by James R. Grainger, president of Republic, Sam Seplowin, Republic, and E. C. Beatty and J. Ollie Brooks for Butterfield.

PCC Heads Attend Meeting in Seattle

The quarterly meeting of the trustees of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners was held at the Washington Hotel in Seattle last week.

In attendance were Robert Poole, Los Angeles, executive secretary of the California board; Robert Miller, Porland, executive secretary of the Oregon board; Ben Levin, San Francisco; Robert White, Portland; Wesley Johnson, Eugene; Rotus Harvey, San Francisco; Hugh Bruen, Whittier, Cal., and Jack Berman, Los Angeles. James M. Hone, executive secretary of the Washington state group, was in charge of arrangements.

Connecticut Exhibitor Meetings

The Connecticut Motion Picture Theatre Owners will meet August 26th at Ceriani's in New Haven with Irving C. Jacocks, presiding in place of Arthur H. Lockwood, who is recuperating from a recent operation. The reports on the golf tournament and a survey of exhibitor opinion on lowering admission basis for tax will be heard.

The Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut will meet on August 27th at the Hofbrau Haus in New Haven.

Not Renewing Lease

RKO will relinquish title to the 1,500-seat suburban Orpheum theatre in Cincinnati August 31st, upon expiration of the present lease, negotiated five years ago. It is understood that the owners, Jack and Chester M. Martin, will improve the house and reopen it as a subsequent run.

Detroit's Times Square Answers On "Multiples"

The policy of the Times Square Theatre in downtown Detroit, selling multiple bills of six features for fifteen cents, and with giveaways and cut rate tickets, was the subject of a letter from Alex Schreiber, competitor, operating Associated Theatres, Inc., addressed to David Selznick, because "Rebecca" was included—and reproduced in Motion Picture Herald of July 27.

Now Jack Broder of the Times Square Amusement Company, operating the Times Square concerned, has addressed The Herald with a letter of response, being a discussion of Mr. Schreiber, and his applications of policy, but not discussing the merits of the multiple bill policy save as an expedient of a theatre in difficulties. In the course of his letter, Mr. Broder says:

"In your article Mr. Schreiber is given quite a build-up as being a crusader against bad practices in motion picture exhibition. For your information the first giveaway that ever saw the light of day in a motion picture theatre in Detroit was a 'country store' night which this same Mr. Schreiber put on at his Frontenac Theatre quite a few years ago. In this early effort he gave away baskets of groceries, poultry, etc., from the stage of the theatre.

"His letter specifically complains about the Times Square Theatre which is in direct competition to Mr. Schreiber's Loop Theatre. The Times Square Theatre was built by local capital at a cost of about $300,000.00. The operation of this theatre was not successful and bankruptcy proceedings resulted with the people who invested in the bricks and mortar left holding the bag. Since that time the Times Square has been closed more than it has been open and the receivers of the property most naturally try to get all they can out of it rather than to keep it closed.

"The Loop Theatre although it has less than one-half the seats the Times Square has is in control of the major product first run in the situation. This is accomplished through the superior buying power of Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, Inc., which organization Mr. Schreiber mentions in his letter. I hasten to assure you that I will be glad to adhere to a straight double bill policy if I am given any kind of equitable split of the product. Furthermore the Loop Theatre has always run four features for one admission on the change-over night whether the Times Square was open or closed.

"There is no doubt that numerous reforms are needed and the writer will be very glad to join hands with Mr. Schreiber in eliminating these many evils that he complains of."

Warner Circuit Meets

Zone managers of the Warner Theatres circuit met at the New York home office on Tuesday, with general manager Joseph Bernhard presiding. Attending, were James Coston, Chicago; Nat Wolf, Cleveland; I. J. Hoffman, New Haven; Don Jacocks, Newark; Moe Silver, Albany; Ted Schlanger, Philadelphia; Harry Kalmine, Pittsburgh; John J. Payette, Washington, and Herb Copelan, Atlantic City. Also Clayton Bond, Ed Hinchy, Leonard Schlesinger, Harry Goldberg, Frank Phelps, Nat Fellman, Abel Vigard, W. S. McDonald, Harry Rosenquest, Louis Kaufman, Herman Maier and Frank Cahill.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

SOMETHING—maybe it was a little birdie—told the Newark, N. J., police that Circuit Court Judge Joseph L. Smith is going to be mighty peeved when he gets back from Detroit.

The judge and his family, it seems, went to Detroit several days ago to attend a wedding. At 10:30 a. m. the next day Patrolman Edward Nowak walked past the Smith house, 655 Lake St., Newark, and saw a suitcase on the front porch. He lifted it up, hefted it. It seemed very mysterious. He rushed it down to the Second Precinct, where his superiors applauded his judgment and decided it probably was a bomb. They put the bag under a fluoroscope, saw lots of wires and gears and cogs inside. They felt their worst suspicions had been confirmed.

They put the suitcase in a barrel of oil and left it on the bank of the Passaic River, near Orange St., to soak. At four p. m., Sergt. Frank Shannon, the department's ballistics expert, showed up with a sub-machine gun and fired 30 rounds of bullets into the suitcase. The bullets tore the bag to pieces but nothing else happened.

Reassured, the experts approached the wreckage to examine it. They found—and this is what they fear will peeve Judge Smith—what was left of a moving picture projector and several rolls of film. The detectives deduced that the judge is—or was—an ardent amateur movie fan.

So the ending was switched to France. You know what happened to France. Meanwhile a long time has elapsed. Now the new ending is laid in South America.

He turned to film exhibition some 30 years ago, later also incorporating a fair and amusement park and baseball in his native Columbus in Mississippi.

Now it's the marriage brokers who are picking "best stars."

Assembled in annual convention in New York, this week, 'Marriage Bureau' directors, chose the first five romantic male film stars in the following order: Errol Flynn, Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, Tyrone Power, Laurence Olivier.

The committee couldn't agree upon the first five female stars, so didn't pick any.

The 'brokers,' who make 'matches' for a price (they won't tell how much), adopted as the theme of their convention: "Can Love Save the World from War and Destruction?" Their "positively unbiased" answer was 100 per cent "yes."

Without approving or denouncing the nomination, and stressing the absence of any political affiliation or preference, a theatre advertising man, in Columbus, Ohio, has suggested "WLW, the Nation's Statesman," as a slogan for Wendell L. Ed Fitzgerald, commentator on Station WOR, boasts loudly of his culinary proclivities. Believe it or not he boasts loudest of his "special" recipe for chicken, which requires that a whole chicken, feathers and all, be coated with clay, baked over a slow fire for 20 hours, broken open, through the now-hard clay covering, and stuffed with oysters. Ouch.

COAST-TO-COAST airplane passenger schedules, extremely important as a defense measure, depend on the motion picture industry for more than a third of their passengers, according to an air survey by Art Stewart, Western Traffic Manager of T.W.A.

Stars, producers, writers, executives and technical workers bought nearly $1,500,000 worth of transportation on T.W.A. transcontinental liners during the last 12 months, more than any other group of travelers.

"Without this support from the motion picture industry our airline could not operate economically west of Kansas City," Mr. Stewart declared. "The importance of this travel to national defense is tremendous."

The movie industry has accounted for 34 per cent of the air business over the eight T.W.A. coast-to-coast schedules flying in and out of Los Angeles. Men and women in general business and professional life are second, using 31 per cent of the skyliner space.

It is not unusual for a movie actor or actress to board a plane in Los Angeles Friday at five p. m., arrive in New York the next morning for a weekend of shopping and play-going, board a plane in New York Sunday evening and arrive in Los Angeles in time to report to the studio at nine a. m. Monday.

Orson Welles holds the Hollywood record for round trips to New York via T.W.A., having made more than 50 flights in the last ten months, to get "organized" on his new contract with RKO. Don Ameche and Edward Arnold recently completed 50,000 miles of flying in two months.

Group percentages in the T.W.A. tabulation show the following:

Movie Industry	34%
Business and Professional Group	31
Vacation Travelers	15
Government Employees	9
Army and Navy Personnel	8
Students	3

The film industry's recent policy of holding premieres the same week in various parts of the country has been the source of much new business for the airlines, which make it possible for stars to attend almost simultaneous showings of their films.

The National Association of Broadcasters spent last week in San Francisco, in annual convention, making itself believe that its new Broadcast Music, Inc., music library will surely supplant ASCAP as the source of music for the air on January 1st. In the midst of the convention, the NAB had John Latouche, lyricist of "Ballad for Americans," present his "Ode to Radio," specially written for the meeting, on the NAB's invitation. Evidently they failed to foresee how this special distinction might serve to somewhat contradict the NAB's contention that radio did not need ASCAP material—for Mr. Latouche is a full-fledged member of ASCAP.

PETRILLO MOVING INTO ACTORS' JURISDICTION

Four A's Leaders See Threat of Invasion in Federation Claim to Musical Artists

James C. Petrillo's American Federation of Musicians this week charted a course of conquest under its new leader as it moved to absorb the instrumentalists of the American Guild of Musical Artists. However, it also precipitated what may become a wildcat tangle among the American Federation of Labor's entertainment industry unions; similar to last summer's, when the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees battled, expensively, with the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent actors' union.

Invasion Threat Seen

The Musical Artists' Guild belongs to the Four A's and that body views the AFM action this week as a threat comparable to that from the IATSE last summer. Its component unions were meeting hurriedly this week to devise ways of staving off the latest infringement of actors' jurisdiction.

Mr. Petrillo has notified the guild that its instrumentalists must join the AFM by September 2nd. His move is a change from the policy of his predecessor, Joseph M. Weber, whom he succeeded at the Indianapolis convention, in June. Mr. Weber never intimated that the instrumentalists of the musicians' guild, which comprises singers, accompanists, and others as well, were claimed by the Federation. Mr. Petrillo on Wednesday was reported to be on the verge of an agreement with the Guild.

However, a Petrillo spokesman at the New York AFM headquarters this week said the organization never had attempted to claim the instrumentalists because, heretofore, it could not help them. He cited their generally higher salary levels. However, he added, Mr. Petrillo felt that the AFM charter covers all who play musical instruments, and that therefore the instrumentalists belong in the Federation.

Henry Jaffe, attorney for the Guild, of which Lawrence Tibbett is president, denied Monday that the instrumentalists wanted to join the musicians' federation.

Mr. Jaffe's optimism was not fully shared by other Four A's union officials. An Actors Equity official saw possible collusion between Mr. Petrillo and George Browne, head of the IATSE, noting that both men made their headquarters in Chicago, both had worked closely, and that their unions had a working agreement.

Battle against the Federation, should it come over the comparatively small number of instrumentalists, is not sought eagerly by the Four A's unions. They spent much battling the IATSE last summer, and several weeks ago the Four A's was forced to effect sharp economies.

In Elkhart, Indiana, this week, Mr. Petrillo was a figure in a local theatre dispute. He indicated he would investigate a dispute between the local musicians' local 192 and Nat Bernstein, owner of the State, in that city. The controversy is over use of a music machine. Mr. Petrillo's investigation will also determine what the AFM can do to prevent the use of such machines in other theatres. In the meanwhile,. Mr. Bernstein has asked the Chicago IATSE representative to have the International arbitrate the dispute.

The Republic Studio last week signed a basic agreement with the Screen Publicists' Guild for five members of its publicity department, thus ending possibility of a strike for which the SPG had already secured the support of other studio guilds and some unions.

In New York, that city's branch of the SPG held its first annual dance Friday night, August 9th, at the Hotel Pierre, with about 400 attending. Also last week the Guild notified the home offices of the majors that it claims a majority of their publicity staff employees, and it asked, through attorneys Boudin, Cohn, and Glickstein, that conferences be set for negotiation of union contracts.

Chicago Negotiations Soon

Negotiations, in Chicago, between theatre owners and the projectionists' union, will begin on August 14th, John Smith, president of the union, announced last week. The negotiations will be for new contracts, and no requests for reductions will be considered, he said.

Leaders of the CIO in the Scranton area this week announced they would withdraw from the motion picture projectionists' field. This presumably eliminates the United Theatrical Workers Local 997, a CIO affiliate in that region.

Dewey Barto, acting president of the American Guild of Variety Artists, this week was made permanent president. He succeeds Jay C. Flippen, resigned.

Charles P. Carroll has resigned as national chairman of the motion picture division of the Theatrical Managers and Agents Unions, and has become director of advertising and publicity for Philadelphia Gardens, a sport amphitheatre, in Philadelphia.

In St. Louis, 22 members of the Local B-2, of the IATSE, a theatre employees' union, have asked the Central Trades and Labor Council of that city to have control of the union given to members. They charge no accounting has been made by the union executive board, of $23,000 paid by them to the local's treasury; that they cannot elect their own officials; and that they do not even know the full membership of their executive board.

DE MILLE DRAWS 'EM IN

Cecil B. DeMille, not confining his showmanship to Hollywood, has been proving a box-office attraction at the San Francisco Fair, known officially as the Golden Gate International Exposition.

Between May 25th and July 30th, approximately 500,000 people viewed Mr. DeMille's free one-man exhibit, according to word received from W. H. Fowler, director of the Los Angeles County Building, where the DeMille display is housed at the Exposition.

Mr. Fowler said that a top attendance of 30,000 was recorded on two successive days, while the average has jumped from the first week's 4,000 to 6,000.

Included in the exhibit are souvenirs from the producer's 67 films, from "The Squaw Man" of 1913 to "Northwest Mounted Police". Also exhibited are the cameras used on those two pictures.

Still Too Many Extras, Guild Head Declares

Reduced in number by severe parings of the last several weeks, and fearing further slashes, the Class B (extra) players of the Screen Actors Guild were told, by executive secretary Kenneth Thomson, at their annual meeting Sunday night, in the Los Angeles American Legion Stadium, that their number was still too large, and that, even with the reduction to date, "the average earnings of an extra still are ridiculously low."

Mr. Thomson tempered his long talk with a financial recapitulation, in which he pointed out that the Guild had accumulated a surplus of $162,613, as of this June 30th.

Accomplishments Listed

He sketched the practical work of the Guild in putting the organization on a sound financial footing, reducing the number of competing Class B members, raising the average earnings of the members, seeking vocational rehabilitation for those unable to earn a living in the industry, and cooperating with the producers in establishing a new deal at Central Casting.

More than 75 per cent of the time of the Guild staff is devoted to work in behalf of the extra players. Dues of extras are about five cents a day per member.

"There is not now, there never has been, and there never will be in the motion picture industry enough extra work to provide an annual living wage for all of those who would like to earn their living in this way," warned Mr. Thomson.

Mr. Thomson reviewed the extra problems thus:

"Just as the Central Casting situation was of importance to the extras, so the question of classification of extra work and the rates of compensation for the many categories has been of pressing importance. The Screen Actors Guild staff completed late last year a proposed new extra code which asked for major readjustments in the classifications of work, which would have had the result of increasing the earnings of the extra players. To this was added a request for a blanket 15 per cent increase. This extra code was presented to the Association of Motion Picture Producers and negotiations begun.

"Shortly thereafter, on November 8, 1939, a suit was filed against the Guild by a member, who in the name of the Guild extra players, asked the courts to turn over operation of the Guild to the extras. While this suit was pending, negotiations in behalf of the extras could not be carried on with the producers because of the question of whom the producers were dealing with. If the member had won his suit, no agreement negotiated by the management of the Screen Actors Guild would have been of any value. The Guild was forced to abandon for the time being this question of reclassification, and defend itself in this suit. The Guild did defend itself, at a cost of $2,500 in actual attorney's fees.

"During the period of the suit new economic conditions created by the war abroad and the loss of foreign markets had impressed themselves upon the industry. At the same time, the Standing Committee had approached the completion of its work on a plan for increasing yearly earnings of extras. Accordingly the negotiations on the extra code have been held in abeyance, although as soon as it is possible there are certain particularly pressing classifications which must have immediate adjustment. These include singers, 'standins,' etc., where the present wages of compensation are obviously inadequate," concluded Mr. Thomson.

School Survey Shows Many Pupils Pick Film Fare Without Parents' Help

An indication that many parents do not know the names or types of films which their children attend was given in a survey conducted by the Motion Picture Survey Council of the Parent-Teachers' Association in Norwood, Ohio, a 35,000 population suburb of Cincinnati.

Over three-quarters of the 1,485 public grade school pupils and 1,347 high school students who answered the questions reported that neither their mother nor father checked on pictures before allowing them to attend the theatre. Grade school answers indicated similar relatively few parents told the children what picture to see.

A total of 17 questions relating to pictures was asked all the students in the public grade and high schools in Norwood. Findings included: an average of 98 per cent of the boys and 85 per cent of the girls attend a motion picture theatre at least twice a week; 15 per cent of the boys and 18 per cent of the girls attend theatres from Monday to Friday. High school attendance, the report said, is limited almost entirely to weekends. About 25 per cent of the children said they stay to see a program twice.

Eight per cent of the boys and four per cent of the girls answered "No" to the question, "Do you conduct yourself right in the theatre?" Mrs. Donald S. Evans, chairman, said the committee was surprised to find that some pupils admitted they did not behave properly in theatres. She said, "We merely included the question to see the reaction on pupils." Favorite pictures with the students included "The Wizard of Oz", "The Man in the Iron Mask", "Andy Hardy" series, "Alexander Graham Bell" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington". Over 90 per cent of the grade school pupils attended the theatre in the neighborhood, with the percentage decreasing as the age increased.

Appeal New York Ban on "Fools"

An appeal from the refusal of the New York State Motion Picture Division to issue a license for general exhibition in the state of "Fools of Desire," has been filed with both Irwin Esmond, director of the division, and Charles A. Brind, Jr., director of the Education Department's Law Division.

The appeal was made by the Syndicate Exchange, Inc., New York City, through Lawrence Kulick, secretary. Syndicate, which holds distribution rights to the film, contends the picture makes no attempt to portray lewdness and merely points out a moral.

The picture, after review, was rejected by the Motion Picture Division last month on the grounds that it was "indecent, immoral and would tend to corrupt morals." The film was originally submitted in 1938 under the title, "It's All in Your Mind" and was rejected at that time. Since the original rejection, the picture was revised before resubmission.

Gov't Reports on Educational Film

Educational film developments in Canada, Burma, Colombia, Cuba and Brazil and current releases of non-theatrical films are listed in a bulletin issued by the Motion Picture Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C.

American Equipment Used

Practically all of the visual educational equipment installed in Canadian schools and offered for sale is of American origin, according to the bulletin. Two-thirds of the projectors are 16mm. silent, and the majority of the remainder are 35mm. silent projectors.

While over 1,000 reels of film are owned by the various schools and teachers, including departments of education, the majority of films used are obtained in Canada from industrial concerns, including the transcontinental railways, rather than from commercial distributors, and some also come from the Dominion and provincial governments. Films are used chiefly in the teaching of geography, science and history, and school officials say they would prefer to have historical films.

At the present time in Burma educational films are displayed only at Rangoon University in connection with certain courses of study. The Government of Burma, however, is reported to be considering a plan for the establishment of a state cinema service involving the display of educational films in districts in the interior. There are twelve 16mm. silent projectors in the hands of dealers in Burma.

The probable number of 16mm. projectors available in Colombia would appear to be not over 150, according to the bulletin. An organization in Bogota, the Compania de Peliculas Colombianas "Codepeco" makes 16mm. silent films of news events and on educational subjects. The company made 39 films totaling 8,790 feet in the past year.

It is reported that there have been no developments of importance in connection with the showing of educational films in the schools of Cuba, although such institutions may be said to be thinking along these lines in the sense that from time to time efforts are made to sell them on the idea of using such a teaching auxiliary. At the present time only three or four schools are known to possess projection equipment, none of which is for sound.

The showing of educational films in schools in Brazil is increasing slowly. It is estimated that about 1,500 projectors of all sizes for silent film are in use in schools there. Approximately 90 per cent are 16mm. and the trend is toward standardization to that size. Not many of the films used have been purchased abroad.

Stuart Leaves Midwest

Frank E. Stuart, head booker of the Midwest circuit and manager of the Majestic theatre, has resigned. He is succeeded by Larry Nyberg, who was manager of the Garden theatre. George Mitchell, lately replaced by "Buddy" Graham as manager of the Forest, becomes manager of the Garden.

Brooks Named Salesman

James Brooks, head booker at the Seattle Twentieth Century-Fox exchange, has been appointed salesman for the company in the eastern Washington territory, succeeding Hap Frederick, resigned. He is succeeded in the booking department by Robert Osborne, former assistant booker.

Republic Name Change

Change of name has been filed by Republic Film Exchange, Inc., at Albany, N. Y., to H. R. G. Corporation.

Ban Sought on Highway Signs

Proposals being pressed by civic organizations before Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania governing bodies may force exhibitors to abandon marquee, street display and billboard advertising. Poster panels are already outlawed on the new Pittsburgh-to-Harrisburg super-highway, to be opened in September, by edict of the State turnpike commissioner. The billboards ordinarily are used in the city and in selected suburban and rural locations, by most of the downtown theatres.

Women's clubs and some of the state's newspapers have long been fostering a movement to have the legislature rule billboards off the highways.

Would Ban Marquees

Another proposal that would materially alter theatrical promotion methods, if passed, is the request of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce that the city council ban overhanging signs and other display equipment extending into or over the streets in the "Golden Triangle," downtown business section.

If passed, the ruling would force theatres to remove their marquees and displays by 1943, and would forbid the installation of any such equipment after next year.

Anticipating a storm of protests, the council tabled the proposal with the comment that "signs bring $30,000 per year into the city treasury," and that their removal would meet opposition from merchants.

Newspaper advertising by downtown theatres has been increased over last year in the three dailies, and neighborhood houses have also been using the papers' directories since slightly more than a year ago, with a few of them occasionally adding display space to their directory lineage.

Exemption of theatre marquees from the scope of the new Chicago ordinance prohibiting canopy advertising was indicated this week following a meeting of circuit representatives and indpeendent exhibitors with city officials.

Theatre Title Transferred

The Astor theatre, recently rebuilt neighborhood house in Philadelphia, operated by the Warner theatre circuit management, has been acquired by the circuit's Stanley Company of America for $243,650. The title was transferred by Northeastern Theatres, Inc., to the Stanley company. A mortgage of $150,000, secured on the premises, has been given by the circuit to Pennsylvania Company, banking house.

Acquire "Emperor Jones"

"Emperor Jones," featuring Paul Robeson, has been secured by Screencraft Pictures, Inc., for national distribution. The film was produced by John Krimsky and Gifford Cochran in 1933 and originally distributed by United Artists.

"Polio" Hits 11 Houses

Authorities of Huntington, West Virginia, have barred from the city's 11 theatres all children under 16 years of age. An infantile paralysis epidemic is the cause.

Peckham in Detroit

Ralph Peckham, formerly of Grand National Pictures, is taking over the Detroit territory for Select Pictures.

BEST SEASON IN YEARS FOR ARGENTINE HOUSES

Capital Film Circles, However, Are Alarmed at Prospect of a New Ticket Tax

by N. BRUSKI
in Buenos Aires

The current season bids fair to finish as one of the most successful in recent years for motion picture theatres. The houses in the Buenos Aires' cinema district in the center of the city generally play to capacity business on Saturdays and Sundays and late arrivals have small chance of obtaining seats unless they have booked their tickets in advance.

In recent months a number of new theatres have been opened in Buenos Aires to good business. The newest are the Mundial, Trocadero and Sarmiento.

Alarmed at Proposed Tax

Film circles here are alarmed at the prospect of a new tax, presently being studied by the city council. The plan proposes the placing of a tax, the maximum of which would be 10 Argentina cents, on all tickets sold for film shows within the city's limits.

The sums derived from this levy would be devoted to the improvement and extension of the municipal hospitals. Exhibitors point out that there are at least 30 different classes of taxes which affect the showing of pictures in Buenos Aires.

New Regulations Advocated

The Commission of Popular Culture, Previsions and Social Assistance of the city council recently held a meeting with the head of the Inspection of Performances present. At the meeting it was recommended to reduce the number of members of the commission and also that pictures be classified in nine categories, these including those "not fit for children" and others deemed "inconvenient."

"Rebecca" Scores Hit

"Rebecca" is probably the outstanding commercial success of the season. It was entering its sixth week at the Suipachi theatre at the time of writing and playing to full houses.

The French production, "La Femme du Boulanger," released by Leo Film at the Broadway is a runner-up to "Rebecca" among the best of the season. It had completed its fourth week at the time of writing.

Messrs. Cordero, Cavallo and Lautaret, prominent Buenos Aires exhibitors, are getting ready for the showing of "Gone With the Wind." They have requested the firm of Max Glucksman, local representative for Walker super-luminous screens and Bausch and Lomb anastigmatic lenses to import them for their theatres.

Criticize Historical Film

The latest film with a historical motif to be released in Argentine theatres is "La Carga de los Valientes" (The Charge of the Valiant), a production directed by Adelqui Millar. Mr. Millar has directed at the Joinville Studio in Paris and at Elstree in England but his two Argentine efforts have not been free of criticism.

"La Carga de los Valientes" concerns an episode of the Brazilian invasion of March, 1827, when a landing at Carmen de Patagones was repulsed after a naval and land battle. The highlight of the film is a cavalry charge by the local "gauchos" ending with the relief of a fort defended by a handful of men after the enemy had been defeated. Local residents, proud of their part in the making of Argentine history, claimed that the charge was carried out by proper detachments of soldiers and local volunteers and was an important battle, not merely a haphazard charge by a mob of local "gauchos."

Advertising in Newsreels

Proprietors of newsreels in Argentina have not been long to take advantage of the possibilities of increasing their earnings by including advertising matter in their issues but the public is gradually finding out that this advertising business is being overdone. At the present time there are two newsreels which are made in this country. One is "Sucesos Argentinos" and the other is "Noticiario Panamericano." The first entered the field about two years ago.

$650,000 for 13 Pictures

Manuel Romero, former stage producer and now one of the foremost local film directors, has signed a long term contract with Lumiton Films. They will pay him $650,000 for producing 13 films.

Flynn's Visit to Argentina

Errol Flynn paid a 10-day visit to Buenos Aires and then returned to Hollywood by air.

Hollywood apparently knows how to choose its good-will ambassadors and all those who have visited the Argentine in the last few years have done much to secure the favor of local fans towards North American pictures. The trek south was started a long while back by the late Will Rogers, and in his steps there has followed Clark Gable, Henry Fonda, Ramon Novarro, Annabelle and Tyrone Power. Flynn is one of the main box office attractions in Argentina.

Municipal Census Report

The Municipal census shows that in March there were 168 film theatres functioning within the city limits.

There were 2,376,209 admissions in March, compared to 1,446,125 in February. Total receipts were $1,949,244 in March compared to $1,041,900 in February. The average admission price in March was 82 cents compared to February's 72 cents.

Starting July 1st all clocks were put forward one hour. No effect has been noticed on theatre business by the new measure which was made for economy sake because of fuel shortage due to the war.

EXPERIMENT WITH ROACH TRAILER

Hal Roach is experimenting with a trailer on "Turnabout" for the South American market. At certain intervals in the trailer a commentator, speaking in Spanish, describes what the action is about. The experiment is directed at audiences in the interior who are unable to read the Spanish superimposed titles. The idea was suggested by Frank Seltzer, press representative for Mr. Roach.

Improved Business Conditions

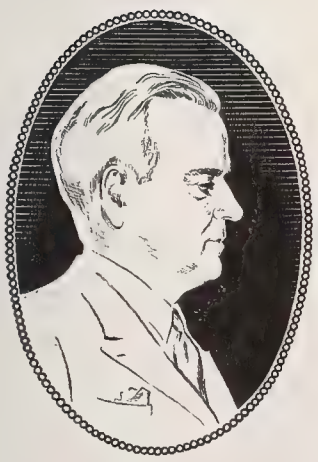
Figures released by Rodney P. Lien, superintendent of banking in Ohio, on operation of Ohio's 455 state banks for the fiscal year ended June 29th, indicate a substantial improvement in general business conditions. Bank resources increased $113,944,000 in the period; deposits rose $112,721,000; loans $59,930,000, and surplus and undivided profits were up $4,370,400 over the previous fiscal year.

Impose Mexican Tax

San Luis Potosi, wealthy central gold and silver mining region in Mexico, has added an eight per cent tax on gross payments exhibitors make to distributors.

Acquire Canadian Rights

E. R. Conne, producer of "Family of Nations," filmed in England, has sold the Canadian distributing rights to United Artists.



25th Anniversary

Martin Quigley and the Motion Picture

Martin Quigley's twenty-five years in the service of the motion picture industry, contributing to its world estate of financial, commercial and artistic leadership will be signalized in a special edition of Motion Picture Herald ▪ ▪ ▪ ▪

A quarter of a century of the rise and growth of the screen to its present stature as the world's greatest entertainment will find recognition in the Martin Quigley 25th anniversary edition. It will be the chronicle of the most remarkable period in the history of the motion picture and it will salute the work of one who, under an unvarying commitment of service, has devoted himself and his enterprises to the advancement of the motion picture and the industry.

The Martin Quigley twenty-fifth anniversary edition of Motion Picture Herald will not only be the meeting place of the vital personalities and institutions of the motion picture business—but, more important, it will be the show-window of the industry for the world to read and see.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

Columbia

BLONDIE BRINGS UP BABY: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms—Very good business in spite of heat wave. Play it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

OUT WEST WITH THE PEPPERS: Edith Fellows, Tommy Bond—The poorest of this series. Just another picture that was very disappointing in its draw. Not nearly so good as its predecessors. Running time, 59 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TRAPPED IN THE SKY: Jack Holt, Katherine DeMille—Too hot for normal business. Believe it would be OK for action lovers.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

First National

FIGHTING 69TH: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Jeffrey Lynn, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale—Good picture. A little reminder of what is going on across the pond. Running time, 90 minutes. Played July27-28.—E. C. Bohlig, Opheim Theatre, Opheim, Mont. Small town patronage.

FLIGHT ANGELS: Virginia Bruce, Dennis Morgan, Wayne Morris, Ralph Bellamy, Jane Wyman—A nice aviation picture that pleased the general patronage. Good business. Running time, 71 minutes. Played July 21-22.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE: Roger Pryor, Lucille Fairbanks—A swell picture with lots of action and good plot but too short for small towns that single feature. We played two shorts and serial with it and still only had an hour and a half show. Running time, 53 minutes. Played July 30-31.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

TORRID ZONE: James Cagney, Ann Sheridan, Pat O'Brien, Andy Devine, Helen Vinson—O'Brien would spoil any picture in our situation. Plenty of action with Cagney carrying the entire load. Not worth the allocation given it. Better play it on a night that your fans crave action. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE: Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford—One of the very best of the Andy Hardy pictures and excellently played by each and all of the participants, and imagine Andy as the Beau Brummel of Broadway. But as to Judy Garland, has any other reviewer or picture fan ever noticed her wonderful mystic eyes that look through you and beyond and, like a skilled physician, diagnoses any situation without an examination and gives the answer perfectly. We both believe and predict that Miss Garland will become a star of the first magnitude, which belief is shared by many others and that the summit will be reached 'ere long. Running time, 89 minutes. Played August 1-7.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. Small town patronage.

CAPTAIN IS A LADY: Charles Coburn, Billie Burke, Beulah Bondi—Amusing little comedy which pleased on family night. Running time, 65 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HENRY GOES ARIZONA: Frank Morgan, Virginia Weidler—Won't stand up alone but it is a honey of comedy. Well, you just can't go wrong with a combination like Weidler-Morgan. Plus fair story. Running time, 67 minutes. Played July 28-30.—Ross J. Baldwin, Tosa Theatre, Wauwatosa, Wis. Suburban patronage.

LAMBETH WALK: Lupino Lane, Sally Gray, Seymour Hicks—This is an English story and dialogue and they up and walk out on it. Had I known what it was, I would have eliminated it. It is very bad. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 31-August 3.—Ross J. Baldwin, Tosa Theatre, Wauwatosa, Wis. Suburban patronage.

MORTAL STORM, THE: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan, Robert Young, Frank Morgan, Irene Rich—Good picture which pleased average business. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 24-25.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

NEW MOON: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Mary Boland—Very good musical show which failed to draw in this small town. Running time, 105 minutes. Played July 31-August 1.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PHANTOM RAIDERS: Walter Pidgeon, Florence Rice—Another Nick Carter adventure. These seem to go over OK here, especially with our Bank Night patrons. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 16-18.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

STRANGE CARGO: Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Ian Hunter, Peter Lorre—The producer is just kidding himself when he gives Gable and Crawford this kind of story as the public don't want smut nor too much lovey-dovey. This will finish these stars if they get another like this and why they consider this a big picture I don't know. Running time, 113 minutes. Played July 28-30.—Ross J. Baldwin, Tosa Theatre, Wauwatosa, Wis. Suburban patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Rita Quigley, Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey, Bruce Cabot, John Carroll, Rose Robert—Not so well liked. Drew very well but patrons seemed to think Joan Crawford out of place in such a story. They just do not go to see Joan Crawford. "Strange Cargo" with Crawford and Gable did no business. One of our lowest Sunday grosses. Running time, 117 minutes. Played June 25-26.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatre, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

YOUNG TOM EDISON: Mickey Rooney, Virginia Weidler, Fay Bainter, George Bancroft—We agree that this is an excellent production and a natural for a small town. Patrons liked Mickey Rooney because he's very good. He's been our top box office for a long time. Don't worry about business. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 18-20.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

Monogram

EAST SIDE KIDS: Dennis Moore, Vince Barnett—Not heavy but well worth the money and when used creates a demand for more pictures of same type. Play it. Running time, 62 minutes. Played July 22-23.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

PALS OF THE SILVER SAGE: Tex Ritter—Although this is better than most of this series, our customers do not like them. Too much trick photography; the cast, outside of Ritter himself, act like amateurs and the light is bad on most of them. Another objection is that they're all very short. Running time, 52 minutes. Played July 26.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

Paramount

CAT AND THE CANARY, THE: Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard—A real mystery-comedy thriller with sliding panels, weird noises, etc. Very enjoyable for those who like this type of picture. Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard are very good. Comedy balances the chills. Business below average. Running time, 74 minutes. Played July 11-12.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

GHOST BREAKERS, THE: Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard, Willie Best—This evidently was just what the Doctor ordered for a sick box office. The best Sunday business we have done for some time. It has laughs and thrills. No costly production, stock sets. Light entertainment and I just wonder if it is not time to give them some laughs instead of so many heavy problem pictures like "Waterloo Bridge" and that type. The response that this picture received would say yes. When you get a colored boy in the cast, he puts up stiff competition to the white stars and that was the case in this one as it is in Benny's picture.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

GULLIVER'S TRAVELS: Color Cartoon Feature—Our theatre staff liked this but we don't count because our steady customers stayed away. They gave our advertising one glance and went on their way. The extra advertising we did helped nothing. If we had followed our hunch, we would not have played this and been dollars ahead. The kids loved it. But try and get them in to see a full-length cartoon; we couldn't. Running time, 77 minutes. Played July 25-27.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

STAGECOACH WAR: William Boyd, Russell Hayden—Good picture; good business. Running time, 63 minutes. Played August 2-3.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Republic

DARK COMMAND: John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon—Just a long, bloody western that flopped at the box office midweek. Only good for Saturdays or weekends. Running time, 94 minutes. Played July 31-August 1.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

GAUCHO SERENADE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Story—The best yet of the Autrys. However, do not do the business they did.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

GRAND OLD OPRY: Weaver Brothers and Elviry—Good picture; good business. Will please the farm boys and hill billies. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 4-5.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GRANDPA GOES TO TOWN: James, Lucile, Russell Gleason—Well made. Has what it takes to please a Friday and Saturday crowd. The natives ask for Higgins Family pictures. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 26-27.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

ROVIN' TUMBLEWEEDS: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Mary Carlisle—This is the second Autry I have played. I think it has something the people like and it can't be Autry's singing or acting because they are not so good. Guess it is the light outdoor musical comedy. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 24-27.—Ross J. Baldwin, Tosa Theatre, Wauwatosa, Wis. Suburban patronage.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Played this for the second time. First time three days to record business. Next time we did normal business in spite of excessive heat wave and that's something.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BULLET CODE: George O'Brien, Virginia Vale—This is one of George O'Brien's best westerns. Lots of action and good story. Running time, 58 minutes. Played July 27.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

IRENE: Anna Neagle, Ray Milland, Roland Young, Billie Burke, May Robson—This feature is a very fine one. Lots of good comedy combined with romance. Business good. Running time, 101 minutes. Played July 4-10.—P. F. Tickell, Capitol Theatre, Calgary, Alberta, Canada. General patronage.

MY FAVORITE WIFE: Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick—A scream from start to finish. For an all laugh program, be sure to book this one. Sure fire at box office. A picture that will build up. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 18-24.—F. Tickell, Capitol Theatre, Calgary, Alberta, Canada. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BARRICADE: Warner Baxter, Alice Faye, Charles Winninger—Fair picture. Nothing big. Gets by with most of the patrons. Running time, 71 minutes. Played July 6-7.—E. C. Bohlig, Opheim Theatre, Opheim, Mont. Small town patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN IN PANAMA: Sidney Toler, Jean Rogers—As good as any in this series and pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

EVERYTHING HAPPENS AT NIGHT: Sonja Henie, Ray Milland, Robert Cummings—Not a big story but good entertainment. Running time, 77 minutes. Played July 20-21.—E. C. Bohlig, Opheim Theatre, Opheim, Mont. Small town patronage.

I WAS AN ADVENTURESS: Zorina, Richard Greene, Peter Lorre, Erich Von Stroheim—Where Fox got the idea this one should come into top allocations is more than we can figure out. Zorina means nothing to small towns and this is nothing more than just a program picture. Played on Bank Night to less than ordinary business. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 30.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—An excellent picture, although a little draggy in spots but very poor business. We cannot understand why, for this type of picture usually draws them in. Guess it's the old fashioned clothes they wear. Running time, 127 minutes. Played July 27-29.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—Business off. Older people like it very much. Younger people stayed away. —C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

STAR DUST: Linda Darnell, John Payne, Roland Young, Charoltte Greenwood.—A very nice picture and pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

United Artists

MY SON, MY SON: Brian Aherne, Madeleine Carroll, Louis Hayward, Laraine Day—A very good picture, well acted and very well appreciated. Running time, 115 minutes. Played July 12-15.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

OF MICE AND MEN: Lon Chaney, Jr., Burgess Meredith, Betty Field, Charles Bickford—Great acting. Well produced. Very sad. No box office. Running time, 101 minutes. Played July 31-August 3.—Ross J. Baldwin, Tosa Theatre, Wauwatosa, Wis. Suburban patronage.

ONE MILLION B. C.: Carole Landis, Lon Chaney, Jr., John Hubbard, Victor Mature—Despite very hot weather, this picture drew very well. The kids went for it in a big way, although there is practically no dialogue. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 27-29.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

ONE MILLION B. C.: Carole Landis, Lon Chaney, Jr., John Hubbard, Victor Mature—Fantastic is a good word for this one. A little too scarey for the kids. Running time, 81 minutes. Played July 23-25.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

REBECCA: Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders, Judith Anderson—Picture is well produced, acting excellent. Draw at box office poor. People don't go for sad pictures with conditions as they are. Played with "Rovin' Tumbleweeds," Gene Autry. Running time, 130 minutes. Played July 24-27.—Ross J. Baldwin, Tosa Theatre, Wauwatosa, Wis. Suburban patronage.

Universal

ALIAS THE DEACON: Bob Burns, Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe—Here is a swell audience picture that should do extra business in a small town. Nothing big but the patrons ate it up. Just a good picture that should do extra business in any situation. Running time, 71 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

I CAN'T GIVE YOU ANYTHING BUT LOVE, BABY: Johnny Downs, Peggy Moran, Broderick Crawford—Sorry but cannot say much good for this one. Not up to the series Universal is making but will not hurt you at least. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 19-20.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

IT'S A DATE: Deanna Durbin, Kay Francis, Walter Pidgeon—A very sweet and pleasing picture.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MA! HE'S MAKING EYES AT ME: Tom Brown, Constance Moore—Just an average picture that was very disappointing in the draw. Skip it if possible as it means nothing at the box office. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YOU'RE NOT SO TOUGH: "Dead End Kids," Nan Grey—My rural and weekend patrons like these action pictures very much and I feel they are well made and please. Running time, 71 minutes. Played August 2-3.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—Played this late. Very good. Pleased 100 per cent. Good print. The big fight scene is worth the admission price. Played June 29-30.—E. C. Bohlig, Opheim Theatre, Opheim, Mont. Small town patronage.

FOUR EXHIBITORS JOIN DEPARTMENT

Four exhibitors this week join the ranks of contributors to the What the Picture Did for Me Department. They are:

Dale H. Danielson, Dream and Mecca, Russell, Kan.

John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb.

F. Tickell, Capitol Theatre, Calgary, Alberta, Can.

Read the reports of these and other exhibitors in the adjoining columns.

Short Features

Columbia

GLOVE SLINGERS: All Star Comedies—Columbia knows the answers when it comes to comedies.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MR. CLYDE GOES TO BROADWAY: All Star Comedies—Mack Sennett might have made this for it is slapstick and then slapstick. Improbable, ridiculous, but the audience loved it.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

ODD VOCATIONS: Cinescopes—A fairly good color short. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 11—A good short with Noah Beery showing some of the screen stars of yesterday. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 8—Do not be afraid of this offering as it is tops. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SPORT OF KINGS: Sport Thrills—Just another horse race.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

STEPHEN FOSTER SONGS: Community Sing, No. 4—A very fine reel and will please all.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TECHNIQUE OF TENNIS: News World of Sports —OK if you have a lot of tennis fans. Running time, nine minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BUBBLING TROUBLES: Our Gang—It is a shame to let these Gang comedies peter out as Metro is doing. They need the Ha! Roach touch and new talent.—C. L.

Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CAT COLLEGE: Pete Smith Specialties—An excellent short showing Clyde Beatty training wild animals. Running time, nine minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

FLAG SPEAKS, THE: Special—The story of Old Glory in magnificent color and it is excellent. Every exhibitor should play this because of its strong appeal for patriotism. It will stir the heart of every conscious American. Running time, 19 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

MODERN NEW ORLEANS: FitzPatrick Traveltalks.—Just as good as any FitzPatrick has made, which is saying a lot. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SWING SOCIAL: MGM Cartoons—The audience thought that this was excellent. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WAY IN THE WILDERNESS, A: Passing Parade, No. 14—This series always pleases and this is no exception.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Paramount

BLUE BARRON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—A good orchestra short that all the young folks enjoyed. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

COPS IS ALWAYS RIGHT: Popeye the Sailor—Very good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GRANITE HOTEL: Stone Age Cartoon—We've never enjoyed these cartoons and this was not better than the rest. They leave the audience cold. Running time, seven minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

KICK IN TIME, A: Color Classics—A swell color cartoon that pleased everyone. Running time, eight minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

MOMENTS OF CHARM OF 1940: Headliners—Very good. Nice work, Paramount.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: English children arriving in America. The Windsors enroute to their new home. Very good and photography excellent.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT PRESENTS HOAGY CARMICHAEL: Headliners—Very good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

POPULAR SCIENCE: No. 5—These science features have always been interesting and this is likewise okay. They always interest the mechanical minded men. Running time, 10 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

WAY BACK WHEN RAZZBERRY WAS A FRUIT: Stone Age Cartoons—Average black and white cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BILLPOSTERS, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—Many people complain they cannot understand Donald Duck. Cartoon OK.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CHICKEN FEED: Radio Flash Comedies—Old fashioned slapstick comedy and house in an uproar.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

INFORMATION PLEASE: No. 7—These shorts are very good but the recording on this one was poor. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

TROUBLE SHOOTERS: RKO Pathe Sportoscope—A golf sports reel showing several trick shots and instructions to duffers. Very good. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

FASHION FORECAST, NO. 8: Fashions—Beautiful color but not entertainment in this small town. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FLYING STEWARDESS: Magic Carpet Series—A very interesting reel.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

WOT'S ALL TH' SHOOTIN' FER: Terry-Toons—Just another cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

United Artists

RUINS OF PALMYRA: World Windows—Just fair.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Universal

HAWAIIAN RHYTHM: Two-Reel Musicals—Hawaiian and South Sea island scenes and singing by natives. Very pleasing and entertaining. Running time, 17 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

Vitaphone

CARL HOFF AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Just another band act. Everyone we play so we say no more.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CAVALCADE OF ACADEMY AWARDS: Special—This is my first report on any picture to your Department but I cannot help but refute the panning given the "Cavalcade of Academy Awards" by A. L. Dove of Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. To me this is one of the most outstanding short subjects I have had the privilege of witnessing. I believe that this short subject should be run by every motion picture theatre in the country if for no other purpose than the favorable light in which it holds our industry.—Dale H. Danielson, Dream and Mecca Theatres, Russell, Kansas. Rural and small town patronage.

CINDERELLA'S FELLER: Juanita Quigley—A two reel color short that was quite dull and not interesting. Running time, 18 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

CIRCUS TODAY: Merrie Melodies—The best color cartoon we've played this year from any company. Many novel and amusing cartoon circus acts that will please any aged audience. Running time, nine minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

CIRCUS TODAY: Merrie Melodies—An excellent cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

LINCOLN IN THE WHITE HOUSE: Frank McGlynn, Sr.—Here was a dandy for July 4th and it should have left a more patriotic feeling and a deeper love in the hearts of our patrons for the good old U. S. and Old Glory. This is the first we have played of this type and we think they are great. Running time, 15 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

LITTLE BLABBERMOUSE: Merrie Melodies—Swell with a takeoff on W. C. Fields. This cartoon is a honey. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MECHANIX ILLUSTRATED, NO. 4: Color Parade—A fair color short. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

PONY EXPRESS DAYS: George Reeves—Good two reeler in colors. Running time, 20 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PORKY'S POOR FISH: Looney Tunes—Fine black and white cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

ROYAL RODEO, THE: John Payne, Cliff Edwards—The second we've run of this type; we like them and so do our patrons. John Payne is a fine singer and Cliff Edwards is always welcome. Beautiful color and a good plot, too. Play it by all means. Running time, 15 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

SPILLS FOR THRILLS: Broadway Brevities—A series of old cut backs put together showing the old stunts pulled by the daredevils in Hollywood make this acceptable fare for the average audience. Do not use this if your trade is extremely sophisticated as it is only for action fans. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TOM THUMB IN TROUBLE: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoon in color.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

BAER-GALENTO FIGHT: A good fight but no extra business. Fights only click occasionally.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

IN COURTS

Action Against Actor Filed in Los Angeles

Unique in a field where 10 per cent talent representation deals are typical, a suit is on file in superior court at Los Angeles in which Francis D. Adams, an attorney, seeks enforcement of a contract claimed entered into by Tyrone Power in February, 1939, whereby the actor would pay him 25 per cent of his income for the next seven years.

The complaint says Power paid $30,000 under the agreement but repudiated it last month, when payments stopped. The suit sets forth that Power's earnings would amount to $1,000,000 at the present rate.

Edward Small Sued

Erika Mann, Frank Davis, Herbert Biberman and Paul Trivers, writers, have filed a breach of contract suit in superior court in Los Angeles for $7,500 against Edward Small. They charge that Mr. Small accepted a script of Erika Mann's book, "School for Barbarians," but did not pay the money due.

Receivership Sought

The Eiffel Realty Company, lessor of the theatre building occupied by the Pantheon theatre in downtown Toledo, Ohio, has filed a petition in Lucas County common pleas court asking that a receiver be appointed for the theatre. The realty company claims the theatre is $25,926 in rent arrears.

Ziehm Plea Denied

Sidney Bernstein, New York supreme court justice, this week denied the application of Arthur Ziehm, Inc., for a temporary injunction to restrain Leo Films, Inc., from distributing "Serenade" in the United States. The court ruled that there is an honest dispute as to whether the plaintiff or defendant had purchased the exclusive U. S. rights on the film, and ordered trial for October 1st.

Radio Suit Filed

The Queen City Broadcasting Company, operating station KIRO as the Columbia network outlet in Seattle, has filed a $100,000 libel suit against the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce and its directors. The suit is an outgrowth of Tacoma's attack on KIRO, occasioned when the Federal Communications Commission granted the Seattle station additional power and Columbia announced that henceforth its national programs would be released only by the Seattle station in the Pacific Northwest, instead of over KVI in Tacoma as well. In the meantime Mayor Harry P. Cain and Manager T. A. Stevenson of the Tacoma Chamber have gone to Washington, D. C., to take their case to the FCC.

Seeks Examination

An application for an order to direct examination before trial of the officers of Twentieth Century-Fox Corporation, Pictorial Review Company, Inc., and Herbert R. Mayes has been made in New York supreme court by Mary Orr in connection with her suit for an injunction and $75,000 damages. The suit involves use of the title of a story, "Battle of Broadway."

OBITUARIES

Louis Landau Dies; St. Louis Exhibitor

Louis Landau, for 35 years operator and manager of neighborhood film theatres in the St. Louis area, died August 8th of a heart attack while driving his automobile. Mr. Landau figured prominently as a state witness in the extortion trials of John P. Nick, former head of the Motion Pictures' Union in St. Louis, and State Representative Edward M. Brady.

Mr. Landau was manager of the Lemay and Southway theatres in St. Louis at the time of his death. Previously he operated the Washington theatre in Granite City, Ill., and the Maryland and Colonial theatres in St. Louis.

Abraham Wax Dies

Abraham Wax, theatre operator in Philadelphia and Atlantic City, died August 6th in the latter city, after a stroke. He was 82 years old. His widow, and seven children, most of them active in operation of the theatres, survive.

John Pittman

John I. Pittman, 61, exhibitor in southwest Louisiana and east Texas since 1912 and who recently sold his interest in the Jefferson Amusement Company to his former partner, Sol E. Gordon, died at his home in Beaumont recently. In addition to opening one of the first picture shows in Beaumont, Mr. Pittman also opened the first theatre built in Lake Charles, La., and Port Arthur, Tex. He retired from exhibition several years ago to enter the oil business.

Dane Coolidge

Dane Coolidge, 67, naturalist and author of western fiction, died in Berkeley, Cal., August 8th. Many of his plots were used for motion pictures.

George Goethals

George C. Goethals, 40, manager of the Carrollton theatre, New Orleans, died at the Touro Infirmary there August 1st. Mr. Goethals was manager of units of United Theatres, Inc., for the last 10 years. Funeral services were held in Detroit, Mich.

John McMillan

John C. McMillan, 34, motion picture operator, died in a Miami hospital August 5th after a short illness.

Louise Rial

Louise Rial, 90, former stage actress, died August 10th in New York. She made her debut on the stage in 1878 in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Sues Over Song

Serge Adelheim filed suit in New York supreme court this week against Warner Brothers for $5,000 damages. The plaintiff is suing as assignee of A. Beresonsky, Russian composer, and charges Warners with using one of the composer's songs in the film, "British Agent." Warners seek dismissal of the suit on the ground that it fails to state a cause of action.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

An Open Letter to Exhibitors

GENTLEMEN:

One of this department's scouts returns from a swing around to report a spreading defeatism in manager morale. He was somewhat alarmed and maybe has reason to be. It is an attitude that could easily become chronic if something wasn't done about it.

If the condition exists to any extent, reasons are not hard to find. World conditions, industry disturbances, neglect of showmanship,growing opposition of outside entertainments, are just a few of the apparent factors. Their effects can be widespread. It is up to you, Mr. Exhibitor, to see they do not affect the manager.

To be assumed is that you employ managers of skill and experience, capable of doing a consistently profitable job for your boxoffice. As such, you will agree that whether grosses reach an anticipated figure, or go higher, the manager who knows his business will have much to do with it. That would be so, according to the knowing exhibition executive, who found that the manager who delivers brings in a 25 per cent higher gross than one who just "manages."

Would you operate your theatre without insurance, Mr. Exhibitor? Silly question? Not so silly if you haven't insured yourself against losses through managerial let-down.

How to do that, you ask? By the time-tried device of offering managers an opportunity for extra earnings. Recognize, if you will, that the manager who delivers is a top salesman. And remember, please, the best salesmen in any line work best on a commission or percentage basis.

The plan is hardly new, even in showbusiness. Quite a few circuits use some kind of a sharing arrangement. Many independents also find it profitable to pay managers a split over certain grosses.

Because it has been in operation for years to the satisfaction of manager and home office, the success of the sharing plan sponsored by Famous Players Canadian is again emphasized. The manager receives a percentage of his yearly grosses over a quota mutually-determined and subject to revision to meet local changes.

By means of private monthly statements, every man knows exactly where he stands. Thus, if the manager's earnings increase from one month to another, he digs in deeper to push higher. If his percentage drops, he has more reason to pick-and-shovel harder. Intracircuit relations, need we add, are admirable, circuit operation consistently profitable.

More than ever before, the coming year is to be a test of showmanship. In the face of rapidly changing world conditions, the strongest offense is called for, if the theater is to prosper. That offense cannot be waged unless the manager is wholeheartedly, enthusiastically in the thick of battle.

The sharing plan, which pays for itself in the grosses you are not now getting, Mr. Exhibitor, is air-tight insurance against boxoffice defeatism and sinking managerial morale.

CONVERSATION WON'T GET IT

"We checked against theatres playing the same features on the 'Get-A-Laugh Week' buildup and found that business did not even approach the theatres running the special campaign."

The quotes, from Jim Nairn's letter on the circuitwide promotion, told about on another page, strike here as more important than the successful exploitation to which they refer.

In short, the same pictures did sensationally better in those situations where a definite selling plan was adopted and where managers worked themselves into a lather to sell it.

That cuts short a lot of unreasonable squawks about the lack of business. Evidently, it is to be had.

Kids don't go by calendars, according to Doc Twedt, of Manly, Iowa, who brought Santa to town in an ad for "Torrid Zone" (see ad page). Even though the thermometer read 104, the juveniles assumed the advent of Kris Kringle meant Christmas had arrived. Parents who had to talk the youngsters out of it were volubly indignant, Doc says.

Round Table In Pictures

Conceived by Maurice Gable at the Boyd, in Philadelphia, to sell the new product issuing from the Warner studios was the effective setpiece constructed by the theatreman. Pouring from a horn-of-plenty were replicas of book covers of well-known novels and stage plays to be seen in forthcoming pictures.

Attention-attracting advance lobby display for "Maryland" at the Loew-Poli Theatre, in New Haven, Conn., was the huge horseshoe illustrated above, creaated by Nat Rubin and Jack Brassil. A colored lad, son of one of the theatre's porters, acted as jockey and rode a hobby-horse during peak hours. Baby spots illuminated the display, background of which featured a silk banner.

Street stunt arranged by Ed Fitzpatrick for "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" at Loew's Poli, in Waterbury, Conn., consisted of large cutout of Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney blown up from an 8 by 10 still. Through tieup with local photographer, folks were invited to step up and have their pictures snapped with Judy.

Touring the streets of Cleveland was Joe Longo's "Pago Pago" street bally for that picture's opening at the Loew theatres. Sandwiched inside the trailer was a boy beating a tom-tom, the reverberations echoing throughout the downtown streets and attracting no end of attention. The trailer, tom-tom, car, etc., were promoted by Longo and were used three days ahead and during run.

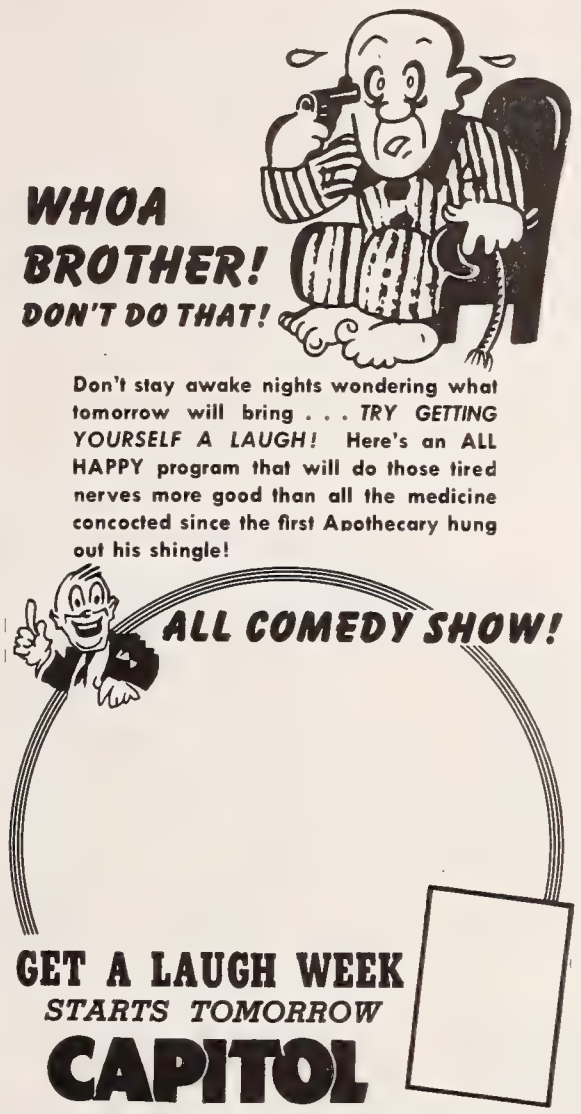
ROUND TABLERS CHASE THE JITTERS WITH "LAUGH AND FUN" PROGRAMS

F. P. Canadian Theatres Launch "Get-A-Laugh" Week; Theatres on This Side Break Out "Screwballery" to Sell Shows

by A-MIKE VOGEL

THE war against the war-jitters is spreading. Theatremen in all sectors are touching off their laugh-ammunition to good results. Across the border as well, due notice is given to the importance of jollity in entertainment, the most ambitious project reported currently being the campaign already put on in 65 theatres of the Famous Players Canadian circuit.

Early in June, reports Jim Nairn, circuit ad head, the general idea of "Get-A-Laugh Week" was suggested by J. J. Fitzgibons, after conferences with the publicity, booking and operating departments. Instead of rushing the campaign into every one of the circuit's 200 houses, it was decided to provide each situation with a tailor-made program, to fit. Thus, the booking department set up a comedy feature and surrounded it with light entertainment shorts, such as band acts, travel reels, cartoons, etc. Nothing of scientific interest nor any reel of a serious note was included. Newsreel were carefully checked for topical and war scenes with all serious items clipped. In some instances, the newsreels were shelved.



Business Increase Reported

Each theatre was provided with a comedy-selling trailer in addition to a ballyhoo record for use out front to sell the "week." Special one-sheets and posters for front and lobby were created by the ad head and Claire Appel of Nairn's department, as were display ads in which all copy and setup were subordinated to the one central idea (see cut on this page). From then on, managers were expected to use their ingenuity. Gags like laughing mirrors, trick banners, radio tieins and other promotions were widely reported.

The results, at this writing, show a gratifying gross lift in the 65 theatres where the "week" has been put on. In no instance did the stunt fail to increase business noticeably, in some cases doubling the normal take, says Nairn. The plan is to be followed with all bookings of comedy type attractions in every possible situation.

Barcroft Sells "Happiness Week"

To emphasize the laughs in "My Love Came Back," at the RKO Palace, Columbus, Ohio, Johnny Barcroft reports a "Happiness Week" aimed to make the folks forget the war and the heat. Immediate cooperation was secured to that end, principally from leading newspaper columnists who plugged the event. Carrying cartoon cuts of a loud laughter and "happiness" copy, tack cards were planted on downtown telephone poles and throughout the neighborhoods. The theme illustration and slug was also emphasized in newspaper advertising and lobby display.

Engraver's proof on two-column display in Famous Players Canadian's "Get - A - Laugh Week" campaign.

Tied to leading clothing store was a score-baseball contest with prizes awarded each night for guesses of winning teams. The tieins and the "week" were plugged by the store in advertising, and on its nightly sports radio program. For street use, a trio of clowns were employed with back banners carrying the "laugh yourself silly" slant.

Conner Calls It "Laugh Week"

At Warners Avalon, Chicago, Marlowe Conner set a "Laugh Week" on his combination bill of "Favorite Wife" and "Ghost Breaker." This started with a special trailer which tipped off the hookup, the finish winding up with some Conner copy reading: "P.S. Even our ushers are permitted to laugh out loud next week." In the lobby, Marlowe planted a large trunk with copy to the effect it was the theatre's hope chest and filled with laughs. Inside the trunk a small victrola played a laugh record which was covered by a card containing stills and copy.

A laughing gas tank was borrowed for "sourpusses" who could not "crack a chuckle during Laugh Week" and the Round Tabler distributed imprinted privilege cards, allowing bearers to laugh as long as they pleased during the big event. The copy allowed men to check belts and loosen ties. Women were invited to check corsets with the maid. For street bally, screwballery was aimed for with two lads. The first, in few clothes wore a sign reading, "I made a bet I could sit through the Avalon show without laughing. I lost." The other lad in a bathing suit wore an ice bag on his head and sign saying that the heat was no laughing matter but the show at the Avalon was.

In a perfect spot to sell laughs, Ed McBride put on a big giggle campaign with "Turnabout" at Loew's State, Providence, using the Laugh Week slant to push harder. How Mac went at it is indicated in his ballyhoo stunts, one using two girls with large books, covers carrying theatre copy. Girls rode the main street busses at rush hours, holding the books so that the title was easily seen and laughing heartily. Same idea was worked on downtown corners at noon.

For another laugh, Ed turned his inside lobby boxoffice into a peek window, copy inviting folks to look. Spotlight was trained on stills with large blowup of leads in bedroom scene with stork in center. On top of the boxoffice was planted small victrola playing an infectious laugh record.

Burke Declares War on Gloom

In Fostoria, Ohio, Bill Burke organized "Laff Week" at Schine's State around his three changes: Andy Hardy Meets Debutante, My Love Came Back, and Gold Rush Maisie, his campaign starting two weeks ahead with trailer copy:

"We've declared war on gloom. We've blitzkrieged worry. We've given 'ole man hard luck the cold shoulder. This week is Laff Week at this theatre. You'll get a full share of laughs, music, gaiety, because we are serving nothing but light laugh-packed entertainment. You will positively not see any war news either in features, shorts or newsreels. C'mon, Fostoria, laugh and relax while you see . . ." etc., etc.

Planted throughout the trailer were shots of the coming attraction and, for a finish, Burke had Filmack dub in a laugh record on the sound track for extra results.

The theme was carried further with street corner barrels, portable radios concealed inside playing laugh records, with copy in keeping. Another stunt that took hold was put on at the municipal swimming pool in conjunction with the water carnival, the theatre crashing this by awarding a loving cup for the funniest bathing suit, as a plug for the week. Radio was tied in with a contest offering guest tickets for the best letters by listeners on "Why I think laughing is healthy."

Phillips Organizes Laugh Days

For "Ghost Breakers" at the Granada, Norfolk, Nebr., Manager Dick Phillips organized a series of Laugh Days with a merchant tiein for co-op space. Contest angle was added with guest tickets for those finding their names in different ads. The promotion was plugged by the daily with a page one story of the event.

Competition to Quigley Awards regulars is currently offered by new names in the Fourth Fortnight listings which continue to show a wide representation from among circuits and independents. There are three Fortnights remaining before the ending of the Third Quarter, time enough for all to make a showing in the Quarterly finals. As has been emphasized, entrants who are represented most frequently in the Fortnight listings will be given first consideration for the Plaques, Medals and Citations.

Recording Parties Staged By Cocks in Syracuse

Bearing in mind that old time maxim to "see yourself as others see you," Harvey Cocks at Schine's Palace, in Syracuse, turned the tables a bit and invited folks to try their luck at recording their voices at the theatre. Cooperating paper devoted front page to the story and Harvey distributed small cards to all patrons entering, requesting them to fill in their names, addresses and to check the type recording they wished to make and then deposit cards in boxes provided. Various types included singing, talking, playing an instrument, tap dancing, message to a friend, novelty, recitation, etc.

In order to get a diversified program together, Cocks picks out 10 different patrons and invites them up stage for their recording, which is played back, the discs then being awarded to guests at the completion of the performance. In addition, through cooperation of local music shop, 10 patrons are also selected for home recordings.

Entire stunt is costless to Cocks, store paying for the trailer, printing of 20,000 application cards, 10,000 heralds and advertising the stunt in the papers and stores.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Hitching-Posts Planted By Addison for "Benny"

Attractor used by Herman Addison, Jr., at Schine's Olympic at Watertown, N. Y., consisted of oldtime hitching-posts which were planted at strategic spots around town reading "Hitching-post for Jack Benny's horse when he plays in 'Buck Benny Rides Again' at the," etc., etc. For another street bally attractive girl in cowboy outfit rode a large white horse appropriately bannered.

Cooperating sports shop featured a window display of "dude ranch" attire with card crediting theatre and show. Sign was placed on bear's cage in local zoo reading: "Don't miss seeing my cousin in," etc. Aside from creating plenty of laughs, Addison reports this as a first-time that the zoo had been cracked. Men's shop featured a window display of the new wide brim hats with sign "Buck Benny Rides Again—the wide brimmed hat is the latest style for smartly dressed men everywhere." Other windows included music shops tied directly to hit tunes in the picture and for lobby two rocking horses with cutout riders in cowboy suits were planted in center of foyer week ahead of opening.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Radio Contest Precedes "Pride and Prejudice"

Marking one of the rare occasions when WJZ Blue network station of N.B.C. in New York, has featured a film contest on a sustaining program, one of the highlights of the Radio City Music Hall advance campaign for "Pride and Prejudice" was a "leap year" contest planted with Ted Malone's popular "Between the Bookends" program, broadcast daily.

In this contest, listeners were asked to submit "Five Rules for Winning a Husband," based on the five-daughters-in-search-of-a-husband theme of the picture. To the three winning entries went copies of the novel autographed by Greer Garson, who is co-starred in the film with Laurence Olivier.

Paper Cooperates On DePraslin Case

Highlight of Johnny Barcroft's "All This and Heaven Too" at the RKO Palace in Columbus, Ohio, was tieup with the Sunday Star whereby their two page spread usually devoted to world-famous murder yarns was replaced by the DePraslin case. Theatre supplied scene stills from the picture and a special ad was taken on the same page, tying the movie and playdate together. In addition, paper carried prominent mention of the feature in their promotional ads in other local sheets. Other newspaper coverage included statements and recommendations of the Motion Picture Council which had been invited to a special screening. Mark Hellinger's send-off for the film in his column was used for blowup in lobby and central Ohio and community newspapers were supplied with feature stories in advance and during run.

Copies of the Rachel Field novel were sent to critics, done up in special packages and delivered by telegraph boys, window displays were used in all local book stores and counter displays in addition to the distribution of bookmarks and the public library system and lending libraries. Music coverage included records sent to all radio stations and Hollywood commentators of WCOL, WBNS, WHKC and WOSU were supplied with feature stories which brought spot announcements ahead and during run.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Shriner Beauty Contest Arranged by Waltmon

With much excitement locally over the selection of a girl to compete at the national Shriners pageant in Memphis, Round Tabler Burgess Waltmon at the Princess, in Columbus, Miss., arranged for the winner to be presented on his stage. First step on the part of the theatreman was to contact local newspaper for publicity and line up his merchants to underwrite cost of sending the winner to Memphis.

Window cards were planted in all cooperating stores, light poles were posted as were windows in surrounding territory. Bumper strips, heralds and trailers also plugged the event ahead, inner lobby and special front was constructed for the event. Contest, which ran two weeks ahead, was covered abundantly with stories and art in cooperating paper.

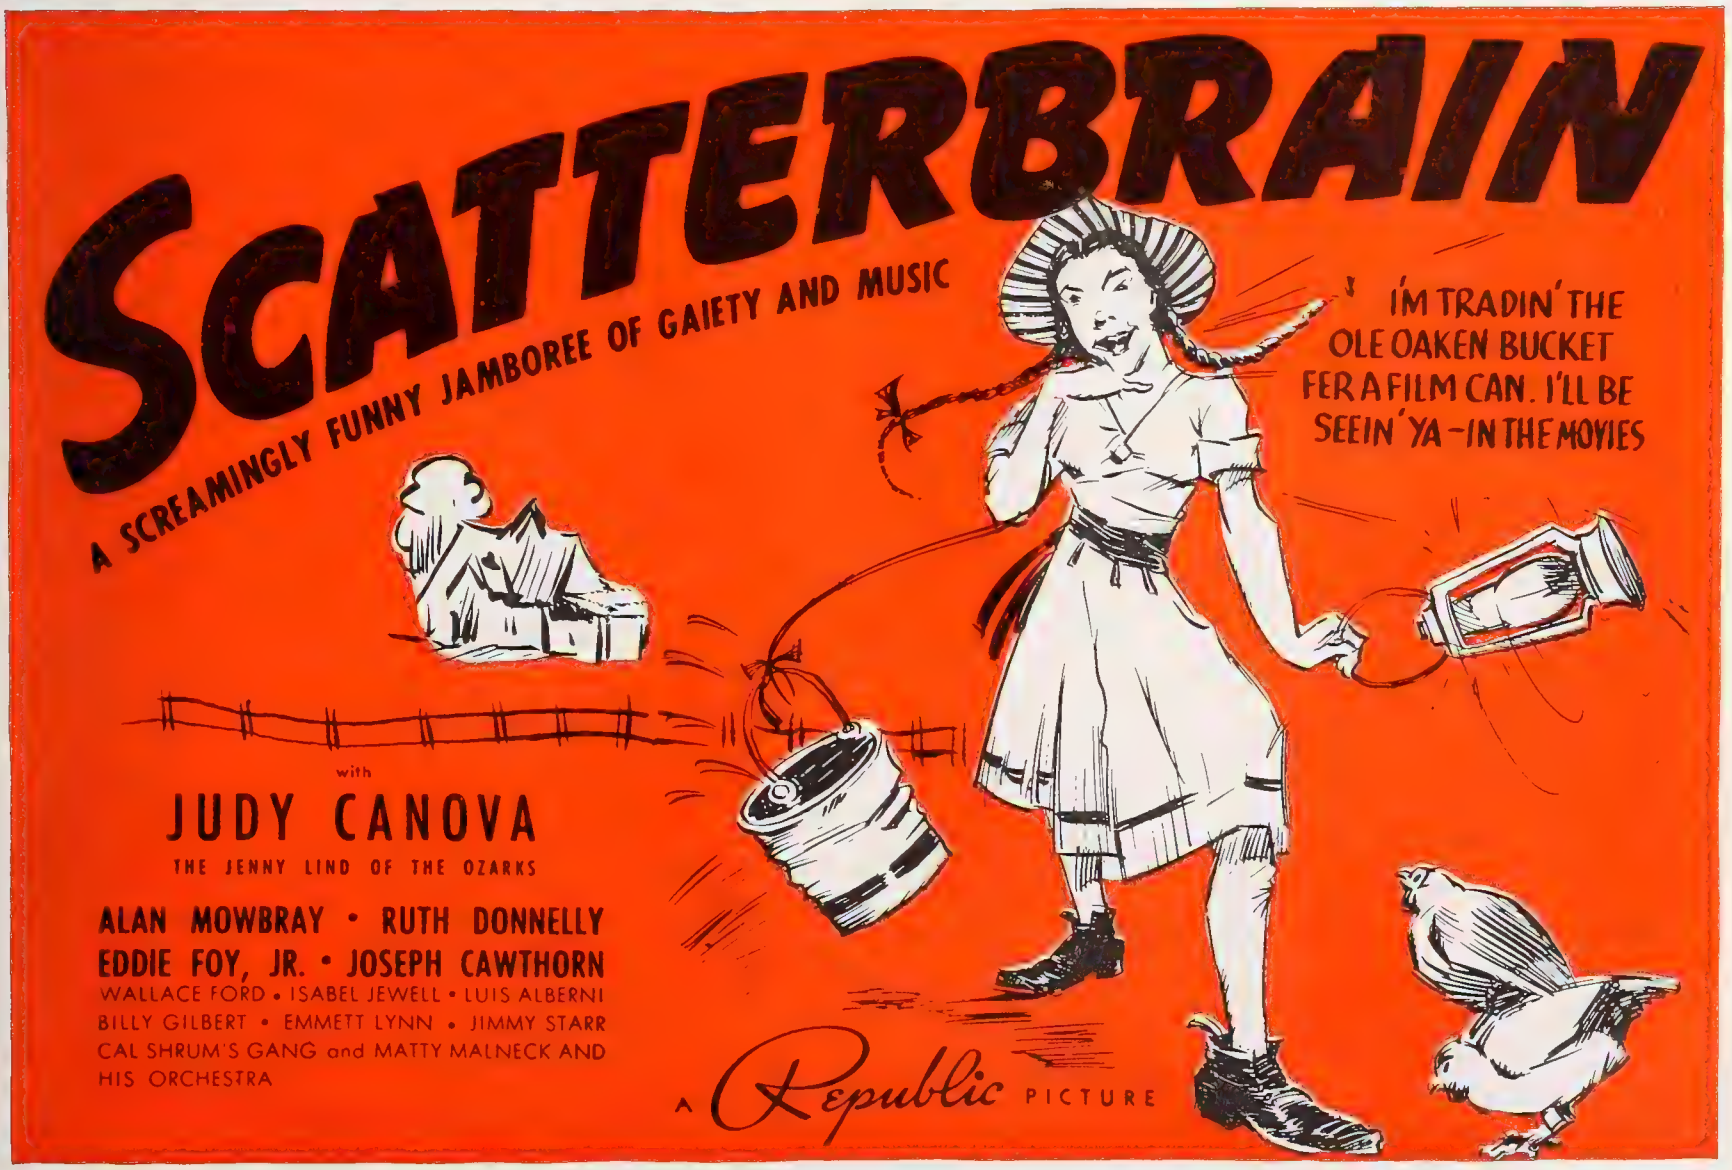
"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

City Fathers Cooperate With Kalberer on "Flag"

City Council of Washington, Indiana, cooperated with A. J. Kalberer for his "Flag Speaks" date at the Indiana Theatre by issuing a proclamation and granting permission to tack cards on flag poles. Merchants on main street all displayed flags for the two day run, and newspapers were generous with their stories covering the event. Through contact made with American Legion that organization sponsored the showings and arranged for the drum and bugle corps with majorettes and color guard to parade through the city from headquarters to theatre opening night.

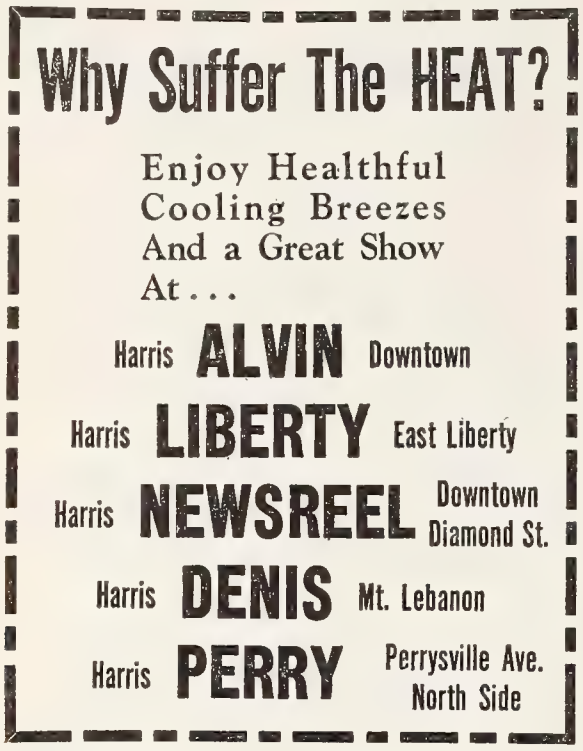
Contests Ballyhoo 'Talked Too Much'

Planted in the Post Standard with prizes to the persons correctly naming the actors who played the part of a lawyer in a list of 10 pictures, and including "The Man Who Talked Too Much" was one of the contests arranged by Gene Curtis, for that date at the Paramount, in Syracuse. Another stunt was a street ballyhoo with portable public address system set up and passes to men who talked the longest without stopping or repeating. A card alongside read: "Prizes for the Man Who Talked Too Much—can you talk for five minutes without stopping or repeating."



"Private Affairs" brought a window display in large store which featured diaries with appropriate tiein copy. Still another window was used with display of lingerie. Contest was planted in cooperating paper with prizes to persons who could spell the greatest number of words from the title.

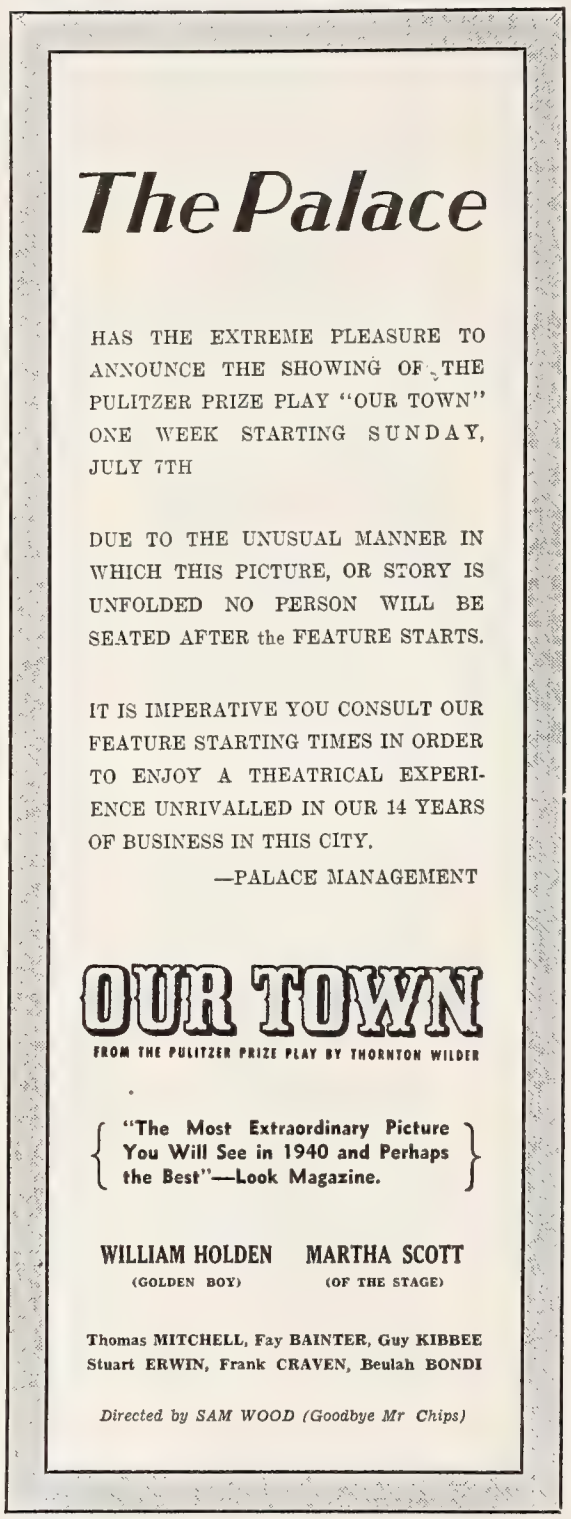
"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"



Irwin Seeks Haunted House

Planted in the classified section of local paper daily for a week was George Irwin's want ad for a haunted house as teaser advance for his campaign on "The Ghost Breakers" at the Lyceum Theatre, in Duluth, Minn. After locating a "desirable" house, Irwin further ran stories announcing the opening of his "brave woman's bureau" and inviting all to visit his haunted house.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"



REPRESENTATIVE NEWSPAPER ADS

(Left) Since star and picture had been long publicized in advance, the New York Strand date for "Sea Hawk" was sold with poster-layouts confined mainly to Flynn and title as illustrated in this 170 lines on 3 columns. Nautical decoration for stage show copy was in keeping with the screen advertising.

(Right) Emphasis on the four-star cast and title, to the exclusion of all copy outside of production credits, was decided upon by the Dietz-Seadler ad forces as the basis of the campaign for M-G-M's "Boom Town", as illustrated by engraver's proof of a representative 190 lines on 4 columns. Notice of increase in admissions was confined to box next to theatre masthead.

EXPLOITATION BRIEFS FROM A-FIELD

Two local boys were dressed as hillbillies and sent out on the streets of Bushnell, Ill., as part of D. M. Dillenbeck's advance on "Jeepers Creepers" at the Rialto Theatre. Back copy read: "We are taking time out from feuding to see" etc. etc. One carried a double barreled shot gun, the other a rifle, each wearing slouch hats and smoking corn cobs.

In an effort to bring into his theatre all college students who had returned home for their summer vacations, Round Tabler Boyd F. Scott at the Strand in Uvalde, Texas, addressed special letters to this group welcoming them back to the city and enclosing a calendar of his attractions for the month.

The cashier at the St. George Playhouse in Brooklyn when making change during run of "Buck Benny Rides Again" distributed extra fake dollars as part of Eddie Lewis' gag campaign on that picture. Copy on the spurious "bucks" read: "A program of reel entertainment," etc., followed by title, cast and cut of the star.

Tying in with local dairy, for his "Flash Gordon" serial, Bob Anthony at Schine's Miami, in Piqua, Ohio, promoted a bicycle which was awarded to kid holding lucky number tickets and who had attended all chapters. Theatre and merchant advertised the giveaway widely.

A contest to find a local double for Vivien Leigh netted plenty of newspaper space for William F. Langdon, Paramount, Kankakee, Ill., as part of his "Waterloo Bridge" campaign. Langdon also conducted a mustache-raising contest, using Robert Taylor's new hirsute adornment in the film as his basis.

To promote "Typhoon," opening in Wichita, Kans., Woody Barritt, manager of the Fox Miller, and Bill Lansburg of Paramount arranged a sarong contest. Wichita lassies in home made sarongs paraded on the Miller stage opening night for cash prizes. The sarong worn by Dorothy Lamour in the picture was on display at leading department store, which cooperated in the contest.

Lobby attractor was the display created by Harold Leand, at the Revere, in Revere, Mass., for "Typhoon." Upper portion of easel carried actual scenes of the 1938 hurricane, with line "A storm all will recall." Lower part was devoted to scene stills from the picture with catch line "A storm all will remember."

A contest to determine who was the most popular girl of "Seventeen" was held for that picture by Silvert Setron, at the Logan, in Philadelphia, with 21 merchants tied to the event, each contributing merchandise prizes to the winner. Cooperating stores displayed cards in their windows selling the contest, distributed ballots with each sale and plugged the event in their ads.

"LET'S GO" STICKERS PLASTER SPRINGFIELD

Aimed particularly to attract at this time of the year, and doing so effectively, according to Mike Chakeres, is the sticker campaign put on by the Springfield, Ohio, Chakeres houses, emphasizing just two lines of copy, "Let's Go To A Movie Tonight".

Stickers are applied to cars, businesses, stores, and every other possible location in and around the city. Size is 2 inches wide by 9 inches long, to fit most any kind of space.

A bathing beach stunt, with winners becoming guests of Loew's for an "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" showing at Loew's, was one of the highlights of the Norfolk campaign for the film put over by Roscoe Drissel. The manager sent a cameraman to the local beach to snap bathing girls. The photographer carried a sign reading: "I'm the debutante photographer. If your picture appears in Mickey Rooney's gallery in front of Loew's, you'll receive a guest ticket," etc.

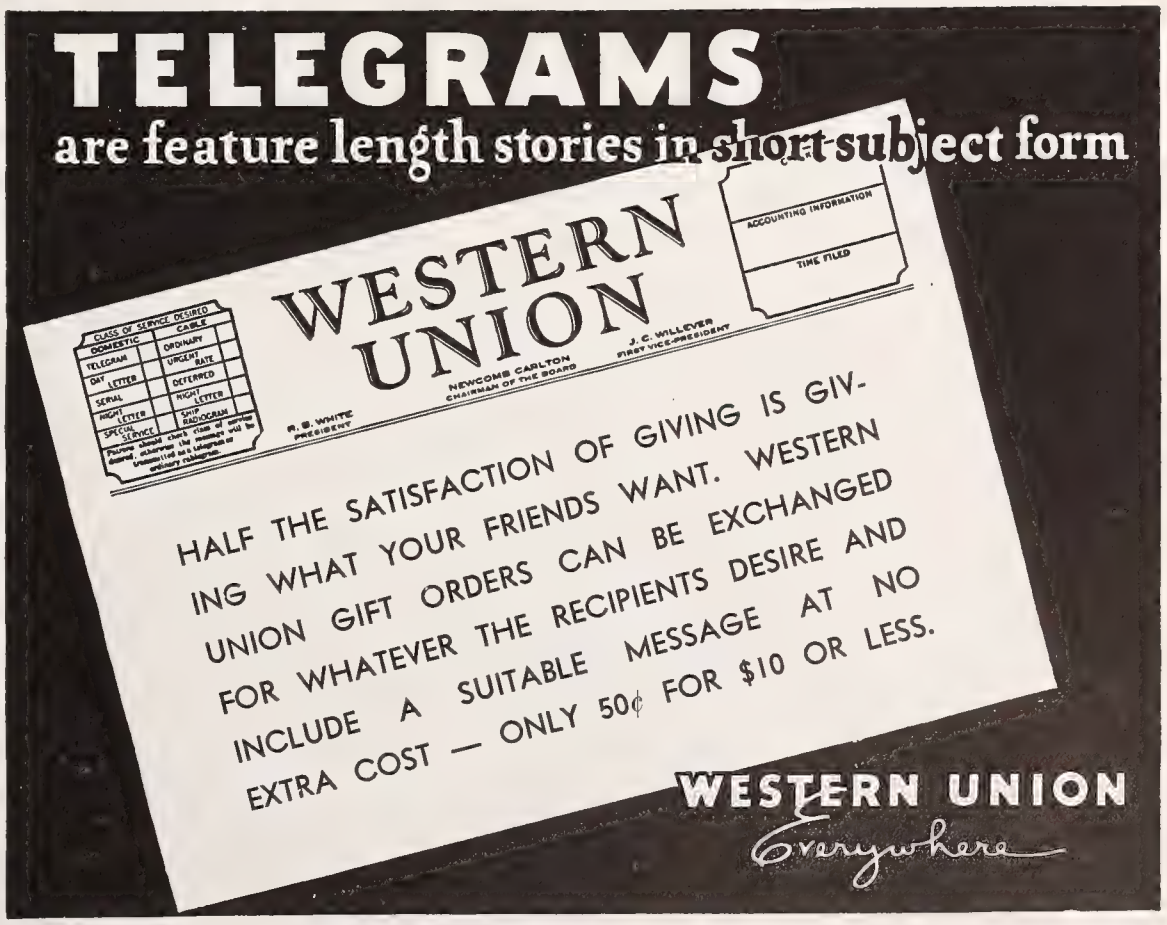
Six foot book of "Rebecca" was the walking street bally used by A. Easson for that engagement at the Oakwood Theatre, in Toronto. Man inside covered main streets and downtown sections ahead and during run. In addition, gaily tinted heralds were distributed house-to-house several days before playdates.



Highlight of Jack Fretwell's, "Northwest Passage" date at the State, in Harrisonburg, Pa. was the personal appearance of Capt. Jack Lloyd, aged soldier of fortune and veteran extra of many western pictures. With his buckskin outfit and pearl handled forty-five, the old gent covered streets carrying theatre and picture credits, stopping in crowds to tell stories of Major Rogers Rangers, etc. The Captain was entertained at one of the leading restaurants, spoke over radio four times daily for three days ahead of opening and was interviewed on stage opening night by Fretwell.

The questions: "How does a bashful man propose marriage? Or how does one get a bashful man to declare his 'honorable intentions'?" were the basis of a contest planted in Washington newspapers by Ray Bell, in advance of the "Pride and Prejudice" premiere at the Palace, there. First prize was an all-expense-paid-for-two-persons week-end vacation at a nearby summer resort, with guest tickets to other winners in the contest.

Numerous window displays were promoted by Frank Murphy for his date on "Mortal Storm" at Loew's State, in Syracuse, particularly stressing book tieins. For lobby display giant book was constructed, jacket of which was an exact replica of the original, scene stills scattered throughout the book itself. Station WFBL tied in with six midnight broadcasts over which the picture received generous mention and contest was planted in paper whereby prizes were awarded those submitting most words culled from picture title.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor. The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color. At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

THE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) symbol indicates picture of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

ABOUT ADVERTISING

COMMONLY your editor is a bit more intimately and immediately concerned with the front cover than the back cover, but this week—look and see—there's considerable and quotable utterance from Mr. Herman Robbins' National Screen Service, which says:

Advertising built the studios in Hollywood.

Advertising built the movie theatres, big and little.

Advertising made movies a habit as well as a pastime.

Advertising made showmanship a business instead of a gamble.

Advertising made this industry.

And advertising is going to keep it in the black, and nothing else but.

The fact is, of course, that advertising, if it is indeed advertising, is news about merchandise. When there is no news there is considerable indication, to the reader, that there is no merchandise, worth mentioning.

THE "THRILL" PRESS

BE prepared for a considerable furore about "the freedom of the press" now that Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia has had the publishers of forty-two newsstand sex thrill magazines, along with distributors and dealers, out to New York's summer city hall in Queens to give them particular and plenty. Thirty-four magazines he called "filthy," the rest "borderline."

There was not much formality in the Mayor's remarks: "Don't you news dealers monkey with me . . . these are not the old days in Chicago . . . don't try any strong-arm stuff. . . ." There was a taunt about personal decency, too, when the Mayor, citing the problems of delinquencies of children and youth, remarked: ". . . If you have families . . . I can not understand how you can conceive anything so repulsive . . . and I can't believe that all these magazines are published by bachelors, or sons of bachelors. . . ."

It is to be observed, incidentally, that Mayor LaGuardia's procedure is with reference only to newsstands licensed by the city and making their displays in the street—and is not concerned with book store or library shelves, where the reader goes looking for what he wants.

A considerable number of the magazines concerned are on the publicity picture distribution lists of motion picture press departments. Many of them are represented in Hollywood by correspondents and photographers whose art wares do not pass through the picture industry's administrative channels. The consequence is a contribution to the repute of the screen which is not precisely attuned to its claims of being a constructive art.

SPEAKING of publicity matters, motion picture personalities are currently making quite a succession of appearances on the air on Canada Dry gingerale's NBC "Information Please" program—recently Mrs. Martin Johnson of "I Married Adventure," this week Mr. Walter Wanger with "Foreign Correspondent" on the ways, and next week Mr. James Roosevelt for United Artists' "Pastor Hall." It is to be observed that these appearances and attentions are of a nature to contribute to the promotion of the product, without invasive competition with the box office—in other words, precisely publicity.

THE CHAPLIN

STILLS, showing Mr. Charles Chaplin in his title role of "The Great Dictator", uniformed and be-belted in military dignity, are enough to show that his forthcoming, and so long coming, "Production No. 6" is to be an interesting piece of laboratory material for the students of the cinema.

This will be, by all indications, quite as much, or more, an adventure, experiment and exploration from the Chaplin studios as was his "Woman of Paris", so many years ago. There was Mr. Chaplin, director-producer.

In "The Great Dictator" is again Mr. Chaplin in all those creative functions, but also apparently a new and different Chaplin. How different is to be the audience adventure.

In all other productions Mr. Chaplin has given an underdog's view of the world, with a certain ultimate happy ending consisting in the triumph of the boob. In this No. 6 we are encouraged to anticipate an obverse of the design with an ending in the debacle of the boss.

Special interest must, for the understanding, obtain now. Mr. Chaplin began and rose into the greatest fame that any man has known under the pressures of a philosophy born to him, created for him by environment of adversity. That adversity is for him now but a memory, perhaps poignant. But his environment for some twenty-five years has been prosperity, of story-book order, and Hollywood. Even so, he did not break with the past in his "Modern Times", a potpourri of notions from his comedy album.

Today's scene is a new world and order rising on the tangled jackstraws of yesterday's debris. Has the screen a new Chaplin?

ALLEGORY—A dirty brown beetle broke from the soil and tediously labored up the trunk of our favorite apple tree. The shell split and a seventeen-year locust began to emerge. There came the reflection that while that bug had been down there in the dark, from way back in 1923, there have been three big trade practise conferences, a Blue Eagle, a hundred or two trade practise lawsuits, a flock of major bankruptcies, the sound picture revolution, Shirley Temple, Orson Welles and Thurman Arnold. The damp locust, shimmering in irridescent color, crawled into a sunny spot, dried its silky wings and flew—about fifty feet. A hungry thrush, passing, knocked him off in mid-air. That locust wasted his time. There is no moral to this.

This Week in the News

Buying & Booking

RECURRING reports that northwest independent exhibitors were contemplating a film-buying strike, for one reputed grievance or another, against 1940-41 product proposals of distributors, were dismissed, Wednesday, by Fred Strom, executive secretary of Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest as without foundation.

The new regime of Northwest Allied, recently installed after the retirement of Al Steffes (see page 12), branded as "a deliberate lie" any report that the organization, embracing most independents in the territory, was threatening a buying strike and Mr. Strom added: "At least three of the majors have been writing a substantial volume of business with Northwest Allied members, and, furthermore, many of the independent exhibitors are attempting to make deals with all of the exchanges."

However, Mr. Strom warned distributors: "Exhibitors are unanimously agreed that unless substantial film rental reductions are granted they will be forced out of business."

Steuer Dead

MAX D. STEUER, 68, New York lawyer, died Wednesday afternoon of a heart attack in his suite at the Wentworth Hall hotel in Jackson, N. H.

Austrian-born and educated in New York Mr. Steuer achieved an international legal reputation, his clients having included a long list of noteworthy persons of his era. He began life as a newsboy and a worker in a tailor shop where he earned enough to help support his family while he attended Columbia Law School.

Booms "Boom Town"

THE Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, on Monday, gave its support to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new plan of "trying to increase revenues, not from increasing the number of percentage pictures, but from bigger admission prices."

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of MGM, three weeks ago urged operators to raise admissions to "Boom Town" 25 per cent at matinees and 33 1/3 per cent evenings.

"Exhibitors should cooperate in this instance," the Ohio organization urged in a special message to its independent exhibitor members. But at the same time, it warned all distributors contemplating similar procedure: "Before urging exhibitors to increase their prices to the public, be absolutely sure the picture justifies it—and then follow the Metro plan of permitting the exhibitor to decide for himself."

Consent Decree Conferees Reach New Formula for Settlement

Agreement between the Government and the defendants and between the defendants themselves in the Department of Justice's anti-trust suit in equity against the motion picture industry was reported nearer this week than at any time since the discussions started—at mid-week, however, such agreement remained in conference.

Company spokesmen for the defense, and their lawyers, were to meet at 10:30 Thursday morning at the Hays office in New York to discuss and, if possible, reach a united stand on the Government proposals. The starting point for this discussion was reported to be Government acceptance of the "escape clause" formula proposed by Sidney R. Kent, for Twentieth Century-Fox, and Barney Balaban, for Paramount, provided that the five companies—these two, and Loew's, RKO and Warners—accept the Department of Justice's proposals for trade showings to eliminate blind buying.

From this meeting, with or without agreement, attorneys for the five companies—Columbia, United Artists and Universal have refused from the start to join any out of court discussions—were to depart for a meeting at 2:30, at a place not specified, with Government representatives to whom they were to deliver their answer or answers.

The basis for Thursday morning's meeting of the defense was reported to have been reached at a meeting Wednesday between Government counsel, including Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, and a third party, said to have been instrumental in obtaining continuance of the discussions. Last week proceedings appeared to have reached a standstill after the Government told Twentieth Century-Fox and Paramount they would have to accept the consent decree proposals agreed upon between the Department of Justice and Loew's, RKO and Warners, or go to court.

Petrillo Quitting?

THE resignation of James C. Petrillo as president of the American Federation of Musicians is forecast by persons in Chicago said to be close to the stormy petrel of musicians' labor politics.

Only two months in the national presidency, Mr. Petrillo is said to have expressed distaste for the New York headquarters of the Federation, which compels him to spend so much time away from Chicago and the activities there of which he is overlord.

Music Hall Sues U. S.

WHETHER a theatre must pay Social Security Act taxes on the salaries of performers and specialty acts hired for a limited period, is a question which may be resolved by a suit filed Tuesday, in New York Federal Court, by the Radio City Music Hall Corporation, operators of the theatre of that name, against the United States Government. The suit asks for recovery of $1,079 of its 1938 taxes paid under the Act.

The theatre corporation states that that amount in taxes was assessed on the salaries of star performers such as Jan Peerce and Henrietta Schumann, and on those of specialty acts such as "Buck and Bubbles," "Tip, Top, Toe," and others; that these performers and acts are independent contractors; that they are therefore, not regular employees of the theatre, for whom, the suit continues, the corporation willingly paid taxes.

Airing "Wind"

"GONE WITH THE WIND," novel and picture, will become also a radio advertising vehicle to sell more cough drops for Vicks Chemical Company.

The air version of "Wind" will be presented every Tuesday night after October 1st from 9:30 to 10:00 P. M. on a coast to coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Until the film is generally released about the first of the year it is reported that the radio programs will be a "prologue" dealing with the early life of Scarlett O'Hara. The radio casts, for the "prologue" at least, will include Helen Claire (Scarlett), Dom McLaughlin (Rhett Butler) and Joan Banks (Melanie). Carlo D'Angelo will direct.

Although the original asking price for the radio rights to "Wind" was estimated as high as $1,000,000 it was said that the final deal provides for a relatively small payment of less than $1,000 per week.

Directory Advertising

LOEW'S, INC., to date has signed special cut-rate bulk advertising contracts with five of New York's eight daily newspapers, to use a minimum of 100,000 agate lines in each paper for its single daily movie directory for all of its theatres in the Metropolitan area. The directories, first to be used by a large circuit in the city, started in the Evening Journal, on August 1st, to replace the previous direct mailing of Loew's Weekly, which cost $400,000 a year.

The papers in which the daily directory now appears are the Journal, (circulation, 611,174); Post (252,145); Sun (291,410) and World-Telegram (414,759), constituting all of the city's evening papers, and the Times, (493,024) morning.

The Daily News, Daily Mirror and Herald-Tribune are the lone holdouts on contracts for cut-rates, which, for most of the other papers, establishes a record low for this type of amusement advertising in New York. Loew's, it is understood, expects to arrange terms with at least two of the three remaining papers.

For President

PRESIDENTIAL poll of patrons being conducted by Major A. G. Rudd at the two New York and one San Francisco houses of Newsreel Theatres, Inc., stood as follows at mid-afternoon on Wednesday:

	FOR WILLKIE	FOR ROOSEVELT
Embassy, N. Y.	16,752	18,309
Radio City, N. Y.	8,849	4,118
San Francisco	3,396	4,932
TOTALS	28,997	27,359

The balloting is conducted by patrons selecting a Willkie button, or a Roosevelt button, on entering the theatre, each button selected representing a vote.

Disney's "Fantasia"

"FANTASIA," Walt Disney musical feature cartoon nearing completion, will be the first theatrical film on record to be shown to the public, but not distributed.

The picture, on which Walt Disney and 1,200 artists and technicians have been working with Leopold Stokowski, conductor, and Deems Taylor, composer and critic, for two years, will have its roadshow premiere in New York in November, according to Hal Horne, Disney executive.

Mr. Horne explained that because "Fantasia" requires special sound equipment which must be installed for each engagement (MOTION PICTURE HERALD March 16th, page 8), Walt Disney Productions will handle directly all the special showings without the services of a distributor.

According to an announcement from the Disney office, Wednesday, "'Fantasia' will have a number of notable features," in addition to new sound, including: the first use of oils and pastels in animation, humans appearing in such a way that they blend with the animated characters, and the return of Mickey Mouse with thousands of imaginative characters, "ranging from tiny sprites to giant dinosaurs."

The Disney Studio announced last week that Robert Benchley had been signed for a role in "The Reluctant Dragon," first combination of animation and live action in a feature cartoon. The film, based on a Kenneth Graeme story, will have a Disney studio locale and Benchley, taking the only live action part, will be in the role of a visitor lost in the plant.

War Order

AGENTS of the British Government are consulting equipment and other manufacturers in New York on an order for 30 mobile theatres, to be shipped to England for the entertainment of troop concentrations in the countrysides where there are no theatres or canteens for shows.

A unit will consist of truck, sound projector and amplification and power requirements, with screen, for rear projection from the inside front of the truck.

There are not now available here anything like 30 new or suitable mobile units, most of them being ordered individually, usually for the use of "gypsy" showmen. However, good authority in New York expressed the opinion, Wednesday, that they could be assembled within a reasonable time.

Gloria's Career

MISS GLORIA SWANSON, one-time number one box office star, with a screen career running from Sennett comedies to "Queen Kelly," has gone in for machinery under the corporate name of Multiprises, Inc., of 630 Fifth Avenue in New York. It is to develop "inventions, plastics, alloys and things like that."

Miss Swanson told an interviewer that she had always been "more interested in the technical side. I just happen to have that kind of a mind. I always figure out card tricks and I can a read a blueprint and understand it."

Call to Service

THE Administration's national defense program this week made its first public call to service on the motion picture industry, with the Civil Service Commission at Washington issuing an invitation to photographers and technicians to accept immediate positions in the War Department. Major Nathan Levinson, of Warners, in Hollywood, has been organizing a reserve defense unit of studio technicians for the U. S. Army, for service only in war.

At the request of the War Department, the Commission announced it would receive applications up to September 16th from most states and September 19th from California and other far western points for examinations to be held later. While applicants will be required to take formal examinations, the most important requisite will be experience.

Orders under which a coordinating body for communications, including broadcasting, will be set up as part of the national defense program are reported ready for President Roosevelt's signatures.

MGM captioned this: "Pigeons like to read Si Seadler's advertising copy" and swore on a publicity man's Bible that the Broadway dove just happened to fly in the window and land on Mr. Seadler's desk. We selected this picture because the other one had an extensive background of "Boom Town" literature which just happened to be there and because here the bird is on the dial, or outgoing, telephone.

33 CIRCUITS BUY 1940-41 PRODUCT, MAJORS STILL QUIET ON DEALS

Details of Contracts Signed for New Season Withheld; Selling Delayed by War Conditions and Trust Suit

With only 33 circuit deals reported closed within the past three weeks for 1940-41 programs, the majors, with the exception of RKO Radio, are still holding back announcements of sales to circuits of the 1940-41 programs.

The major companies are known to have concluded more circuit deals than announced but most of the companies are purposely not disclosing new deals so as not to "irritate" the present consent decree negotiations. In former years distributors issued frequent reports to the press listing circuit sales. This year only RKO, of the eight majors, has maintained the practice. Hardly any word on the conclusion of 1940-41 contract negotiations has come from the home offices of any of the other companies.

Selling Delayed

Early delay in selling was caused this year by uncertainty on account of the trust suit and apprehension about possible effects of the war on business conditions. Sales conventions were later this year than last but it is now four months since the sales sessions began and over two since the last one was concluded.

A possible settlement of the trust suit by consent decree is not cited as a reason for the delay because the new provisions would not go into effect until September, 1941, but it is said that exhibitors are not anxious to sign for product until the effect of foreign losses on distributors new rental terms may be ascertained and for other reasons.

List of RKO Deals

RKO circuit deals to date for the 1940-41 season include the following: Butterfield, Michigan, for 51 situations; E. J. Sparks, Florida and Georgia, 101 theatres; Manos Amusement Company, Western Pennsylvania, 14; Notopoulos, Western Pennsylvania, 13; Wilby-Kincey, North and South Carolina, 31; Robb & Rowley, Texas and Arkansas, 34; Schultz Commonwealth, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, 25; L. L. Dent Westland, Colorado, Oklahoma City and Lincoln, Neb.; Cooperative Circuit of Northern Ohio, 26.

Circuit deals of RKO which have been previously published include Skouras-Metropolitan Theatres, 46 theatres; Randforce Circuit, Brooklyn, 42 theatres; Interboro Circuit, New York, 39 theatres; Island Theatres, Long Island, 12; Loew New York Metropolitan Circuit, 18; Lucas and Jenkins, Georgia, 48; Monarch Theatres, three theatres in Ohio, one in Pennsylvania; Maine and New Hampshire Theatres, 28 theatres; Loew-Poli Theatres, New England; Fred Dolle Circuit-Fourth Avenue Amusement, Louisville first runs; Grace Rodgers Circuit, Illinois, Arkansas, Missouri, eight theatres; Al Boyd Theatres, Pennsylvania, five; Tanner Circuit, Illinois, five.

Circuits Book Republic

Circuits which have booked Republic product for the new season include Interstate Theatres of New England, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, 28 theatres; Butterfield, Michigan, 110 houses; RKO Metropolitan (New York City, 37; Sparks, Florida, 75. Previously it was announced that Republic had concluded a deal with the N. L. Nathanson Famous Players Canadian theatres, 275.

Twentieth Century-Fox Deals

Twentieth Century-Fox was reported to have concluded the following circuit deals: Balaban & Katz; Loew and RKO national circuits; Griffith Amusement Company, Oklahoma, Arizona, Kansas, Nebraska, Arkansas, 204 theatres; Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, 80; Butterfield, Michigan, 105; Harris Amusements Company, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, 14; Wometco, Florida, 19; Tri-States, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, 38; Wilmer & Vincent, Pennsylvania and Virginia, 20; Simmons, Salt Lake City; Robb & Rowley, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, 102. It was also reported that details of a deal with the Warner Brothers circuit are being negotiated. It was formerly reported that A. H. Blank, 26 theatres, had signed with Fox theatres. The company also has set a deal with the Frisina Circuit's 54 theatres in Illinois.

Monogram has closed a deal with the Newbolt circuit, 11 and the Black Diamond Company, 10 houses.

Warner Brothers Chicago exchange has concluded a deal with the Ewing Circuit, East Peoria. Other Warner deals include one with Associated Theatres, 24 houses.

Universal Sales in South

Universal circuit sales for the 1940-41 program include deals with the Wilby-Kincy circuit, North and South Carolina, and Georgia, 122; Interstate, Texas, New Mexico, 131 and Public-Branford, Asheville.

United Artists have closed a one-year deal with National Theatres, about 500 theatres in the West and mid-West.

Paramount and MGM were also reported to have concluded a deal with Naitonal Theatres.

Mohawk Sets Deals

Mohawk Pictures, which is handling 19 former Grand National features, has closed two distribution deals. Imperial and Superior Pictures have bought the group for Illinois, Indianapolis, Wisconsin and St. Louis and Atlantic Pictures for Louisiana and Mississippi.

Set Alliance Deal

Sol Edwards, sales head for Film Alliance, has closed with Loew's New York circuit to play "False Rapture," starring Otto Kruger and Mary Maguire.

CANDIDATE OFFERS FREE FILM SHOW

L. Anderson McDowell, Progressive candidate for the Wisconsin State Senate from the 12th District, has arranged a complete motion picture show, which includes late features and short subjects, as a campaign promoter. Mr. McDowell said he believes the public is more interested in a free show such as he has to offer rather than dry political speeches.

Berger, Former Leader, Leaves Northwest Allied

Indications of dissatisfaction within Allied Theatres of the Northwest culminated last week in the resignation of Bennie Berger, independent circuit operator and past president of the organization.

After the recent Minneapolis convention reports circulated that twin city exhibitors would secede from the unit to form their own association. In this connection it was said that the city showmen had individual problems not shared by rural theatre owners. Mr. Berger has been at odds with the administration of the unit since Fred Strom was chosen executive secretary over Ben Ashe, general manager of the Berger circuit, who had been substituting for W. A. Steffes, on sick leave.

16mm. Shows Scored

At a meeting of the newly elected board of governors held in the new quarters of the organization in the 100 North 7th Street Building, Minneapolis, it was decided to seek legislation at the next session of the Minnesota state legislature on the 16mm. problem. Members of the organization have been urged to send all facts and figures they can gather to the headquarters office.

The Fifth District of the organization held a meeting recently in Minneapolis under the leadership of S. G. Lebedoff, district governor, at which a resolution was adopted to be sent to the exchanges announcing that members would refuse pictures previously shown on a double bill. The group condemned dual features.

Eighteen of 21 exhibitor members attended the recent meeting of the Ninth District at Detroit Lakes, Minnesota, at which Andy Anderson presided. A resolution was passed endorsing the new officers and policies of northwest Allied.

Elect in North Dakota

At a meeting of the Independent Theatre Owners' Association of North Dakota, held at Mandan, Frank Wetzstein of the Mandan theatre, was elected governor from western North Dakota. Members were urged to join northwest Allied, but it was decided to retain the North Dakota organization for social reasons and to cope with such legislative matters as may be of interest only to North Dakota exhibitors. A resolution approving and pledging support to the new officers and policies of northwest Allied were passed.

At committee meetings held both in Duluth and Minneapolis, to consider terms of the consent decree, the opinion was expressed that many of the aims and objectives of northwest Allied would not be accomplished if the decree was signed in its present form.

Alliance Closes Deal

Alliance Film Corporation has closed a deal with Film Distributors Exchange in Portland, Ore., under which the exchange will handle the 10 Alliance feature releases in the Portland-Seattle territory.

ST. LOUIS OWNERS THREATEN BUYERS' STRIKE OVER F. & M. PRE-RELEASES

Circuit Says Roadshow Policy Was Adopted in Response to Industry-Wide Controversy Over Double Features

St. Louis and the surrounding countryside is on the verge of an exhibition war of serious potentialities. Sixty independent owners promise a film buyers' strike against any distributor acceding to Fanchon and Marco Circuit's petition for pre-release dates on all special productions, which F. and M. would play on single bills, at advanced admissions continuously on afternoons and at further increased admissions at a single, reserved seat performance evenings. The F. & M. idea is intended as a solution to local double and triple bills.

To Start Friday

F & M's special "streamlined" roadshow exhibition policy providing for continuous showing of "special" features only until 6:00 P. M. to be followed by one reserved-seat performance at 8:30 P. M. with a 75-cent top was scheduled to be adopted first Friday, August 23d, by the 3,108-seat Ambassador theatre, Fanchon & Marco house in downtown St. Louis.

The single-feature, advanced admission price policy was adopted, it was said, "in direct response to industry-wide discussion concerning the retention or abolishment of double-feature programs, and the need for American exhibitors to assist in making up the shrunken revenue of distributors' foreign markets."

"Gone With the Wind" was shown in many theatres on a basis similar to that being adopted as a regular policy by the Ambassador theatre where Warners' "The Sea Hawk" was scheduled to be the first presentation on the new single feature system. "The best available short subjects are to be used with the single picture," it was said.

Harry C. Arthur, general manager of Fanchon & Marco Service Corporation's 30 theatres, said:

Considering Plan for Months

"We have been considering the plan for months, and are now ready to put it to a test. If it succeeds, as we hope it will, it may well change the complexion of the entire film industry. If it fails, we shall have the satisfaction of having at least attempted to remedy a grave industry problem."

Producers and distributors have been asked by F. & M. to help by providing a pre-release of three to four weeks in the St. Louis territory for the films which are played under the special policy, so that there will be no simultaneous runs of the same picture on a semi-roadshow or any other basis in the same district. Also, Mr. Arthur wants a minimum of 50 to 60 days clearance over "grind" subsequent runs.

Pictures to be presented under the new policy are to be exclusively "those produced as 'specials' by the various studios and which are considered outstanding by motion picture executives."

Other films scheduled to be shown at the Ambassador on the roadshow policy are "The Letter," Bette Davis (Warners); "Brigham Young," Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell and Dean Jagger (Fox); "No Time for Comedy," Rosalind Russell and James Stewart (Warners); "Back Street" (Universal); "Glamour," Charles Boyer; "Lucky Partners," Ronald Colman and Ginger Rogers (RKO); "Spring Parade," Deanna Durbin (Universal); "Hudson's Bay Company," Paul Muni (Fox); "The Other Man," Charles Laughton and Carole Lombard (RKO); "Passport to Life," Cary Grant; "No, No, Nanette," Anna Neagle (RKO), and "Little Men" (RKO).

Admission prices under the plan are 50 cents orchestra and 35 cents balcony for matinees and 75 cents main floor-reserved seats and 50 cents balcony in the evening. Children will be admitted for 15 cents to all seats in the afternoon and to balcony seats in the evening. All prices include Federal and local taxes.

Independents Would Strike

Threats of the film-buying strike were made Monday by Fred Wehrenberg, head of the 25 independent theatres of the Wehrenberg-Kaimann circuit, and head of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association of Eastern Missouri and Illinois. Besides the Wehrenberg houses, some 35 other local independents would strike.

Mr. Wehrenberg said Harry Arthur had asked for an increase in clearance dates from 14 to 21 days between second run and subsequent runs at Mr. Wehrenberg's theatres.

Would Withdraw Purchases

He said he had threatened to withdraw purchases of all product from any film company entering into a deal with Mr. Arthur on the advance in clearance dates.

At the same time, Mr. Wehrenberg disclosed he had been negotiating with Mr. Arthur to discontinue the triple program policy now in effect at two of the F. & M. theatres' shows, but thus far his request has been rejected. The F. & M. Pageant and Aubert, according to Mr. Wehrenberg, still are featuring three films for a top price of 25 cents. Mr. Wehrenberg said he offered to stop giveaways at his Apollo—near the Pageant in West St. Louis—if Mr. Arthur would discontinue triple-programs at Pageant. He added that Mr. Arthur's answer was that if all the independents stopped giveaways at once the triple-program would be stopped. Mr. Wehrenberg declared this offer was unsatisfactory.

The independent theatre leader also said some of the F & M houses have been holding to a 15-cent top and this, too, was part of his talks with Mr. Arthur.

Mr. Wehrenberg said if it was necessary to carry out the strike against the distributors, the independents would go back to old films on triple programs for 10 cents.

Samuel Goldwyn may get vociferous support and instantaneous response at his double feature debate Saturday night, on a national network hookup, if the plans of Jack Kirsch, leader of Illinois Allied and active opponent of multiple bill programs, mature. After sending a congratulatory letter to Samuel Goldwyn last week, on the projected debate and for his recent statements and his article in the Saturday Evening Post, also assailing the practice, Mr. Kirsch, on Monday, was mulling a plan under which the Illinois Allied membership would be gathered to listen to the broadcast. At its conclusion they would send a telegram, signed by each member, supporting the producer in his fight against doubles and triples.

Hoblitzelle on Goldwyn Team

Mr. Goldwyn is scheduled to have as his partners in the attack on double bills, Karl Hoblitzelle, head of the Interstate circuit, of Texas, and Mrs. Leo B. Hedges, of the motion picture division of the Parent-Teachers' Association of Southern California; and, as opponents, I. E. Chadwick and Trem Carr, independent film producers, and Mrs. Arthur Beck, a housewife. The debate will be broadcast from 7:00 to 7:30 P. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, over the Columbia Broadcasting System national network.

Mr. Kirsch's letter to Mr. Goldwyn last week said that Illinois Allied was "for the producer 100 per cent."

Mr. Kirsch suggested Mr. Goldwyn ask his debate opponents whether they have tried, under a double bill regime, to have a motion picture theatre party, and to ask them "whether they were successful." He pointed out that during single feature days, he was able to promote theatre parties.

Mr. Kirsch last week received a reply to a telegram to Edward Small, in which he had pointed out to the producer that despite his opposition to double bills, a Small production, "My Son, My Son," had been shown on a triple feature bill at the Balaban and Katz Belmont Theatre, in Chicago. Mr. Small's answering telegram said:

"I very much appreciated receiving your recent telegram, as well as the information it contained. You may be assured I shall continue my efforts against the double bill."

Mr. Kirsch is preparing a Chicago theatres survey, on capacities, admissions, clearance, and other pertinent data, for presentation to industry leaders, in furtherance of his campaign to eliminate triples and doubles, and secure better clearance conditions and fairer competition for the independents.

Milwaukee To Single

Milwaukee county exhibitors will revert to single features on September 3d, it was agreed at a recent meeting. There are three exceptions, the Whitehouse, Atlas and Fern, independent exhibitor operated.

The circuits are agreeing to the policy. Circuits in the area are the Fox Wisconsin and Warner-Saxe.

Opposition was encountered from the local independent exchanges, who fear a drop in business.

Harry Perlewitz, business manager of the Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin, said, this week, that every effort would be made to include in the project, the three independent "hold-outs" and that the policy, if adhered to, and successful from a business viewpoint, would probably become general through the state.

TORONTO THEATRES HIT RELEASE DELAY

Toronto subsequent run exhibitors are in arms over a continued delay in releasing, claiming that a considerable number of features and shorts become obsolete before they are available to neighborhoods. Particularly, pictures having stories or themes dealing with the war are said to be out of date before they reach the suburbs and cannot be played because of the quickly changing scene in Europe. Other pictures featuring songs are no longer attractive because the songs are not in public favor by the time that small independent theatres can play them. A considerable loss in receipts and prestige is claimed by the exhibitors and a loss is also sustained by the film exchanges on this account, it is argued.

PROTEST BY UNIVERSAL ON TAX BILL WARNS OF "RUIN" FOR COMPANIES

Brief Filed with Congress Committee Attacks Proposed Method of Determining Earnings of Corporations

Application to the motion picture industry of excess profits taxes as laid down in legislation now before Congress may prove a greater burden than can be borne by companies whose revenues already have been greatly depleted by the loss of foreign markets, it was warned last week by Universal Pictures in a brief filed with the joint Senate-House committee considering the measure in Washington.

Warns of "Ruin"

"In a national emergency of the kind now confronting this country, every true American should willingly assume his share of any burdens which fall on its citizens," the brief asserted, adding that "Universal Pictures Co., Inc., is desirous of doing its share."

"The bill as now proposed, however," the committee was warned, "might very well ruin this company, which has no possible connection with defense activities."

The company made it clear that it had no quarrel with the proposed rates, running up to 40 per cent, but sought, rather, a modification of the provisions outlining the manner in which the basis for taxation is to be arrived at. Under the bill, as challenged by Universal, a corporation would be permitted to average its profits for any three of the four years, 1936-39, which average is to comprise the normal profit exempt from the tax.

Pointing out that it made a profit in 1939 for the first time since 1934, the company contended that corporations in such position should be permitted to select any one or more of the four years to be used as a basis for determination of earnings. In addition, it proposed that a corporation which does not benefit in any way from defense activities should be allowed a refund or credit to the extent of one-third of the excess profits tax, and that whatever rate of return on invested capital is to be allowed should be allowed with respect to both old and new capital, with allowance where there has been an impairment of capital, and a rate of not less than eight per cent.

War Hurts Business

"One of the industries which has been seriously damaged by the war and cannot possibly profit therefrom is the production and distribution of motion pictures, which relies on world-wide markets to be able to make a small percentage of profit on its turn-over, averaging less than eight per cent," it was explained. "Since the commencement of the war, the foreign markets have been disappearing one after the other, foreign currencies have depreciated extensively, many countries have placed embargoes on the export of currency and domestic costs have been rising. As a result, the picture is very uncertain, both from the point of view of reasonable profits and from the point of view of securing sufficient dollars to operate the business and continue the employment of the vast numbers currently employed in the industry. The figures for last year show that approximately 35 per cent of the gross revenues of such companies were derived from sources outside of the United States, a great part of which has already been eliminated.

"The proposed tax, if enacted without certain modification, will place a completely unjustifiable and unbearable burden upon Universal Pictures."

Pointing out that it has "just turned the corner" into profitable operation, the company protested that if its business and profits continued at the 1939 level, its income and excess profits taxes, under the bill as it now stands, would be $462,000, or 40.2 per cent, which, "with other taxes payable, comes close to confiscation," and would leave the company unable to meet its obligations and with grave doubt of its ability to continue in business.

Changes Studied

Not necessarily acting because of Universal Pictures' complaints against burdens of pending excess profits taxation, but acting immediately after the complaint brief was filed, the House Ways and Means Committee this week took up the matter of changing the method of computing average corporation earnings under the proposed bill.

The committee decided that corporations would be required to compute their average earnings over the base period, 1936-1939, inclusive, by dividing the four-year period into the total amount of earnings.

If the corporation had a loss in one or more of those years, such deficit years would be treated as zero years in the computation. For example, if the corporation earned $50,000 in 1936, lost $50,000 in 1937 and gained $50,000 in 1938 and 1939, its total earnings of $150,000 would be divided by four, to give an average of $37,500. The deficit year would be treated as though the corporation had broken even.

The committee previously had voted to allow corporations to take any three of the four years of the base period in computing average earnings.

The change, it was said, would add about $58,000,000 in revenue for 1940, bringing the estimated yield for this year to $165,000,000.

The committee was said to have received assurances from the National Defense Advisory Commission that there was no particular hurry for the legislation, since contractors, relying upon promises of tax credits for amortization of defense plant expansions, had removed the "bottleneck" by agreeing to go ahead.

But from the Army there was said to have come a complaint that plant expansions, particularly in the aviation industry, were being held up until the terms of the excess profits tax bill were known.

The committee members indicated, however, that ample time would be allowed to draft the measure to care for many of the "hardship" cases presented by corporations.

EDITORIAL DECRIES NEWSREEL HISSING

Hissing has brought editorial censure from the Philadelphia Inquirer. In an editorial, under date of August 13th, the newspaper says:

"Whether it's the war, the political campaign, the heat or the humidity that's to blame, the hissing of prominent individuals portrayed on movie screens is causing increased annoyance to patrons and the practice should be stopped.

"Persons go to the movies to relax and be entertained, not to hear others give vent to their pet prejudices and animosities. No form of interruption should be tolerated for a moment, and least of all when it descends to such sheer and disgusting vulgarity."

The editorial states that it is a matter plainly under the control of theatre managers, "who can call upon the authorities, if necessary, to insure order in their houses."

West Virginia Unit Meets Next Week

The West Virginia Managers' Association will holds its convention at White Sulphur Springs Tuesday and Wednesday. J. C. Shanklin, chairman convention arrangements, in a letter addressed to members, said Edward L. Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, would speak. It is expected that Senator M. M. Neely, proponent of the anti-block booking bill, also will address the convention.

The entertainment and reception committee consists of Lester Rosenfeld, chairman; W. B. Hines, Okey Ward, D. E. Brown, Gene Hensley and C. E. Kuhn. The ladies' entertainment and reception committee: Mrs. P. M. Thomas, chairman; Mrs. L. E. Rogers, Mrs. J. C. Shanklin, Mrs. W. B. Hines, Mrs. Okey Ward and Mrs. D. S. MacQueen.

Fox Midwest Convention Held in Kansas City

The ninth annual convention of Fox Midwest Theatres was held Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hotel Muehlebach in Kansas City. The meeting was attended by 150 managers and executives from the more than 100 houses in Kansas, Missouri, Southern Illinois and Iowa, and by Spyros Skouras, head of National Theatres, parent circuit and Charles Skouras, manager of Fox West Coast.

At the opening session Tuesday morning Elmer C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest division manager, discussed plans for the coming season where showmanship and efficiency in operations will continue to be the general policies. On Wednesday district meetings were held, prizes were awarded in the Skouras Showmanship campaign. In the afternoon there was a golf tournament, followed by a steak dinner given by Mr. Rhoden.

Nominate Edward Arnold

The nominating committee of the Screen Actors Guild Monday night, in Hollywood, nominated Edward Arnold for president; George Murphy, Paul Harvey, and Walter Abel, for vice-president; Lucille Gleason, for recording secretary; and Porter Hall, for treasurer. Elections are expected September 15th.

UA Circuit Declares Dividend

The directors of United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc. declared Tuesday the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the five per cent preferred stock, payable September 15th to stockholders of record September 3rd.

25th Anniversary
MOTION PICTURE HERALD

Martin Quigley

HARRY C. ARTHUR, JR.
St. Louis

"No one individual has earned a more highly-esteemed place in the cinema sun than Martin Quigley, whose devotion of one quarter-of-a-century to the steady improvement of motion pictures has had an indelible effect upon everyone concerned, upon matters ranging from sales policies governing distributor-exhibitor relationships, to the moral soundness of film product and the practical exploitation and publicizing of that product in theatres throughout the world.

"His keen, clear mind, and honest criticisms, set forth in unmistakable print week in and week out, have given to us all the benefit of his pointed observations.

" 'Tearing down' is a common fault of many who find negative criticism an easy road to renown. Such is not a possession of Martin Quigley, who writes without rancor or prejudice, whose criticisms pull no punches, yet which constantly strive to view matters from a constructive viewpoint."

A. H. BLANK
Des Moines

"All of the amazing developments within the motion picture industry are commonly taken with too little genuine enthusiasm. We are living and experiencing these developments and naturally we cannot see the forest for the trees. It is so with our industry's keen appreciation of Martin Quigley. We take him and his tremendous service to motion pictures too much for granted. We seldom take time to genuinely admire the courage and the foresight with which he has directed the policies of his publications. His faith in, and love for, motion pictures have enabled him to foresee the dangers that threaten the industry, and without fear of failure or criticism he has ventured out to chart a safe course. It is to his credit that many in the industry have not always agreed with him and his policies, but always he refused to be swayed and his persistence has invariably proved his keen judgment, his broad vision and his high courage. When the development of our industry is recorded in motion picture history, Martin Quigley's name with his career will stand out from the accomplishments of the truly great, high and proud and magnificent!"

PHILLIP CHAKERES
Springfield, Ohio

"Martin Quigley's contributions through his publications in the last quarter of a century will always be symbolic in the minds of all of us as how a great showman has contributed his time and efforts to help build this industry to its place in the world today."

CHARLES R. GILMOUR
Denver

"We feel a deep obligation to Mr. Quigley and his very capable staff for the fine job they have done in presenting facts concerning our industry as they saw them, particularly in the issuance of the Better Theatres section of the Herald, which has been responsible for many constructive changes in our operations."

L. C. GRIFFITH
Oklahoma City

"Martin Quigley has contributed as much, or possibly more than any other executive in the industry to the end of making the motion picture industry one of the foremost of all industries. By his ceaseless labors he has been able to write editorials that give a clear understanding of all important matters that have come before the industry through the years; and, in my opinion, these have helped all men in all branches of the industry to understand the viewpoints of the other about most everything."

JOHN H. HARRIS
Pittsburgh

"I first heard about Martin Quigley from my father, Senator John P. Harris. In the years that have passed since I myself became actively engaged in the motion picture business, I have found Martin Quigley's editorial policies consistently fair, unbiased, and at all times considerate of the proper advancement of the motion picture industry."

25th Anniversary

VINCENT R. McFAUL
Buffalo

"Martin Quigley's work in this industry has been constructive throughout. I consider his two mediums, 'Motion Picture Herald' and 'Motion Picture Daily,' of great value to us in the theatre operating end of the business particularly. He attacks sincerely the destructive forces that from time to time show up in our business, but always with sensible, constructive arguments, never in a radical or troublesome manner."

M. J. MULLIN
Boston

"Martin Quigley and Motion Picture Herald have been guide and inspiration to showmen since the inception of motion pictures. We salute their twenty-five years of service to a grateful industry."

CHARLES ROTH
Harrisonburg, Va.

"It is impossible to evaluate the excellent service Martin Quigley has rendered to exhibitors and the trade, generally, with his outstanding publications, as well as his personal service and interest in all matters which have affected the motion picture industry."

SPYROS P. SKOURAS
New York

"From its humble and obscure beginning the Motion Picture Industry in the short span of a lifetime has risen to heights that the most optimistic could never foresee. That development and the policies that assured it are traceable to men like Martin Quigley.

"In its early stages confused or avaricious trends would have irreparably injured this Industry's growth. Temptations were many and the monetary inducements, however questionable, were strong. It took courage to advocate then the same policies that now identify our Industry with the most wholesome agencies of consequence in building character and disseminating culture.

"It was Martin Quigley's inspiring and tireless efforts that brought this about. It was his all-consuming devotion to the welfare and progress of our Industry that it owes to him in large measure the esteemed position it occupies in the eyes of the world today."

TONY SUDEKUM
Nashville

"The splendid constructive work of Martin Quigley for the past twenty-five years, as evidenced in the policies of Motion Picture Herald, should be recognized by all those who are in any way connected with the industry, and I want you to know that his work is appreciated by me, and I am grateful for his accomplishments in improving the various phases of this field of endeavor."

WALTER VINCENT
New York

"Martin Quigley has been a leader with vision and with courage, and I trust that the policy that has obtained with the Motion Picture Herald will continue."

R. B. WILBY
Atlanta

"It is only complimenting my own perception to say that I feel that Martin Quigley has been a highly valuable asset to this industry, for his papers have not only furnished a valuable service to the individual retailer struggling with the operation of his theatre but he has been a fine and constructive influence in the industry as a whole."

'BRIGHAM YOUNG' IN SIX SALT LAKE THEATRES

Record Claimed for Location Premiere; "Pastor Hall" Opens; "Kit Carson" Set

Bigger and better ballyhoo was claimed this week by Twentieth Century-Fox for the location premiere of its "Brigham Young" Friday night in six theatres at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Meanwhile other companies sought and received much press and public attention with similar premieres in the field, test runs, sneak previews and claims of record grosses.

Other Openings Set

Premiere news of the week included the following:

Edward Small's United Artists release, "Kit Carson," opens with a blaze of attention in Denver next Monday.

MGM's "Boom Town" test runs have been extended from one to three weeks in many spots.

Paramount is planning a big advertising campaign and a world premiere for its "Northwest Mounted Police," following a sneak preview in San Diego Sunday night.

James Roosevelt's United Artists release, "Pastor Hall" opened in Philadelphia Thursday night, amid much discussion.

MGM's "Pride and Prejudice" in its first week scored the biggest grosses for August in the eight-year records of the Radio City Music Hall.

Warner Brothers has chosen South Bend, Indiana, for the premiere on October 4th, of its "Knute Rockne—All American."

Board chairman Herbert J. Yates, of Republic, has set the highest advertising and publicity budget in the company's history for "Hit Parade of 1941."

For the Hollywood press Paramount staged a junket to Del Mar where "Rhythm on the River" was previewed and RKO was host at a sweepstakes party at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, on behalf of its "Lucky Partners."

Fox's Six Theatres

The use by Twentieth Century-Fox of six theatres for its "Brigham Young" world premiere in Salt Lake City on Friday night was said to have been dictated by the demand for tickets, only three theatres having been planned at first. The six theatres are the Utah, Capitol, Centre, Paramount, Victory and Studio.

The admission price for the premiere is $1.10. The six theatres have a total seating capacity of 7,734. The picture will continue its run, after the premiere, at the Center, in which the admission prices have been advanced 25 per cent for matinees, and 33-1/3 per cent for evenings.

Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Mary Astor, and other Fox players were scheduled to appear in these theatres on Friday evening. Also expected from the film industry, for the premiere, were Sidney Kent, president of the company; Herman Wobber, general sales manager; Charles E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity; and Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production.

"Carson" Denver Opening

Approximately 50,000 persons are expected to view the celebrations next Monday in Denver, attendant to the premiere of "Kit Carson" that night in four of the city's theatres, the Denver, Broadway, Paramount, and Rialto.

The city's Chamber of Commerce has invited the governors of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming to a luncheon on that day, at which will be present Hollywood stars who will make personal appearances at the premiere. Among these stars will be Anita Louise, Olympa Bradna, Carole Landis, Simone Simon, Fay Wray, Bruce Cabot, Jon Hall, Jack La Rue, William Farnum, and Raymond Hatton.

"Boom Town" Test Runs

On Monday, Joseph R. Vogel, Loew's theatre official, announced that MGM's policy of test-running its "Boom Town" to determine public reaction and price policies, had resulted in third-week holdovers in Harrisburg, New Orleans, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Reading. Other test runs are in their second week. All of the runs are at advanced admissions, 25 per cent for matinees, and 33⅓ per cent for evenings.

In the nine cities "Boom Town" grossed $155,475. This compares with first week's business in the same cities and theatres of $117,865 for "San Francisco"; $109,083 for "Test Pilot"; $104,931 for "Boys Town"; $98,442 for "Babes in Arms," and $88,498 for "Northwest Passage."

In Oklahoma City, "Boom Town," in its first two days, played to 260 per cent of normal business. Its two-day gross beat five days of "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," four days of a Christmas engagement of "Judge Hardy and Son" and five days of "Maytime."

"Pastor Hall" Opening

James Roosevelt's United Artists' release, the British-made anti-Nazi film "Pastor Hall," was scheduled to open at the Warner circuit's Aldine Theatre, in Philadelphia, on Thursday, despite announced displeasure of that city's Musicians' Local 77, which has been striking against the Warner theatres there for nine months.

Elliott and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., were to attend the Philadelphia premiere. James Roosevelt is ill in California.

Warners' "Rockne" Plans

Warner Brothers have selected South Bend, Indiana, home of Notre Dame University, for the premiere, on October 4th, of "Knute Rockne—All-American," in three theatres of the Great States Theatres circuit, the Palace, State, and Colfax. Dave Wallerstein, of the circuit, and Jesse Pavey, mayor of South Bend, flew to California last week to confer with Warner studio people on premiere plans.

October 4th, a Friday, will be the eve of a football game between Notre Dame and the College of the Pacific, the latter coached by Alonzo A. Stagg, pioneer football coach, and formerly of the University of Chicago. The conjunction of names and games is expected to draw a tremendous crowd to the premiere. Pat O'Brien, the picture's star, is a native of Milwaukee, and attended Marquette University there.

Zagras, Braeunig Named

Charles Zagrans has been appointed RKO branch manager at Philadelphia, succeeding F. L. McNamee, resigned. Mr. Zagrans, the former office manager there, was president of the Philadelphia Film Board of Trade in 1926.

Adolph F. Braeunig, office manager in the RKO Cleveland branch, has been promoted to home office representative, succeeding John A. Downing, who was transferred to Boston.

BUILDING PLANS SET BY FOX WEST COAST

Fox West Coast will spend more than usual this year for repairs and rehabilitation of theatre properties. The circuit has under way a program of improvement at 10 California houses, in addition to construction of two theatres. Work started so far this year calls for an expenditure of about $500,000. A normal year's outlay is in the neighborhood of $350,000.

Song Writers Attack BMI

The Song Writers' Protective Association, through its president Irving Caesar, has entered the dispute between the radio industry and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers by issuing a statement attacking Broadcast Music, Inc., the broadcasters' music company.

Contracts Compared

Mr. Caesar compared the Standard Uniform Popular Songwriters Contract formulated by the Song Writers' Protective Association with the one being used by BMI and said that in the BMI contract "there have been eliminated those provisions which give to the writer a fair voice in the utilization of his creative efforts, and the provisions for a share in all moneys from sources now known or hereafter to come into existence. Such things as royalties from the sale or licenses to use titles, electrical transcriptions, dramatizations, television and numerous other sources of possible revenue now known or hereafter to be discovered are kept by BMI without a division with the writers."

Song writers would welcome BMI or any other new publishing firm because the more publishers the more outlets for songs, Mr. Caesar said. But, he added, the writers can not determine where BMI, the music publisher, ends and BMI, the radio organization, dominated by the networks begins.

Broadcast Music, Inc. is continuing negotiations with motion picture companies for the use of its music in pictures. On Tuesday BMI claimed that one deal had been arranged. BMI offers special radio plugging of its tunes used in films, especially after January 1st, if ASCAP music is not carried by the networks.

Young Still Sues RKO

Continuing a case instituted in 1933 which has never reached trial, James Young, suing the RKO Pathe Pictures, Inc., and Adela Rogers St. John, on Monday, in New York Supreme Court sought permission to examine Herman Zohbel, treasurer of RKO Pathe. The suit is for $2,000,000, and asserts the defendants plagiarized Mr. Young's story. "What Price Sex in Hollywood" for RKO's "What Price Hollywood." Mrs. St. John has never been served with the suit, and the action against another defendant, the RKO Corporation, has been discontinued.

French Films Rights

Sabers Films, Inc., has acquired distribution rights in North and South America to five French films, according to the company. The films are "Berlingot et Cie," "La Goualeuse," "Viages de Femmes," "Jeunes Filles Dem Paris" and Gigolette."

Realign Schine Operating Setup

A new setup of operations of the Schine Circuit was announced in Gloversville, N. Y., Tuesday, August 19th, by J. Meyer Schine, president of Schine Enterprises. The changes embrace the three divisions of the circuit in which are about 170 theatres.

The most important of the changes is the appointment of Gus Lampe, for nine years city manager of the Schine-RKO theatres in Syracuse, N. Y., as head of a new division comprising territory including Maryland and Delaware, Northern New York and the Mohawk Valley. Mr. Lampe will have his headquarters in Gloversville.

Major Louis Lazar will remain in charge of the Ohio-Kentucky territory. Frank M. Boucher heads the Western New York division and, in addition, will supervise all zone operations.

Mr. Schine announced that no employee of the circuit would lose his position should he be called for military training. An unconditional guarantee was given that employees would have their jobs back when they return from duty.

Cammack to Argentina; Nat Liebeskind Resigns

Ben Y. Cammack, formerly assistant to Phil Reisman, RKO vice-president in charge of foreign sales, left New York this week for Buenos Aires, where he will succeed Nat Liebeskind as the company's manager for the Argentine, Uruguay, and Paraguay. Mr. Liebeskind has resigned.

Mr. Cammack, a brother-in-law of Ned Depinet, vice-president of RKO in charge of sales, has been in the film industry since 1916, when he started as a poster clerk with the General Film Company, in Dallas. He has been branch manager in Atlanta and district manager in Pittsburgh for Universal In 1934, he joined RKO, after opening the Argentina, Brazil, and Chile offices of the company, under Mr. Reisman's direction. He became South American supervisor, and then Mr. Reisman's assistant at the New York home office.

Renew Altec Service

Sam Bendheim, Jr., has renewed an Altec service agreement for Neighborhood Theatres, Inc., operating 24 theatres in Richmond, Arlington, Clarendon, Falls Church, East Falls Church, Petersburg, Pulaski and South Boston, Va. E. O. Wilschke negotiated for Altec.

Schedule Golf Tourney

The Warner Club of New York will hold its annual golf tournament September 12th at the Old Oaks Country Club, Purchase, N. Y. The committee includes Jerry Keyser, chairman; Harold Rodner, Arthur Sachson, Leonard Palumbo and Abe Kronenberg.

Commonwealth Meet Sept. 11-12

The annual Fall convention of partners and managers of the Commonwealth theatre group has been changed from September 4th and 5th to September 11th and 12th. The meeting will be held at the Hotel President in Kansas City.

ARBITRATION ENFORCED BY FEDERAL, STATE LAWS

Oklahoma, South Dakota, Only States Where Claims of Less Than $3,000 Do Not Stand

Federal law provides for enforcement of all arbitration claims of more than $3,000 in interstate commerce—and motion pictures are in interstate commerce—and all states except Oklahoma and South Dakota have statutes for the enforcement of abritration claims of less than $3,000.

This is where the arbitration of motion picture trade disputes stands as both Government, as prosecutor, and major distributors, as defendants in the key U. S. antitrust action continue to weigh a consent decree settlement (see page 8) which would include arbitration.

7,000 Arbitrators Available

Arbitration of disputes arising between exhibitors and distributors under the present tentative consent decree would be supervised by the American Arbitration Association, a non-profit, membership organization which maintains a system of voluntary arbitration covering 1,600 cities in the United States and has available, for services as arbitrators, 7,000 selected men.

The exact arbitration machinery which would be set up, if a consent decree is signed by some or all of the companies, has not yet been definitely decided. An indication of the machinery which would be used is given in section X of the proposed consent decree published in the August 10th issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

Under that plan 10 neutral arbitrators would be selected by the American Arbitration Association for service in each of the 33 exchange territories in the United States. If arbitration is required to settle a dispute arising from the decree both parties would be asked to mutually agree to one of the neutral arbitrators in the panel in the exchange district where the exhibitor has his theatre. If no agreement is reached within a reasonable time the Association would select the arbitrator. The arbitration machinery would be supervised by the American Arbitration Association and financed by payments by the distributors and filing fees paid by the exhibitor making the complaint.

The American Arbitration Association was founded in 1926, a consolidation of several earlier arbitration groups. The Association's purpose is to provide a ready and inexpensive method of solving disputes arising over contracts without long litigation, unfavorable publicity and loss to both parties. Officers of the Association are Franklin E. Parker, Jr., president; Lucius R. Eastman, chairman of the board; Frances Kellor, first vice-president; Hermann Irion, vice-president; Charles T. Gwynne, vice chairman of the board; Samuel McRoberts, treasurer; George Backer, secretary of the board; Lee J. Eastman, chairman, Trade Board; George A. Brownell, chairman, arbitration committee; C. V. Whitney, chairman, board of liaison officers, and J. Noble Braden, executive secretary.

Recognized by Federal Law

Arbitration is recognized by Federal law and the laws of 46 of the 48 States. A dispute involving over $3,000 in interstate commerce comes under the Federal law which permits contracts to have a clause which states that all future disputes arising from the contract will be arbitrated. The following 13 States have a similar law: Arizona, California, Connecticut, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. Under the United States Arbitration Law and the law of those States an arbitration provision is legally enforceable by the court.

The procedure is as follows: the dispute is arbitrated, an award is made, court confirmation and entry of judgment are made. After this the award is collected in the same way a regular judgment of a court is collected.

All the States with the exception of South Dakota and Oklahoma have laws which state that if a "submission agreement" is signed by both parties an existing dispute may be arbitrated. In other words in almost every State after a contract dispute has arisen it can be submitted to arbitration, if both sides agree.

Motion picture contract disputes can be submitted to arbitration in every state if the amount involved is over $3,000, it was said, because motion pictures come under interstate commerce. When a smaller sum is involved the award made under arbitration is enforceable except in the two states mentioned above.

The court gives decision of arbitrators the same status as judgments of the courts, if the arbitration was properly conducted and both parties received a fair and impartial hearing. If, after voluntarily agreeing to arbitration and then changing his mind, a man brought suit, it was said that the case would be thrown out of court. However, if coercion was used in obtaining an arbitration clause or an agreement to submit to arbitration, the action could be held void by the courts.

Machinery in Action

The American Arbitration Association handles contract disputes arising in many industries and also many that arise between companies and their employes or a union. Some local motion picture disputes have been arbitrated by members of the Association's panel of arbitrators. Actors' Equity contracts regularly include an arbitration clause recommended by the Association.

Under the proposed arbitration machinery a dispute arising out of the consent decree between an exhibitor and a distributor would be handled in the following way: the exhibitor would inform the secretary of the arbitration board set up in the local exchange district by the American Arbitration Association of the nature of the controversy; next a hearing would be arranged for a time and place appointed by the neutral arbitrator or one agreed to by all parties; at the hearing the parties may or may not be represented by counsel.

Cleaning Book Issued

Efficient and economical methods of cleaning are discussed in a booklet prepared especially for the managements and staffs of motion picture theatres by the appliance and merchandise department of the General Electric Company. The booklet, which is illustrated in Better Theatres, accompany this issue of the HERALD, contains 12 pages. It is issued free to operators and managers of theatres.

New Trenton Theatre

John J. O'Connor, general manager of RKO Theatres, said this week that the RKO Trent theatre in Trenton, N. J., will be closed Labor Day. It will be demolished and a new Trent theatre, seating 1,000, will be built for opening Christmas Day. The new theatre will be operated by RKO, through the Trent-New Brunswick company.

ADMISSION PRICES UNCHANGED IN ALL BUT 21 TO 40 CENT RANGE

Survey Shows Wide Variations in First- and Subsequent-Run Prices in Different Cities; 42 Territories Covered

Two months have passed since the Federal Government enacted the new Defense Act tax on admissions, during which exhibitors apparently have had sufficient time to stabilize their scales. It is now found that by far the large majority operating within the 21 to 40-cent scale continue with increased prices of from three to four cents, which is the tax they are collecting from the public. Scales remain at about the same in the range up to 20 cents, to which houses the new tax was not applied; and are also unchanged at the higher bracket theatres, charging above 41 cents, which was taxed previously.

A survey of the motion picture admission price structure in 42 of the principal cities of the United States shows not only considerable variation in subsequent run admission charges but also wide differences in prices at first run houses in a number of cities.

First run admission prices generally range from a minimum of 15¢ to a maximum of 66¢ for matinees, and evening prices run as high as 88¢.

Second run scales generally are 15¢ to 40¢ for matinees and 15¢ to 68¢ at night.

Neighborhood or subsequent houses, many operating only in the evening, usually ask from ten cents to 46¢.

Loge seats in a few of the largest cities raise the top cost of regular admittance to a maximum of $1.65, as at the Radio City Music Hall. Higher prices for special roadshow runs, as at the Astor theatre New York, were not considered in the survey.

Children's Price 10¢

The admission price for children in an overwhelming majority of the nation's theatres is 10¢ at all times. Only important first run and certain "class houses" get more than that low price from children. In many cities all the theatres, first or last run, charge the same price of 10¢ for children.

The average top evening admission price in the 42 cities is just under a half dollar. Maximum evening prices of regular seats run from 88¢ at the Music Hall in New York to 44¢ charged in many key cities. Besides New York cities where high first run evening prices are obtained are Chicago (75¢), Philadelphia (68¢), Detroit (65¢) and Buffalo (60¢). Cities where the top price is about 40¢, without the Federal tax, include Syracuse, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Tampa, Utica, Schenectady, Richmond, Wilmington, Birmingham, Troy, Albany, Lincoln, Des Moines, Springfield, Omaha, Charlotte, Denver, New Orleans and Indianapolis.

A study of admission prices shows that the new Defense Tax has increased the number of theatres with odd-penny scales. The worst situation in this regard are Salt Lake City and St. Louis where mills in addition to odd pennies figure in the admission price. The top price at Salt Lake City is 44¢ and 8 mills which is the same figure charged by a number of first run houses in St. Louis.

Despite a few theatres with high prices in some important centers more theatre patrons are now paying 25¢ plus the 3¢ defense tax than any other admission fee. This price will admit one to theatres of all types.

Following is a city-by-city report on the motion picture ticket price structure in 43 representative areas of the country:

Scale of Price Ranges for All Runs In 42 Important Cities of Country

The following table shows the range of admission prices for first, second and subsequent run houses in 43 important cities. The first range given in each case, followed by (m), is the matinee price; the second, followed by (e), is the evening price. Children's prices, with few exceptions, are 10 cents.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Many in the motion picture industry still visit much with, talk a lot to Joseph Patrick Kennedy, Ambassador of the United States to the Court of St. James in London, on matters cinema. He, too, has had quite some dealings with the motion picture industry, the last of which was his sympathy to the cause of American distributors' liquidation of "frozen" cash in England. Before that there was corporate and financial business in and with FBO, Pathe, Paramount. Also, he produced some Gloria Swanson pictures for release through United Artists. American film men in London, Tuesday, headed by Fayette Allport, Hays representative there, presented Mr. Kennedy with a check for $54,000 to aid in relieving and protecting the English civilian population.

All of which brings us to the month's book publishers of new books, which lists Why England Slept, by John F. Kennedy. He's the young son of Ambassador Kennedy. Wilfred Funk, Inc., publisher, describes the book as revealing "the tragic course which Britain and France have followed since 1934—why that course could end only in tragedy—and why America is taking exactly the same path!"

Foreword to Young Kennedy's book is by Henry R. Luce, head of Time, Inc.

Simultaneously, the same publisher issued another document, by George Britt, called star reporter for the New York World-Telegram, and entitled: The Fifth Column Is Here!—being "a study of Hitler's blue print for the conquest of America."

Just when we were beginning to believe that scientific refrigeration had eliminated that old American institution called the iceman, along comes the Fox theatre in St. Louis, in conjunction with the National Association of Ice Industries, putting on a contest to select "the most handsome iceman."

Sound Department:

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company offshoot in theatre sound servicing known as The Altec Service Corporation, dispatches to the press this "immediate release": "The stork dropped a bundle of static at the home of V. A. Carpenter, Altec service inspector in Indianapolis. It's a boy."

Our correspondent, Aubrey Flanagan, in London, passing newsvendors, the other morning, outside the London Pavilion, noted that the first five handscrawled placards read in sequence as follows:

ITALIAN ARMY SMASHES INTO SOMALILAND
EGYPT TOLD TO EXPECT IMMEDIATE ATTACK
WAR BLAZES IN THE NEAR EAST
THE BATTLE FOR BRITAIN
COMPLETE AMUSEMENT GUIDE

In what was described as "a setting of iridescent splendor," Hollywood's first television wedding occurred last week, with, according to Station W6XAO's official statement, more than 1,500 "lookers" watching the ceremony.

The bride, 19 and said to be a debutante, wore the traditional costume of white satin. The bridegroom, 26, is a Los Angeles dental laboratory operator, who also contributed a script to the proceedings, said to contain several dramatic sequences. However, owing to the excitement of the occasion, both technical and bridal, the script was not used.

BEN M. COHEN is now a full-fledged exhibitor in India! In the India that is thousands of years older than the United States, older than the New Haven of Connecticut which Mr. Cohen left some three years ago, voluntarily transferring from the management of Loew's College theatre in that city to manage Loew's-Metro theatres in India.

Mr. Cohen periodically reports in detail on showmanship in the country of his new post, to MOTION PICTURE HERALD'S Managers Round Table. His latest report is now in hand (see page 81).

Theatre operating is commercially interesting in India, writes Mr. Cohen. There, the management makes money "coming and going," he says. For example: Admission prices are collected, then, after the performance is under way for a short while, an intermission is declared so that the audience can retire to the theatre bar for a Scotch and soda. During this intermission, commercial slides are put on for those remaining in the auditorium—and the theatre collects for the advertising on the slides, too.

Formerly, theatres with bars—and they are numerous, apparently—interrupted a feature right smack in the middle in order to hustle the customers off to the refreshment stand. Now, most of the exhibitors do not break into the picture for the "intermission."

"It affects the bar business if the interval comes too close to the beginning of the show," Mr. Cohen writes, explaining, that, "Experts agree that the patrons do not get thirsty for a whiskey-and-soda unless they have been sitting for at least half-an-hour." Mr. Cohen and his exhibitor colleagues will undoubtedly find business booming during his company's four-hour-long "Gone With the Wind."

Mr. Cohen finds India a showman's paradise for holidays—there are 27 important ones, holidays which bring large crowds, large returns.

They get more for balcony seats over there than for downstairs, and—American exhibitors, please note—Mr. Cohen in his three years in India has not once encountered any of the petty rackets such as damage suits for clothing torn on seats, falls by patrons, etc., which are a plague to exhibitors in the U. S.

Power failure brings no concerted foot-stamping, derisive whistling or hand-clapping accompanied by shouts of "We want our money back," in Mr. Cohen's India. His first experience with a dark house astounded him when the Indians sat for one-half hour without any visible complaint until the show was resumed.

Aside to Lou Pollock, Universal's eastern press agent:

Reading galley proofs, the other night, of MOTION PICTURE HERALD'S review of your company's "When the Daltons Rode," Fred Kellogg, one of our proofreaders, reminisced a bit to our night editor about "the old days" when he was a reporter in the west and was sent to Leavenworth Federal jailhouse to interview Emmett Dalton, of the four brothers who terrorized the Kansas countryside and Kansas plains in the 1800's, plundering trains, banks and stagecoaches.

Louella Parsons and President Roosevelt had better get together.

Mr. Roosevelt, pushing mobilization for defense, insists that American soldiers won't be sent to Europe to fight. Miss Parsons, Hearst motion picture editor, explaining Hollywood's mobilization of studio technicians and cameramen for a U. S. Army defense unit, quotes Major Nathanson Levinson, of Warners, who is organizing the unit, as explaining that the group "will make newsreels of the happenings in Europe!"

There is no connection whatever to the motion picture industry in "Stray Stories'" story of a certain typographical error in a small town paper, but, regardless, here it is:

> "Our paper carried the notice last week that Mr. John Doe is a defectvie in the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Doe is a detective in the police farce."

You'll be seeing some eerie effects in RKO's new "Stranger on the Third Floor." A new paint makes the floors of rooms invisible to the camera so that players appear to be walking around in space.

The New York unit of CAR is open to all licensed pilots who have flown the required 35 hours for "private" or "primary" ratings. Any eligibles should contact Tobias at the New York Exchange of Monogram.

The Old Subscribers' Roll Call

In connection with the preparation of the forthcoming special issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of Martin Quigley's service in the journalism of the screen, a recording of the older subscribers to the publications of the House of QP is being compiled.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD is prideful of the fact that its subscription rolls of today include the names of men who have been identified with the motion picture from the earliest days of organized exhibition—some of whose names were first inscribed on the rolls of Moving Picture World, beginning in 1907 and acquired by The Herald in 1928, and Motion Picture News, absorbed by The Herald in 1930—all today fused into the institution of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

It is desired to hear from those older subscribers from such a period as fifteen years ago, on back to the beginning. To make response convenient, a reply coupon is offered:

Pooling Deal in Atlantic City

A pooling arrangement involving the majority of theatres in Atlantic City has been worked out between the Stanley-Warner Brothers and Weilland-Lewis interests, representing 10 houses. Motivated by economic conditions at the summer resort, the deal involves Warners' Stanley, Warner, Colonial, Virginia and Weilland-Lewis' Apollo, Strand, Embassy, Capitol, Margate and Ventnor.

In previous years most of the houses closed for the winter months but they kept open last year at the request of city authorities desirous of developing a year-round patronage at the resort. Motion picture business in Atlantic City has been slipping steadily for the past several years because of overseating.

Terms of the deal indicate which houses will close when the slack season sets in, at which houses all first and subsequent runs will be played for greater returns and a corresponding correction of clearance problems. The pool is for a trial period with option of renewal. A committee operating the pooled interests will be headed by Joseph Bernhard, Warner theatres general manager, and George Weilland, representing the independent circuit.

Pathe Film Reports Six Months Profit

Pathe Film Corporation reports a net profit for the six months ended June 30th last, of $53,722, which compares with a net of $35,310 for the corresponding period of 1939. DuPont Film Manufacturing Company, 35 per cent of whose common stock is owned by Pathe Film, had a net profit for the period this year, after all charges, of $909,210, which compares with net profit for the same period last year of $826,412.

The portion of the DuPont earnings which accrued to Pathe Film through its stock interest amounted to $318,223 this year, as compared to $289,244 in the 1939 period. Of these earnings, $248,223 were undistributed in 1940 and $219,244 in 1939. These undistributed amounts are not reflected in Pathe's net profit statement.

At Universal 25 Years

Ethel Black, purchasing department aid at the Universal Pictures New York home office, on Wednesday celebrated her 25th anniversary with the firm. Her associates tendered her a luncheon and she was greeted by Charles D. Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel; Matthew Fox, vice-president; Samuel Machnovitch, treasurer, and Peyton Gibson, secretary. In behalf of the chairman of the board of directors, J. Cheever Cowdin, and the president, Nate Blumberg, she was presented with a check from the firm.

Carl Peppercorn has become the new head booker and office manager at the RKO Pittsburgh exchange. He was formerly in that post at the company's Oklahoma office.

INDIANA OWNERS HIT 16MM SHOWS, LISTING 143 UNITS IN THEIR STATE

Association Warns Members of "Menace" in Bulletin Reporting Survey of Operations; Use of New Features in Shows Scored

Theatre Owners of Indiana again are attacking 16mm film exhibitions in what is to be "unrelentless warfare" to stamp out the unfair competitive aspects of the practice, conducted mostly by gypsy showmen for lower than regular admissions and by other itinerants who put on local shows for merchants, without charge to the public.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD on May 25th, pages 13-14, reported that more than 200 regular features were being shown by 16mm showmen, 40 of them produced in 1939.

Survey Made

Firing another broadside at 16mm competition, Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, in Indianapolis, has released the results of a survey of the field from which it gathered data showing that 16mm films are screened regularly in as many as 143 cities, towns and villages in the state, affecting in some degree theatres in as many as 374 towns within the areas.

Many of the 16mm competitors operate in towns in which regular theatres are established.

The 16mm shows are conducted from one to three nights a week.

The Indiana Association maintains that the 16mm operators are delivering to the public, without admission charges in most cases, entertainment supplied by producers upon which the established theatre owner must depend for a living. "For producers to make features available to 16mm operators, who pay a minimum film rental, is totally unfair," its bulletin says.

Established theatre owners in at least a dozen states have complained loudly in recent months about the 16mm shows, which usually are at their height during the summer months because of the outdoor aspects of their exhibition.

It has been charged by the Indiana group that these 16mm operators book entire 90-minute shows for rentals as low as $7.50 for both features and shorts. In most instances, however, these bookings are made through 16mm exchanges which have secured 16mm rights from the original distributors. There are few instances where bookings are made direct. Frequently rights to 16mm prints are sold by the distributor outright.

Officers of the Indiana group, viewing 16mm as "definite competition," are urging all exhibitor members to furnish information on the operators. They point out that many exhibitors who haven't checked their receipts on nights when such shows are operating in or near their towns "don't realize they are being hurt."

Most Showings Saturday

Saturday nights bring the greatest number of 16mm showings, mostly put on by local merchants contributing proportionately for the purpose of bringing to town prospective customers for their stores. In the 143 places listed by the Indiana Association as showing 16mm films, 32 have Saturday night shows. Wednesday night is the next biggest, 25 places showing on that night, followed by 19 on Thursday nights, 17 on Fridays, 16 on Tuesdays, 15 on Mondays and even Sunday nights are not excepted, 11 places showing then. In 24 towns, there is no set time.

The Indiana bulletin reports as a typical situation the case of one town some 50 miles from Indianapolis where a 16mm roadshow agent puts on a free film show. On the evening he was observed, his attendance was in the neighborhood of 1,200. About 400 persons were seated on camp stools. Although there was not supposed to be any admission charge under an agrement with the sponsoring merchants, the operator was renting the camp stools for ten cents each.

Moving through the crowd were boys with baskets of popcorn, popped on a portable machine which was set up on the rear of the same truck which hauled the chairs and projection equipment to the location.

On the screen was a one reel commercial short subject advertising a school offering training for motion picture operators to conduct just such portable shows. For the running of this short, the operator receives $15 per week. Immediately following this reel, cards were passed out to the crowd and for any prospect enrolled the operator is further rewarded at the rate of $2.50 per person.

Ad Shorts Used

Following the one reeler were advertising trailers for which local merchants each paid $2.50 for the single night's showing. In addition to all this, the operator collects an additional $3 per week from the 10 to 15 merchants in the town who sponsor the show.

The bulletin pointed out that the itinerant operators have less than $500 invested in their business, with no taxes or liability insurance to pay and very small labor and film rental costs.

ALLIED ASKS LAW ON 16MM. SHOWS

At a meeting, Monday, of the newly elected board of governors of Allied States Exhibitors Association of the Northwest, in Minneapolis, it was decided to seek legislation at the next state legislature to control 16mm. competition, if the "menace", as they call it, continues.

Theatre Burns

The New Grand theatre at Grundy Center, Ia., owned by Frank Rubel, formerly manager of the Pioneer Theatres office at Des Moines, but now of California, was destroyed by fire August 9th. The damage was estimated at $12,000 with insurance coverage of $10,000. John Marshall was manager.

RKO Philadelphia Building

The RKO exchange in Philadelphia will have a building of its own, it is expected. A. A. Schubart, director of exchange operations for the company, has talked with local realtors, and with architect David Supowitz.

DeVilbiss Moving

Temple DeVilbiss, who has been managing theatres and supervising remodeling and re-equipment of theatres for H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., in the Kansas City territory the last 18 months, is moving to Texas in the same capacity for the circuit. J. L. Sanders, who has been with Griffith in Texas, succeeds Mr. DeVilbiss as manager of the Griffith houses in Junction City, Kan.

Far East Business Steady—Goodman

Del Goodman, Far Eastern manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, on his arrival in New York last Tuesday for home office conferences, said that business in the Far East is holding to a steady level despite the wide effects of warfare on the market. No new trade problems of major import have arisen in the past year, he said.

British possessions were described as being very fair about currency regulations and most of them have given assurances that no restrictions will be placed on currency exports until such a move is absolutely necessary. Mr. Goodman said that India is considering imposing restrictions on picture imports but that American distributors do not regard the proposals which have been discussed so far as damaging to their interests. No legislation on the subject has been introduced yet.

The future of the Japanese market remains a doubtful quantity, he said, adding that he is not optimistic about currency export or film import regulations being liberalized by Japan in the immediate future.

Century Plans Four Films for 1940-41

A program of four features is planned by Century Pictures for the new season, according to Frank Melford, producer. The first will be "Silver Queen," with Claire Trevor. Production will start October 10th under the direction of Allan Dwan, who is now working on the screen play. The film will be released by Paramount.

"Trading Post," based upon a novel by Milton Krims, will be the second production, with the starting date set for December 20th. Walter Brennan will head the cast.

Davis and Steele Signed

Republic has signed Rufe Davis and Bob Steele to long term contracts to replace Raymond Hatton and Duncan Renaldo in "The Three Mesquiteers" series with Bob Livingston. Hatton's contract was not renewed but Renaldo remains under contract.

Faige in New Post

New service manager of the Atlanta district for RCA Photophone is M. D. Faige, who replaces G. P. Knapp, assigned to other duties. Mr. Faige's former post as New England field engineer is being filled by H. I. Hultgren.

Roth Named Manager

Max Roth, former Warner Chicago salesman, has been promoted to branch manager of the Buffalo office. Mr. Roth takes the position vacated by the promotion of Charles Rich from Buffalo to Cleveland branch manager recently.

Set "Busters" Release

George W. Weeks, president of Phoenix Productions, has set national release of his first picture, "The Range Busters," for August 27th. Monogram will distribute. Mr. Weeks will make eight westerns for Monogram.

Plan "Four Families"

"Four Families" scheduled for production in 1941, will follow Warner Brothers' "Four Mothers," which has begun production.

Mexican Theatre Union Demands Wage Increase

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

Higher wages are asked by the motion picture workers' union in a demand for contract revision submitted to the operators of eight leading neighborhood exhibitors of Mexico City. In making the demands, the union said it hoped it would not be necessary to call a strike to obtain its demands. The exhibitors were asked to give the petition their earliest consideration.

Hunger Strike in Progress

Mexico's first film industry hunger strike is being waged by the Aguascalientes City section of the motion picture workers' union who are employees of two of the city's cinemas. They are sitting down and fasting in the corridors of the state building to force the state government to upset the ruling of the conciliation board for the reinstatement of an employee of one of the theatres who was ousted from the union.

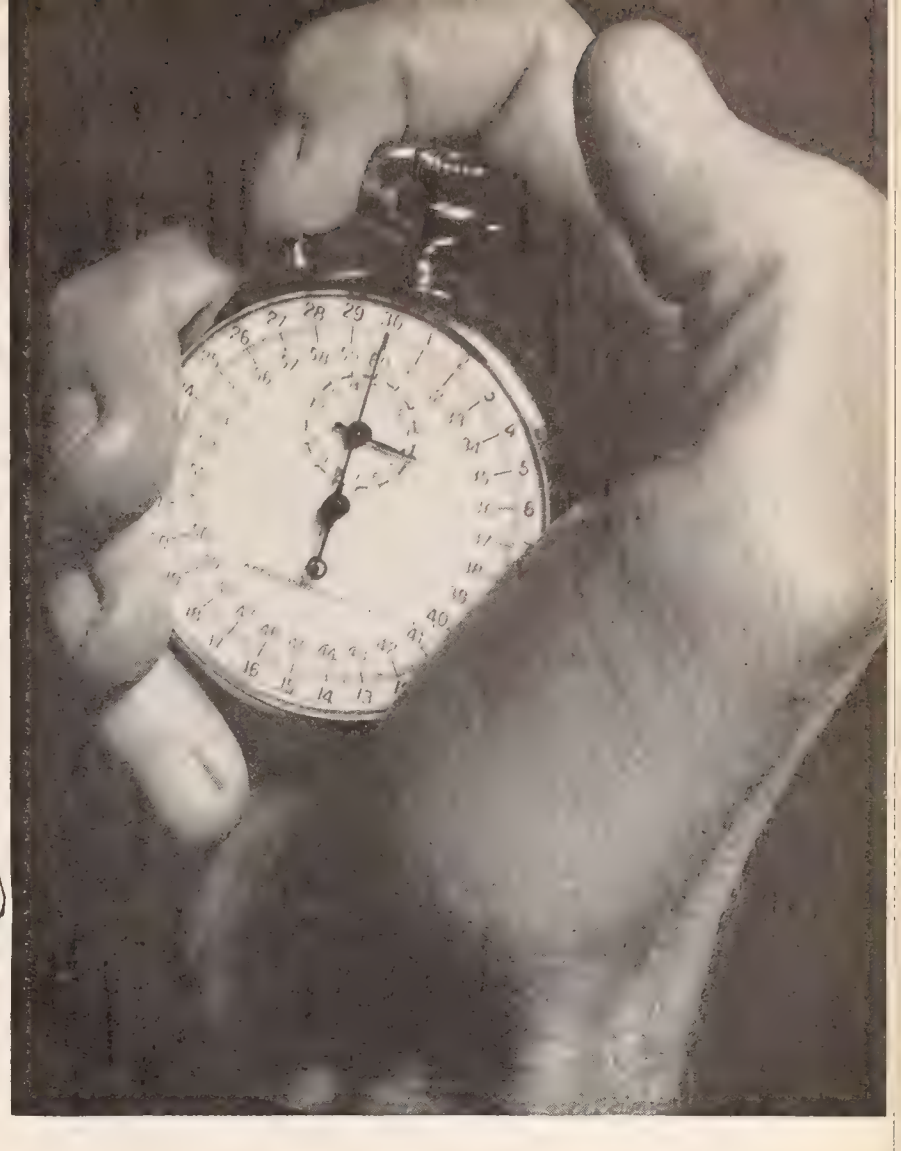
The Mexican government is producing m.p. shorts to stimulate interest in compulsory military service and army training. The films are to be exhibited free throughout Mexico in connection with the law Congress has approved for conscription and military training.

New Theatre Built

Another large theatre is under construction in the Mexico City downtown belt, the Cine Estrella which will seat 6,000. Manuel Angel Fernandez, operator of a three-theatre circuit, owns the new cinema which will open in the late fall. The Cine Colonial, a 6,000-seater, was recently opened here by Samuel and Oscar Granat, big circuit operators.

The Estrella will bring to 59 the number of active Mexico City cinemas. Six neighborhood theatres dropped out this summer because of poor trade and the exhibitors' inability to obey civic safety regulations.

The German-made picture, "Sport Show of the Nations," 24 reels reporting the last Olympiad in Berlin, has been banned by the Mexican censors which consider it Nazist propaganda. The picture was taken from the late liner "Columbus" last December, two days before she sailed on her scuttling voyage and placed in the German legation, Mexico City. Angel Trechuelo, Mexican distributor, obtained the film and spent six months and much money preparing it for Spanish-speaking audiences. The picture was forbidden after it had been exhibited for two weeks at the Cine Rex, Mexico City.

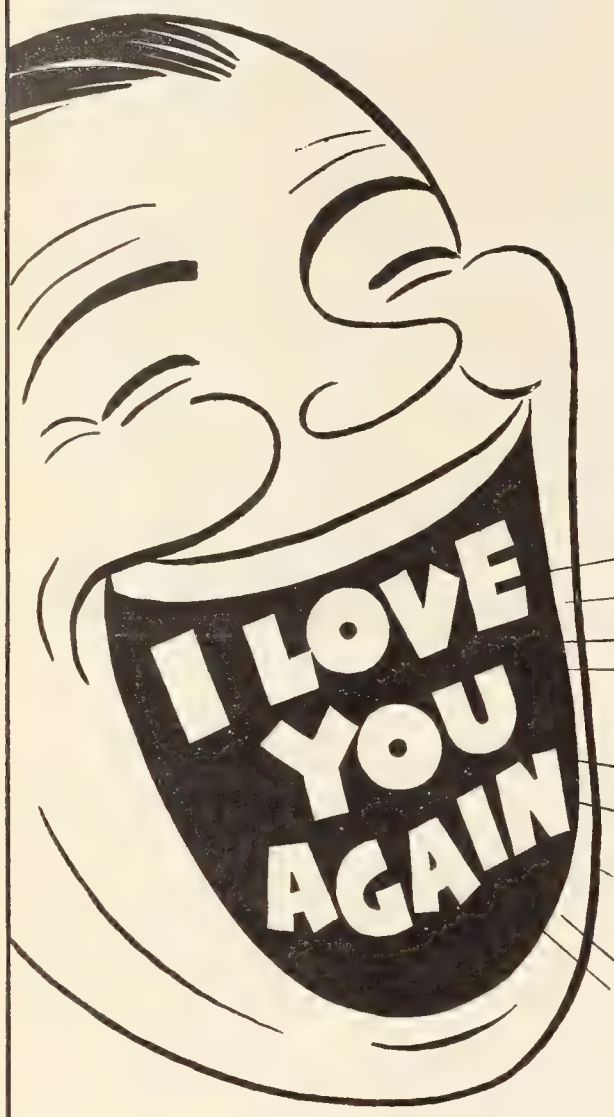


Teatro Principal, Mexico City, claimed to be the oldest theatre in America still in operation is to be razed. It was founded in 1752. After a fire in 1932 in which 14 persons were killed, it became a cinema. The decision to destroy the building was made by the owner of the property, the Latino Americana Life Insurance Co., which considers that the site, in downtown Mexico City, will be more profitable as a store and office building than as an amusement center.

The cinema is to close late this summer and wrecking it will start soon after.

Kahn on Coast

Alfred S. Kahn, formerly associated with John and Roy Boulting of London in the making of "Pastor Hall," has arrived in Hollywood from New York. He expects to remain there for some time.



THAT LION'S ON THE LOOSE AGAIN!

The industry watches with amazement as The Friendly Company sends hit after hit to the box-offices of its customers. And this is mid-summer! "Pride" Tops $100,000 In Music Hall Week

M-G-M's "Pride and Prejudice" knocked off several records in its first week at the Music Hall. Having played to some 150,000 patrons, with the seventh day topping the first, the picture joins the small number to gross more than $100,000 for a week at the Hall. Additionally it was the biggest non-holiday attraction for the year and the biggest August grosser in the eight-year history of the house. Second week starts today.

STARS 'HUMANE GIVERS' NOT REDS, DIES HOLDS

Hollywood "Names" from Fitts' Star Witness Get a Clean Bill After Giving Testimony

Martin Dies, chairman of the Congressional Committee on unAmerican Activities, said Tuesday in San Francisco, after a hearing at which James Cagney denied charges of Communism, that Mr. Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Fredric March and Phillip Dunne, were not, and never had been sympathetic with the Communist movement but he asserted that "numerous actors and screen people, out of humane motives," had contributed to organizations which his committee found to be organized under Communist leadership. This phase of the Dies investigation grew out of charges of Hollywood Communism and a grand jury hearing conducted by Buron Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney.

The Screen Actors Guild on Tuesday telegraphed to Mr. Dies statements of Lucille Ball, Francis Lederer, Lionel Stander and Jean Muir, volunteering to testify before the Committee in denial of charges of Communist sympathy or affiliation.

Mr. Fitts' prior utterances on the subject were based chiefly, it was said, upon testimony from John L. Leech, who said that he was formerly a Communist party organizer.

Names Published

Mr. Dies began his investigation in Hollywood a week ago Thursday, just after Mr. Fitts published a list of 18 film personalities whom Mr. Leech had told a grand jury were members of, or contributors to, the Communist party, and simultaneously with a statement of Y. Frank Freeman, president of the Producers Association, who demanded an inquiry.

Mr. Freeman said the 32,000 workers of the motion picture industry in Hollywood "are not willing to yield to anyone in their true Americanism." He pointed out that accusations against individuals might possibly cast aspersion on the whole industry and "for this reason, we welcome a complete and impartial investigation by the duly appointed body of the United States Government, constituted for the purpose of making inquiries into the subject of subversive and un-American activities.

"If a true and impartial investigation," Mr. Freeman continued, "discloses that there are those who, by their actions and conduct, have brought discredit upon this great American industry and its loyal and splendid workers, then there will be no attempt to protect such individuals or groups of individuals. However, whether such accusations, as made against any individuals, are true or not true is yet to be proven and we know that, in fairness, public decision will be withheld until a complete and impartial investigation can be made."

Among those named by Mr. Leech in his testimony as contributors to the party were: Lionel Stander, actor; Jean Muir, actress; Frank Tuttle, film technician; Tania Tuttle, his wife; Frank Davis, producer; Clifford Odets, writer and scenarist; Sam Ornitz, writer; Franchot Tone, actor; Fredric March, actor; Gregory La Cava, director; Lester Cole, scenarist; James Cagney, actor; Humphrey Bogart, actor; Frank Scully, writer; Francis Lederer, actor; Herbert Bieberman, director, and Buddy Schulberg.

Many of those named, including Fredric March, Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney, Sam Ornitz, Francis Lederer, Jean Muir, Lionel Stander, Herbert Bieberman, issued statements denying the charges.

The Screen Actors Guild issued a statement, saying, "The members of the Screen Actors Guild hate Nazism, Communism and fifth-columnists. Because they do, the Guild feels it is necessary to point out that the present smear campaign against certain prominent actors is playing squarely into the hands of the real fifth columnists, whom America must smash."

On Friday of last week Mr. Dies conferred in Los Angeles with Mr. Freeman, Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the Screen Actors Guild and Laurence Beilenson, Guild attorney. Mr. Dies announced that every Hollywood personality said to be a Communist or a sympathizer would have an opportunity to appear and either be cleared of the charge or found guilty. Details of a meeting in Hollywood where it was alleged that $10,000 was collected for the candidacy of Earle Browder, candidate for president of the United States on the Communist ticket, were also to be thoroughly investigated.

Leech Questioned

Mr. Leech, who made the original charges, also appeared before Mr. Dies but refused to change his story of "big-name" Communist sympathizers in the motion picture business. At the deportation hearing for Harry Bridges of San Francisco, West Coast C.I.O. leader, Mr. Leech testified that in return for an affidavit saying that Bridges was a communist he was supplied money for transportation of himself and his family to Portland by Stanley M. Doyle, anti-radical investigator for the American Legion. Mr. Leech said that he later signed another affidavit, under Communist threats, declaring the first one to be untrue and motivated by money offers.

Exhibitor Advises

In Columbus, P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, called a press conference at the time when the newspaper attention to the charges of Communism among Hollywood stars was at a high point and said:

"It is to be hoped that the public will not pass judgment on members of the film industry accused of Communistic activities until they have been given a fair trial. This industry harbors no more individuals of Communistic or subversive tendencies than will be found in any other large industry. If any of them are found guilty, they should be cast out of the industry, and the stars' names immediately erased from every theatre marquee in the country."

Reginald Denny filed in Los Angeles Monday a citizen's suit in the Superior Court to bar the Communist Party from the California primary election ballot on August 27th and from the general election to be held November 5th.

"Reciprocity Night" in Iowa

R. V. Rafferty, owner of the Lyric theatre at Coon Rapids, Iowa, started on August 9th a nine weeks trade event called "Reciprocity Night." About a dozen local merchants are cooperating and on Friday nights trade coupons are issued with theatre tickets.

Ohio Cooperative Signs RKO

Cooperative Theatres of Ohio, headed by Milton Mooney, and involving 26 theatres in and adjacent to Cleveland, has signed for RKO's features and short subjects for the 1940-41 season.

20TH-FOX CONTINUES BRITISH PRODUCTION

Robert T. Kane, formerly executive producer in charge of Twentieth Century-Fox production in England and the Continent, said Tuesday in Hollywood that production is continuing in London despite intensification of the war. Of the four films on the Twentieth Century-Fox British program, he said one was finished, one would be completed in 10 days and two were in preparation.

West Indies Owners Hit by Quota Laws

The war has not prevented the authorities in the British West Indies and British Guiana from strictly enforcing exhibitor quota laws, Saul Jacobs, Paramount manager in that territory, reported Tuesday, while at the New York home office for a visit.

For three years, exhibitors of that area have found the laws onerous, Mr. Jacobs said. They are required to use British product equivalent to 20 per cent of their total bookings. Recently, Mr. Jacobs said, many exhibitors were prosecuted for failure to observe the law, but the Government suspended penalties with a warning that the law must be regarded.

Most of the exhibitors in the area, approximately 85, have formed a cooperative company to import enough British film to supply them.

New theatre construction is hampered by high costs, he remarked, and added that the same factor had caused abandonment of plans to erect a film center building for American distributors in Trinidad.

Baker Promoted

Al Baker has been appointed city manager of all Evergreen theatres in Spokane, Wash., according to an announcement made by Frank L. Newman, Sr., general manager of the Hamrick-Evergreen circuit. Mr. Baker was formerly city manager at Bellingham, where he will be succeeded by James Andrus.

Wheeler Becomes Salesman

Harry Wheeler, formerly booker for Paramount, is taking over the Western Missouri territory as sales representative, succeeding Paul Hannon, who is now operating the Lyric in Plattsburg, Mo., which he took over from Tom Wilhoit. Walt Clark from the shipping department succeeds Mr. Wheeler as a booker.

Roxy Theatre Dividend

The board of directors of Roxy Theatre, Inc., New York, Wednesday declared a quarterly dividend of 37½c per share on the outstanding preferred stock, payable August 30, to stockholders of record on August 24, 1940.

National in Former Studio

National Pictures, the Boris Morros-Robert Stillman producing organization, has moved back to General Service Studio, Hollywood, its former home lot. Recently the company has been headquartering at RKO-Pathe in Culver City.

SMPE Prepares For Fall Session On West Coast

With a tentative program set up and with special committees appointed, the Society of Motion Picture Engineers this week was preparing for its Fall convention to be held at the Hotel Roosevelt, Hollywood, from October 21st to 25th. E. A. Williford, president, announced the committees.

The tentative, and incomplete, program includes an informal luncheon on the opening day; technical sessions; visits to the motion picture studios; and a banquet and dance on the final day, during which 1941 officers-elect will be introduced, the SMPE Progress Medal and SMPE Journal award presented, and noted speakers heard.

Figueroa Sales Manager For Astor Pictures

W. J. Figueroa has succeeded O. K. Bourgeois as general sales manager of Astor Pictures Corporation, of New York. Mr. Bourgeois has acquired the Astor franchise for Texas, Arkansas, and Oklahoma, and is making Dallas his headquarters.

Mr. Figueroa, 25 years old and a native of New Orleans, entered the film industry four years ago, joining Astor as assistant to Mr. Bourgeois.

Acquires Coast Houses

Albert Martin has purchased the Brea theatre, Brea, Cal., and the La Habra theatre, La Habra, from Robert E. Gumm, of Brea. Mr. Martin was with Paramount for many years.

Set Minnesota Theatre Deals

William Elson will operate the Palace theatre in Minneapolis under terms of a deal closed with John J. Friedl, president of the Minnesota Amusement Company. The latter recently closed a deal for operation of the Palace and Minnesota, with the Benz interests of St. Paul. Mr. Elson for several years has operated the Seventh Street theatre, which the Benz interests are now razing for parking facilities.

Mr. Friedl is completing a deal with Ben Berger for acquisition of the World theatre, downtown St. Paul first run. Mr. Friedl's company recently took over the World, Minneapolis, from W. A. Steffes. Mr. Berger's State at Jamestown also is included in the proposed deal.

Freuler Announces Production Plans

John R. Freuler, who started in the motion picture business in Milwaukee in 1905, plans to return to the production and distribution of feature pictures. The tentative plans for the 1940-41 season include four special features and 12 westerns to be made in Hollywood.

Mr. Freuler is also connected with the American Film Corporation, Chicago, which is preparing to handle large scale production work, according to the company.

Ohio Censor Report

Fifty-three eliminations were ordered from a total of 521 reels reviewed by the Ohio censors in July. Eight reels were rejected for the week ending July 12th. Comparatively, 20 eliminations were ordered from 406 reels reviewed in June, while the July, 1939, figures were 452 reels and nine eliminations.

Sign Wilmington Leases

The Stanley Company of America, Warner Brothers subsidiary, has signed 10-year leases for the Queen and Arcadia theatres in Wilmington, Del. The latter theatre, which has been closed for the past 18 months, will be reopened. The company also operates the Warner, Gran, Aldine and Savoy in Wilmington.

Shelton Joins French Center

William Shelton, formerly with the foreign department at RKO, has been appointed sales manager for the French Cinema Center, Andre R. Heymann, president, announced last Monday. At the same time Mr. Heymann announced that "Harvest" has been set for general release after Labor Day.

Circuits Book "Mill"

World Pictures Corporation has booked "Mill on the Floss" in the Warner, RKO, Fabian and Netco circuits in upstate New York.

Tobias in Air Reserve Post

Lester S. Tobias, New Jersey representative for Monogram, has been placed in charge of the Civilian Air reserve for the New York area. The Civilian Air Reserve is a national organization of licensed pilots, which was organized at Toledo, Ohio, several years ago, and now has units in almost every section of the country.

Records Reported For 'Snow White' In Festival Unit

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney feature cartoon which grossed $8,000,000, according to RKO, the distributor, when it was released in 1938, is currently having its first revival as part of the Walt Disney Festival. Also on the same program, which is booked as a unit, are "Ferdinand the Bull," "The Practical Pig," " The Ugly Duckling" and "Donald's Lucky Day."

Rental Is Half

Exhibition terms for the revival of the film which was the most profitable up to "Gone With the Wind" are roughly just over half the original prices. The Festival has broken records and had many holdovers.

Before deciding on the general release, which follows the first run in each territory, the Disney company and RKO conducted several test engagements. At the Park Theatre in Meadville, Pa., where the Festival played June 20th and 21st it was reported to have grossed 268 per cent more than any picture played the same days of the week, Thursday and Friday, for the past year. Another test was made at the Kingston theatre in Kingston where the Festival played with "You Can't Fool Your Wife" as the second feature. Results of the trials were so satisfactory that RKO decided to release the film this summer as a Class A attraction in Class A theatres.

Minimum terms for "Snow White" are 25 per cent of the gross and minimum for each of the four Disney shorts is 50 per cent of the regular price for such cartoons. If a second feature is played the amount which can be deducted is agreed to in advance. When the film was first released double featuring was not permitted. The company reported that the Festival played as a single unit, even in theatres which have a double feature policy, showed the best results. Adults were said to have outnumbered children and more than two-thirds of the patrons had seen "Snow White" on its first showing.

The Festival played three weeks at Loew's Criterion on Broadway and broke all summer records. On Monday it opened at the Little Carnegie for an indefinite run. Double normal business was reported at Franklin, Pa., and Sheboygan, Wis., the Allen, Cleveland, Karlton, Philadelphia. The attendance at the Strand, Louisville, for a full week was said to have topped that of all other weeks for the past year. Big openings were reported from all over the country. In some spots where booked for one week the Disney show was held over; also in about 20 situations where it was booked for a split week it held over.

A special pressbook of eight pages was issued for the "Great Walt Disney Festival of Hits."

Circuit sales for the Disney Festival included the following: W. N. Skirboll, Ohio; Westland Theatres, Inc., Denver; Loew's circuit; Fox; Boyd of Pennsylvania; Notopoulos theatres, Pennsylvania; John Harris, Fabian, Walter Reade, Benton, Wilby, Lucas-Jenkins, Interstate of New England; Ralph Snider, New England; Fred Sharby, New England; Public-Shea; Warner; Monarch Theatres of Ohio; RKO Theatres; Fanchon & Marco; A. C. Gordon, Idaho; J. L. Lawrence, Salt Lake City; Hunter Perry of Virginia; Buck Wilder of Virginia; Famous Players Canadian.

HERE WAS A MAN!

Brigham Young led his followers across 1800 miles of wasteland! From sagebrush and salt he made verdant farmland! On the shores of Utah's Great Salt Lake he built one of the world's famous cities! He had 27 wives and 47 children! His riding and marksmanship were legend! Strikingly handsome, he was a giant in stature and strength! Steel-willed, dominant, colorful, his was a valiant spirit that helped make this nation great!

Brigham Young and twelve of his wives.

BONDY TAKES SEC 'TIP', CUTS RKO FEES TO BONE

Total Allowances $638,073 Instead of $2,054,214 Asked by Reorganizers

Lawyers, bankers, accountants and others who participated in reorganizing Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, this week had their fees slashed from a requested $2,054,214 to $638,073 by Federal Judge William Bondy in United States district court, New York, acting at the "suggestion," made previously by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission, that a limit of around $600,000 be set.

Largest to Atlas

The largest award was made to the Atlas Corporation, proponent of the plan of reorganization approved by Judge Bondy last January after litigation which began in January, 1933. Atlas was awarded 120,000 new common shares for its services, $170,000 for legal fees incurred, and $20,517 for disbursements. It had asked 100,000 shares for services, plus $875,037 for disbursements.

The Irving Trust Company, as receiver and trustee, was awarded $80,000, and William J. Donovan, its attorney, received $87,500, plus an additional $65,000 as attorney in anti-trust litigation involving RKO.

The Eberstadt stockholders protective committee was awarded $49,825; the Armsby debenture-holders protective committee $7,000, and Chemical Bank & Trust Company, as trustee under an indenture securing RKO's 6 per cent gold notes, $20,914.

Other applications were disposed of by Judge Bondy as follows:

Wright, Gordon, Zachry & Parlin, attorneys for Chemical Bank & Trust; asked $25,000; granted $10,000.

Neil P. Cullom, attorney for the U. S. National Bank of Denver; asked $1,500; granted $500.

Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., trustee of 10-year gold indentures; asked $16,391; granted $10,141.

Larkin, Rathbone & Perry, attorneys for Central Hanover Bank; asked $12,507; granted $7,500.

City Bank Farmers Trust Co., trustee of extended 6 per cent gold note indentures: asked $1,900; granted $1,900.

Delafield, Marsh, Porter & Hope, attorneys for City Bank; asked $1,604; granted $1,200.

J. & W. Seligman & Co., depositary under an agreement with RKO; asked $8,750; granted $7,500.

Sullivan & Cromwell, attorneys for Eberstadt Committee; asked $20,000; granted $6,000.

Independent Protective Committee of Common Stockholders; asked $10,725; granted $2,250.

George L. Schein, attorney for Independent Committee; asked $101,404; granted $9,325.

Gottheimer & Bercu, accountants for Independent Committee; asked $30,000; granted $2,000.

Unsecured Creditors Committee; asked $10,000; granted $4,272.

White & Case, attorneys for Unsecured Creditors Committee; asked $35,526; granted $22,953.

Debenture Holders Protective Committee; asked $24,500 allowance and $9,363 expenses; granted $7,000 allowance and $9,295 expenses.

Chadbourne, Hunt, Jaeckl & Brown, attorneys for Debenture Holders Committee; asked $50,791; granted $28,220.

John S. Stover, attorney for Ernest W. Stirn, an appellant from Judge Bondy's decision, asked $118,225; granted $3,000.

Abraham K. Weber, attorney for George Sardau, stockholder, asked $2,500; granted $300.

Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, asked $4,800; granted $4,800.

The request of Lehman Brothers for $76,772 for services as a participant with Atlas in proposing a plan of reorganization was disallowed.

Judge Bondy also disallowed the petition of Kommel & Rosenberg, attorney who appealed the court decision approving the plan. Petitions of Florence Sullivan for $64,500 and of Ernest W. Stirn, holder of Class A stock, and five of his attorneys for a total of $97,788 were also disallowed.

RKO Cincinnati Changes

The RKO circuit division office in Cincinnati announces the following personnel changes: Norman Linz, manager suburban Paramount and Orpheum, to manager of the downtown RKO Capitol, succeeding James Pendegast, who has been transferred to the Shubert, where Henry Sommers recently resigned to take charge of the Sam Lee circuit in Kentucky; Tom Davis, formerly with the Mary Anderson theatre, in Louisville, and more recently manager of the Libson-White Paramount, in Ashland, Ky., succeeds Mr. Linz; William T. Hastings, manager of the Lyric, moves to the New Grand, and will be replaced by Lake Jones, assistant at the Albee; Joseph Hansberry, assistant at the Orpheum, will fill a similar post at the Grand; Elwood Jones has been transferred from assistant at the Shubert to assistant at the Albee, and Stanley Gerhardstein, formerly chief of service at the Shubert, moves up to assistant manager of that house.

French Film Record

"The Baker's Wife," the Marcel Pagnol comedy from Jean Giono's novel, started its 27th consecutive week at the World theatre, New York, last Tuesday, thereby establishing a new attendance and long run record for French films in the United States, according to the theatre. The previous record holders were "Mayerling" with 25 weeks and "Grand Illusion" with 26 weeks.

Vitaphone Trade Screenings

With over 30 per cent of its short subject product for 1940-41 already completed, Warner Brothers held a special trade showing of the new season's one and two reel Vitaphone short subjects Thursday at the company's home office projection room. Similar screenings will be held in the company's other exchange centers in the next two weeks.

Warn Managers of Swindler

A warning has been issued by the New York Police Department to theatre managers in the metropolitan area, that a woman giving the name of Fawn I. Swanson of Williston Park, L. I., has been obtaining money from theatre managers on the pretext of having lost her purse while in their theatres. The residence address given by the woman in each instance is non-existent, police say.

New DeSylva Musical

B. G. DeSylva, producer and song writer, in Chicago Friday to view the Al Johnson show, "Hold on to Your Hats," said rehearsals for his new musical comedy would start shortly in New York. He said the cast would include Ethel Merman, James Dunn, Allen Jenkins, Arthur Treacher and eight year old Joan Carroll. He is to return to the Paramount lot November 15th to start work on a new Bing Crosby-Bob Hope picture.

New Columbia Series

A new series of four pictures based on the Ellery Queen mystery novels will be released by Columbia. The first, "John Braun's Body," will be placed in production next month. Ralph Bellamy and Charles Grapewin have been signed to play the principal roles, "Ellery Queen" and "Inspector Queen." Larry Darmour will produce.

Join RKO Story Department

Don Gordon, former story editor at Republic, and Ardele Ray, former Twentieth Century-Fox reader, have been named assistants to Collier Young, head of RKO Radio's story department.

New Republic Serial

Republic will make "Dr. Satan," a 15 episode serial, in place of "Superman," previously announced but shelved because of restrictions imposed by copyright owners.

Universal Signs Astaire

Universal has signed Fred Astaire to star in "Special Delivery," which will be produced by Joseph Pasternak and directed by Henry Koster.

Crosby and Company Amuse

Paramount's managing director of production, William Le Baron, taking charge of this enterprise in person, equipped it with about as many exploitation angles as there are audience-groups to be attracted. To list a few:

Here is Bing Crosby, as a ghost-composer underpaid by a songwriter gone dry, singing two songs alone and two with Mary Martin; another with Lillian Cornell;

Here is Oscar Levant of "Information Please" and the concert stage, as pianist in the service of the rundown hit writer, demonstrating both his keyboard talent and his wit;

Here is Basil Rathbone in a comedy role;

Here are Oscar Shaw of the New York stage and Ken Carpenter of the radio, both enjoying themselves;

Here are John Scott Trotter (Kraft Music Hall) and his band;

And here are five songs by the Johnny Burke-James V. Monaco team and one by Victor Schertzinger, director of this picture as of "Road to Singapore," and all as sure to sell the attraction via repetition on the radio networks as song-numbers always are when Crosby sings them.

Written by Dwight Taylor, from a story by Billy Wilder and Jacques Thery, the film has about it the informality of manner, in acting development, which animated "Road to Singapore." The tale is told of a young man and a girl whose work, music and lyrics respectively, are acquired on salary basis by a once-famous writer of hit songs who maintains his fame by offering the young people's material as his own. Coincidence brings boy and girl together and romance is making steady headway until they discover that they are co-workers in the employ of a master with whom neither wishes to continue. Experiences met in trying to sell their songs independently, with publishers accusing them of aping their former employer's style, occupy the song-spotted sequences intervening before the ultimate happy ending.

Previewed at the Del Mar Turf Club—Bing Crosby, president—115 miles south of Hollywood, and under the stars on a screen rippled by sea breezes, to a trainload of press people transported to the scene for the purpose and following a half-hour broadcast on a national hookup in the further exploitation interest of the production. Applause and laughter of the guests indicated warm approval.—WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

The Great Profile

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Barrymore Spree

With title and basic situation taken from coast to coast headlines of recent memory, "The Great Profile" affords John Barrymore a chance to play a part as familiar as it appeared satisfying to him—that of himself.

The title, deriving from newspaper accounts as did the "Caliban" of longer ago, was used as descriptive of the actor's travels and exploits with and in behalf of "My Dear Children," the stage play. And the main theme of the film is taken from accounts of that same play, made a commercial success primarily by virtue of Mr. Barrymore's antics and ad libbing on stage.

Here he appears as an actor facing the end of the road due to a disappearance of several days while supposedly acting in a film. Success comes again through a play written by a theatre-crazed young woman, for which backing is guaranteed by the girl's fiance. But the success doesn't hinge on the play, a patently amateur work, but on the drunken antics of the actor, which are interrupted by a period in which he undergoes reform and a milk diet at the hands of the young authoress.

Sharing in the comedy are Gregory Ratoff, as the actor's agent, frenzied by a gambling debt for which he is continually under threat; Mary Beth Hughes, as the actor's wife, a former acrobat; John Payne, Anne Baxter, Lionel Atwill, and Willie Fung, as "Confucius," the long-suffering butler. In post-preview opinion, Mr. Ratoff's contribution to the evening's entertainment was but half a profile behind that of Mr. Barrymore's

The original screen play by Milton Sperling and Hilary Lynn gave ample opportunity for demonstrations of the Barrymore talent of lampooning, by word and gesture, the stage mannerisms at which he himself excels. Audience reaction was in the nature of sustained laughter from the opening credits, backed by the song "Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love," through the story as interpreted by Barrymore eye-rolling and gestures.

Emanating from the Darryl Zanuck side of the studio, the picture was directed by Walter Lange. Raymond Griffith was associate producer.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Westwood, to reaction as noted.—WALTER SELDEN.

The Golden Fleecing

(MGM)

Comedy of Errors

First error in this comedy of errors is made by a junior employee of a life insurance company who sells a $50,000 policy to a supposed business man who is in reality a gangster with a reward offered for his capture dead or alive. Second error is made by the young man in setting out to do what he may about keeping the insured alive, and the third is made by the gangster in forcing the young man to deliver him over to the authorities on agreement that captor will give reward money to captive for purposes of financing an escape plan. From these three errors develop many, all as consequences and with consequence, the end-result being a film that seemed to satisfy a neighborhood-theatre preview audience fully.

Lew Ayres as the salesman and Lloyd Nolan as the gangster have assignments of the kind in which both have acquired their present followings. Rita Johnson is seen as the salesman's sweetheart and Virginia Grey as the gangster's girl, Leon Errol as a would-be composer and Spencer Charters as an up-State New York judge.

Produced by Edgar Selwyn and directed by Leslie Fenton, the picture emphasizes humor throughout. It has freshness of subject material, approach and handling.

Preview at the Uptown theatre, Los Angeles, a playhouse patronized by family trade, with reaction as above noted.—W. R.W.

One Crowded Night

(RKO Radio)

Life by the Wayside

A "Grand Hotel" theme cut down to tourist camp proportion is the melodramatic design plotted in this unpretentious but suspenseful wayside thriller. With Cliff Reid as producer and Irving Reis as director, the narrative spins along speedily, if sometimes not too clearly because of the many subplots. The cast is competent and convincing, especially the veteran J. M. Kerrigan as the comical character medicine man and former medico.

If the audience can keep the separate stories apart, it will meet a variety of folk at the Autopia Court, a desert auto camp. One of the waitresses is a lady with a past; another is the wife of a jailbird who has been innocently sent to prison on a murder charge. To the place comes an expectant mother, who is traveling westward to meet her sailor husband, and an itinerant medicine vendor. Following them closely are her husband, who has deserted his naval post to join his wife, and two bodyguards. Then the jailbird husband arrives and close on his heels are two of his former cronies, the real murderers, intent on silencing him finally. The waitress with a past, who is about to be married that evening to a respectable truck driver, is recognized by the gangsters as a former member of the mob. Put all these people and their predicaments together and you have a nice problem to solve. It is all done excitingly and happily.

Ladies Must Live

(Warner - First National)

Premarital Mixup

Herewith a lightly compounded mixture dealing with misunderstood motives and a marriage which they almost prevent. Wayne Morris appears as a wealthy gentleman farmer in love with a cafe singer portrayed by Rosemary Lane. His best friend is brought to New York from the middle west to act as best man at the coming ceremony, and interprets the girl's actions, and those of her family, as mercenary.

Roscoe Karns, as the well-meaning friend, finally clears up the situation he has created. Comedy, in addition to that of Mr. Karns, is supplied by Cliff Saum as an Indian Chief butler and valet. Lee Patrick is Karns' wife. Also seen are George Reeves, Ferris Taylor, Lottie Williams and DeWolf Hopper. Two songs are sung by Miss Lane during the picture.

Based on a George M. Cohan play, the screen play was written by Robert E. Kent. Noel Smith directed and William Jacobs was associate producer.

Men Against the Sky

(RKO Radio)

Aviation Comedy-Drama

Other pictures have sought to glorify aviation by emphasizing romance and risk. Few have prospered. This picture deals with aviation as an industry, underscoring the importance of construction, technology, test-flight and performance, and it prospered in terms of preview applause indicative of appreciation. Although the story contains no mention of the war, it deals with the airplane in the terms which have become household-words within the past few months and with the men who make and fly them as the kind of men now understood to be engaged in that work.

There is romance in the film but it is subordinated to the humour which surrounds an improvident manufacturer's financing of a new model. There is pathos in the death of a once-famous flier whose addiction to the bottle has brought him low, but this is made secondary to the drama of his interest in his profession. There are no spies intent upon stealing plans and there are no villains save circumstance and coincidence, but there is aviation as it is known today and there is adventure. The combination seemed to please its first beholders mightily.

Richard Dix as the discredited pilot whose comeback ends in death and Wendy Barrie as his sister who champions his cause, head a cast including Kent Taylor as chief engineer of an aviation plant, Edmund Lowe as its inconstant proprietor and Granville Bates in the financier assignment that steals the show when he is on the screen. Produced by Howard Benedict and directed by Leslie Goodwins with credibility and realism their objectives, the film affords showmen opportunity to capitalize on today's interest in plane production by inviting the public to come and see how it's done.

Produced and released by RKO-Radio. Howard Benedict, producer. Leslie Goodwins, director. Original story by John Twist. Screenplay by Nathaniel West. P.C.A. No. 6370. Running time when seen in Hollywood, 75 minutes. Release date, September 6, 1940. General audience classification.

River's End

(Warner - First National)

Action Melodrama

Dennis Morgan is chiefly in evidence in this story, based on a James Oliver Curwood novel, as an alleged murderer and also as a sergeant in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Posing as the latter at the real sergeant's death, he returns to the town from which he had fled and tracks down the real murderer.

Romantic interest is supplied by Elizabeth Earl. George Tobias is a French-Canadian guide; Steffi Duna is the girl who pursues him by way of comedy relief, and Victor Jory the murderer.

Barry Trivers and Bertram Millhauser wrote the screen play, which was directed by Ray Enright. William Jacobs was associate producer.

Previewed at the studio.—W. S.

Stage to Chino

(RKO Radio)

Western

"Stage to Chino" is a well balanced western with George O'Brien starring. It has action, romance, humor and music and another of the consistently competent performances by O'Brien. The title reference is to the stage coach line between Prescott, and Chino, Ariz., run by a girl. The line carries the U. S. mail and a rival line stoops to nefarious methods to acquire that plum.

O'Brien as "Dan Clark," postal inspector, happens on the scene at an opportune moment and keeping his identity hidden under the usual cowboy regalia, goes to work as a driver for the "McKay Stage Coach," which is the line operated by "Crinne McKay" (Virginia Vale). Constant run-ins with the heavy, "Dude Elliott" (Roy Barcroft), of the rival line, and his cohorts, make for a lot of action.

The Pals of the Golden West, musicians and singers in the western manner, are entertaining and the script has seen to it that their musical numbers in no way hamper the continuity of the story.

Reviewed at the Central theatre, New York. The audience, from all indications, enjoyed themselves.—PAUL C. MOONEY, JR.

Produced and distributed by RKO Radio. Directed by Edward Killy. Story by Norton S. Parker. Screen play by Morton Grant and Arthur V. Jones. P.C.A. Certificate No. 6,344. Running time, 59 minutes. Release date, July 20, 1940. General audience classification.

Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride

Autry, The Executive

Until now westerns, large or small, have followed a standard formula—cowboys of the open prairies riding and fighting hard in the cause of justice. Republic herewith inaugurates a new type, starring Gene Autry, in which Gene gives up the cattle ranches for the comfortable life of a business executive. He is entertained at palatial estates equipped with swimming pools and bridle paths; has his own large office with a secretary and an office force at his beck and call.

Under the directorial guidance of Frank McDonald the picture is cleverly unwound with many humorous and entertaining situations spicing the action. Gene and "Frog" (Smiley Burnette) after feuding with their boss, a pretty ranch owner and packing company executive, are fired. Gene is notified he has inherited a rival packing concern. The situation develops from there when both executives go to the ranchers with entertainment ranging from brass band parades to chorus girls in the briefest of costumes singing snappy little songs, to entice them to sign with the company. Of course, by good business sense, Gene wins out and also captures the heart of the rival executive.

Mary Lee, who has been seen before in Autry westerns, returns again, this time as the lovesick youngster. Miss Lee has ample opportunity to render her usual enjoyable songs aided, of course, by Gene, Smiley and the Pacemakers. The highlight of the film in comedy is handled by Smiley as the potential clothing customer with excess avoirdupois being fitted by a glib tailor played by Joe Frisco. Warren Hull is seen as the third party in the romance.

Previewed in the Republic projection room in New York where an audience of trade press reviewers seemed to enjoy this type of western and laughed heartily at the Burnette-Frisco comedy scene.—GEORGE SPIRES.

(Bueno Production, Mexico)

Comedy

American exhibitors who like to give their customers a fresh perspective on life abroad, particularly Mexico, might do well with this well played and photographed but thin comedy of the better class people of the Mexican capital. Another attraction is the star, Maria Conesa, Spanish operetta comedienne, who after some four decades on the stage retains her appeal.

The story is weak and much of it is spicy. La Conesa, wealthy spinster, gets into all manner of misunderstandings when she generously takes in a boy baby who is left in a basket at her front door. The mixup involves Maria's suitor, Alfredo del Diestro, capital as a rich medico who has a weakness for trombone playing; Tomas Perrin, La Conesa's good looking nephew, and his sweetheart, Susana Guizar, who is pretty and wears clothes well. The acting is of a high order, but the sound is poor and there could have been better direction.

Reviewed at the Cine Olimpia, Mexico City, which caters to high class Mexican and foreign trade. Americans in the audience were amused. JAMES LOCKHART.

March of Time, No. 13

(RKO Radio)

Gateways to Panama

The makers of the March of Time have turned their camera southward to the danger spots of the Caribbean. Because of the belief of some competent army authorities that the real threat to the United States will come from an attempt by Nazi forces either to seize the European holdings in this area or through infiltration in the South American countries, there has been instituted a vast defense program not only in the Canal territory but also in the other insular United States holdings. Besides glimpses of this rearmament activity, there are sequences devoted to an inspection of the Dutch West Indies, the British Bahamas and its new Governor General, and a look at French Guiana, especially the famed penal colony, Devil's Island. It is contended that Hitler has plans for using the discontented prisoners to foster the Germanic conquest of the Western hemisphere. The study is again graced by intelligent commentary and editing. Camerawork, especially sea and island scenes, is superb.—Running time, 20 minutes.

Popeye Cartoon

Even Popeye can do imitations and here demonstrates his ability by aping Jimmy Durante, Stan Laurel and Groucho Marx. The demonstrations result when Olive Oyl shows Popeye a newspaper heralding the return of vaudeville. Popeye and Olive rehearse their routine but Sweetpea, the baby, puts the damper on their enthusiasm by pointing out that the newspaper is several decades old. Running time, 7 minutes.

Unusual Occupations L9-6

(Paramount)

Six Items

Some six items, combining both hobbies and businesses, are shown in this issue of the series. In New Hampshire a Mrs. Milton Seeley operates kennels, where she trains polar sledge dogs; a man in Nebraska sculptures in steel by acetylene torch; a department of the U. S. Treasury redeems mutilated currency; a man in California operates his own miniature, radio-controlled battle fleet; a man in New York collects freak timepieces, and a pilot flies mail by autogiro from Camden to Philadelphia. The subject, in color, is interesting and varied. Running time, 11 minutes.

Hunky and Spunky

Cleverly constructed and executed by the Max Fleischer studio this color cartoon tells of the experiences of the two donkeys, Hunky and Spunky. Spunky, a democratic soul, comes upon a small aristocratic colt but Spunky's overtures are of little avail. Spunky follows the colt out to the pastures at a discreet distance but comes a-running when the colt is menaced by a ferocious bull. The sequences with the bull are very funny and the subject is good entertainment. Running time, 7 minutes.

Popeye Cartoon

Popeye shares honors here with the baby Sweetpea in the matter of muscles and superhuman strength. Popeye having gained the ear, and eye, of a casting director, is showing daredevil stunts of himself on the screen. Popeye is looking for a screen contract. Into the projection room unnoticed comes Sweetpea with a reel of film which he switches with one of Popeye's. As is to be expected Sweetpea is the hero of the reel and it is he who is signed to a contract forthwith. Running time, 7 minutes.

The Fulla Bluff Man

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Stone Age Cartoon

This travesty on a method of salesmanship as indulged in by a brush company has the ace salesman of prehistoric times, Stone E. Broke, showing how it was done in the stone age. At first the salesman has his troubles selling carpet sweepers but he hits his stride when he provokes a street brawl and then proceeds to sell the battlers shillalahs. The brawl spreads, the shillalah sales increase and soon his stock is sold out but the salesman cannot help but gloat a bit causing a general rush in his direction as the brawlers realize Stone E. Broke is the cause of it all. Running time, 7 minutes.

"Britain at Bay"

(Ministry of Information)

War Documentary

Made under the Ministry's film propaganda scheme this is no more than a pithy and concise flirtation with the idea of national defense. Showing what is being done by the Services, by the Civil Defence groups, and by the factory workers, it is, surprisingly in so short a space, a moving and nobly tuned effort, not only by its imagery and editing, but by its commentary, finely conceived and simply spoken by novelist J. B. Priestley. Here is the honest English voice which speaks for all England. The "We shall fight on the beaches . . ." peroration quoted from Prime Minister Churchill is moving by its delivery and its inspiring pictorial expression.—Running time, 7 minutes.—A. F.

MUSICIANS GET ACTORS' HELP AGAINST PETRILLO

Tibbett and Jaffe Ask Screen Guild's Aid in Resisting the Demands of the Federation

The Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent actors' union, prepared this week again to defend its members. The battle is that brewing between its American Guild of Musical Artists, headed by Lawrence Tibbett, and the powerful American Federation of Musicians, led by James C. Petrillo.

This week and last, Four A's member unions met to consider what aid they could give, if any, to the guild. On Monday, Mr. Tibbett and Henry Jaffe, Four A's attorney, left New York by airplane for Hollywood to solicit support from the Screen Actors Guild, which contributed largely to the victory which the actors' unions scored last summer over the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, whose organizing efforts, like those of the musicians' federation seemed to be an athwart acting endeavor. The Actors Guild in Hollywood late Tuesday voted support to Mr. Tibbett's Guild in opposing "encroachment on its jurisdiction," but did not take a stand on specific differences between the Petrillo and the Tibbett groups. Actors' Equity officers in New York expressed similar sentiments.

Tibbett, Petrillo Meet

Mr. Tibbett and Mr. Petrillo met in New York last week, said things which presaged a settlement and a compromise, but disclosed no terms. They were to meet again this week, also in New York.

Mr. Petrillo, several weeks ago, ordered the instrumentalists belonging to the musicians' guild, to join his federation by September 2nd, threatening debarment from radio, screen, and virtually any form of organized entertainment if they did not. Though the instrumentalists and the guild officials regard this as an infringement of jurisdiction of the Four A's, and an attempt to eliminate the four-year-old guild, Mr. Petrillo in interviews to the press declared that, instead, the guild represented an invasion of the federation's jurisdiction; that the instrumentalists, who include personalities such as Jose Iturbi, Jascha Heifetz, and Efrem Zimbalist, were "musicians," and that all musicians belonged in the federation.

He added a denial of rumors in actors' circles that his decision to add a comparatively few instrumentalists to the estimated 157,000 members of his federation, had been dictated, or suggested, by George Browne, president of the IATSE.

It was the IATSE and Mr. Browne, whom the Four A's repulsed in the battle of Atlantic City last summer.

Members of the musicians' guild told the press this week they did not want to be under Mr. Petrillo.

Mr. Petrillo also is attempting to unionize the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He has ordered the records division of the Radio Corporation of America, at Camden, New Jersey, not to make any more recordings of this unit after Labor Day. The order will be obeyed because of contracts by the federation with the company. Mr. Petrillo has also caused the orchestra to be banned from radio.

A third issue in which Petrillo is interested, and which more directly concerns the film industry, is the strike by the Philadelphia musicians' local, No. 77, against the Warner circuit in that city. The strike is nine months old. Mr. Petrillo met with Warner labor contact Frank Phelps several weeks ago, with no settlement resulting, and he met again last week with Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the circuit.

Chicago Operators Contract

Officials of the Chicago projectionists' union expected to start negotiating with the city's theatre owners this week on a new contract, effective September 1st. It was anticipated that present contracts might be extended for one year.

Taxes, and other business factors, are understood to have interfered with an agreement between Cincinnati projectionists and theatre men, on new wage scales to become effective September 1st. Negotiations have been on for several weeks.

Local No. 10 of the IATSE, of Buffalo, celebrated its 50th anniversary Monday night, at the Hotel Statler, in that city. There was an informal stag dinner.

Television Standards Committee Meets

The National Television Systems Committee, organized last month to obtain agreement on television standards from all patent holders and manufacturers in the field, will have its first sub-committees in session by early September, it was agreed on Wednesday, at a preliminary conference of panel chairmen at the Hotel Roosevelt, in New York City.

The Committee's object is to establish standards acceptable to all in the field, so that the Federal Communications Commission will grant full commercialization rights to television, without the intra-industry squabbles which have arisen in the past. It is expected that the conferences will be completed by January 1st.

Convention in Hollywood

What was described as a "first national television convention" was to open Thursday at the Roosevelt Hotel, Hollywood, and continue through Saturday. The program listed 21 speakers. The meeting was sponsored by the Television Engineers Institute, an organization headed by George Seward, retired engineer, who calls his interest in television "purely academic."

Set Film Course

Harold W. (Chick) Evens, manager of the Loew's State in St. Louis, and Colvin McPherson, motion picture critic of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, have been invited to conduct a series of lectures on the motion picture industry at the Washington University Adult Study Center next fall. The series will be entitled, "Movie Parade," and will feature from time to time visiting film celebrities and exhibition of old silent films.

Theatre Group in War Relief Drive

Plans for an intensive campaign for money and relief materials were formulated at a meeting of the executive board of the American Theatre Wing of the Allied Relief Fund in New York Wednesday, August 14th. The drive, to be conducted this fall, will include the collection of small donations from New York theatre audiences, a method which netted $370 at six summer theatres.

$25,000 Raised

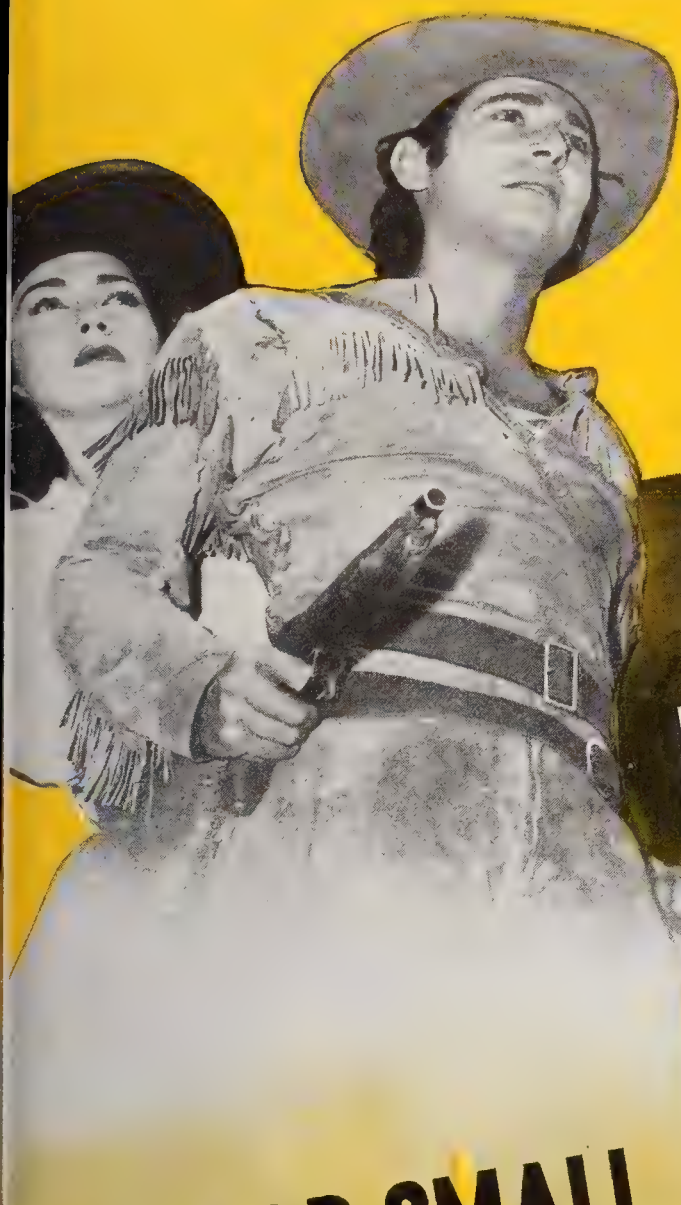
A summary of the work done in the summer by the Theatre Wing, which is under the chairmanship of Rachel Crothers, shows a total of nearly $25,000 in cash raised or donated. 230 cases of clothing and bedding supplies shipped to England, and an unestimated amount of food and material donated for conversion into relief supplies.

Miss Mildred Morris, assistant secretary of the organization, said the money collected thus far by the organization represented entirely spontaneous contributions. The only money raising schemes, besides the summer theatre collections, have been a few scattered benefits to provide enough money to maintain the workshop and offices.

Miss Morris said the children from the British Actors Orphanage would arrive in this country toward the end of this month to remain for the duration of the war. The evacuation of these children, she said, is under the sponsorship of Dame May Whitty and they will be under her care in California when they arrive. It is reported, Miss Morris added, that Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has underwritten the financial end of the project, which amounts to $30,000 yearly for the children's support.

United Artists Corporation has been authorized to make a substantial contribution to Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, covering one or more Red Cross ambulances, on behalf of five of the company's independent producers, Alexander Korda, David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger, Hal Roach and Edward Small. Samuel Goldwyn has already made a Red Cross contribution through Ambassador Kennedy and Charles Chaplin has contributed to various British relief organizations including the Red Cross and the British Actors Orphanage Fund, the company said.

Monogram Buys Into Franchise



Monogram Pictures has purchased the interests of A. M. Goldstein in Monogram Pictures of the Northwest, Inc., distributors for the company in Seattle, Washington, and Portland, Oregon. The producing company will operate the exchanges with Monogram Pictures of California, president of which is Howard Stubbins. W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, will become a member of the board of the Northwest exchanges.

Staunton Union Elects

At the annual election of officers of Staunton, Va., Local No. 572, IATSE, held Sunday, August 18th, the following men were elected: Lewis Rodgers, Lexington, president and business agent; Herman H. Diehl, Jr., Covington, vice-president; Donald Pattee, Harrisonburg, financial and corresponding secretary; Anthony Peduto, Staunton, treasurer, and Raymond Bowers, Clifton Forge, sergeant-at-arms. All officers were reelected with the exception of Mr. Diehl, who succeeds Weldon Holsinger of Staunton.

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

The notes on this page were mailed from London August 10th.

At Shepherd's Bush

With the Crazy Gang film, "Gas Bags," out of the way, work at Shepherds Bush Studios has now been concentrated exclusively on the Twentieth Century Production "Inspector Hornleigh Goes To It," in which the Gordon Harker-Alistair Sim duo, as the famous Inspector and his mate Bingham, are once again in the lead. The story is a Fifth Column subject, with Hornleigh caught up in a net-work of espionage, in the unravelling of which he adopts the make-up of the schoolmaster's cap and gown, a bizarre note for Harker.

The film is being directed by Walter Forde, with the Maurice Ostrer-Edward Black team producing.

Phyllis Calvert, Edward Chapman, Percy Walsh and Richard Cooper are included in the cast.

Team Dissolved

War exigencies seemed likely to break up the highly popular partnership of Charters-Caldecott-Basil Radford and Naughton Wayne—the cricket crazy Englishman of "Lady Vanishes" and "Gestapo" (now called for British consumption "Night Train to Munich") and "Crooks' Tour."

Basil Radford has taken a commission in his old regiment, the South Staffordshires, and it was feared that his film work would have to cease. Maurice Ostrer, however, is hoping to make arrangements with the War Office whereby Radford will be given time off to make another film with Naughton Wayne in the near future.

'This England' Lead

It is expected that Constance Cummings will play the lead in the new British National picture "This England," which David Macdonald is directing for John Corfield.

The script calls for a leading lady who can be at her ease in the costumes of the Roman, Norman, Elizabethan and modern periods, and it was decided that Miss Cummings fills the bill.

Among the experts engaged on the film is the noted historian, Dr. Beard, who will be in charge of research. Duncan Sutherland will be art director and the music will be by Richard Addinsell and Muir Matheson.

Music for "Freedom Radio," the Two Cities production for Columbia release, has been composed by Nicholas Brodsky and Muir Matheson has selected one hundred musicians from the London Philharmonic and London Symphony Orchestras to record it.

Due to return to the screen shortly, after an absence of some months, is schoolmaster-comedian Will Hay, who will make a picture at Ealing for Michael Balcon.

No final decision has been taken as to what the picture will be, but rumor associates Will Hay with a film based on "Knights of the Round Table."

BEST SELLERS AND RENTERS

"Through the House Door," by Helen Hull, led the listing of Best Sellers of fiction in the period June 17th to July 15th, and "How Green Was My Valley," by Richard Llewellyn, led the Best Renters listing for the period, according to The Retail Bookseller, house organ of The Baker & Taylor Company, New York.

Ten Best Sellers

(Based upon a count of sales from June 17th to July 15th)

1. Through the House Door, by Helen Hull.
2. Stars on the Sea, by F. Van Wyck Mason.
3. World's End, by Upton Sinclair.
4. Master-at-Arms, by Rafael Sabatini.
5. Legacy, by Charles Bonner.
6. How Green Was My Valley, by Richard Llewellyn.
7. The Vantage Point, by Hilda Morris.
8. Quietly My Captain Waits, by Evelyn Eaton.
9. Rose Galbraith, by Grace Livingston Hill.
10. Someday I'll Find You, by Margaret Widemer.

Ten Best Renters

(Based on nationwide reports)

1. How Green Was My Valley, by Richard Llewellyn.
2. Night in Bombay, by Louis Bromfield.
3. Kings Row, by Henry Bellamann.
4. Mr. Skeffington, by Elizabeth.
5. Stars on the Sea, by F. Van Wyck Mason.
6. Kitty Foyle, by Christopher Morley.
7. Quietly My Captain Waits, by Evelyn Eaton.
8. Chad Hanna, by Walter D. Edmonds.
9. Native Son, by Richard Wright.
10. The Bird in the Tree, by Elizabeth Goudge.

Salvation Army

The Albert Hall, noted concert hall and scene of revivals, demonstrations and political meetings in London, was used as a location for one of the biggest scenes in Gabrial Pascal's production of Shaw's "Major Barbara." What was probably the largest crowd of artists since the War packed into the Kensington hall dressed as members of the Salvation Army. They played the part of Salvationists at a revival meeting. More than five hundred of these were chosen personally by Pascal and several days were used for the auditions.

Bent upon getting the best possible out of every line, Producer Gabrial Pascal has employed well known stage stars to play single line roles in the film. Among those who have one-line parts is Ronald Squire, who makes a brief appearance as a butler. Other fleeting appearances are by Edward Rigby, Wally Patch and Edward Shiner.

Lawson as Ash

Wilfrid Lawson has been chosen to play the part of Churdles Ash, grizzled old woman-hating farm hand in the Eden Phillpotts comedy of Devon, "The Farmer's Wife," which is being produced by Associated British at Welwyn.

"The Farmer's Wife" was one of the most successful London stage plays of its time and is still a subject with English repertory companies.

Direction of the film is shared by Leslie Arliss and Norman Lee who have worked collaboratively on the script.

Basil Sydney has the role of a farmer who finds widowerhood irksome, and Norah Swinborne that of Araminta. Enid Stamp Taylor is a barmaid, Viola Lyel is a finicky spinster and Betty Warren a wealthy hunting and shooting widow. Patricia Roc and Bunty Payne are the farmer's daughters.

Back to the screen after five years' absence come Dorothy Hyson, as leading lady to George Formby in the new Ealing production "Spare a Copper," which Michael Balcon is producing with John Paddy Carstairs in directorial charge.

The last film Miss Hyson made was the Ealing "Sing as We Go." She has come back to the screen following the mobilization of her husband, Robert Douglas, into the Fleet Air Arm.

Steve Pallos has been named to the board of directors of United Artists, representing Alexander Korda. Mr. Pallos was general manager for Mr. Korda in England. Emanuel Silverstone, eastern representative and board member for Mr. Korda prior to Mr. Pallos' appointment, will continue to sit in at directors' meetings.

British Circuits Set New Minimum Admission Scales

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

English theatre circuits this week made known through the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association their new agreement on a new scale of admissions, to become effective October 6th.

Range Given

Substantiating forecasts of the new scale published in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, the minimum admission is disclosed at nine-pence, with one shilling, two-pence, and one shilling, nine-pence as the chief prices in first run theatres. The scale also includes price of one shilling, one shilling, six-pence and two shillings, six-pence. Prices in individual situations are to be selected from this range of six different prices.

Theatres now operating on a scale of six-pence, nine-pence and one shilling will operate under the new policy with eight-pence, one shilling, and one shilling, two-pence. Other areas now using a six-pence minimum will change to a minimum of eight-pence or nine-pence.

In situations where only one of the circuits is represented, an agreement will be reached with the local independent operators.

This new scale will form the basis for immediate discussions in local C.E.A. groups, and is expected to meet with considerable opposition in some independent exhibitor quarters.

Film Commission Planned

Carefully screened backstage movements on the part of the British Board of Trade and financial interests here seem to indicate that the Government is completing plans for the formation in the near future of a Film Industry Commission.

Following the appearance on July 17th of Sir Andrew Duncan, president of the Board of Trade, at a Films Council meeting, when he said he favored such a commission, a secret committee has been at work. Duncan asked the council to appoint members to collaborate with the Board of Trade in framing legislation designed to establish a Films Credit Bank.

It is believed that the committee includes, among others, Arthur W. Jarratt, for exhibitors; Capt. Richard Norton, for producers; Francis W. Baker, for distributors; George H. Elvin, labor; Simon Rowson, trade expert.

Despite the secrecy attached to the proceedings, it is understood in informed quarters that legislation is being developed leading to the formation of a film commission. It is believed further that Duncan was influenced by the original film report of Lord Moyne's committee, which favored the control of the industry by a select body with control of foreign film investments here, rental terms, admissions and other phases of operation.

Headed by Fayette Allport, representative here of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, a deputation of American film men today presented to U. S. Ambassador to England Joseph P. Kennedy, a check for £16,000 ($64,000).

The money, the contribution of American companies operating in England, will be used to assist organizations working to relieve and protect the English civilian population.

INDUSTRY IN CANADA SETS WAR AID GROUP

Pioneers Group Sponsor of Move to Organize War Work and Charity Shows

The Canadian Picture Pioneers, sponsor of the "Win the War" campaign in the Dominion, is backing the Canadian Motion Picture Industry's War Service Committee for the organizing of all branches of the industry in Canada to cooperate with the Government in war work and charities.

Officers Named

The chairman of the new committee is N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players-Canadian. Other officers are Ray Lewis, secretary-treasurer, and Leo Devaney in charge of publicity. Also on the committee are Clair Hague, president of the Pioneers; Oscar Hanson, Nat Taylor, Harry Alexander, Colonel John Cooper, J. J. Fitzgibbons and Louis Rosenfeld, with Jim O'Loghlin and Haskel Masters, alternate members.

The committee is considering, among other things, methods of providing for refugee children of film people in Great Britain. Offers to accommodate children of British screen stars and executives have been made by Mr. Hanson and Paul Nathanson, son of N. L. Nathanson.

The Canadian Picture Pioneers is considering plans for Canadian tours of Hollywood and British stars to raise funds for the Red Cross and otherwise; the presentation of plays and vaudeville shows, and a rodeo late in September featuring Gene Autry at the Circle M Ranch, near Toronto, which is owned by Charles Mavety.

Columbia Office in St. John

An important change in the distribution lineup in St. John, N. B., is the establishment of an exchange for Columbia. This will cover the maritime provinces and Newfoundland. For many years, Maritime Films, an independent exchange operated jointly by Mitchell Bernstein and Joseph Lieberman has distributed for Columbia in the territory. Maritime Films will be dissolved. Mr. Lieberman will manage the new Columbia exchange and Mr. Bernstein will devote all his attention to a circuit which two partners have operated in recent years, located princially along both sides of the Canadian-U. S. border, at Hartland, Andover, Edmundston, on the Canadian side and Madawaska and Van Buren, on the U. S. side.

Columbia joins RKO, United Artists, Twentieth Century-Fox, Warner Brothers, Universal-Empire and Paramount in maintaining exchanges in St. John. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer markets its films through Regal Films, affiliated with Famous Players-Canadian.

125 French Films on Hand

France Film Company, Montreal, exclusive distributor of French films in Canada, has on hand 125 French pictures, equal to the average production program of one year, according to the company.

It has been suggested that the company produce French pictures in Quebec Province, but J. M. de Roussy, commercial director, says that lack of outstanding actors as well as financial backing would render such an enterprise unprofitable. Mr. de Roussy believes that French production will continue either in Paris or in the unoccupied area presided over by Marshal Petain.

Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., owners of the Loew's and Uptown theatres in Toronto, reports operations for the first 11 months of the current fiscal year were on a par or slightly ahead of the same period, ending August 31, 1939, last year.

The results for the full year, despite increased taxation, are expected to closely approximate last year when net earnings were equal to $18.51 a share on 7 per cent $100 par preference stock.

Sunday Entertainment

While exhibitors and soldier welfare organizations in Canada find themselves balked in their efforts to provide Sunday entertainment for soldiers, sailors and airmen, there is one stretch on the international border enjoying immunity from the Sunday ban.

This is a bilingual section comprising northern Aroostock County, Maine, and Victoria and Madawaska Counties, New Brunswick.

Sunday operation, afternoon and night, is permitted in Edmundston, N. B., and Madawaska, Me., pulp and paper mill towns. The same applies to St. Leonard, N. B. and Van Buren, Me., twin towns down river, and also connected by an international bridge. Other centers in the same belt where theatres are open on Sunday are Caribou, Fort Kent, Fort Fairfield, on the Maine side, and Grand Falls, with Perth-Andover, on the New Brunswick side.

In most of the spots, the populations are chiefly of French descent, and both French and English are spoken.

Bagnall Joins Korda

George L. Bagnall, former Paramount vice-president and studio manager, has been appointed general manager of Alexander Korda Productions. The negotiations were begun after Mr. Bagnall left Paramount recently. The appointment is in preparation for Mr. Korda's Hollywood production program, in which S. A. Klune, on loan from Selznick International, and Zoltan Korda will also figure.

Plans European Visit

Fred W. Lange, Continental European manager for Paramount, is planning to return to the Continent to check up on Paramount properties there and explore the possibilities of more business. Mr. Lange's plans for departure will be determined by future developments abroad. He returned to New York from Europe about a month ago and has been at the home office since.

ERPI Foreign Installations

The foreign department of Electrical Research Products, Inc., reports business "as usual" despite the war. The company has recently installed Western Electric sound equipment in the Dominican Republic for the first time, at the new Capitol theatre in Ciudad Trujillo. The company also installed equipment recently in the Teatro Odeon, Guayaquil, Ecuador; a theatre in Afganistan, and the Teatro Municipal, Asuncion, in Paraguay, among others.

Latin American Figures

Warner Brothers plan to make a series of short subjects dealing with Latin American historical figures. The series is expected to foster goodwill getween the United States and South American republics.

PARAMOUNT UNITS WILL EXPAND IN TELEVISION

Balaban & Katz Station in Chicago Plans Relay Unit; Mobile Set for Coast

Balaban & Katz, Paramount theatre affiliate in Chicago which has a Federal Communications Commission construction permit for a television station in Chicago, has filed an application for a relay transmitter for that city, to operate in the 204-210 and 210-216 mc channels (television channels Nos. 11 and 12), with 250 watts power.

Television Productions, Inc., Paramount West Coast television company which also has received a license for a station, at Los Angeles, has made an application for a mobile unit to operate on the 180-186 and 186-192mc bands (channels Nos. 9 and 10).

Although Television Productions has received a construction permit for Los Angeles and requested permission to use a mobile unit which transmits outside programs to the main station at the Paramount studio it was said at the studio that no one there had any knowledge of the television plans other than a long-standing tentative provision for a television station in the proposed new studio.

Television Group Meets

Officers of the National Television Systems Committee, formed July 31st under the sponsorship of the Radio Manufacturers Association and with the cooperation of the Federal Communications Commission, met at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City on Wednesday. Reports from the chairmen of the nine subcommittees were heard. An effort is being made to complete the study and make a final report by the first of the year, if possible. W. R. G. Baker, is chairman and Virgil M. Graham is secretary of the all-industry committee.

The television industry committee has been completed with the appointment of Ray H. Manson of Stromberg-Carlson, Dr. Ralph Brown, Bell Telephone Laboratories and Paul R. Raibourn, Paramount's television coordinator.

Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith is chairman of Panel 2 of the National Television Systems Committee, the sub-committee on subjective aspects. This committee, comprising experts in psychology, optics, photography, ophthalmology, biophysics, electrical and radio engineering, physiology and advanced physics, will study television from the viewpoint of the audience and attempt to find out what standards will be most acceptable to one viewing a television picture. Investigations of a similar nature have already been begun by the special committee on television of the Institute of Radio Engineers which also is headed by Dr. Goldsmith.

Curb Listing Sought

Majestic Radio & Television Corporation which has emerged from reorganization under a plan which gave control to the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, Paramount affiliate, will apply for a listing of the new preferred and common stock on the New York Curb Exchange. New capitalization includes 80,000 shares of no par value preferred stock; 1,500,000 shares of common with a par value of one cent per share and $165,000 in ten year, five percent sinking fund debentures.

The new National Broadcasting Company building in downtown San Francisco on which construction is scheduled to start shortly has been designed to include space for television, according to Al Nelson, manager of KPO-KGO. The new structure will be five stories high and windowless. There will be ten studios for broadcasting, the largest capable of seating 500 persons.

Television Permits Granted

The Federal Communications Commission has authorized construction of a television station in Philadelphia by WCAU Broadcasting Company, an affiliate of the Columbia Broadcasting System. The new television station will operate on the 84-90 mc band with a power of 1,000 watts. The station will experiment with various standards, from 441 to 729 lines and from 15 to 30 frames. Research will include tests with FM and AM and a comparison of vertical and horizontal polarization.

Experimental stations were also authorized for Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., and the State University of Iowa, Iowa City. The Purdue station will operate on the 66-72 mc band with a power of 750 watts and the Iowa station on both the 50-56 and 210-216 mc channels with 100 watts visual only. Both universities have been active in television work.

Army Tests Television

Field tests are being conducted in the vicinity of Ogdensburg, New York, by Allen B. Dumont Laboratories with the cooperation of the United States Army for the purpose of determining possible military uses for television. Mr. DuMont said that several transmitters were being used and that a full staff of television engineers was at the First Army maneuvers. At 515 Madison Avenue where the new DuMont television station is being constructed it was reported that the entire staff was at Ogdensburg.

The New York Times reported last September that devices based on television principles had been patented which it was claimed could detect enemy planes, dirigibles, submarines, mines and enable pilots to "see" the terrain below while lurking behind clouds. It was said that, according to the patents, enemy guns hidden behind masonry and embankments could be detected.

No indication was given about the military uses found for the DuMont portable television equipment at the Ogdensburg maneuvers.

Power Increase Granted

A five-fold increase in night signal power, from 1,000 watts to 5,000 watts, has been granted radio station KHJ in Los Angeles, it was announced this week. Lewis Allen Weiss, vice-president and general manager of the Don Lee network, of which KHJ is the key Southern California outlet, in addition to announcing the raise granted by the FCC, said that work would now start on two new directional antennae. Based on a 13-acre plot, the antennae will be 300 feet in height and 275 feet apart, while the present towers will be used for short-wave work on completion of the new ones.

LOHR WRITES BOOK ON TELEVISION

Lenox R. Lohr, former president of the National Broadcasting Company, has written a book called "Television Broadcasting", published by McGraw-Hill, in which the relation of motion pictures to television is discussed. David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, contributed the foreword.

"Motion picture film should take an important place in television programming," Mr. Lohr said. "Film used in television has all the advantages that it does in motion picture theatres and certain additional uses."

It was pointed out that from an economic viewpoint it is better to use films rather than live talent shows. Mr. Lohr granted that current runs of motion pictures should not go to television but, he said, "The third and fourth runs might be taken on a nationwide television hookup, speeding up the capital turnover on the film to about six months or less."

Museum Planning Griffith Exhibit

The Museum of Modern Art, New York, starting October 29th will hold an exhibition of the work of David Wark Griffith, pioneer film director. The exhibit, titled "Two Great Americans," also will show the work of Frank Lloyd Wright, architect. The Museum had originally planned to include, under the title "Three Great Americans," the work of Alfred Stieglitz, noted photographer. The Stieglitz exhibition has been postponed because of the ill health of the artist.

The Griffith exhibition, besides tracing Mr. Griffith's career, will contain a pictorial analysis, step by step, of sequences from two of his films—one early and one more mature—so that his actual technique may be studied closely. Documents, photographs and other material drawn from the Museum's Film Library collection will be supplemented by the continuous projection of film in the gallery and by the showing of a cycle of films in the Museum auditorium.

World Sets Group of Ten for New Season

"Time in the Sun," produced by Marie Seton from the film photographed and directed by the Eisenstein-Tisse expedition into Mexico, will be the first release of a group of 10 new films which World Pictures Corporation will distribute as part of their 1940-41 program.

Others are "Hatred" and "The Patriot," both starring Harry Baur; "The Night of the Mayans," "Shark Woman," produced by B. F. Zeidman; "Annie Laurie," with Will Fyffe; "Monkey into Man," produced under the supervision of Julian Huxley; the reissue of "The Life and Loves of Beethoven," "Humanity," an exploitation film on the world crisis, and "Students of Crime," by the authors of the stage play, "Ladies in Retirement."

Start Yiddish Feature

Mathilda Seiden, film director, has begun work on "Three Daughters," the third of a series of four Yiddish pictures which she is directing for the Cinema Service Corporation. It is being made at the Cinema Service studios at Palisade, N. J.

Ballots Sought On Sunday Shows In Pennsylvania

Because of the presidential campaign, the Sunday film advocates in Pennsylvania will wage only seven local option fights this November in the state. Church interests originally intended to put the Sunday picture issue on the ballot in 325 Pennsylvania communities.

The Reverend William B. Forney, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of Pennsylvania, said his organization had advised church people of the opportunity for a vote this year, but replies are said to be slow in reaching Philadelphia headquarters. The church forces of the state will confine their efforts to only three key cities, Reading, Lock Haven and Easton. Film interests will try to get Sunday films for Harrisburg, Bethlehem, Williamsport and perhaps Lancaster.

Five years ago, 167 municipalities favored Sunday movies and 158 opposed them.

Unions Back Sunday Films

Clyde Stewart, chairman of the Harrisburg Building Trades Council, said last week that all American Federation of Labor unions in Harrisburg, Pa., would be lined up in favor of Sunday films at the November election. He said all the 17 craft unions in the council were ready and anxious to aid in getting Sunday films.

A united stand against the proposed legalization of Sunday films in every community in which it becomes an issue will be made by 10,000 Bible classes in Pennsylvania, said Arthur R. Bodmer, head of adult work of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association.

The Association played an important role in defeating Sunday films in Harrisburg in 1935 when voters opposed the issue more than two to one.

The Beaver Falls city council has approved a petition, signed by 256 qualified voters, asking that Sunday films be put on the ballot for the November election. Voters disapproved Sunday films in 1935.

K. L. Shirk, district attorney of Lancaster, Pa., has warned operators of Sunday films and vaudeville shows in parks, etc., that his office expects Sabbath observance in the future, and that it will attempt to enforce the Sunday laws.

Abington Township, adjoining Philadelphia, is assured the opportunity to vote in the November election on the question of Sunday films, now banned in the community. A petition signed by 1,243 residents was forwarded to the county commissioners.

Mohawk Sets Several Distribution Deals

J. S. Berkson, in charge of sales for Mohawk Films, which is distributing a group of 19 pictures acquired from Grand National, reports that the company has concluded several distribution deals throughout the country.

Among the exchanges involved in the deals and the territories sold to each are: Principal Film Exchange, Greater New York and New Jersey; Pam-O-Film Exchange, Buffalo and Albany; Imperial Pictures, Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and Wisconsin; Sack Amusement Enterprises, Charlotte, Dallas and Atlanta; Atlantic Pictures, New Orleans, and Excellent Pictures, Detroit.

AFM FIGHTS THEATRE ON SLOT MACHINES

Possible Punitive Action Would Come Through Aid of IATSE Which Asks Investigation

Labor's concern and possible opposition to the well-heralded new industry, "nickel-in-the-slot-movies" was expressed this week by actors' unions which formulated codes to govern members appearing in films for the new medium, and by musicians who objected to the use of a nickel phonograph in the lounge of a theatre.

IATSE Interference Seen

In the latter instance, the machine was being used in Nat Bernstein's State theatre, Elkhart, Ind., the patrons being entitled to use it upon payment of admission. Harry Geiss, president of the musicians' local, No. 192, protested to Mr. Bernstein, who replied that the theatre had no contract with the musicians.

The Geiss protest was forwarded to James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, the local's spokesman said, but Mr. Petrillo, interviewed in New York last week, declared the matter had not been brought to his attention, and added that national action against theatres using music machines was not immediately contemplated by the AFM.

Punitive action by the AFM against the State would probably take the form of a request from the IATSE, with whom the federation has a working agreement, for assistance. Mr. Bernstein last week, through the local IATSE, asked that international's executive board in Chicago, to send a representative to investigate the situation, and said he would abide by this representative's decision.

Temporary Pact Considered

The Actors Equity, the American Guild of Variety Artists, the American Federation of Radio Artists, and other members of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America are considering a "temporary agreement" between the Screen Actors Guild and the companies producing for the nickel-movie machines. The agreement was made temporary in lieu of greater knowledge by the screen actors union of the machines' possibilities, and the producers' methods of operation.

The letter from the SAG, to a producing company, Peck-Umann, and constituting the agreement, follows, in part:

"Because of the fact that this work is so new, we are agreed it would be unfair to prospective employers or prospective actors to attempt to negotiate a complete agreement . . . at this time. We, therefore, agree that you may proceed to make what you call test productions, which, if satisfactory, may be later sold by you, and that you may contract with artists for such work upon such terms as you desire save and except for the limitations hereinafter set forth."

Sets Wage Scales

The letter designates members in good standing in the SAG, the Actors Equity, American Federation of Radio Artists, American Guild of Musical Artists, and American Guild of Variety Artists, as "eligible" for the type work, without joining any other branch of the Four A's. It then requires the producer to agree to pay artists not less than $25 per day, and extras not less than the scales provided for in the Producers-Screen Actors Guild Basic Minimum Contract for 1937, and that he keep the guild supplied with "all data as to artists used, time they worked, wages paid, together with any other information which might be useful towards the end that both the employer and the incorporated guild shall have a foundation for the negotiations of a general contract covering this field."

Globe Finishes Eight

James Roosevelt's Globe Productions has completed eight short subjects for the coin operated movie machines which are now being manufactured by the Mills Novelty Company of Chicago; and Mr. Roosevelt this week announced that the pictures would be shown publicly for the first time, in Hollywood, on September 16th.

Michigan Phonovision

Michigan Phonovision Distributors has been incorporated, with a capital of $100,000 and offices in Detroit. Officers are Don Kelsey, vice-president and general manager; John Gorsuch, president; Walter Probst, secretary. Herbert Bauer is handling publicity.

In the same city, it is reported that Jacob Schreiber, former circuit operator, is planning to enter the coin-movie-machine field.

Cohn Buys More Columbia Stock

Only one film-stock transaction will be shown in the final summary of transactions of officers and directors of corporations in the securities of their companies in June, to be issued Friday by the Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington. That transaction was the acquisition of 600 shares of Columbia Pictures common stock by Harry Cohn, president, in Hollywood. The June report was accompanied by returns for previous months showing acquisitions of 200 shares in December and 100 shares in February, which brought Mr. Cohn's holdings at the close of June to 74,049 shares held direct and 2,160 shares held through a separate account.

Back reports also were filed by Paul G. Brown, Boca Raton, Fla., Universal Corporation director, showing the acquisition of 700 common voting trust certificates in November and 2,000 in December, 1939, and 1,000 in May, 1940, giving him at the end of that month 13,600 held direct, in addition to 26,500 held through the Standard Capital Company.

J. Miller Walker, New York, officer, held 155 warrants for RKO common stock when the company's registration became effective June 14th, it was reported. O. R. McMahon, New York, officer, and Raymond Bill, New York, director, held no equity securities.

Loew's Gets "Daltons"

Universal has sold "When the Daltons Rode" to the Loew's New York circuit in a deal which will give the picture its first New York showings in 12 theatres simultaneously. The film opened at Loew's State, Thursday, August 22nd, for a minimum engagement of a week, and in 11 Loew's neighborhood houses on the same day.

Stein Back at U. A.

Ed Stein, former Samuel Goldwyn publicity representative, has returned to United Artists for a special assignment.

Monogram Will Move New York Office to Coast

At a special meeting of the board of directors of Monogram Pictures Corporation, held Friday, August 16th, at the company's headquarters in the RKO Building, Rockefeller Center, a decision was reached to move the home offices of the organization to the west coast. Only the foreign department, under Norton V. Ritchey, will continue to function in the east, making its headquarters at the New York exchange in the Film Center Building. The move is expected to be completed in 90 days.

The board set October 2nd for the annual stockholders' meeting. Attending the session were Mr. Johnston, O. Henry Briggs, Trem Carr, Scott R. Dunlap, Thomas P. Loach, Steve Broidy, John Mangham, J. A. Sisto and Col. T. C. Davis. Mr. Carr and Mr. Dunlap left for the coast following the meeting.

Mr. Johnston, who arrived in New York from the coast last week for the meeting, said 17 pictures were completed and work on seven others was started during his stay at the studio.

The completed product includes "Queen of the Yukon," with Charles Bickford and Irene Rick; "The Ape," with Boris Karloff; "Up in the Air," with Frankie Darro; "That Gang of Mine," with the East Side Kids; "Gypsy Cavalier," in color; "Drums of the Desert" and "Phantom of Chinatown."

RCA Signs Deals

RCA Manufacturing Company signed sound service contracts with a score of independents in July, according to W. L. Jones, national service manager. The theatres include the Lakeside, Rangeley, Me.; Stratton, Middletown, N. Y.; Delmore, Avonmore, Pa.; Cinema, Atlantic City, N. J.; Westport, Baltimore, Md.; Grand, Lebanon, Ohio; New Royal, Evansville, Ind.; Belmont and Talbot, Indianapolis, Ind.; Palace, Jacksboro, Tex.; Carnation, Sulphur Springs, Tex.; Garby, Clarion, Pa.; Williston, Mineola, N. Y.; Star, Glassport, Pa.; Mayfair, Philadelphia, Pa.; Stonehurst, Upper Darby, Pa.; Haversham, Clarksville, Ga.; Riverside Auto, Columbus, Ohio, and Fenway, Fenimore, Wis.

Patchen in New Post

E. A. Patchen, until recently advertising manager for Standard Theatres Corporation in Oklahoma City, Okla., has been named manager of the Chief theatre in Pueblo, Col. The Chief is a unit of Westland Theatres in Colorado.

Form Supply Company

E. W. Foster, northwest distributor for International seats and Charles Creamer, formerly in charge of sound and equipment for Elliott Film Company, have formed a company to handle distribution in Minnesota, the Dakotas and western Wisconsin of a complete line of theatre supplies and equipment. Offices will be in Minneapolis.

Philadelphia Federation Modifies Preview Policy

The Philadelphia Federation of Women's Clubs and Allied Organizations, aiming for greater co-operation with exhibitors and exchanges, has suggested that pictures be submitted for screening which are worth while although they may not have popular appeal. Representing 101 active clubs with a roll call of more than 150,000, the Federation seeks several previews a year for the various motion picture groups, whose approval would mean support and public endorsement for the feature.

In the past, exhibitors and exchangemen were no little annoyed by the many women's clubs asking for previews on only the top pictures, especially those with big stars featured, invariably those that did not need the type of exploitation the groups could offer. By asking that they be allowed to cooperate on shows which have merit but lack direct box office appeal, it sets a precedent most welcomed by the exhibitors and exchanges.

Mrs. Harry B. Miller was appointed chairman of the Federation's Motion Picture Department.

Business Managers Of Independent Producers Organize

Culminating the plan inaugurated several months ago, business managers of independent Hollywood producers met Thursday, August 15th, at the Hollywood Athletic Club to establish their own group along lines similar to the Motion Picture Producers Association.

"Protection" Is Aim

Members have pointed out that with the recent increase in the number of leading independents producing for major release, there is a need for some sort of association devoted exclusively to what group members define as "protection and advancement of our interests."

The organization is expected to meet monthly to discuss problems covering all phases of production. Strictly informal in setup, the organization is to have no officers, but merely a presiding chairman. The Producers Association has invited representatives of the group to attend its meetings.

Included in the independents' group are Daniel O'Shea, David Selznick; C. W. Thornton, Edward Small; Barney Briskin, Sol Lesser; Henry Henigson, Globe; William Holman, Frank Capra; Marvin Ezell, Samuel Goldwyn; Clarence Erikson, Walter Wanger; Stanley Kramer, Loew-Lewin; George Bagnall, Alexander Korda; Jack Skirball, Frank Lloyd; Sidney Van Buren, Hal Roach. With the completion of his production arrangements, Howard Hughes also is slated to be represented. Mr. Holman is chairman of the group.

National Decency Legion Classifies Seven Films

Of seven pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week three were approved for general patronage, three were listed as unobjectionable for adults and one was condemned. The films and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Golden Fleecing," "Rhythm on the River," "The Secret Seven." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Boom Town," "One Crowded Night," "The Return of Frank James." Class C, Condemned: "Sinful Daughters."

The Better Films Council of Chicago has recommended the following pictures as family type: "Andy Hardy Meet Debutante," "Florian," "Passport to Alcatraz," "Pride and Prejudice," "Song of the Road," "Untamed," "Wagons Westward," "You're Not So Tough."

The Council listed as mature the following: "Brother Orchid," "Isle of Doomed Men," "Maryland," "One Million B. C.," "Our Town," "Private Affairs," "South of Pago Pago," "When the Daltons Rode" and "The Whirlpool." About the last named picture the Council says: The theme of this film is not one to be recommended for picturization."

The list was compiled by Mrs. Charles R. Holton, vice-president of the Council.

RKO in Circuit Deal

The Robb and Rowley circuit, of Texas, has signed, with RKO, for all of its 1940-41 features and short subjects.

IN COURTS

United Artists Sued Over 'Emperor Jones'

A suit for $250,000 damages has been instituted against United Artists by John Krimsky and Gifford Cochran, Inc., on the charge that United Artists failed to devote its best efforts to the distribution of "Emperor Jones," produced by Krimsky-Cochran. They also ask $8,500 in income from England which they maintain was withheld by UA, and a ruling by the court voiding a statement they signed last February that UA had performed all conditions under the distribution contract for the film.

In the request that the February agreement be voided the complaint states that on December 22, 1939, shortly before the expiration of UA's seven year contract for handling the film, the owners asked release from the pact so that they could arrange with a third party for reissuing the picture. The complaint charges that the statement was signed at the demand of UA, in lieu of obtaining the picture for the third party already contracted.

"Doped Youth" Action

Mayor Arthur B. Langlie and the Seattle Board of Theatre Supervisors have been cited in superior court there to show cause why they should not be restrained from interfering with the showing of "Doped Youth," a state right film being distributed there by Clarence Wicks. The film was booked recently for a week's run at John Danz's Colonial theatre, but was ordered stopped at the end of the first day's run. Mr. Wicks contends the film is of an educational nature while the censors claim the theme is offensive.

Malco Theatres Upheld

J. B. Ward, chancellor, of Russellville, Ark., has upheld the Malco Theatres, Inc., owners of the Rialto at Morrilton, Ark., in a suit in Conway chancery court to restrain the city of Morrilton from enforcing an ordinance which would limit the number of theatres one person or firm may operate at Morrilton. The theatre also is seeking to prevent the city from enforcing an ordinance providing a license fee of $100 in addition to an annual tax of 40 cents a chair on all chairs in excess of 300.

Ruling on Ohio Tax

The internal Revenue Bureau has ruled that when the total admission price of 21 cents includes the Ohio three per cent gross tax, no federal tax need be added. However, signs must clearly indicate an established price of .2037; Ohio tax, .0063, total admission 21 cents. The Ohio Tax Commission had previously ruled that theatres using those prices are exempt from the 10 per cent federal tax.

Seek Tax Cut

Reductions in 1941 assessments are being sought by three theatres in Rochester, N. Y. The RKO Palace seeks a cut from $828,000 to $532,000 and the RKO Temple from $469,700 to $350,000. Loew's Rochester is seeking a reduction from $1,074,200 to $850,000.

Tiffany Accounting Sought by Cruze

Requests for more specific bills of particulars have been granted in part by the circuit court in Detroit in twin suits for $1,014,673.76 filed by James Cruze Productions, growing out of the old Tiffany Productions. The suits are against Lay Improvement Company, said to be the owner of all common stock of Tiffany, and against L. A. Young, of Detroit, who was understood to be the principal figure in Tiffany.

The bill charges that under agreement of August, 1930, Tiffany was to take 10 Cruze pictures for distribution, that it has distributed and is continuing to distribute six of these, namely, "She Got What She Wanted," "Salvation Nell," "Race Track," "Women Go on Forever," "Hell Bound" and "Command Performance," but failed to make adequate accunting to Cruze Productions.

File UA Action

A suit for $5,000 damages has been filed against United Artists in New York supreme court on charges that an old Russian song was used without permission in "We Live Again," made by Samuel Goldwyn in 1934. The picture was based on the Tolstoy novel, "Resurrection." Serge Adelheim brought the suit. He charges the words and music of "Molchi, Grust, Molchi," on which he claims he owns the copyright, were used in the film.

Fleischer Seeks Tax Relief

Fleischer Studios, Inc., has filed a circuit court action in Miami, Fla., seeking relief from $1,243.80 in taxes. The complaint points out that in 1933 the state of Florida adopted a constitutional amendment exempting all motion picture studios coming into Florida from taxation for 15 years.

Judell Assets Sold

Assets of Judell Film Exchanges in Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee have been sold to Screen Attractions Corporation of New York for $2,000. The sale was conducted by A. Cohen, federal court referee.

Brady Defeated

Edward M. Brady, representative in the Missouri legislature, who was involved in the recent trial of the Motion Picture Operators' Union in St. Louis, was defeated for renomination on the Democratic ticket in the primary Tuesday, August 6th.

Mr. Brady ran fifth in a contest that saw four nominated for his office. He was indicted with John P. Nick, ousted head of the union, but was acquitted by the late Judge Thomas H. Rowe.

Republic Seeks Dismissal

Republic Pictures Corporation and Republic Productions, Inc., has applied to Edward J. Conger, federal judge, in New York, for an order dismissing the suit of Marquis James, who claims plagiarism of his book, "The Raven, a Biography of Sam Houston," in the Republic film, "Man of Conquest."

Renews Altec Service

Alex Schreiber, president of Associated Theatres, Inc., has renewed service contracts with Altec Service Corporation to cover all Associated theatres in Detroit, Highland Park, Flint, Wyandotte, Farmington and Trenton, Mich.

OBITUARIES

Gene Morgan Dies, Screen Comedian

Gene Morgan, screen comedian and master of ceremonies, died of a heart attack in Hollywood August 15th. Born in Montgomery, Ala., he appeared in vaudeville in this country and in Australia and in 1924 joined West Coast Theatres becoming master of ceremonies. Subsequently he played in several silent Hal Roach comedies and in Universal, Vitaphone and Columbia short subjects.

He appeared also in many feature pictures including "Elmer the Great," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Meet Nero Wolfe," "Make Way for Tomorrow" and "Who Killed Gail Preston?"

Funeral services were held Saturday, August 17th, in the Little Chapel of the Dawn in Santa Monica, Cal.

George C. Pearce Dead

George C. Pearce, actor, 76, died August 12th at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles. A stage and light opera performer, he entered motion pictures in 1920. His last film role was in Columbia's "You Can't Take It With You."

Frank Williams

Frank Williams, 58, who managed theatres in Green Bay, Appleton, Marinette, Racine and Calumet, Mich., many years ago, died in Milwaukee August 12th.

Charles Antram

Charles W. Antram, 72, former partner in the operation of the Lyric theatre in Canton, Ohio, died at his home in North Georgetown, near Canton, August 17th.

Columbia Incorporates

Columbia Pictures of Puerto Rico has been incorporated at Dover, Del., to deal in motion pictures. The company listed a capital of $2,000 par $10. The incorporators were: Maurice Burnett, Ridgefield, N. J.; Max Seligman, New York City, and Richard Philpott, Long Island, N. Y.

Higher Fair Attendance

The San Francisco World's Fair has past the 3,500,000 attendance mark, nearly 20 per cent ahead of the figures for the same period of 1939. "The Aquacade," "American Cavalcade" and "Folies Bergere" continue to be the three most popular attractions at the Fair.

Drive-In To Open Near Pittsburgh

George Davis, manager of a new Drive-In theatre to be opened this month near South Park, suburb of Pittsburgh, announced that third-run product of United Artists, Columbia and Universal will be shown. The theatre, financed mainly by Norbert Stern, loan company executive, is constructed to accommodate 400 automobiles. Mr. Davis operates a dozen other theatres.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

AMAZING MR. WILLIAMS, THE: Melvyn Douglas, Joan Blondell—We enjoyed a nice first of the week business considering war and heat.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

BLIND ALLEY: Chester Morris, Ralph Bellamy—Double billed this one week-end which was very hot. Did normal business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FRONTIER OF '49: Bill Elliott—This boy is no Bill Boyd or Autry but the crowd cheered this picture and enjoyed it. Business only fair. Too hot.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MEN WITHOUT SOULS: John Litel, Rochelle Hudson—We ran this with Columbia's "The Lone Wolf Strikes" as a double feature bill. I suppose these are both supposed to be "B" pictures but the box office report looks more like "C" or "D". However, as the show came just after a spasm of Carnival and Tent-show had cleaned the community, the best of shows would not have done much good. Running time, 62 minutes. Played July 25-26.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Colo. Farming community patronage.

PASSPORT TO ALCATRAZ: Jack Holt, Noah Beery, Jr.—This is the poorest recorded picture we have run in many a moon. Just nothing to it. Skip it. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TOO MANY HUSBANDS: Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray, Melvyn Douglas—The basis of the story is not bad but it seemed to me that a more satisfying picture should have grown out of it. I would say that it is a serious drama tinctured with too much comedy of the hokum variety. It just barely gets by. Running time, 84 minutes. Played July 27-28.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Colo. Farming community patronage.

First National

ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO: Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Virginia Weidler, Barbara O'Neil—For women, for women only. That's the way we thought we must have advertised it because that's the most of what we saw for this week. Which goes without saying the matinee business was best of all. The feminine trade almost without exception were walking billboards and reception was excellent. Men folks' attitude didn't matter much in this instance. Running time, 140 minutes. Played July 25-31.—Bert Stern, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

CASTLE ON THE HUDSON: John Garfield, Pat O'Brien, Ann Sheridan, Burgess Meredith—This is a very fine picture, although Warners are using too many prison and gangster pictures. The public are getting fed up on them. Garfield, Sheridan and O'Brien are perfect in this, however. Running time, 76 minutes. Played July 5-6.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

FIGHTING 69TH: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Jeffrey Lynn, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale—A fine picture. Very timely. Cagney, O'Brien and Brent were great in this. Running time, 90 minutes. Played August 2-3.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

LADIES MUST LIVE: Wayne Morris, Rosemary Lane—Small picture which pleased on family night. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 6.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE IRISH: Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan, Thomas Mitchell—A nice picture. Weather too hot to get big crowd. Those who came liked the picture. Running time. 100 minutes. Played July 19-20.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE IRISH: Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan, Thomas Mitchell—Good production. Well balanced picture with very good performances by Priscilla Lane and Dennis Morgan. Patrons said very good. Box office not so hot. Running time, 100 minutes. Played June 21-22.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

'TIL WE MEET AGAIN: Merle Oberon, George Brent, Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Fitzgerald—Very good picture but did not draw here. More suitable for class or large city patronage. Those sad ones always flop for me. Regardless of how good the picture may be rural theatres shouldn't have to play pictures like this. They are definitely for the cities and why not let the cities have them. Running time, 100 minutes. Played July 21-22.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

FORTY LITTLE MOTHERS: Eddie Cantor, Rita Johnson, Bonita Granville, Judith Anderson—This was an entirely different Cantor picture with plenty of laughs and also plenty of seriousness. That fellow really has the job in hand. This one should go in most any spot.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

FORTY LITTLE MOTHERS: Eddie Cantor, Nydia Westman, Rita Johnson, Bonita Granville, Judith Anderson, Margaret Early, Baby Quintanilla—Kept the audience laughing from start to finish and pleased one hundred per cent. Judith Anderson and Nydia Westman are very good and Margaret Early and her southern accent are great. Hope this little lady gets more, bigger and better parts. The baby is almost too good to be true. A few more like this one and I might keep out of the bread line. Running time, 90 minutes. Played July 19-21.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

STRANGE CARGO: Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Peter Lorre, Ian Hunter—Altogether too strange for a small town and not even Clark Gable and Joan Crawford could put it over. Excellent cast, good production but too depressing. Ian Hunter steals the show. Out here where it never rains and we haven't raised a crop in ten years they go to a show to be entertained and to laugh so this one fell with a dull sickening thud. Running time, 113 minutes. Played July 12-14.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Rita Quigley, Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey, John Carroll, Bruce Cabot, Rose Hobart—Just no dice. Those who saw the picture liked it but they were few and far between. Would suggest cancelling. Running time, 115 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SWEETHEARTS: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—This was much enjoyed by my women patrons and can recommend it as very good. Running time, 100 minutes. Played August 1.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

20 MULE TEAM: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau—This is essentially a western picture but quite different from the usual variety and while it can hardly be classed as a super production Wallace Beery makes it quite satisfactory screen material and it will do well enough at the box office. Running time. 83 minutes. Played August 3-4.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Colo. Farming community patronage.

WOMEN, THE: Joan Crawford, Norman Shearer, Rosalind Russell, Paulette Goddard, Mary Boland, Joan Fontaine, Virginia Weidler—Decidedly not a small town picture. Did not take in film rental. Could not recommend this for a rural community. Running time, 130 minutes. Played July 25.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

YOUNG TOM EDISON: Mickey Rooney, Virginia Weidler, Fay Bainter, George Bancroft—A great show. Metro admits it but it did not bring out the S.R.O. sign here. Mickey gives his usual fine performance. Virginia Weidler is great. Supporting cast good but they do not like that type of show. About a fourth as good at the box office as Jesse James. If they pay to see a biography, they want it thrilling. This one will probably please, if you can get them in. Running time, 86 minutes. Played July 26-28.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Monogram

MUTINY IN THE BIG HOUSE: Charles Bickford.—Didn't do well on this one. Business below par mid-week.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SON OF THE NAVY: James Dunn, Jean Parker, Martin Spellman—Not a bad story but I would hardly say that the picture can be rated above a "B" rating. It seems rather obvious that but little money was expended on the picture, though I would rather see that than see evidence of gobs of it being literally thrown away. On the whole, I call this fairly good entertainment. Running time, 72 minutes. Played August 1-2.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Colo. Farming community patronage.

Paramount

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN: Jack Benny, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine—This will help you forget some of the lemons you have played. Completely satisfied my patrons, the box office and the little boy who pays the film rental. Very good performances by Benny, Devine and "Rochester." And again I say make more features like this and give them extra playing time. Running time, 85 minutes. Played June 30-July 1.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

GHOST BREAKERS, THE: Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard—A splendid ghost story. Snappy dialogue, some of which is lost because the audience laughed loud and long. Because of the comedy the children left without the "scarey feeling" that many ghost pictures give. Business excellent. Played August 8-9.—Mrs. W. J. Carter, New Maxine Theatre, Croswell, Mich. General patronage.

QUEEN OF THE MOB: Ralph Bellamy, Jean Cagney, Blanche Yurka, William Henry—This is a fine Paramount picture. Paramount, naturally meaning good but then what I mean is it really hits the spot for that double bill on the action program, Saturdays, in support of the western. It has plenty of action and is something different. Double bill it, though. Played August 3.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

REMEMBER THE NIGHT: Fred MacMurray, Barbara Stanwyck, Beulah Bondi, Elizabeth Patterson—With a depressing world around us, this picture filled the spot providing fine entertainment in its simplicity and down-to-earth appeal. We were glad we played this and so were our patrons. Fred MacMurray and Barbara Stanwyck, with the cast, are excellent. Running time, 94 minutes. Played July 4-6.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

ROAD TO SINGAPORE: Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour—I'll add to everyone's report of this feature by saying "very good picture and very good business." Regardless of how good a feature may be it seems to take a good cast to assure anything like an even break at the box office. I'd rather play a picture like this an extra day and eliminate some of the productions without name casts, even though some of them may be satisfactory, if I could get the public to see them. Running time, 85 minutes. Played June 23-24.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

SIDEWALKS OF LONDON: Vivien Leigh, Charles Laughton—Don't report on pictures very often but when I play one that I feel a report might be of especial benefit can't resist. Here we have two very fine and popular box office stars in a picture that any way you look at it can't fail to do them serious harm at any box office. Why a producer will take chances with the standing of stars like these by giving them roles in story of this kind is beyond my comprehension. Very poor entertainment. Patrons told me so and some walkouts. Box office receipts off 50 per cent more than second night. Running time, 84 minutes. Played August 5-6.—J. K. Buckner, Palace Theatre, Grapevine, Texas. Small town and rural patronage.

TYPHOON: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston, Lynne Overman—When the third day holds up in a small town in August weather, the feature must be all right. Color (and Dotty) very beautiful. Lynne Overman stole the picture with his wisecracking. Public definitely like the kind of gags in this picture. Personally thought the scenes were a little jerky, perhaps made necessary in filming the typhoon. For once the public agree with me that we had something here. Running time, 71 minutes. Played August 4-6.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

Republic

DARK COMMAND: John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon—Why, oh, why, didn't I book this feature for Saturday night? Really a very good picture but box office considerably below average. Just one of those they won't come to see. Some one tell me the reason. Believe the fact that the picture was dark hurt it some. Running time, 94 minutes. Played July 4-5.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

CARSON CITY KID: Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Bob Steele, Pauline Moore—Roy is a fine lad and my patronage which is as a rule for westerns takes Rogers and Autry but many enjoyed this one better than our last Autry. It hits a level on this type of product. Played August 3.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

GAUCHO SERENADE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey, Mary Lee—One of the better Autry's I have played. Not so much western as musical comedy. This series have never grossed as much for me as they seem to for other exhibitors. Mary Lee is coming fast. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 26-27.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

GIRL FROM GOD'S COUNTRY: Chester Morris, Jane Wyatt, Charles Bickford—Good snow picture which did all right on Sunday-Monday date. This is as good as most of those from the majors. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 11-12.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

IN OLD MISSOURI: Weaver Brothers and Elviry—This was my first of this series and it was very well received. This is what I call good old everyday comedy and believe the series will be very good at the box office, although this one was slightly below average. The picture makes no pretense at being anything other than entertaining comedy and probably for that reason succeeds. Running time, 67 minutes. Played June 14-15.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

VILLAGE BARN DANCE: Lulu Belle and Scotty, Richard Cromwell, Doris Day—This is really a good little picture. Nothing stupendous but enjoyable entertainment for everyone. The story is not overly strong but is more than made up for by a continuous line of comedy. Box office better than average. Running time, 74 minutes. Played June 9-10.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

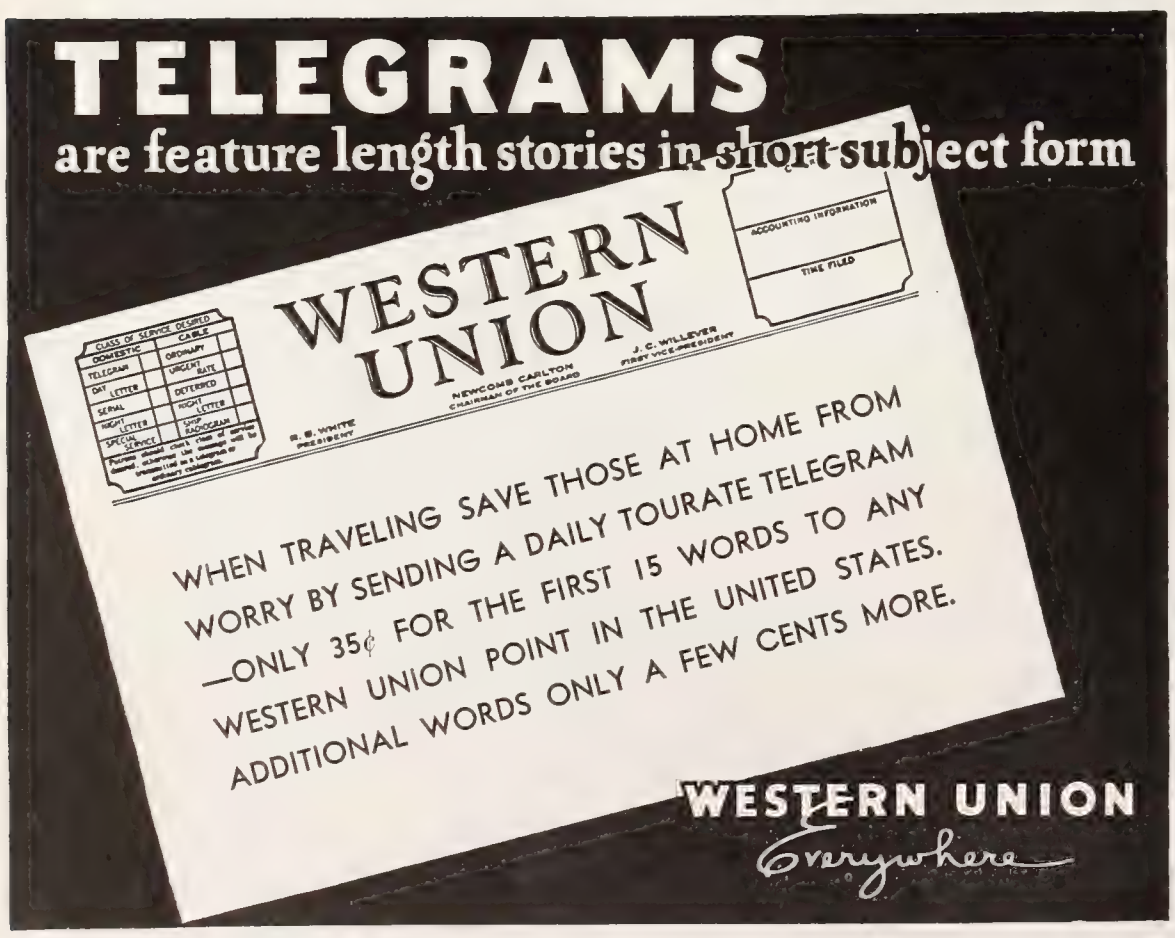
Twentieth Century-Fox

BLUE BIRD, THE: Shirley Temple, Spring Byington—A very beautiful picture which pleased about fifty per cent of the crowd. Many came thinking it was Shirley's last picture and went away hoping that it was. Running time, 83 minutes. Played August 10-11.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

DAY-TIME WIFE: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Warren William, Binnie Barnes—This was a winner. One of the best comedies we have had. 100% liked by the crowd and they really came out the second night. Running time, 72 minutes. Played July 26-27.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

GRAPES OF WRATH, THE: Henry Fonda, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Dorris Bowdon, Charley Grapewin—A splendid picture. Excellent photography and sound. It is not the sordid, depressing story of the book. The dialogue is clean and the splendid spirit of the Joad family in spite of hardships makes an excellent, entertaining picture. Played to better than average business with good comment from many. Running time, 127 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Mrs. W. J. Carter, New Maxine Theatre, Croswell, Mich. General patronage.

NEW AND PRODIGAL CONTRIBUTORS



One new and one prodigal contributor sent reports to the What the Picture Did for Me department this week. The new member is:

J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, New Mexico.

The contributor whose reports have been missing for some time is:

J. K. Buckner, Palace Theatre, Grapevine, Texas.

Read the reports of these and other exhibitors in the adjoining columns.

GRAPES OF WRATH, THE: Henry Fonda, Dorris Bowdon, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Charley Grapewin—A wonderful production but why display all the misery when we have plenty without paying to see it. Running time, 128 minutes. Played July 12-13.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

HIGH SCHOOL: Jane Withers, Joe Brown, Jr.—A very satisfactory picture. Satisfied the crowd 99 per cent. If this Withers girl was given a chance in a big picture she might make some of the others step back. Running time, 74 minutes. Played June 28-29.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

JOHNNY APOLLO: Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Lloyd Nolan—Perhaps I expected too much of this one. Anyway I was disappointed. Everyone gave good performance, perhaps the best by Edward Arnold, but the story was too typed and sad. Box office said slightly above average; patrons unimpressed. This kind of cast deserves better story and production. Running time, 83 minutes. Played July 14-15.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

LUCKY CISCO KID: Cesar Romero, Evelyn Venable—Good picture; good business. Running time. 67 minutes. Played August 9-10.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MARYLAND: John Payne, Benda Joyce, Fay Bainter, Walter Brennan, Hattie McDaniel—Good picture and good business. Running time, 92 minutes. Played August 7-8.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ON THEIR OWN: Spring Byington, Ken Howell—Usual Jones Family pictures without Jed Prouty. Box office the same as past of this series. Understand this is the last of this series and for which I say Amen. Running time, 63 minute. Played June 28-29.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

SHOOTING HIGH: Jane Withers, Gene Autry, Marjorie Weaver—Pleased the audience and it was a big one, too. The story isn't very strong but the entire film is very entertaining with plenty of my particular brand of comedy—"everyday." I have yet to play a picture that was funny that didn't gross good. Jane Withers has the best of this picture. Running time, 63 minutes. Played July 12-13.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

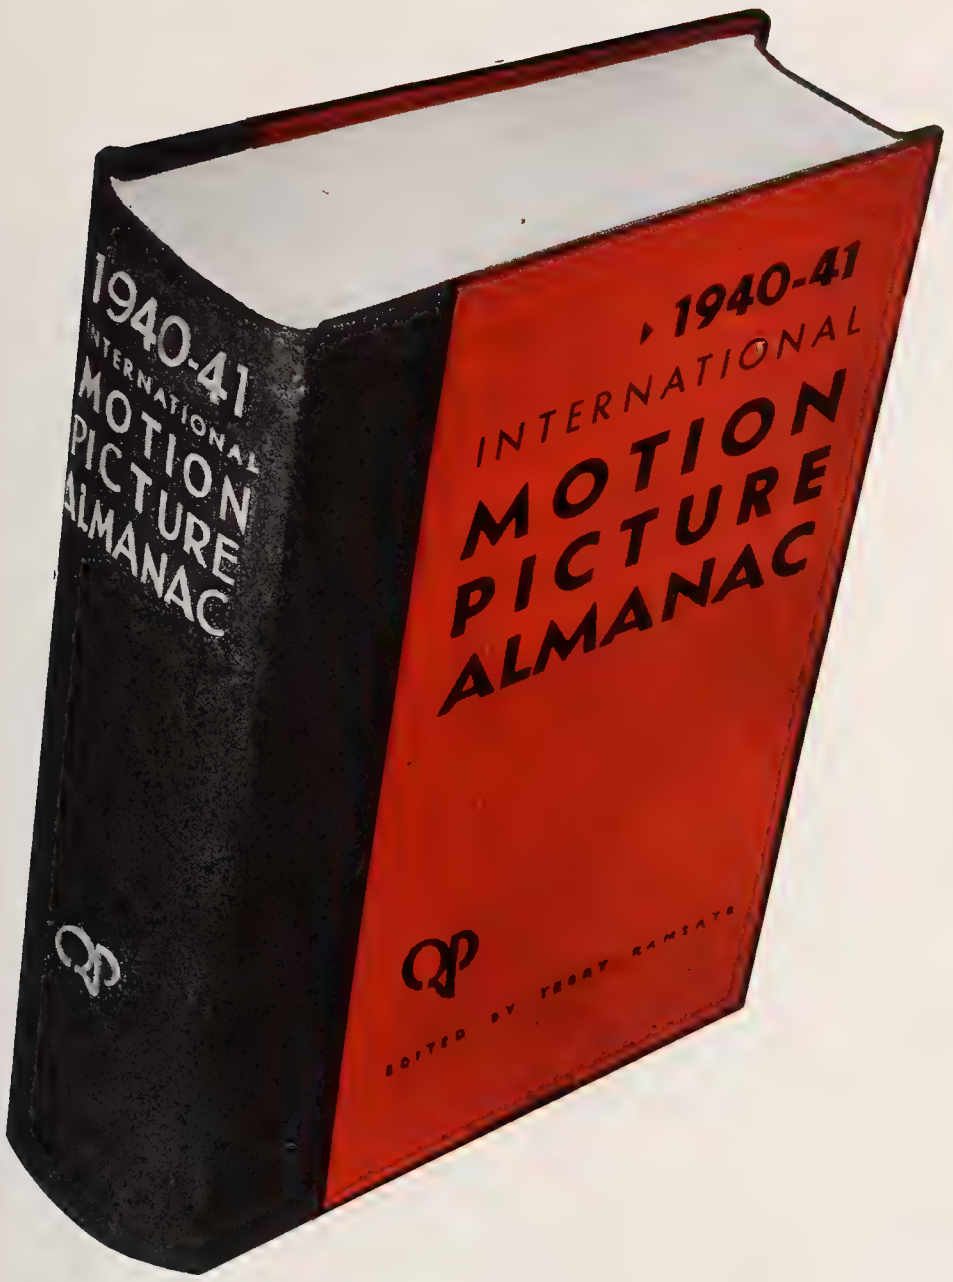
STAR DUST: Linda Darnell, John Payne, Roland Young, Charlotte Greenwood—Appeals to the ladies but not very strong for he-men and of a truth all Sidellites are he-men. Linda looked very cute but will agree with my male customers that John Payne seemed a little sissyfied. Not quite enough drama or comedy to make it strong either way. Running time, 83 minutes. Played July 28-29.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

SWANEE RIVER: Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, Al Jolson—Good picture, good sound. Did much better than average Sunday-Monday business in spite of the heat. Though not exciting picture, it held the audiences' interest and pleased mightily. Running time, 86 minutes. Played August 4-5.—Mrs. W. J. Carter, New Maxine Theatre, Croswell, Mich. General patronage.

United Artists

OUR TOWN: Martha Scott, William Holden, Beulah Bondi, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Guy Kibbee, Stuart Erwin—A typical Sam Wood picture that is swell for the sophisticates but a flop for the average small town theatre goer. It certainly did our box office no good as it is too high brow. Be careful where you set it. Running time, 90 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SAPS AT SEA: Laurel and Hardy—As poor as "Our Town" was, this little comedy was just as good. Our people like something to laugh at and they certainly got it in this comedy. Not the best they have made but still good enough to bring them in. Extra business on this one. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.



TURNABOUT: John Hubbard, Adolphe Menjou, Carole Landis, William Gargan, Mary Astor—Real entertainment. A silly, impossible story so well portrayed that it holds your interest from beginning to end. One continuous laugh. Played to larger house second night than on first. There should be more pictures like this to make us forget existing conditions. Running time, 83 minutes. Played July 30-31.—Mrs. W. J. Carter, New Maxine Theatre, Croswell, Mich. General patronage.

Universal

WHEN THE DALTONS RODE: Kay Francis, Randolph Scott, Broderick Crawford, Brian Donlevy, Frank Albertson, Andy Devine, Mary Gordon—Bolder than Jesse James, more ruthless than the Youngers, more daring than Billy the Kid. A great cast in red-blooded roles, depicting the real wild west, genuine bank and train robberies and like other modern super westerns it is dressed up with a superb cast includir Kay Francis (an Oklahoma City girl), Randolph Scott, Broderick Crawford, Brian Donlevy, Frank Albertson, Andy Devine, Mary Gordon. Scott and Francis's acting superb but they had to go via Oklahoma City to Guthrie in order to get married. All theatres should clean up on this picture as it will please all classes, both old and young and lest we forget remember the superb acting of Mary Gordon as the Daltons' mother and, though as a wild as a wild cast, was after all, the sweet loving mother that we all revere. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 8-15.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BROTHER RAT AND A BABY: Priscilla Lane, Wayne Morris, Jane Bryan, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman, Eddie Albert—Not too good. A couple more like this and the Bryan girl will be where her Great Uncle William Jennings was after his second run for President. Running time, 100 minutes. Played June 21-22.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

BROTHER RAT AND A BABY: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Jane Bryan, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman, Eddie Albert—Personally the picture and story were very good. I would not, however, suggest a Sunday date anywhere as it is a follow up picture which means only one thing for me and that is the fisrt was great but don't expect the same thing with the same story and ideas the second time. Played August 1-2.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

IT ALL CAME TRUE: Ann Sheridan, Jeffrey Lynn, Humphrey Bogart, Zasu Pitts—Good. Particularly pleases the younger people. That boy Bogart is really all right. Lots of very good gags in this one. Some of my patrons credited Mark Hellinger with them. If that's right, I say make more room for him. The audience likes them. Running time, 97 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

KING OF THE LUMBERJACKS: John Payne, Gloria Dickson—Fair picture for Saturday night. The title brought me an average crowd but it didn't quite give them what they were expecting. Not very smooth; could have been much better; needed a little more fisticuffs and not so much attempted drama, which missed by a country mile. Running time, 59 minutes. Played August 2-3.—Everett Clapp, American Theatre, Sidell, Ill. Rural and small town patronage.

A PLUMBING WE WILL GO: Three Stooges—Saved the feature. If it hadn't been for the Stooges we wouldn't have had any business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

JITTERBUG KNIGHTS: Color Rhapsodies—Just so-so.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ALL ABOUT HASH: Our Gang—Good.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

BIG PREMIERE, THE: Our Gang—Good but we are getting a little tired of Our Gang, mostly because they are the only comedy shorts Metro makes. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

HOLLYWOOD HOBBIES: MGM Miniatures—Good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HOME ON THE RANGE: MGM Cartoons—Excellent colored cartoon. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MILKY WAY, THE: MGM Cartoons—Good cartoon in color.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WHAT'S YOUR I.Q.? NO. 2: Pete Smith Specialties—Very interesting. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BUSY LITTLE BEARS: Paragraphics—Nice filler. No Disney or Merrie Melody.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 98—Train wrecked; 43 killed. Drums on wheels. Lindberg and Pershing speak for and against conscription. Army war news. Over the channel. Paramount News is always the news when it is new. Running time, 11 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

STEALIN' AIN'T HONEST: Popeye the Sailor—Maybe we're wrong but the Popeyes are not as good as they used to be in our opinion. We also feel cheated on the length of these shorts. The kids don't even get a kick out of them anymore. And who are they for if they aren't for the kiddies. Running time, seven minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

STEALIN' AIN'T HONEST: Popeye the Sailor—Popeye and the cast go berserk in this one but it is different and provides lots of snappy action with not a drag in the entire reel. That's what we want. Take out the unnecessaries.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

RKO Radio

AIR ARMY: Reelisms—Good reel on airplanes. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DONALD'S DOG LAUNDRY: Walt Disney Cartoons—Oh, boy, Disney! You better come back from that fishing trip and make pictures. This one about Donald and Pluto was a carbon copy of stuff we've seen too much. Outside of a very good last word in Donald's style it was pretty poor.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

FARMYARD SYMPHONY: Walt Disney Cartoons—Very good color cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 11: U. S. Navy-1940—Don't believe this one has the usually last word Time stuff but we can understand why on that. However, at present time I believe it was good. Play it any place. Good for Americans.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 12: Spoils of Conquest: Dutch East Indies—Very entertaining and highly educational. The Dutch East Indies, "The Netherland Islands," depicts the wealth and strategic importance of the Island and very valuable to the owner, rubber and quinine and various raw materials so useful in both industry and war comes from these islands and of much importance to the government of the United States. Running times, 20 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

CATNIP CAPERS: Terry-Toons—The colored Terry-Toons are certainly coming into their own. This was a dandy. Running time, eight minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

EDGAR RUNS AGAIN: Terry-Toons—As a rule Fox cartoons are poor but this one was somewhat better. Possibly the action did the lift as there certainly wasn't much to it.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

HITCH-HIKER, THE: Terry-Toons—Average cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ICE POND, THE: Terry-Toons—A pretty little black cartoon. Plenty good for any program. Running time, eight minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Small town patronage.

JUST A LITTLE BULL: Terry-Toons—A dandy short. None better. Running time, eight minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LOVE IN A COTTAGE: Terry-Toons—Good black and white cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING: Terry-Toons—A nice colored cartoon but too short and not quite up to the other Terry-Toons. Running time, seven minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Small town patronage.

GOING PLACES: No. 74—A travel talk on the Barbadoes Island in the West Indies makes this a swell short. This series has been exceptionally good this season.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

KITTENS MITTENS: Lantz Colored Cartunes—Taken from the nursery rhyme of "Three Little Kittens" makes this a very clever cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

BUSY BAKERS: Merrie Melodies—A nice colored cartoon, not quite up to the standard Merrie Melody. Running time, nine minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CAVALCADE OF ACADEMY AWARDS: Special—Very entertaining three reeler. Running time, 30 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CROSSCOUNTRY DETOURS: Merrie Melodies—This was a dandy colored cartoon. A variety and suited almost every one. Running time, eight minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Rural patronage.

CROSSCOUNTRY DETOURS: Merrie Melodies—This is the second of this type of cartoon I have had and they are a really live spot in the program. Lots of laughs. Use it by all means.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

ELMER'S CANDID CAMERA: Merrie Melodies—This was a very cute colored cartoon but not up to the standard set by Merrie Melodies. Running time, eight minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Small town patronage.

FRANCES CARROLL AND THE COQUETTES: Melody Masters—Good. Lots of fine music and really they like to see the gals in the musical short for a change.—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

MIGHTY HUNTERS: Merrie Melodies—A very pretty short. Pleased old and young. Running time, eight minutes.—John Stafford, Royal Theatre, Leonardville, Kansas. Small town patronage.

PORKY'S BASEBALL BROADCAST: Looney Tunes—A very clever cartoon and the broadcast good and the players seen at their very best. Very pleasing. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

SPILLS FOR THRILLS: Broadway Brevities—One of the best two reels we have ever shown. Deals with the work of stunt men and women in Hollywood. Running time, 20 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

My only comment in dissent is that one man can't continually beat up ten men and my patrons know it. You bet, even the kids!—J. R. Wills, Loma Theatre, Socorro, N. M. General patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE OF MOTION PICTURE HERALD

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

On Seeking a Path Free of Obstacles

The following quotes are from an address made by your Chairman before the semi-annual district managers' meeting of the Schine Circuit, in Gloversville. For reflection and study, these remarks are offered to the member seeking a main-spring of inspiration to assist in the doing of a job to satisfy his severest critic—himself.

"We are on the threshold of a highly significant motion picture year. Never in the industry's history have we been faced by so direct a challenge to showmanship. The challenge is not overwhelming. It is to be met.

"Paradoxically enough, the very circumstances that threaten us places motion picture business in an advantageous position—advantageous, at least, in the comprehension of those who recognize the situation and are doing something about it. The menace to our business today is the competition of war crowding the attention-capacity of the public. The advantage lies in the premise that, sated, sickened by war drumbeats, the same public turns away seeking escape. The screen has long been decried as nothing more than an escapist medium. Today that charge is to be welcomed. Proudly we offer motion picture entertainment to assuage war-torn nerves.

"But offering is not enough. We are required to fight harder today for our share of entertainment money. To do so, we must top previous endeavor in the direction of the boxoffice. We must seek to lay out a direct path between screen and audience, a foolproof path free of obstacles vieing for public attention. But how? Is it possible to find a path that safely skirts the hazards of war—rearmament, defense measures, elections? I think so.

"What is a theatre? Nothing more than an inanimate pile of masonry, steel and wood, remaining inanimate until life is breathed into it by the theatreman. What the theatre becomes in the public eye depends upon what the manager puts into it of himself. If the theatre is to be a harbor of escape from today's harassments, then the quality of that protection rests greatly upon how keenly the theatreman feels that responsibility, how loyally he goes about undertaking it.

"Loyalty does it—loyalty to a cause, loyalty to oneself. No man gets anywhere unless he has a cause. Without it his operation remains one of externals. His heart is not in it and, as the Chinese have it, 'Without heart, without head'. The man with a cause to fight for pours his entire being into the struggle, even to the point of fanaticism.

"How simple life becomes for the manager who believes that motion picture entertainment is among mankind's greatest boons. To him nothing can go wrong. Nothing does go wrong. The thousand and one annoyances that beset the other fellow are not for him. He finds something of worth to sell in every program. His showmanship is joyous, vigorous. He communicates his beliefs so spontaneously—so fanatically, if you will—that his theatre draws as a magnet.

"There, friends, is your path without obstacles, a path stemming from one's devotion to what one believes. Without it, all the finest pictures, the most modern plant are lacking. Possessed of it, man is sufficiently equipped to lick the world.

"If I have any message to bring you tonight, it is to nurture among your manpower a loyalty to this institution of the motion picture that will defy all inroads—a loyalty that must redound to the benefit of this organization as it will to every man of it eager to believe in what he sells and the company for whom he sells it."

GOOD TO SEE YOU ALL

In this sector, the happiest season of the year is the Summertime when, vacationing from the cares of office, you members arrive in grateful numbers to visit Round Table headquarters, to renew old friendships, to strengthen contacts stemming from Club correspondence.

It is good to see you folks from the field. Nothing makes for a more enjoyable interim in putting out the weekly pages. So come one, come all. It needs little saying that ye latchstring is always out.

Round Table In Pictures

(Above) Street bally on "Rebecca", used by Ray Wheeler at the Roxy, in LaPorte, Ind., consisted of eight boys, each carrying a title letter. Jumbling the letters, boys walked around until a crowd gathered and then marched in correct formation so that the letters correctly spelled title.

Gag street stunt used by David Perdue, at the San Carlos, Coolidge, Ariz., for "Of Mice and Men", consisted of bale of hay to attract, with appropriate tiein copy above.

Aimed particularly at the women was Ed Fitzpatrick's lobby display on "Pago Pago", at Loew's Poli, in Waterbury, Conn., consisting of pearls promoted from local jeweler in exchange for credit card. Also featured was large oyster with pearls.

With theatremen in Canada putting every ounce of effort behind the recent campaign for the purpose of disposing of one million dollars' worth of war savings stamps, Mitchell Franklin, at the Mayfair, in St. John, N. B., sold the use of his marquee for one day for $300, as illustrated above.

Folks in Jackson, Tenn., awoke one morning to find that they had their own little ghost breaker in the form of an eerie-looking gent who paraded the streets ahead of that picture's opening as part of J. R. MacEachron's exploitation on that date. Following the ghost about the streets was another theatre attache carrying sign with gag copy, title, cast and playdates.

Parfrey Takes Over Highway Opening

On the occasion of the opening of a new state highway in East Chicago, Indiana-Illinois city manager, M. A. Parfrey suggested to the Chamber of Commerce that a grand opening celebration take place with the theatre tied directly to the event. Result of the suggestion was that Parfrey was made Chairman of the Parade and Decorating committee thereby having his finger in the attendant publicity.

Opening gun of the compaign was a tieup with 30 participating merchants, in connection with a newspaper contest to find the "Queen of Chicago Avenue," crowning to take place on the stage of the Voge Theatre. Ballots were run in cooperating paper and money collected from stores covered cost of printing, trailers, etc., with ample left over for a grand cash award to the winner.

Day the highway was officially opened, theatre float on which the winner rode headed the march to where the mayor started the ribbon-cutting ceremonies. Entire stunt was costless to Parfrey, each merchant contributing five dollars as his share, votes being allotted to each in equal amounts the first time and more as required to be paid for additionally. The principle of the voting was a penny a vote for all cash that went through the cash register. Entrants all had to be employees of Chicago Avenue merchants.

Shopping Guide Tied To "Biscuit" by Schultz

Contest angle was brought into John Schultz' "Biscuit Eater" campaign through tieup with weekly shopping guide, whereby guest tickets were awarded to those submitting best names for little Billy Lee's litter of pups. Front page break was given the stunt with art and two-column story. Covering the local Sportsman's League, Schultz circularized the membership with postcards which were signed by a member of the Board of Directors, urging all to see the film.

For his lobby, dog house was built, in front of which was seated on a green grass mat a small pup with card above reading: "I'm waiting for my pal, the Biscuit Eater." Signs were planted on all taxi fleets, five and ten featured dog food displays with appropriate tiein copy and radio coverage included regular plugs one week ahead on half-hour theatre program.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Memory Contest Highlights Murphy's "New Moon" Date

A memory contest centering around the screen debuts of the film's co-stars, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, was one of the highlights of the "New Moon" campaign put over by Frank Murphy, Loew's, Syracuse. Murphy planted a contest with the local Herald-Journal which required readers to name the first musical film in which each of the stars appeared. Entries had to be accompanied by 50-word letters describing the part each played in these early pictures. Cash and guest tickets were awarded.

Tri-Staters Excite Des Moines With Nazi Storm Trooper Stunt

What would happen if Nazi soldiers in uniform were turned loose on the streets of an American city was determined recently in Des Moines when Manager Eddie Dunn and Dorothy Day, Tri-States publicity director, tried out the idea as a buildup for "The Man I Married", at the Paramount.

Since it was decided to sell the picture under its original Liberty Magazine title, "I Married A Nazi", Dunn used classified ads to ask for Nazi Storm Troop uniforms, "in good condition to be used in advertising", etc., etc. No uniforms were forthcoming, as the Round Tabler fully expected in protecting the stunt by ordering the costumes from the Hollywood studio that had furnished the same for the Fox picture. That the ad was widely read was evidenced by the numerous 'phone calls received from the curious.

With the arrival of the uniforms, two local lads were obtained to serve as the troopers and, properly costumed, were taken to the offices of the Register where Miss Day sold the idea of sending a reporter and cameraman to follow the boys, who carried no advertising. They were told to stroll along, window-shop and conduct themselves as sightseers.

According to the front-page story that resulted, the ballyhoo stirred up a lot of excitement, a number of locals speaking up until they were informed that it was "just a gag" for the picture. After the boys had covered the downtown area, they doubled as pickets out front, carrying cards reading that the theatre was unfair to "Storm Troopers, Bund No. 623". Here, too, some explanation was needed, all of which was duly detailed by the papers in follow-up page-one stories and, according to Dunn, aided in calling a lot of extra ticket-selling attention to the date.

Novel Lobby Setpiece Aids Conner on "Rebecca" Date

Simple, but effective display was arranged by Marlowe Conner for "Rebecca" at the Avalon, in Chicago, by using cutout of the figure from the three-sheet and placing it on a 40 by 60 easel with a white background. A spot was directed so that it cast a shadow on the copy which read: "The shadow of this woman darkened a great love." Scene stills were also conspicuously spotted around the display.

For his combination of "Primrose Path" and "It All Came True," Connor mounted a tea kettle above two one-sheets in which water and dry ice was kept, providing steaming effect. Caption read: "We're all steamed up over next week's show and why wouldn't we be with this big double combination?" On the same show a desk was planted in lobby over which a window card was placed with copy: "A show to write home about. You write it—we'll furnish the card and postage, help yourself."

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Buddah Lobby Display Sells Selette's Show

As an attractor, Round Tabler Eddie Selette at the Warner Albany, in Albany, N. Y., constructed a lobby setpiece consisting of cutout of Buddah with copy on scroll overhead reading: "Confucius talk too much. Buddah say, 'Week after week the Albany has the hits'."

In advance of "Road to Singapore," Selette tied up with leading shoe merchant who featured window display which included three small figures dressed in hula hula costumes. Figures constantly in motion are reported to have attracted attention.

Sydney Merchants Tied to Australian "Gulliver" Date

Starting their "Gulliver's Travels" campaign six weeks ahead of opening, Mel Lawton and Hermann Flynn at the Prince Edward in Sydney, Australia, contacted all libraries and leading bookstores for tieups whereby windows were devoted to the picture and bookmarks with appropriate tiein copy distributed. Coloring contest for which prizes were awarded was planted in the only fan magazine in Sydney, news agents displayed window strips and bands and radio stations were supplied with orchestrations of the hit tunes.

Special screenings were held for the schools and the Visual Education Board contacted, which brought special student theatre parties and the distribution of heralds throughout the school system. Also landed by the theatremen were numerous windows from leading merchants who featured "Gulliver" merchandise tied directly to the picture.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Penn's Street Bally Aids

Street bally which is reported to have attracted considerable attention was the girl and boy dressed as caveman and woman who covered downtown districts as an advance for Ed Penn's "One Million B. C." date at the Fox Arlington, in Santa Barbara. Busses were bannered as were taxi cabs, large easels were planted at strategic spots around town on which were large chalk check marks, copy reading: "Check this statement, 'One Million B. C.' has the greatest thrills on earth," etc. Handbills were distributed, paper bags and napkins imprinted, special atmospheric front created and radio spot announcements.

"Happiness Week" Set to Open Schine's "Cheerful Show Season"

It's to be "Cheerful Show Season"—the slogan of the Schine circuit for the new season campaign, to be given a sendoff early in September with a "Happiness Week", and for which a comprehensive campaign manual has been compiled by Harold Sliter.

Cooperation of civic officials in putting over the project, and plans for merchant participation with special "Happiness Sales" are offered in publicity stories suggested for newspapers. Chamber of Commerce assistance also is anticipated in launching "Happiness Week", the start of the drive, for which the Schiners will endeavor to secure proclamations from their local mayors. For this, the manual reproduces copies of endorsements secured for previous occasions. For merchant tieins, the manual carries co-op page layouts, and trailer copy is stressed in two units, one for the week and the other for the "cheerful" season. Special ad mats, circles and underlined slugs are available in different forms and sizes.

Newspaper contests include a "My Greatest Happiness" idea, a photo tiein for long-married couples asked to give their recipes for happiness, and a voting contest for happiest mailman, policeman, or other public servant. Newspapers will also be invited to run a prize tiein for plans to make "happier" cities. Studio cooperation is arranged for via photo star post cards with "cheer up" messages from the various stars pictured. Theatres will address and stamp the cards which also will include picture plugs. Forwarded to the studios of the cooperating stars, the cards will be mailed to each situation well in advance.

To back up the "week", the circuit bookers are arranging programs in keeping, especial effort being made to select light entertainment appropriate to the occasion.

Oldest Cabbie Hunt Arranged By Kislingbury for "Prejudice"

Unique publicity hunt arranged by publicist Graham Kislingbury, for San Francisco's "oldest ex-cabbie" resulted in plenty of free publicity for opening of "Pride and Prejudice" at the Warfield Theatre. Exclusive tieup between the theatre and daily Chronicle brought a good feature story daily for one week, culminating with three-column picture and three-column interview with 86-year-old hack driver.

Stunt was climaxed by hiring an old two-seater carriage and team of horses which the winner together with local model, dressed in one of the gowns worn by Greer Garson in the picture, drove about town appropriately bannered, winding up at one of the leading hotels for a special luncheon.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Merchant-Radio Contest Originated by Lamm

When 55 merchants cooperate on a tieup that's nothing to be sneezed at, yet that is what Julius Lamm at Warner's Uptown in Cleveland arranged in connection with a contest put over with Station WGAR. Each of the merchants displayed in his window a card carrying the Sunday feature attraction at the Uptown and also catchlines referring to the goods sold at the store. The contestant was expected to find the line containing the correct initial letter which would form the words WGAR, for example: "*W*e carry a complete line of, etc.; *G*et your fresh supply, etc.; *A*re you satisfied, etc.; and *R*egular 50-cent values now 39 cents."

Only four stores had the correct sentences. The radio station plugged the contest gratis with four announcements daily for three days advising the listeners to look in the windows of the stores in the Uptown district surrounding the theatre.

"New Moon" Boat Trips Arranged by Brown

Pinch-hitting for vacationing Ed Fitzpatrick at Loew's Poli, in Waterbury, Conn., Lou Cohen tied up with transportation company to arrange "New Moon" boat rides on certain nights at reduced prices. Lou also employed a couple of boys to ride around the lake in a motorboat at busy hours and hoist a large imprinted theatre and title banner over the boat. Also bannered was the outside rail of the merry-go-round.

Promoted for his lobby was a repeating machine which continually played the hit tunes from the picture. 24 sheet was pasted flat on the lobby floor, reading, "Their fifth and greatest hit," and postcards were mailed to music teachers in the city and suburban areas. Five and dime store cooperated by devoting a window to display of title sheets and planted their pianist in the window placing song numbers at peak hours of the day, a loud speaker carrying the music to the crowds outside. In addition the store took three co-op ads on MacDonald.

Three days ahead of opening and just before the trailer went on, a local couple were spotted in theatre box, rose and sang one of the hit tunes. Spotlighted from the booth, the stunt drew much attention.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Craig's Star Album

As a buildup for his kid shows, Manager Ralph Craig at the Adelphi, in Reynoldsville, Pa., has been distributing miniature star photo albums. Inner spread carries 12 boxes in which one of the pictures measuring two by two and given out at each Saturday matinee is to be pasted. Prizes were awarded for the neatest book and in addition back cover included a cut of Mickey Rooney which kids were invited to color for special prizes.

Illinois Oil Boom Sells 'Boom Town' On Civic Campaign

Since Centralia, Ill., reported to be the largest oil boom town in the country, Manager E. French Gallagher arranged with the Mayor to proclaim a "Boom Town Week" to give the significance of a civic event in connection with the opening of that picture. Gallagher also received the cooperation of the president of the local chamber of commerce with whose aid all merchants staged special "Boom Town Sales," which were backed by cooperative ads on their part with due emphasis given the date at the Fox Illinois.

With oil derricks decorating the lawns of many homes, it was a natural to plant a 20-foot model, plus drilling machinery, in the intersection of two of the city's busiest streets. Cards placed on all four sides sold the picture, cast and playdates. Two weeks ahead street signs were planted on all highways leading into the city with copy reading: "You are now entering the biggest oil Boom Town in America—Be sure to see" etc., etc.

"Marsh-Buggy" Bally Stops Traffic

For the southern premiere, at Loew's State, New Orleans, Manager Rodney Toups and Todd Ferguson, M-G-M exploiteer, promoted Gulf Oil for the use of the company's famed "marsh-buggy," a mechanical monstrosity used for marshland and lake oil work and never before seen on city streets. Elaborately bannered and preceded by a police escort and Gulf Oil's sound truck, the "buggy" paraded the town to prove a real traffic-stopper. In addition to making the streets, the bally also stopped at the theatre at stated intervals and at filling stations where the date was advertised.

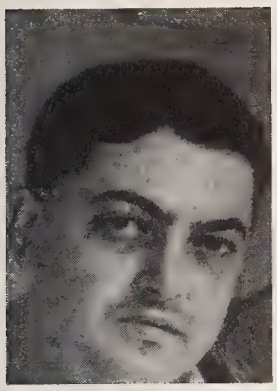
Another effective stunt was man costumed in oil fire-fighter's uniform carrying red box labelled, "Explosive thrills and Dynamite in," etc., with the "explosive" and "dynamite" in giant caps. Top window displays included an animated oil-well model, obtained from the state conservation board, and an exhibit of oil well equipment, borings, etc.

Filling Stations Plug Date

Thoroughness was the keynote of the advance campaign for "Boom Town" put over by Carl Rogers, Loew's, Harrisburg, Pa. One of the highlights was a tie-up with 15 leading local filling stations, as a result of which they prominently featured special one-sheets with copy reading: "Oil from Boom Town . . ." and giving theatre credits.

Several weeks ahead Rogers displayed cutout stills on the house's doors, cards on the steps, and employed large sidewalk stencils throughout the city, also placing 25 linoleum mats, imprinted with theatre copy, on the city's busiest corners.

Trucks of the Harrisburg News Agency were bannered with appropriate copy, in addition, many newsstands carried cards. Rogers arranged to have three boys and two girls, wearing bathing suits, visit the local beach; on their backs were painted the slogans: "Gable is coming," etc., with the fifth reading, "Boom Town Is Coming!"



An American Discusses Showmanship in India

Finds Motion Picture Herald a Text-Book Among Native Theatre Operators

by BEN M. COHN

Supervisor, Loew's Theatres, India

India is thousands of years older than America but in showmanship India is about ten years behind America. The showmen in India are trying hard to overcome local difficulties and are absorbing American methods slowly; for example: some years ago the Metro Cinema experimented with a New Year's Eve midnight show which proved very successful. Now many theatres in India give these shows annually, and wherever local police regulations permit, they give midnight shows on various holidays throughout the year.

Ben M. Cohn

Aside from the Metro Cinemas in Calcutta and Bombay setting examples for Indian showmen to follow, the American film distributors introduce American methods of showmanship. American trade-papers are also text books for showmen in India. I had an interesting experience while in Rangoon recently visiting one of our exhibitor customers. I picked up a copy of the MOTION PICTURE HERALD. Quite by accident I opened the book to a page in the "Managers' Round Table" section, where one of the headlines caught my eye. There was my own name and a story of an exploitation stunt I had pulled while I was manager of the Capitol Theatre in Hazleton, Pa. I looked at the date. It was a MOTION PICTURE HERALD almost ten years old!

Sound Exploitation Welcomed

Most of the distributors send out exploitation suggestions, particularly on their outstanding films. If the suggestions made are practical the Indian exhibitors follow through generally on the suggestions. Some distributing company representatives know a bit about exhibition and when they visit their exhibitor customers they make suggestions for cinema improvement; sometimes the exhibitor takes offense and tells the representative to stick to peddling film. Of course, sometimes the distributor chap does not appreciate the exhibitor's problems. The exhibitor gets a break when he plays a film like "Snow White" or "Gone With the Wind" because the distributor sends a representative who performs the duties of "company manager." This company manager tries to improve the sound and projection; tries to get the theatre spruced up; gets the seats repaired; fixes up some display frames and billboard locations, etc.

In India, with its myriads of religious beliefs, it is most important that no group be offended by some unintended slight. Unintentionally, the enthusiastic exploiteer can cause an important group of potential patrons to boycott his theatre because a ballyhoo for his film offends a particular religious belief.

> In India for two years as supervisor of Loew's theatres—the Metro Cinema, in Calcutta and Bombay—Round Tabler Ben Cohn recently sat down to write a piece on showmanship in those parts as requested by this department. What the former New Haven Loew-man discovered about the boxoffice in India is set down here and, in part, in Jim Cunningham's "Asides and Interludes" page of this issue, having to do with intermissions.

The exhibitor must be very careful with his advertising copy. There must be nothing that will offend any religions or customs; also the advertising copy that is great in America falls flat here sometimes because many American expressions are unknown.

Finds Press Cooperative

I would like to caution those people who make trailers to bear in mind the possibility that the trailers they make will be used in foreign countries such as India and that their copy is completely wasted—and does much harm—when it is too American. Whereas in America the more exploitation you do on a given picture the better generally will be your opening, of course, in proportion to the value of the picture, in India I find it is wiser to concentrate on just a few major activities on each film for best results.

The main advertising media here are newspapers (both English and vernacular), screen, lobby, theatre front, billboards, store window displays, street ballyhoo and handbills and announcements at football games, horse races, etc. The vernacular press cooperate very well with foreign film distributors, although their policy is to give preference to the Indian film industry. The English press generally cooperate by extensive publicity, excepting one or two of the larger papers which have national circulation. Slowly, however, this cooperation is also being secured.

Little Radio Promotion

There is very little radio cooperation; only recently for the first time in the history of the Government controlled radio here, a radio dramatization of one of our films was given by a company in Calcutta and heard throughout India with good results. Orchestras are supplied orchestrations of songs from coming musical films and some of the radio stations have film commentators once weekly, both English and in vernacular.

While basically, distribution and exhibition are the same in India as in America, the following are some of the differences I have noticed while in India. First of all, the type of patron is different; e.g., I hadn't been in Calcutta more than a week when all the lights in the city went out at about eight o'clock one night. We had a big house, and naturally, after securing whatever information I could about when the power would be resumed, I walked to the stage and asked for our patrons' indulgence, explaining that all the lights in the city were out. Up to that point, although our patrons had sat in the dark for about five minutes, there hadn't been a sound from our audience—no objections, no simultaneous hand clapping, no stamping of feet, no shouts of "we want our money back"—and when I had made my brief announcement the audience applauded. Power was not resumed for about 30 minutes, yet although about ten people walked out of the house, we did not receive one request for a refund.

Balcony Seats More Expensive

I point this out as an example of the type of customers we have in our theatre. I might also mention that in the three years that I have been here I have never encountered any of the petty rackets, such as torn clothing, etc., and falls in the theatre resulting in damage suits—while I am not particularly superstitious, I am knocking on wood.

Another oddity is that our balcony seats are more expensive than our orchestra seats. Our crowd at night, particularly upstairs, are all in tuxedos, the women in evening gowns. Smoking is permitted throughout the theatre and people generally come in large parties.

The number of holidays in India gladden the showman's heart. There are approximately 27 holidays per year in different sections of India where local holidays are added.

Looks to Better Showmanship

There is quite a ceremony on the visit to the cinema by either the Governor or the Viceroy. The manager puts on his white tie and tails, the red carpet is spread out on the sidewalk, and the "God Save the King" record is played before the beginning of the show as soon as His Excellency is seated.

Our most popular shows are Saturday 9:30 p. m., which is usually sold out, and Sunday at six p. m., which is also generally sold out in advance. Because of the popularity of these two performances, we have an imposing list of permanent reservations.

With a population of about 350 million, there are 1,000 cinemas in India. I believe there will be a tremendous upswing in the industry here within the next 20 years. With the improvement in the standard of living and the inevitable improvement of management in exhibition, will come, I am sure, bigger and better showmanship.

EXPLOITATION BRIEFS FROM A-FIELD

Through tieup with local beverage concern, J. R. MacEachron at the Paramount, in Jackson, Tenn., has promoted bottled drinks which he distributes at his kid show, in addition to the merchant advertising the giveaway through heralds and bannering trucks. For "Our Town," Mac promoted a full co-op page, each merchant's ad tied in directly to the picture's title.

Week ahead of opening of "Edison, the Man" at the Schine Federal, in Federalsburg, Md., Manager Ted R. Conklin promoted an old Edison talking machine in addition to real old cylinder records and played them during run. Six sheet was mounted on his marquee, and the entire front was illuminated by use of flood lights from across the street.

To stimulate business on "Adventure in Diamonds" at the State, in Harrisonburg, Va., Jack Fretwell promoted a diamond ring giveaway to take place on opening night of picture. Several rings were displayed in lobby through assistance of cooperating merchants, who defrayed cost of ads and window displays.

For "Florian" engagement at the Regent, in Pittsburgh, Henry Sutton addressed postcards to lists from all riding stables calling attention to the opening. In addition, the heads of various academies used window cards, on which cast, playdates, etc., were included. While, for "Dr. Cyclops," Henry constructed a booth in which was planted a reducing lens which proved an attractor. Chain druggist carried window cards reading "Try our giant Cyclops Sundae," and numerous other merchants cooperated by window and counter displays tied directly to picture title.

Double truck was promoted by Carter H. English for "Edison the Man" at the Majestic, in Centerville, Iowa, with banner strip across top of both pages reading "This section is in honor of a man who did more for the future than any other, Thomas A. Edison." Each merchant's ad was tied directly to the theatre, center spread being a two-column tribute to the inventor topped by cut of Spencer Tracy as he appeared in the picture.

Prizes for the owners of the city's oldest phonographs proved the highlight of the "Edison, the Man" campaign put over by A. J. Kalberer, Indiana, Washington, Ind. With the cooperation of a local newspaper, the theatre's patrons were urged to bring these old machines to the theatre, with the winning instruments displayed in the lobby.

Several days in advance of play date Manager Chuck Hoge of the Dickinson, Olathe, Kansas, assembled a group of pictures of townsmen and views of the city taken in the heyday of Lillian Russell. The photos were mounted in a 40x60 frame in front of the theatre under the heading of "Olatheans In the Days of Lillian Russell." The stunt proved a great crowd stopper and brought forth front page stories in the local papers.

"DO YOU KNOW?" FOLDER INCLUDES STORE ADS

Adopting George Laby's recent "Do You Know?" folder to include merchant ads, Round Tabler Clayton S. Cornell at Schine's Monroe, in Rochester, N. Y., interspersed theatre plugs with such lines as: "Do you know that your prescriptions will be filled honestly at", etc., etc. Sufficient of these outside ads were obtained to meet cost of printing and distribution. Copies were handed out or mailed by the stores mentioned in the folder.

To sell the personal appearance of Jane Morley, psychic, G. W. Coleman, manager of the Arcade, in Springfield, Mass. arranged a special morning meeting for officers of all women's clubs in the city which brought plenty of word-of-mouth comment. Also planted was a radio broadcast on "To the Women" hour over WMAS, window and rack cards were profusely distributed and numerous publicity stories and photos landed in local dailies.

For date on "Gullivers Travels" at the Empire, Islington, Alec Francis Smith decorated the entire lobby of his theatre with travel ballyhoo, posters, photographs and literature all tied directly to the picture. Scene stills were also spotted, in addition to giant cutouts. Stunt was put on by Smith before leaving that spot for the Forum, Kentish Town, London.

Leading electrical appliance store in Windsor, Ontario, devoted main window to display on "Edison the Man" through the efforts of E. C. Lamoureux for his date at the Empire Theatre. Highlight was incandescent lamp which was planted in center of window and provided only light for the display. Scene stills and appropriate tiein copy completed the window.

Patrons of the Sedgwick, in the Chestnut Hill section of Philadelphia, were given an opportunity to see themselves at a recent businessmen's association picnic by means of 8mm. pictures, shown in the lobby, on a small screen. The 15-minute reel, paid for by the association, was run for three days and described by titles and spoken narration on a p.a. hookup with speaker behind the screen.

Public reception was highly gratifying, according to Manager Bill Yurasko, who arranged the showing, since efforts were made to show as many locals as possible. Publicity on the screening in the downtown papers built added interest.

A memory contest centering around the screen debuts of the film's co-stars, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, was one of the highlights of the "New Moon" campaign put over by Frank Murphy at Loew's, in Syracuse, with contest planted in the local Herald-Journal which required readers to name the first musical film in which each of the stars appeared. Entries had to be accompanied by 50-word letters describing the part each played in these early pictures. Cash and guest tickets were awarded winners.

Readers of the local News were asked to suggest plots for forthcoming Hardy Family pictures in a contest that highlighted the "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" campaign put on by Everett Steinbuch and Joe Longo at Loew's State, in Cleveland. The idea of the competition was to discover what fans want Andy Hardy to do next, and cash prizes were offered for 100-word "scenarios."

A radio quiz contest based on Jeannette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy hits of the past featured the "New Moon" campaign put over by Rodney Toups, Loew's, New Orleans, with guest tickets to the first 10 correct lists of answers. Toups also tied up with music dealers and obtained a large number of window displays featuring numbers from the picture.

Just so it shouldn't be a total loss, M. N. Steinkritz at the Rogers Theatres, in Brooklyn, put the turtles in his lobby aquarium to work by lettering their backs to advertise his current show. A couple of the turtles swam about with "Rebecca" boldly visible, others carried titles of his short subjects.

The cashier at the St. George Playhouse in Brooklyn when making change during run of "Buck Benny Rides Again" distributed extra fake dollars as part of Eddie Lewis' gag campaign on that picture. Copy on the spurious "bucks" read: "A program of reel entertainment," etc., followed by title, cast and cut of the star.

A valuable puppy was given away by George Hunter, Fox Illinois, Jacksonville, Ill., as part of his campaign for "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante." Hunter distributed five thousand cards, with the holder of a lucky number receiving the dog, which, several weeks in advance of playdate, was displayed in a special dog house built in the lobby.

When Lee A. Bousquet at the Carole, Utica, N. Y., recently played the Polish picture starring Jadwiga Smosarska, he immediately contacted Station WIBX which runs a Polish hour every Sunday morning and secured numerous plugs for his date. Polish Delegation of Women were invited to meet at the theatre to proceed to the station with motor cycle escort to welcome the star who made a personal appearance in connection with the opening. Mayor Corrouwas was on hand to present the star with the key to the city and newspapers were generous with stories and art.

THE CHART

Productions are listed under distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed as "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) indicates the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title denotes first appearance.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed. Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

THE BRENKERT "80"

THE SUPREME MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR

Brenkert Engineered and Brenkert built—throughout to accomplish the further purpose of—always maintaining precision projection at lower cost and less time—by being able to:

1. Replace any worn intermittent sprocket in a few minutes time without removing the intermittent from the head.
2. Replace any parts likely to wear such as upper and lower sprockets, film tracks, pressure pads and springs, quickly without the necessity of special tools.
3. Remove any parts of the film side for cleaning and inspection, between reels if desired, with assurance of accurate, quick and easy replacement.
4. Relieve the projectionist from fear of mechanism bind-up or of hand oiling the mechanism parts—by reliable, fully-automatic lubricating feature—permitting the projectionist to concentrate on the important job of always maintaining the "Best Projection."

The Brenkert "80" Projector is a true friend to owner, manager and projectionist.

Several flights of stairs below the stage of the Roxy theatre in New York is a long, narrow room used by the Gae Foster Girls, ballet troupe, as quick-change quarters. Odors of perspiration, cosmetics, costumes, etc., etc., all mingled in a complex and nauseous manner. The cylindrical device to be observed in the above picture was installed to absorb—or rather, adsorb—the odors. Called an "Odorsorber," it is a new development of the W. B. Connor Engineering Corporation, New York, and works much like a gas mask. The air is drawn over and through activated cocoanut shell carbon. The motor, which operates the fan, is built in and is connected to any 110/120-volt a.c. socket.

Dollars-and-Cents Aims Of Progress in Sound

THERE APPEARS in the remarkable little book that RCA recently issued on sound in general and RCA Photophone equipment in particular, a paragraph or two particularly quotable in this issue of BETTER THEATRES, which sounds off, as it were, on the theme of sound system modernization. In discussing "The Influence of Sound on the Dramatic Value of Pictures"—and that is the big idea behind most of the work for the improvement of sound during the last few years—the booklet says:

▶ "After listening to the early type recordings for several years, many exhibitors have become accustomed to hearing all sounds reproduced at the same level and now feel that modern recording should be shown the same way. In doing this, all the naturalness and added color that recording engineers have worked so hard to produce, is lost."

And later, with respect to the fact that the frequency response characteristic of the human ear changes for different sound levels:

▶ "When the response of a sound system is adjusted for proper balance between high frequencies and low frequencies at a certain optimum level in the auditorium, pictures reproduced at this level are natural and pleasing. However, if the average level is increased or decreased, the sound quality changes completely and the sound is no longer balanced.

"Generally, if the level is set too low, the sound loses 'screen presence' and sounds as if the actors are far behind the screen. If the level is too high, certain imperfections in the voice, such as excess sibilance ["s" sounds] are over-accentuated and the sound becomes irritating. Projectionists should carefully determine the average gain setting for their theatres which gives the most pleasing and understandable sound. In this way audiences will be assured of sound reproduction as originally conceived and planned at great expense by the producers."

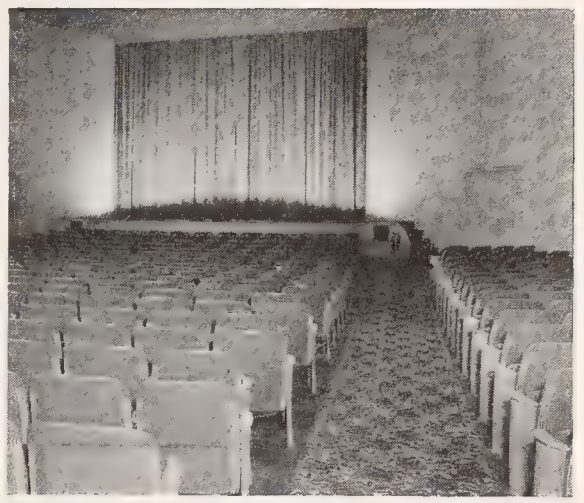
"Old-Fashioned" Exhibitors

Far too many theatres are without equipment which is capable of getting off the track and into the auditorium, what Hollywood artists and technicians have at last succeeded in putting on it. But much of the rest of the story of low- and medium-standard reproduction today concerns equipment operation. Part of what the paragraphs quoted refer to is the failure of some exhibitors and projectionists who already have the latest equipment, to realize the full significance of the advances that this equipment represents, in terms of motion picture effectiveness as entertainment.

That effectiveness, so far as sound is concerned, is on the film. Theatre equipment is available to transmit it to the customers, while the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has been laboring these past two or three years to standardize practices (their recommendations are readily obtainable) for adjustment of equipment operation to individual conditions.

▶ When the public doesn't get what the motion picture, technically, can give it, the failure is due to one or all of these: (1) an obsolete reproduction system, (2) an obsolete notion on the part of management of what constitutes suitable volume, (3) failure of the projection staff to follow standard recommendations for adjustments, (4) inadequate servicing and parts replacement, and (5) acoustic defects of the auditorium, probably due to hit-or-miss methods of correction.

That "Reverse Slope"— Past and Present



That each of three theatres grouped in the art section of the July issue of BETTER THEATRES, had an auditorium floor combining downward and upward slopes, was sheer coincidence—and by the very fact of its concidence, the occurrence would seem of some significance. Selected entirely for their merits of general floor plan, and of functional and decorative design, these three new houses, by as many architects, also represented three different sections of the country—the Far West, the Midwest, and the East. And each had an auditorium floor slope with the flat area toward the middle and an upward pitch at the front rows.

It was about nine years ago that Ben Schlanger discussed the idea of the "reverse" slope in a paper before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, which was followed by a number of articles on the scheme in BETTER THEATRES. There had been a few instances of upward auditorium floor pitches before that, principally in other countries; these, however, had been adopted to meet extraordinary construction conditions, and the type of incline used did not indicate that any attempt had been made to disturb existing methods of dealing with the sightline problems, but rather merely to meet, as best one could, a specific situation of unusual character.

Considerable controversy of course developed over the necessity and practicability of this so-called "reverse floor" (the term is a poor one, since it does not refer to the whole auditorium floor, but only to the sloping of the forward area upward). But ultimately more and more theatres came to have floors with such a slope, until its presence in three theatres in widely separated sections of the country, occasions no surprise or special "play" when grouped in a single editorial presentation.

The principle of the "reverse" pitch may therefore be said to be pretty well established, but it has by now become more clearly an integral part of the whole design problem presented by the conditions of a theatre project. And in commenting on the coincidence of the three theatres in the July issue, Mr. Schlanger cited the Academy theatre in Liberty, N. Y., a small, low-budget house which he recently designed, as an example of conditions which actually call for an all-downward, rather than a combination of inclines.

"What we are after," he continued, "is the best visual conditions at a minimum cost of construction. The auditorium floor pitches must be studied from that integrated, basic point of view. The actual number of solutions to the problem, the variations of floor slopes and the possibilities of combination, are greater than we heretofore have realized.

▶ "The contour of the land upon which the theatre is to be erected, and the inclusion or exclusion of an upper level of seating are important factors in determining the actual curvature of the auditorium floor in any particular case."

The ground plot of the Academy theatre was found to slope naturally toward the end where the screen was to be, and no balcony had to be considered.

"This project," Mr. Schlanger continued, "is an example of one of the two extremes in which the practical treatment will vary most. The one is where the natural contour of the ground is decidedly downward toward the screen end and no upper level of seating is contemplated at any time.

"The other extreme is where the ground slopes little or none, or even slopes upward toward the screen end, while a balcony is to be included immediately or is contemplated at some future date.

▶ "Now, in the first case it is feasible to use a floor slope that slopes downward only toward the screen end, at the same time employing staggered seating. This treatment decreases the required height of the structure to a minimum, thereby decreasing costs in many ways.

"In the second case, an all-downward pitch not only requires more building height than otherwise would be needed, but it brings about a very steep pitch in the upper level of seating."

Stagger Method a Great Aid

Staggering of seating, Mr. Schlanger commented, has greatly aided in the solution of many floor problems.

"In dealing with existing theatres, especially, the old type of all-downward pitch, having a slope of as much as 5 feet in 30 rows, did not solve the visual obstruction problem. Although a 5-foot pitch is already steep, it would have to be increased to as much as 8 feet in 30 rows to get proper clearances. Those floors in existing theatres which do not provide proper clearances may be greatly improved by reseating with a staggered arrangement."

Referring to the original studies of the problem, Mr. Schlanger pointed out that the full-reverse floor made it necessary to place the screen somewhat higher than sitting comfort would permit.

▶ "Today," he added, "by variation, both downward and upward, and careful adjustment and placement of the flat area, combined with staggered seating, we can have substantially unobstructed vision throughout the auditorium with a total pitch in either direction of as little as 20 inches—in other words, a floor that for all practical purposes, comes pretty close to being flat."

Fire Figures

Pertinent to preparations for the observance of Fire Prevention Week October 6-12, the National Fire Protection Association has issued figures on fires throughout the United States during the past twelve months. They show, as the motion picture business knows, though nobody else does, apparently, that there is no basis for regarding the motion picture theatre, merely because standard film is inflammable, as a structure full of fire hazards.

▶ It is hard to get at the actual facts of film theatre fires, since the insurance organizations do not break down their classifications sufficiently. It may be noted in the NFPA figures, however, that in only one other classification was the total number of fires so small as that attributed to "Films." Films and "thawing pipes" each caused 1,000 fires during the past year, as compared with 90,000 for "Smoking," 54,000 for defective chimneys, and comparable figures for many other causes. The dollar loss for film fires, moreover, was by far less than that in all classifications—merely $150,000. Of 29 classifications, only four had losses under a million.

Indeed, all types of public buildings were low in both number of fires and dollars losses—10,200 fires, with a loss of $15,920,000, compared with 389,000 residential buildings with a loss of over 82 million dollars.

▶ Incidentally, figures recently obtained by BETTER THEATRES from the National Board of Fire Underwriters, covering fire loss claims paid to owners of theatres of all types, and to motion picture studios, from 1932 to 1938 (the last year for which records had been completed), run between a low of 1,029 in 1933, to a high of 1,272 in 1932, with 1936 and 1937 rising to almost the 1932 figure, and 1938 dropping to approximately the 1934 and 1935 totals of a little under 1,200. There appears here no special connection between theatre fires and construction.

Otherwise Noted—

James Edwards, Los Angeles operator, is building an addition to his Alhambra theatre, with which Mike Rosenberg of Principal Theatres is also associated, to house a second auditorium and projection room. The idea is to allow patrons to go from one auditorium, in which the feature has been on for some time when they enter the theatre, into the other auditorium to see the picture from a point in the story nearer its beginning. Mr. Edwards operates several other extremely novel properties, one of which is designed on the style of a barn, with barnyard, windmill and similar wonders of the farm.

Air-Conditioning Exploitation

An eight-page booklet explaining air-conditioning purposes and methods in laymen's terms, and therefore an excellent source of material for the exploitation of theatre air-conditioning facilities, is available from the Carrier Corporation, Syracuse, N. Y.

The pamphlet has been prepared by Miss Margaret Ingels, who is, incidentally, a graduate mechanical engineer and quite likely the only woman air-conditioning engineer in the world, including Berchtesgaden. Entitled, "You Are an Engine—Air-Cooled—Yes, You!" (that's all of it), the booklet tells, in primer style, what the human body tries to do to keep itself cool or warm, and what mechanical air-conditioning does to make the body's job easier.

The copy lends itself readily to "lifting" for lobby posters, newspaper advertisements and trailers. It deals with winter air-conditioning as well as summer "cooling." It is addressed to the very people who make up theatre audiences. A letter to Miss Ingels would probably bring one of these booklets to your desk, both pronto and gratis.

Booklet on Theatre Cleaning

Elsewhere in this issue General Electric advertises the availability of a 12-page booklet on theatre cleaning, especially prepared for motion picture theatre managers and staffs. Naturally, it tells you about GE vacuum cleaning equipment, but about its application as well as its merits, while the cleaning of theatres generally is authoritatively discussed from a thoroughly practical point of view. Definitely something more for the theatre manager's permanent file.

Taking a tip from New York's Rockefeller Center, the contractor building the Southern Amusement Company's new Paramount theatre in Lake Charles, La., has built a special platform for people who want to stop and watch the job going up—"Sidewalk Superintendents"—and a sign offers use of blueprints for "more efficient coaching," also offering $5 for any "useful suggestion."

Robert Gross, manager of a new drive-in theatre near Milwaukee, has reserved a special space for the cars of doctors, and has so advised M. D.'s within a 25-mile area.

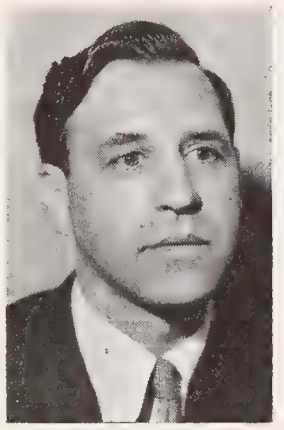
If you haven't already noted the advertisement of the Kawneer Company on page 4, you might do so now. There's copy with conviction on the merits of porcelain enamel—and diet. —G. S.

It's on the Sound Track!— Do YOUR Patrons Get It?

Ceasing to be a novelty, sound has had to become a more and more sensitive and dramatic element of motion picture story-telling. Therefore, the production community has taken a more active interest in what happens to its product in the theatre. For the theatre is the ultimate end of the creative process. Here a member of that community discusses the theatre's responsibility in the light of recent advancements in sound technique.

By JOHN K. HILLIARD
Sound Department, MGM
Member Academy Research Council

EVERY EXHIBITOR is faced periodically with the necessity of making certain decisions regarding the exhibition of motion pictures. He must decide whether his sound equipment is adequate. He must evaluate, in terms of box-office dollars, the return he will receive for the increased investment necessary. If he then decides to modernize his theatre, he must determine what changes to make and what type of equipment to buy to get the maximum benefit from every dollar spent on the modernization program.



It is our intention in this article, to help the exhibitor solve such problems. We will attempt to aid him by furnishing a method whereby he can determine whether his equipment needs immediate modernization, and to make available to him standards upon which he can base his judgment in investigating and evaluating new equipment.

The exhibitor, to determine whether he should modernize his facilities for presenting sound pictures, is invited on an imaginary visit to a new house in his vicinity. Having been recently constructed, this new house reflects, let us say, the results of accumulated experience and progress in the industry since the inception of sound pictures. It is unnecessary for us to concentrate on the dialogue to understand it. There is no echo present in the auditorium, and we hear each word only once, without any "double-talk." The sound changes smoothly from soft to loud without a blasting effect, which, when present, is a very disturbing factor. The dialogue is at all times entirely intelligible. We "feel" that the actors are present and speaking from the screen, not from a position several feet behind the screen. The voices of the characters sound human and natural, aiding us to enjoy the picture.

Naturalness in Volume

As the story is presented by the picture and the sound, we notice that the volume range, or the difference in loudness between the different sequences and between the music and the dialogue, is very natural. The soft passages are distinctly understood and are not covered up by various noises coming from the loud-speakers. The loud passages are smooth and undistorted, and in musical sequences, each instrument in the orchestra is well defined and the sound does not become jumbled together. The transition from soft sounds to loud sounds is natural and undisturbing. Gun-shots sound real and not like a wet fire-cracker on the Fourth of July. The motorboat or buzzing noises so often heard coming from the speakers is not audible.

The resulting effect is one of the presence of controlled power, as when driving a modern automobile at low speeds with the effect of adequate power available when necessary, and of a smooth transition from one power level to another.

JOHN K. HILLIARD

We hear music with body and warmth. We notice the production of normal bass in the music, which does not sound thin or boomy. Drums, bass viols and other bass instruments will be heard in their proper proportions to the other instruments. Piano music will be particularly good—will sound as if coming from a piano rather than from a ukulele.

We question whether the sound is equally good in all parts of the auditorium, but can detect little difference by moving to the front, sides and back of the house. Even in going upstairs into the balcony, we hear very little change in the sound quality. In every case we hear natural, understandable dialogue coming from the screen, and warm, full music, and we are not disturbed by extraneous noise.

In returning from the balcony we sit down in the lobby to discuss for a moment the quality of the sound as we have heard it. The comment is made that even in the lobby the dialogue is easily understood—a perfectly, normal condition.

When we discuss the sound quality we realize that in addition to the high degree of intelligibility and presence noticed, we were not disturbed by hearing the show twice—once from the screen, and once from the monitor horn in the projection room; we were unable to hear the operators talking or rewinding film—in fact, we weren't conscious that the projection room was in the theatre.

In its program of theatre standardization, aimed at co-ordination of production and exhibition at critical points, the Research Council of the Academy of Arts and Sciences has had the co-operation of reproduction equipment manufacturers. Two makes of sound systems designed in consultation with the Research Council are illustrated on the opposite page. . . . Other features on present-day sound appear in the Modern Projection department.

We also recall that there were no sudden, abrupt changes in the loudness of the sound. This can be attributed to the fact that the feature ran through on one fader setting—that the print, as carefully balanced in the studio before release, had an equally good balance as reproduced in this theatre.

Equipment Standards

The Academy Research Council has had for the past five years a standing Committee on Theatre Sound Standardization. There is no necessity to explain here the manner in which this committee has functioned. Suffice it to say that this Committee has published "Recommendations on Theatre Sound Reproducing Equipment" and "standard Methods of Adjusting Theatre Equipment." These recommendations and standards are available to any exhibitor on request, and for the best results any equipment purchased should meet these recommendations.

Experience has shown that the use of these Standard Adjustments lead to the best overall quality obtainable with current sound recordings as reproduced on theatre equipment with two-way horn systems. In most cases a slightly different adjustment is necessary for each make and type of loudspeaker system; however, hundreds of recent installations have borne out the fact that if theatres are so adjusted, the product of any one producer is not penalized, and the overall quality of all product is more uniform.

Such an adjustment of modern equipment, coupled with proper acoustical treatment of the auditorium, where necessary, leads to the intelligibility and presence described above.

The reproduction of the volume range, also referred to above, depends on the power available in the equipment. Many people believe that the volume of sound—that is, the loudness—that can be obtained in a theatre, depends entirely upon the amount of power installed. This is only partially true. Power is required for increased loudness for the proper presentation of special effects, such as the earthquake in "San Francisco," the breaking up of the icebergs in "Spawn of the North," or the breaking of the dam and the resulting flood in "The Rains Came." But also, from a quality standpoint, adequate power is necessary to reproduce dialogue and music at normal levels without harshness and unnaturalness.

As a result of a great deal of study of amplifier power requirements, the Academy Research Council has issued "Recommendations on the Minimum Power Requirements for Theatre Sound Systems." These recommendations indicate the minimum power which should be installed in any theatre according to the number of seats in order to give proper reproduction of current sound recordings.

Re-Creation as Created

All of Hollywood's sound is being recorded with these power requirements as a basis, and if these recommendations are followed, you will be assured of obtaining the best possible quality from all types of recordings.

Adequate power, as recommended by the Research Council, is of definite commercial value to you, as it gives you sound quality comparable to the best available and increases customer enjoyment.

Again it should be emphasized that adequate power and loudness do not mean the same thing. Adequate power prevents distortion in dialogue when reproduced at normal as well as at high levels.

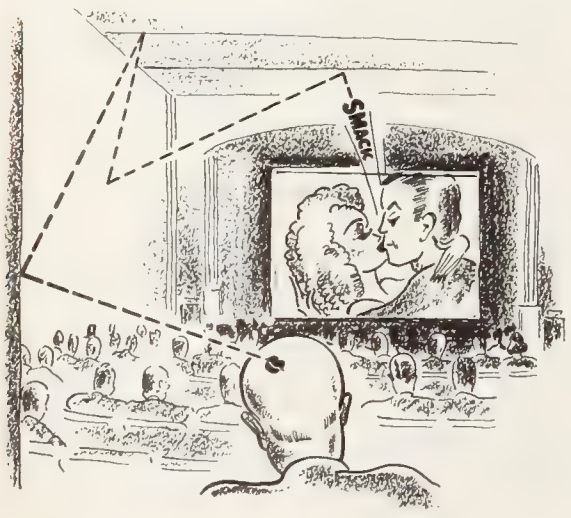
As a result of correct adjustment of the equipment and installation of adequate power, the dialogue will have presence and intelligibility, the volume range will be reproduced as recorded, the music will be full and warm.

Old "Bugs" Exterminated

Older types of soundheads are more subject to what is termed "flutter" than the newer designed mechanisms. Flutter is caused by the film being moved past the scanning aperture in a jerky manner. The presence of flutter results in harshness in dialogue and distortion in music. A good example of one kind of flutter is in the reproduction of piano music where it sounds more like a ukulele than a piano, as mentioned above. Modern sound heads are essentially free of flutter and take much less maintenance to keep the flutter out.

The proper utilization of all the seats in the theatre depends on the distribution of the sound in the auditorium. Such sound distribution can be accomplished best through the use of the modern so-called "two-way speaker systems," which are essentially designed to keep the intelligibility and presence of the sound from falling off on the sides and across the front of the house, as occurs with older equipment.

Acoustical Factors



In consideration of good sound quality, certain acoustical treatment of the auditorium is often necessary; however, such treatment is not necessarily expensive. In the case of bad acoustics, a few dollars' worth of material properly placed in the auditorium, or back stage, will improve results tremendously. Bad acoustics contribute to the echo or double-talk effect referred to above, thereby decreasing presence and intelligibility and contributing to bad overall quality.

The proper setting of the volume level is often difficult—a difficulty to which several factors contribute. In the majority of cases this difficulty can be traced either to poor acoustical conditions, or to improper sound equipment adjustment.

Where an auditorium is highly reverberant in particular frequency bands—for instance, where deep male voices are accentuated—the sound level in such sequences in the reel will appear too loud for other portions of the picture. This will necessitate a fader change in such a house, while in a theatre with proper acoustics the same feature will play throughout on one fader step.

Thus it may be seen that proper acoustics contribute tremendously to the ease and time required to obtain the best sound

Indicating Equipment Design for

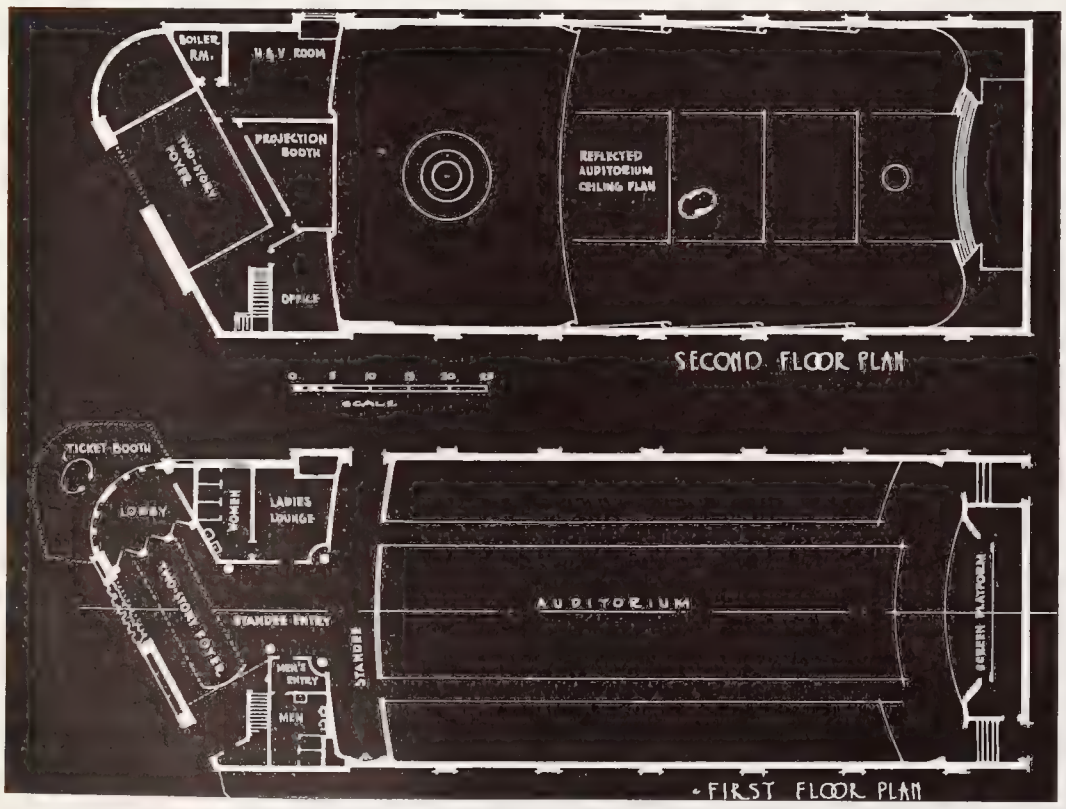
SOUND TODAY

■ Indicative of the characteristics of the modern sound system is the design of one of the newer equipments, the Simplex, manufactured by the International Projector Corporation and distributed through the National Theatre Supply Company, which was developed at about the time the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences began its work on recording-reproduction co-ordination. Features of soundhead design are: Rotary Stabilizer control of film motion, fully adjustable exciter lamp mounting with removable bracket, lateral film guide and pressure roller with trigger control for easy operation, suspension of drive motor cradle with flywheel to assure correct starting speed and prompt breakage, push-pull and stereophonic conversion provisions. Adaptation of the system to variations in size of auditorium is made through amplification system, which provides one 15-watt amplifier in main unit with loudspeaker network and exciter power supply, and facilities for adjusting frequency response to specific auditorium acoustic conditions. Volume control amplifier provides for equalization of outputs for uniform fader setting throughout picture. Two-way horn system equipped with permanent magnet fields and multicellular type high-frequency horn.

Soundhead, main amplifier and two-way horn system of Simplex equipment.

RCA Photophone soundhead, horn system, amplifier racks.

■ One of the earliest of theatre sound systems, RCA Photophone now embraces several types of systems, all of them, however, with rotary stabilizer soundheads which this system introduced in 1932. The types heading the group (PG-140 series) incorporates a soundhead (illustrated) which, in addition to streamlined housing, has a special gearing system designed to eliminate shock, provisions for push-pull optical system, reversible exciter lamp holder, cushion mounting of film scanning system, which is sealed against oil. The amplification system, from one to three racks, according to auditorium size (other systems than the series illustrated use cabinets), basically includes power, monitor, voltage and emergency amplifiers, exciter lamp power supply, speaker field supply unit, compensator circuit and 400-cycle dividing network. All main amplification rated for surplus power to give full dramatic effect to high-volume sequences. Two-way horn system includes a high-frequency horn of 12, 15 or 18 cells, according to auditorium requirements; and a folded low-frequency baffle. Stage loudspeaker coupling circuits are 250-ohm, rather than 15-ohm, to reduce power loss in wiring from amplifier. High-frequency units are electro-dynamic with non-metallic diaphragms; electro-dynamic cone mechanisms are used with low-frequency horns.



LUXURY FOR CITY WORKERS

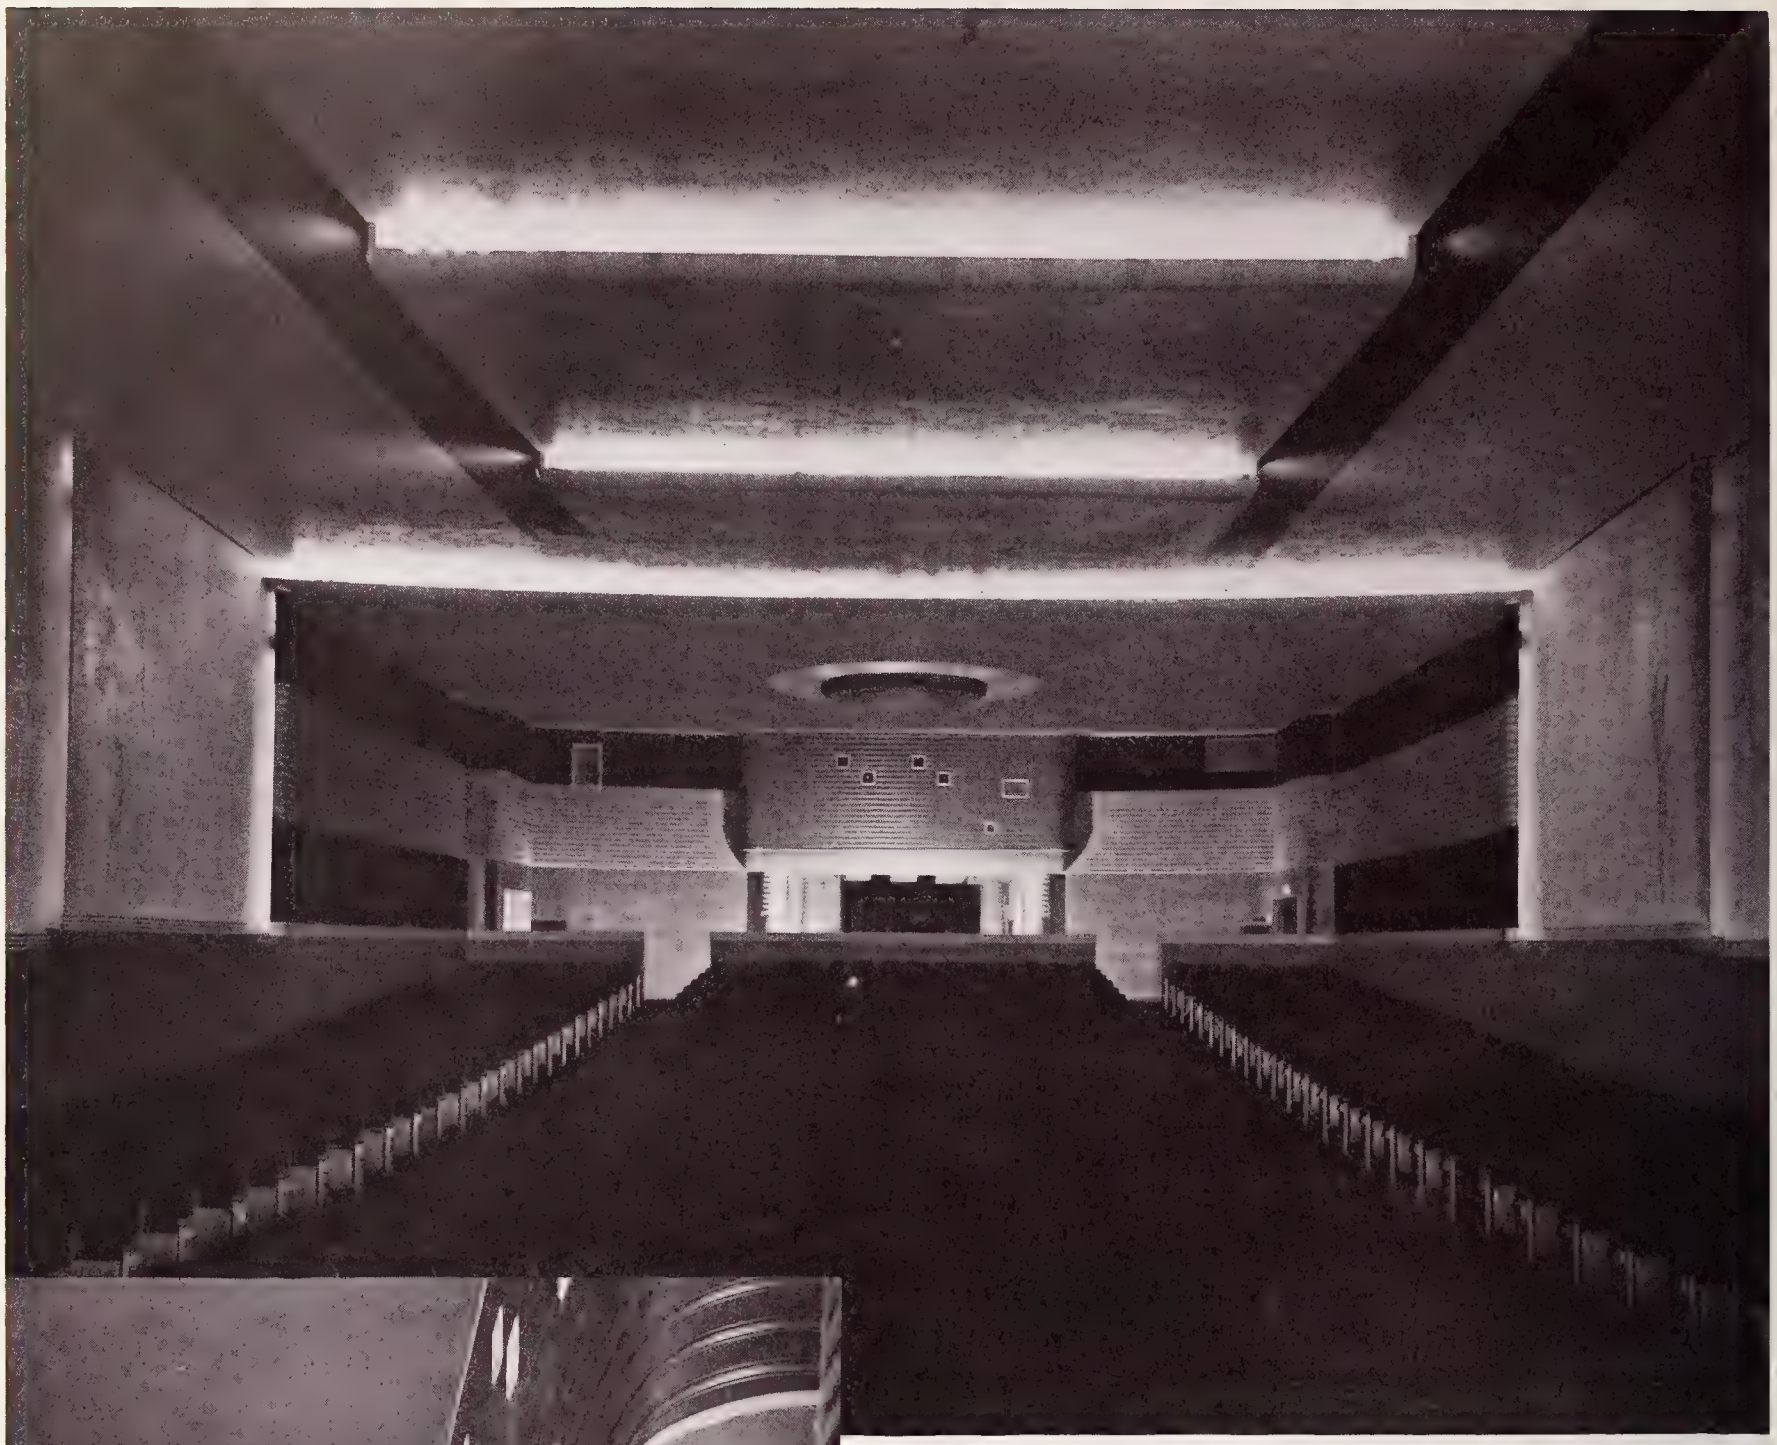
SUNSET THEATRE
Cincinnati, Ohio

F & Y BUILDING SERVICE, Designers & Engineers; M. R. Maffit, F. W. Stritzel, L. H. Alcox, Architects

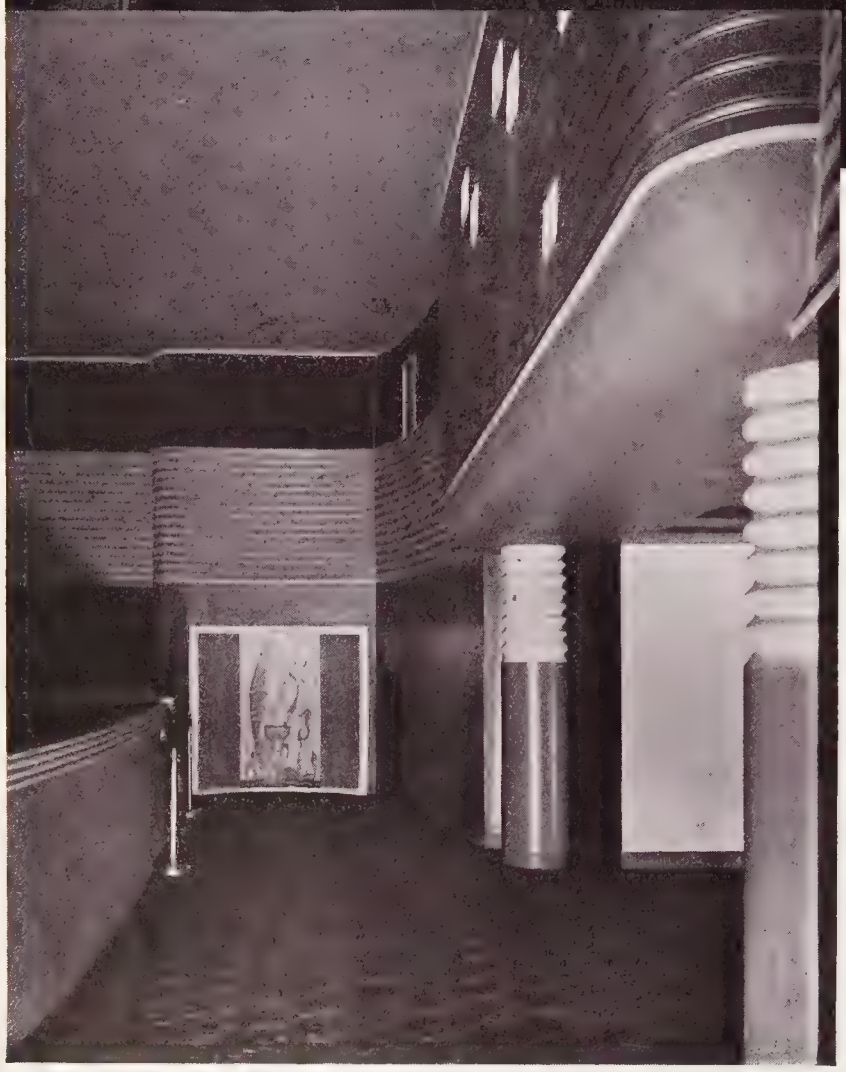
LOCATION & CONSTRUCTION: The Sunset theatre in Cincinnati has been built by Ackerman Enterprises, Inc., headed by Bud Ackerman, operators of several other theatres in the Cincinnati metropolitan area, in an outlying shopping district serving a residential section populated by workers of the skilled class, store and office clerks, and small business men. The total drawing area described for this project, however, has a population estimated to be 50,000. Housing only a theatre, which seats 850, the building was constructed at a reported cost of $70,000, including the air-conditioning contract (local wage scales: common labor 75c; masons $1.62½; carpenters $1.45). Construction employs brick walls, concrete floors, steel trusses, wood joists, metal lath, and plaster for all ceilings. The cost of equipment is placed at $20,000. Admission prices are 30c for adults, 15c for children, all performances. The Sunset is managed by John T. Ackerman.

PLAN & FRONT: Located at the juncture of two streets, one of which is diagonal, the Sunset has a corner entrance (see floor plans) with the curved facade set back sufficiently to allow sidewalk space for a ticket booth entirely outside an enclosed vestibule. The facade, including name sign and marquee attraction boards, is directed up the more important of the two streets, while it is along this thoroughfare that the side elevation is architecturally developed, with terra cotta facing, a tall glass-block "window," and flush-set poster cases. Along this side and at front is a base of slate-blue glazed terra cotta, which rises to frame display cases lighted from edges by white fluorescent lamps. Facade facing is tangerine-colored face brick trimmed with maroon-colored vertical fins of terra cotta. Name sign is constructed of 72-inch channel letters supported at bottom only and lighted by double lines of green neon. Marquee consist in three line Wagner interchangeable-letter continuous attraction panel with ivory lamp chaser border top and bottom. Marquee soffit is of lacquer finish with strip lighting in pattern.

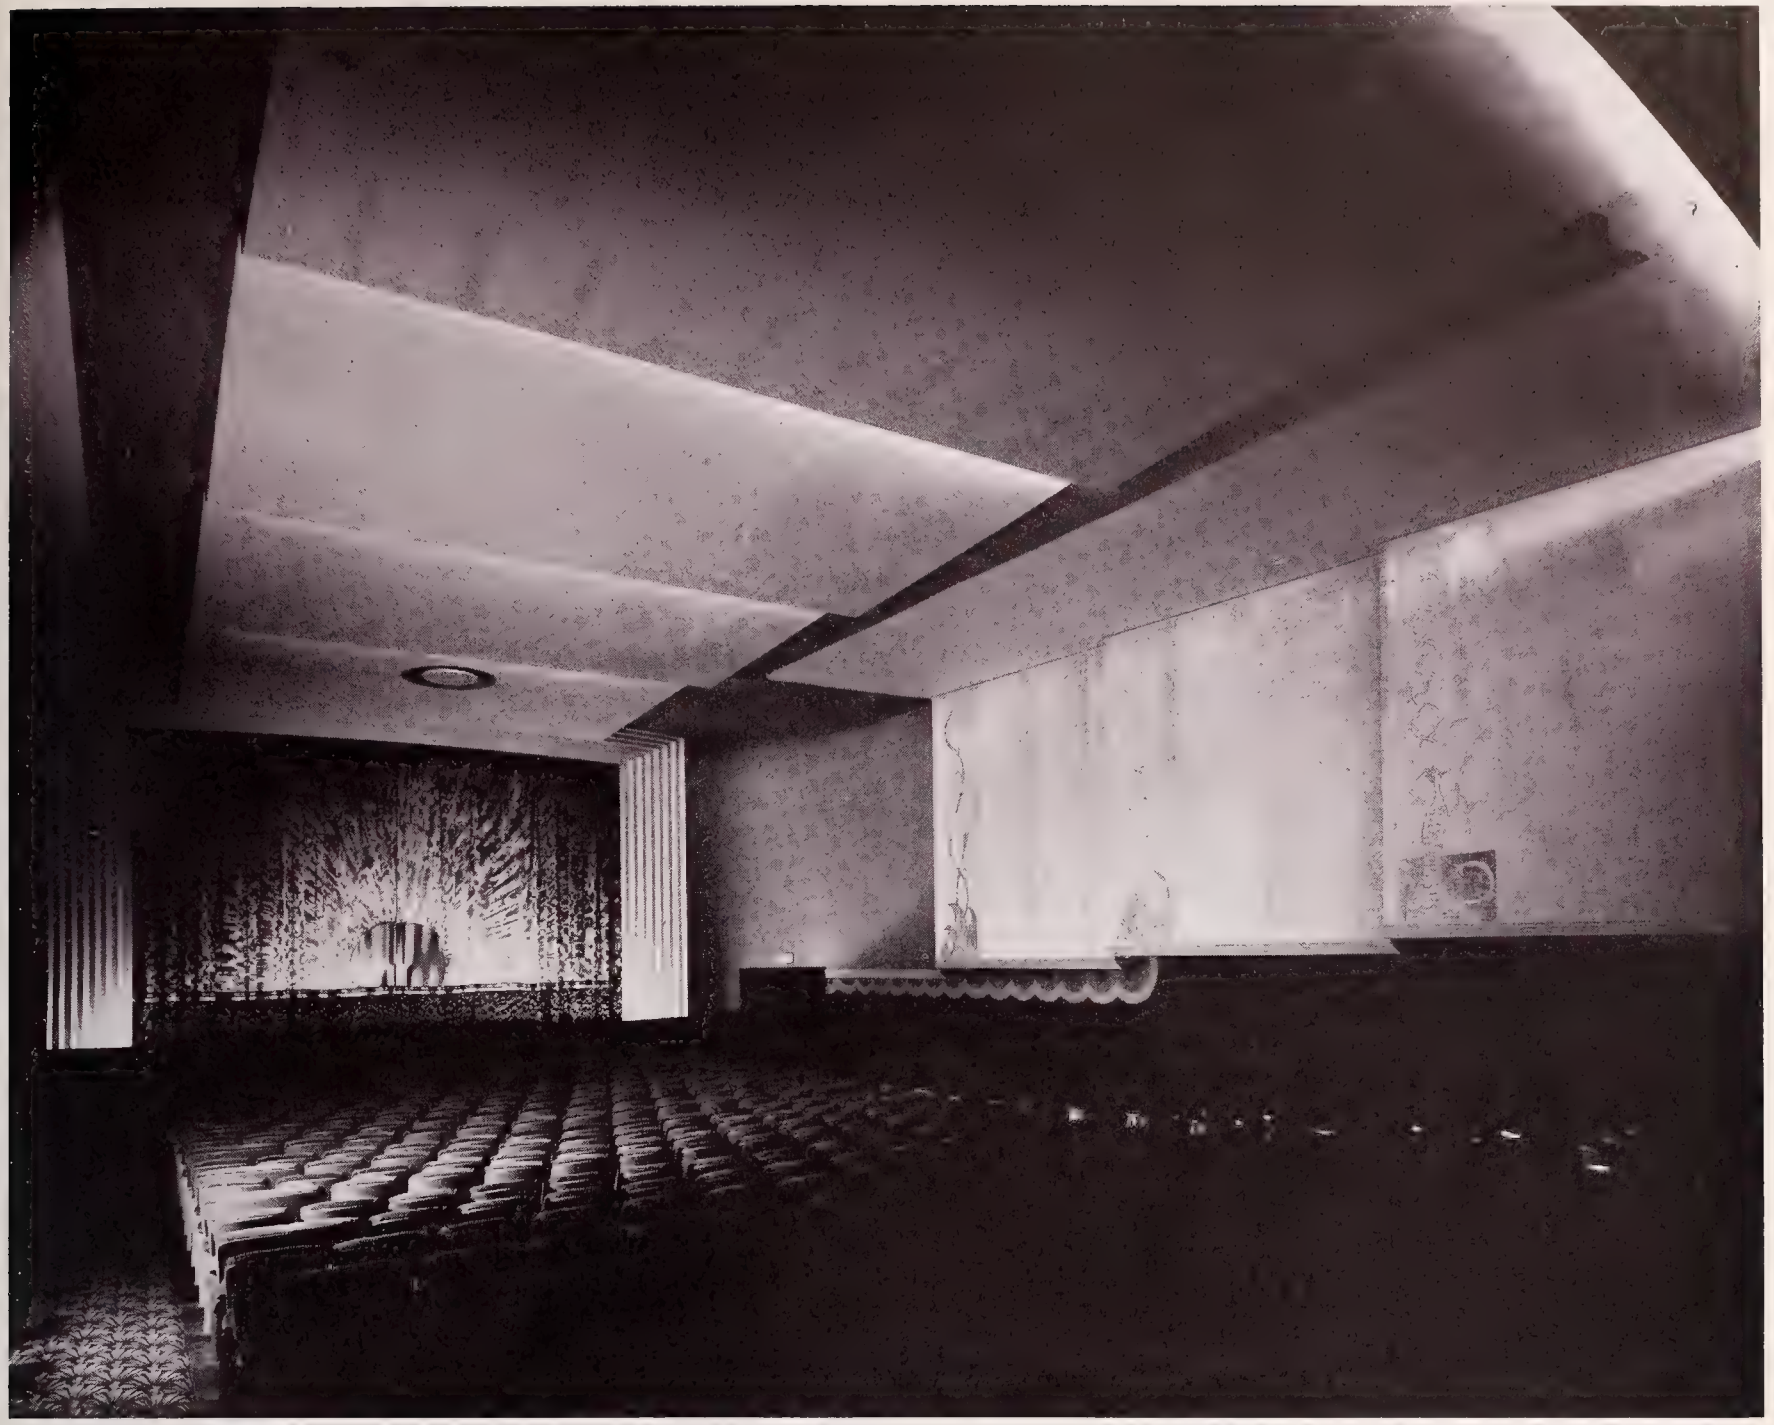
FOYER: The enclosed vestibule, or lobby (see floor plan), which has plaster walls painted Venetian red and orange with blue directional stripes, plaster ceiling painted buff, and terrazzo floor, provides a second set of doors opening on a foyer 25 feet high. Forming an angular approach to the auditorium, through a connecting passageway of normal height (for rooms above passageway and adjoining lounges see second floor plan), traffic is guided not only by a stainless steel rail, but by a certain directional effect of the design, notably a ceiling panel extending down one wall, and light troughs in the ceiling of the passageway. Employing a variety of colors and decorative formations, the treatment is as follows: Ceiling—Plaster with peach-colored borders flanking concave projecting panel painted jet black and ornamented with leaf-and-vine pattern in red and green. Wall above entrance doors—Plaster painted raspberry red and ornamented with stylized Masques outlined in cream. Outer wall—Ceiling-high window of Pittsburgh-Corning glass blocks equipped with mulberry velour draw curtains; beyond window, plaster painted ochre with bright red herringbone stenciling above a maroon base. Inner wall—From entrance doors and continuing into passageway, lower section painted magenta, upper section peach, with sections divided by pale blue moulding. The upper section of the inner wall is continuous with wall above arch of passageway. The ceiling of the passageway is painted bluish green on outer surfaces; light troughs are painted flesh color. Giving the effect of needed support in this low-ceiling area are four plastered columns with magenta base, blue shaft, moulded capital mulberry. Carpeting is a Wilton weave with a small-repeat pattern (contrasting with somewhat broad and "heavy" scale of the wall and ceiling treatment); the figure is a modern floral abstraction in blending shades of green and gold. Artificial lighting is provided only by the passageway troughs, which conceal 20-watt incandescent lamps on 6-inch centers. . . . Lounges: The women's retiring rooms, off the left of the passageway to the auditorium, includes a powder room with plaster walls tinted in graded shades of peach on two sides, and in a blue and peach pattern on the other two, while the ceiling has a blue field with three brick-red bands, each running to an alcove containing cosmetic tables and lighted by fluorescent lamps (picture of this room on page 30). The women's toilet has relatively elaborate treatment—walls of green faience tile with a dark green pattern, plaster ceiling with a modernistic design in blue, green and red, marble compartments with solid birch doors having chrome hardware, and a terrazzo floor. The men's toilet room is entered through a carpeted anteroom with plaster walls and ceiling in blue and tan. The toilet room has a burgundy tile wainscot, tan plaster walls above, plaster ceiling painted pale green with blue-green striping, and a terrazzo floor in the colors used elsewhere.



PASSAGEWAY FROM FOYER TO AUDITORIUM



FOYER AT ENTRANCE



FOYER AT APPROACH TO AUDITORIUM

STANDEE and AUDITORIUM TOWARD REAR

AUDITORIUM: Standee area (with treatment extending to point about eight rows forward) walls are covered in rose damask below ivory wood moulding panel, in dark mulberry velour above. The projection room, extending 3 feet beyond wall, forming a "bridge" over passageway, optically supported by the Moorish-roll columns, but actually on cantilever beams, is faced in striped delft blue damask. The hard plaster ceiling is painted orange, and the cove, which suspends a plaster-baffled pan-type air diffuser, conceals a ring of orange neon. The baffle is painted blue with a magenta border. . . . Forward area side walls are a series of stepped, gold panne-plush panels above a plaster maroon wainscot ornamented in shades of blue. The panels, extending from ivory wood mouldings to side course of ceiling, are coved at each stepping, concealing neon tubing providing amber light during projection. The entire side walls are furred out on metal lath, and the gold panne-plush covering is stretched directly, uncemented, over the hard plaster. Along edge of each panel, the plush has been ornamented in luminescent paint to provide "black light" decoration during projection. Near-ultraviolet energy for the activation of this ornamentation is provided by 100-watt General Electric CH-4 mercury lamps in Continental units, one to each panel, placed with transformer in edge of center ceiling drop. These designs, which are faintly delineated in red, blue and green under house lights, glow with the same coloration during the performance, one with a tropical fish motif, another depicting tropical birds, and the third representing fanciful flowers. . . . Forward area ceiling steppings align with wall steppings, and in the fascia of each stepping is a cove containing two air outlet grilles and 20-watt incandescent lamps, without reflectors, spaced 6 inches on centers, under dimmer control for house lighting. Ceiling, of hard plaster, is painted powder blue, with gold striping on the central steppings, which terminate in ten-rib plaster-moulded proscenium arch in the same shade of blue. Plain plaster walls flanking the arch are painted orange. . . . Stage curtain, on tracks under projection room control, is a colorful plush velour with brilliant red sun motif hand-painted on an orange-gold ground. . . . Seating (see auditorium plan) is in three banks with the middle bank on a stagger plan with end chairs of alternate rows 30 inches wide. Row spacing is 32 inches back-to-back. Distance from first row to screen is 18 feet, with a screen image 21 feet wide. Chairs are finished in peach and gold, have spring backs covered in mulberry mohair, spring-edge seats covered in maroon antique leatherette.

AIR-CONDITIONING: All areas of theatre including vestibule, manager's office and toilet rooms supplied with conditioned air all seasons, under Monitor automatic control, with cooling by a mechanical refrigeration plant consisting in three General Refrigeration Lipman compressors of 15-tons capacity each. Distribution is by main ducts through roof trusses supplying auditorium, and by separate ducts, served by separate standby fan and coils, to other areas, providing 18,000 cubic feet of conditioned air per minute. A high level exhaust is provided at rear of auditorium (grille appears in upper right of top view, page 14), directly connected to an evaporative condenser system so that air used in condenser likewise removes hot air blanket at ceiling. Heating is by Hook gas-fired water-tube boiler, and transfer equipment consist in McQuay hot water heating coils of four-circuit down-blast type.

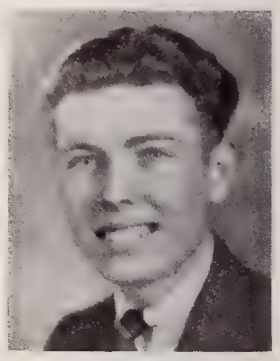
FOR WELL-TO-DO SUBURBAN FAMILIES



LAKE THEATRE, Oswego, Ore.

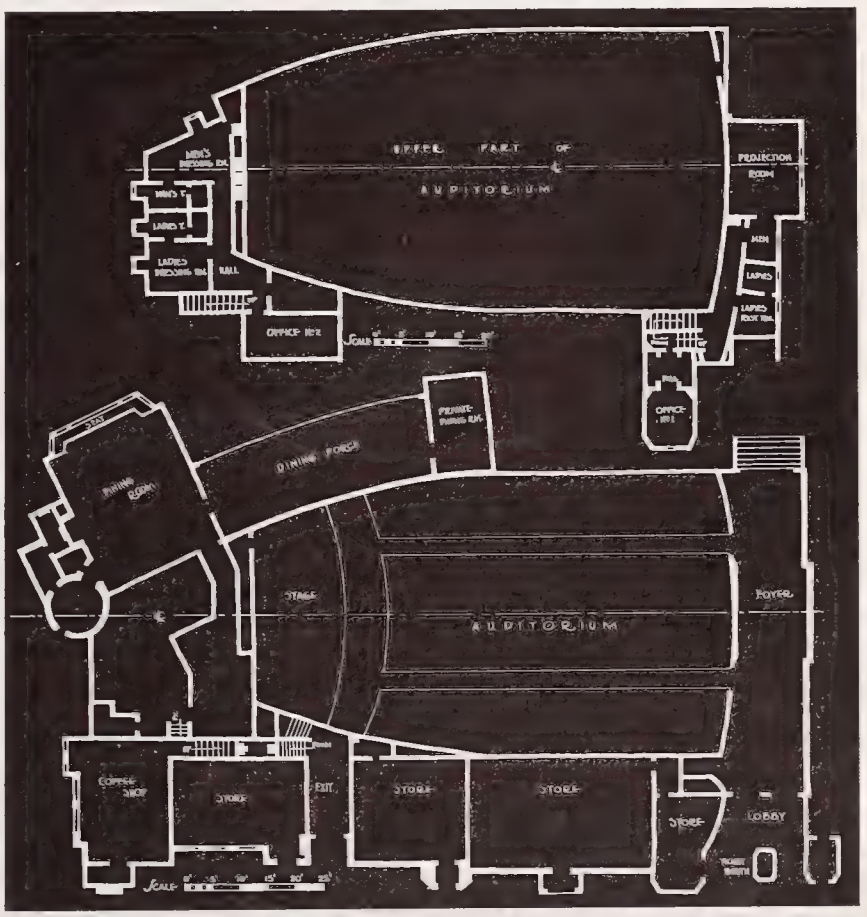
RICHARD SUNDELEAF, Architect

DISTINGUISHED by the special character of its location and clientele, the new Lake theatre in Oswego, Ore., at the same time exemplifies the policy of bringing the motion picture to the people, which has reversed in recent years that of centralization. Oswego, with a population of 1,300, had never before had a theatre. Located but 8 miles from the City of Portland, on the shores of a charming lake, it is a trading point for the families of well-to-do business and professional men, many of them retired, who have come to live in the town and its scenic countryside. The theatre itself has been built on the shores of the lake, and family launches and outboard motor boats, which dock at the theatre's own wharf, are means of transportation regularly used by patrons whose homes are on the lake.

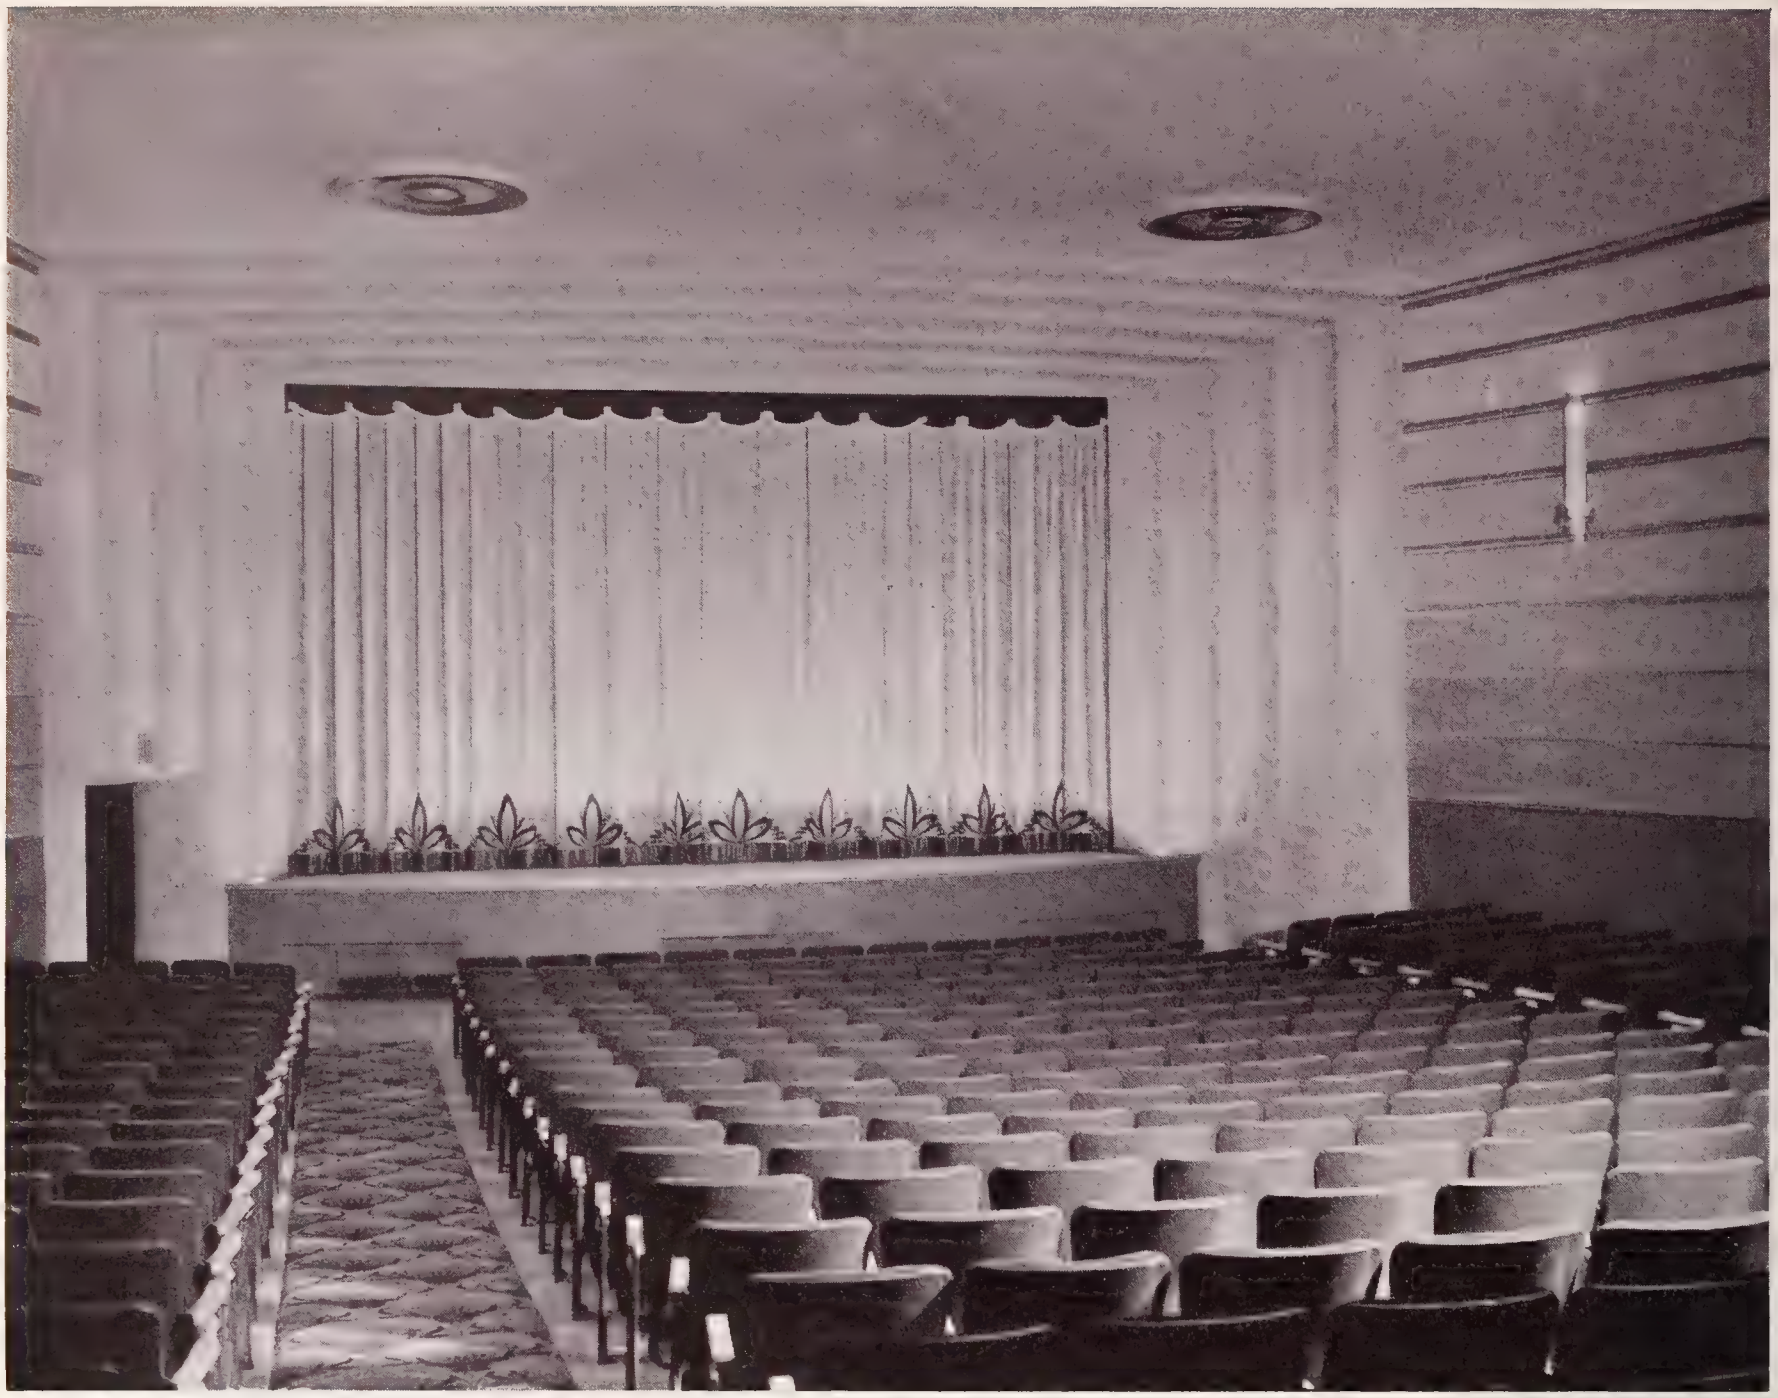
The Lake theatre is leased for operation by Norman Goodin. Although he is now but 25 years old, the Lake is his fifth theatre. His first was the Grand at Sheridan, Ore., a theatre which had been closed for lack of business; he was 17 when he reopened it to begin a career as an exhibitor. He has also had theatres at Willamina and Molalla, and now operates, in addition to the Lake, a theatre at Carlton, 30 miles from Oswego, which he built. Lake theatre seats 500. The building is of brick and tile construction with stucco facing and was built at a reported cost of $50,000 (prevailing wage scales: common labor, 35c; masons, $1; carpenters, 75c). Besides the theatre, the structure houses several small shops and a restaurant (Ireland's) that is locally famous for its food. Restaurant and theatre, with the landscaped lakeside setting, effect a reciprocal attraction from noon through evening. . . . Richard Sundeleaf, who designed the Lake, is a Portland architect.

NORMAN GOODIN

GENERAL EXTERIOR: Design is French Normandy with broad-gabled slate-shingled roof, multi-paned shop windows, and wood and stucco architectural features, giving in this lakeside setting a rustic effect. Wall at end and facing lake of brick painted white. Theatre entrance indicated merely by marquee at one end of gable. Marquee and name signs lighted in rose, green, blue and white fluorescent-tube neon (zeon). Attraction boards silhouette type.



VESTIBULE: Walls and ticket booth red tile. Ceiling in mottled plaster finish stippled white continuous with soffit of marquee. Ceiling carries parallel lines of white zeon. Floor red and green terrazzo. Doors solid fir painted gold. Display cases attached to wall, framed in gold-painted wood moulding and lighted by lumiline lamps concealed all around.



FOYER: Extends from vestibule across rear of auditorium to walk leading to lake (see plan). Walls plaster in fine sand finish painted in three shades of tan, forming horizontal bands divided by gold stripes, graded dark to light from the floor. Ceiling plaster painted buff. Lighting is by three ornamental metal and diffusive glass direct-type ceiling fixtures on two circuits, one color, one white, each fixture containing twelve incandescent lamps; and by yellow fluorescent mazda lamps on reflector strips at each side of wall mirror. Carpeting is a Velvet weave with a modern floral pattern in buff, red and black on a tan ground. Furniture covered in red and blue velours. Drapes over entrances to aisles (see plan) are of dark red plush velour.

LOUNGES: These are on a mezzanine level reached by stairs just inside foyer (see plans). Stair well and passage are finished in plaster, with pale blue walls and peach ceiling. Toilet room only for men. Women's section provided with cosmetic room having chrome metal furniture with blue leatherette cushions, and black teakwood cosmetic tables. Stairs, corridor and cosmetic room carpeted same as foyer. Lighting throughout this area is by yellow fluorescent mazda lamps on reflector strips spaced along walls (as adjoining mirror in foyer).

AUDITORIUM: Like the rest of the public areas of the interior, the auditorium is of modern design, in a simple treatment tending toward the modern-classical. Side and rear walls are finished in Thermax nailed to the studding, with metal moulds at the joints, forming horizontal bands which, above a dark blue wainscot, are tinted shades of blue (water color) to a moulding at the ceiling cornice. Side walls converge to a stepped front wall forming a proscenium arch, which is finished in hard plaster tinted receding shades of blue. Ceiling is hard plaster painted peach. Lighting is by metal cylindrical luminaires of semi-direct type with incandescent bulbs on a color and a white circuit under dimmer control. Seating, accommodating 500 on a single floor and arranged in three banks with two aisles, is upholstered entirely in blue mohair, while end standards are enameled blue and trimmed with stainless steel. Distance from first row to screen, 16 feet (screen image 16 feet wide). Rows spaced 36 inches back-to-back. Majority of chairs 21 inches.

STAGE: The Lake, with a stage 12 feet deep, has performer dressing rooms, but is unrigged for scenery flying. The stage curtain is of silver rayon damask with gold border and travels on steel tracks under control from the projection room.

PROJECTION: The projection room (see plan) is approximately 16 feet wide, 13 feet deep, 7 feet, 9 inches high. Walls and ceiling are of hard plaster painted pale green. Angle of projection approximately 6°. (For equipment, see Outline of Equipment and Furnishings.)

AIR SUPPLY: Duct system supplies auditorium. foyer and mezzanine area of theatre, and provides for return to heating plant under stage. Auditorium has two forward, two rear ceiling outlets, and exhaust grilles at fascia of stage. Original plan contemplated use of lake water for cooling, but temperature proved too high on hottest days. Heating plant is fired by low-test oil, and in addition to providing warm air for theatre, supplies steam to commercial areas of building.

First Aid Methods for Theatres

For Protection of Patrons . . . For Building Good Will

JOE GOETZ

● About a year ago, an exhibitor wrote Better Theatres, suggesting an article on first aid methods for theatres. Information on first aid in general is, of course, readily available; but first aid for the specific protection of theatre patrons imposes certain practical considerations of its own. Then Joe Goetz came along with the training of the RKO service staffs in Cincinnati, for just such work, producing this article on first aid methods as applied and proved successful in actual theatre operation.
—THE EDITOR.

ANYTHING CAN, and many things do happen, to persons in a theatre audience, and employes back stage, for that matter; but in every case of sudden illness or accidental injury which may develop in the RKO theatres in Cincinnati, the maids in charge are able to administer immediate and effective first aid. This is the result of a 15-week course of intensive training in Red Cross work, for which, after a series of rigid examinations and tests, the girls were awarded certificates attesting their competency in first-aid administration in theatres.

Although the first aid policy has been in effect but a relatively short time, some highly interesting case records already exist. The highlights of these, together with valuable information on first aid work in general, and specific cases in particular, were brought out in a joint interview with Don Nimmo, director of the first aid division of the Cincinnati Red Cross, who conducted the first aid classes; Mrs. Dorothy Rader, the white matron in charge of the colored maids; and Joe Goetz, assistant division manager of RKO theatres, who conceived the idea of training the staff in first-aid work.

What First Aid Does

"There are several very important matters in connection with first aid work which I wish to stress, and which should always be borne in mind as essential fundamentals," Mr. Nimmo declared. "First, let it be understood that first aid is not and never was intended to replace the physician in any way," he said. "It is, as its name implies, immediate temporary comfort, coupled with preliminary relief for the patient or victim, such as, for instance, stopping flow of blood, resuscitation, providing artificial respiration, and similar remedial measures pending the arrival of a physician, if medical attention or care should prove necessary.

"This, in the more serious cases may be, and often is, the means of saving a life, because otherwise the attack or injury might progress to the stage where a physician's efforts would be unavailing. In the minor cases, the trained theatre attendant is qualified to handle it to the state of recovery.

"It is equally as important to know what not to do as to know exactly what should be done, another exemplification of the old adage, 'A little knowledge is a dangerous thing.' Doing the wrong thing might result in a more serious reaction than if no care were given at all, and we would thus defeat the very purpose we are trying to accomplish."

A "First Don't"

In the list of "don'ts," there is one very highly important point to always remember, and this applies to everyone, whether he has had training or not:

Never under any circumstances attempt to administer a liquid stimulant of any kind to an unconscious person.

This method of stimulation is the first natural impulse. Restrain it, because you are inviting tragedy. The faculties of an unconscious person are in a state of complete involuntary inertia, and they cannot possibly function to the extent of accepting a liquid, a small portion of which may "drown" the patient.

"This, incidentally," Mr. Nimmo commented, "is diametrically opposite what happens in film dramas, in which the unconscious person is almost immediately revived upon receiving a liquid stimulant. It just cannot be done."

A person qualified to render first aid must, first of all, exercise good judgment, and this, naturally, can be done only by keeping calm even under the most exciting conditions, it was pointed out.

"The practice of psychology plays an important part in first aid," Mr. Nimmo said. "This, however, is not as complicated as the word may indicate. It is, in the final analysis, merely the application of

One of the commonest situations calling for first aid treatment in the theatre is fainting. In the posed picture above is illustrated the immediate handling of a patron who has fainted. If standing, the patron should be seated, in a chair or step of a stairway or otherwise according to convenience, and the head drawn forward as far as possible to promote flow of blood to the head. At the same time an inhalant should be applied.

The second step in handling a patron who has fainted is to effect a reclining position—on a stretcher (each RKO theatre in Cincinnati is equipped with one), otherwise on a settee or even on the floor. Legs should be elevated, which can be managed as shown above, and an inhalant administered, as Mrs. Dorothy Rader, rest room supervisor of RKO's Cincinnati theatres, is shown doing in the picture.

Don Nimmo, director of first aid for the Red Cross in Cincinnati, shown with Mrs. Rader and a contingent of her staff of women's lounge attendants in RKO theatres in Cincinnati. Mr. Nimmo trained Mrs. Rader and her staff in first aid work.

good, sound common sense. Never must the maid refer to the patient or victim's condition, except to convey the impression that the case is not serious, even though it is. Neither by word, action or gesture must there be any indication by the attendant of seriousness.

"Such implied assurance must be substantiated by the calm demeanor and cheerful attitude of the person in charge of the situation. This at once tends to put the patient's mind at ease, which, in itself, helps immeasurably in averting a collapse or avoiding a panicky reaction. If the patient is unconscious, the above requisites should be practiced when and as consciousness returns. Minimizing the seriousness also tends to prevent panic or hysteria on the part of persons in the area where the case developed.

Artifical Respiration

Artificial respiration must invariably be resorted to when breathing stops, which often follows accidents such as electrical shocks, gas poisoning, choking, strangulation, cave-in, or anything which results in asphyxiation. Unless this is done without delay, the patient of course cannot live.

Here Mr. Nimmo explained and demonstrated the steps necessary in administering artificial respiration. No special apparatus is required, as is sometimes thought. It is a matter of using the hands—and the intelligence.

With the victim lying on his stomach, the hands are placed on the lower, or floating, ribs, on which great pressure is exerted. This forces the air from the lungs. Releasing the pressure allows air to enter the lungs. Naturally, there is a certain rhythmic routine necessary to follow, and the entire weight of the administrator's body must be thrown into the pressure. However, the procedure is anything but complicated; the RKO maids can and do apply the method.

It should also be borne in mind that a person rendering first aid should never assume the responsibility of sending a patient to the hospital, except under the most unusual conditions, or in especially severe cases where, perhaps, a physician is not immediately available. Disposition of the case should, where at all possible, be left to the discretion of the physician, or in lieu of one, to the police.

Asked what was the most frequent case encountered in the theatre, both Mr. Nimmo and Mrs. Rader immediately chorused, "Fainting." Fainting may occur from many causes, prominent among which are hunger, excitement, pleasure, good or bad news, and similar situations arising suddenly.

Fainting, which results from a shock, is recognized by weak and rapid pulse, face becoming pale, patient rapidly becoming cold. Victims of fainting usually become unconscious because of lack of blood supply to the brain. This is indicated by the facial pallor and perspiration on the forehead.

Treating Fainting Spells

The patient must be placed in a reclining position with feet considerably higher than the head. This can be done by laying patient on a couch with head hanging down, or placing the patient's feet on a chair, with the body in a reclining position, and with head on the floor. An inhalant stimulant, such as aromatic spirits of ammonia or smelling salts, should be administered. The patient should be kept warm by being wrapped in suitable covers.

Here an unusual angle is injected on the subject of fainting:

"It is possible, although not necessarily probable, that some sequence on the screen might induce fainting, or even hysteria," Mr. Nimmo suggested (hysteria will be covered later in this article). "However, that is beside the point at the moment, but believe it or not, there are cases in which a person feigns a faint—attempts to 'put on an act,' so to speak. This particularly, but not exclusively, applies to women. The 'patient' sometimes does this to satisfy a craving for publicity, to get his or her name in the paper by creating a scene for which the theatre provides the ideal background; or it may be to satisfy his ego, or possibly to impress the boy friend. Whatever the cause or motive, such cases do exist and are occasionally encountered in the theatre.

"A trained person, however, can immediately distinguish between a genuine and an assumed case. The pulse and respiration should be examined. If they are normal, and the face does not bear the usual symptoms, it's a safe bet that there is nothing to the case. Nevertheless, good judgment must be exercised, and the person in charge must not be too quick to jump at conclusions. Disposition of faked fainting cases is a matter of judgment and discretion, depending on circumstances in each individual instance."

Heart Attacks

Heart attack is a condition relatively often encountered in the theatre. There are three general types. They are recognizable by the symptoms, but in every case, in every type, a stimulant should be administered, as an inhalant, without delay.

Type No. 1 is distinguishable by the symptoms which are similar to those of fainting. The patient usually is unconscious. Treatment is practically identical with that prescribed in fainting cases.

Type No. 2 is of more serious nature. It is characterized by decided shortness of breath and the prevalence of pain. The patient must be kept in a sitting or reclining position while the stimulant is given.

Type No. 3 is the really serious one. Here breathing stops, and artificial respiration must immediately be resorted to. It is needless to add that a physician should be summoned immediately.

Meanwhile, if the patient is conscious, it is important to assure him that he will come through all right, that he is among friends, and endeavor in other ways to cheer him up, but while doing so, subtly inquire if and where he has medicine. It generally follows that every heart victim, unless it happens to be his first attack, has undergone treatment and usually carries with him the medicine prescribed by his physician. Administering this medicine often helps considerably while awaiting the arrival of the physician. Never fail, however, to keep the patient in the proper mental attitude toward his situation.

Hysteria—True and False

Hysteria is quite often a theatre case. Like fainting, this may be caused by some reaction to the picture, though of course, by a number of other things as well. In any event, this is strictly an emotional condition which, like fainting, is sometimes assumed, even to the extent of pretending to be unconscious. Here, too, the "patient" may be clamoring for attention from some particular person or group in the theatre audience. If the unconsciousness is feigned, a strong inhalant placed over the mouth and nostrils will usually tell the tale, because a conscious person will react strongly, perhaps even resentfully, to this. If it is an actual case, everything possible should be done to stop the crying, sobbing or whatever form the case takes; relaxation should be encouraged, and every effort be put forth to get the patient to resume normal composure. Here again the best of judgment must be exercised.

Epileptic Seizure

Epileptic seizure—or, we might say, a case of "crossed wires" in the brain—also is encountered. The patient is unconscious; there is heavy and labored breathing, muscular contortion, and distortion of the facial features. The maid must never try to resist the motions of the patient, as this causes consumption of additional energy which the patient should conserve. All loose furniture in the immediate area should be removed, while overcoats or available drapes should be placed immediately in front of other furniture to prevent injury to the patient. A stout piece of clean material should be inserted between the patient's teeth to prevent the biting of tongue or cheek (the material, incidentally, must be sufficiently stout so that it cannot be bitten through). The administrator, also should take precautions against being bitten by wrapping a towel or similar material about the hands. After the patient has regained consciousness, he should be required to take plenty of rest, as he usually is pretty well exhausted.

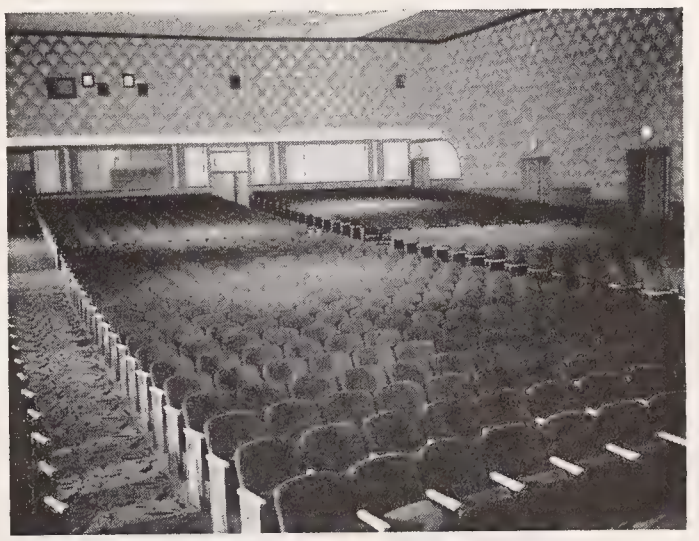
Heat Exhaustion

Heat exhaustion, which is a common occurrence in summer, are of two general types. The one, known commonly as sun stroke, is characterized by hot, dry skin and heavy breathing, strong, full pulse and complete unconsciousness. There must be immediate removal from cause of the heat and the patient must be placed in a reclining position, with the head elevated, while cold packs should be applied, first to the head, then to the entire body. The patient's temperature may go as high as 110. Normal temperature is 98.6. There must be quick action to reduce the temperature. Stimulants should be administered—but not too much, because of pressure on the brain, as evidenced by the strong pulse.

The other type, known as heat exhaustion, presents symptoms similar to fainting, or shock. This can happen on the same hot day on which another person suffers a sun stroke. The same treatment is applied as in cases of fainting or shock.

Stomach Sickness

Upset stomach is well up in the list of the most prevalent in the theatre. This can be due to lack of food as well as too much food or undigested food, to driving on long trips, sitting through an unusually long program, and the like. It is pointed out that this condition has been encountered by patrons who have waited for an unusually long time at the box-office or in the foyer, possibly without having eaten for some hours. The condition is as prevalent among men as among women. These cases usually can take care of themselves, once they reach the toilet room; however, it is well to have a supply of bicarbonate of soda available, or some one of the proprietary medicines obtainable at drug stores for such conditions.



Proof of the far-reaching effects of first aid training in the Cincinnati theatres is found in a sheaf of letters on file from persons—"grateful patients," as it were—both in the city and surrounding territory, who have received first aid in some form while a patron at one of the theatres. All express appreciation.—E. H.Mayer.

Safe and Economical Maintenance of Roofs

WHEN DID YOU last climb up to the roof of your theatre and inspect it?

Built-up or composition roofs are most generally used on theatres, and a bond on the roof does not repair the damage done by a leak.

Parapet walls (the portion of the wall that extends above the roof line) are frequently the source of leaks that many times appear as coming from the roof. Practically all brick is porous, the soft variety of brick especially so. When it is laid up with inferior mortar and imperfect joints or eroded joints, you can expect water trouble.

The joints between coping tile or metal cap flashing should be made water tight and kept so. Use caulking compound to be sure there are no leaks.

Flashing (the treatment between wall and roof) may be metal (copper, or galvanized iron), or roofing felt. Defective flashing, or rusted flashing, or rotting felt flashing, is always a very good indication of a possible leak. It is cheaper to replace flashing than replace the plaster on the side wall of a theatre.

Inspection for Leaks

There is nothing that comes to my mind that is more damaging to a building than uncontrolled water or moisture conditions. The beginning of many moisture and water problems which includes leaks, wherever they occur, is the old twin combination expansion and contraction.

On your inspection of the roof of your theatre be sure to note carefully the joint or junction of two different kinds of materials. There is generally where you find trouble from expansion and contraction. Observe around all flashing and flanges around conductors, toilet vents, roof sign tie rods or braces and scuttle holes, because these spots do give trouble.

Repairing Blisters

In climates where the sun beats down hard on roofs, built-up roofs will blister. That is, air trapped between layers of roofing felt, or between roof and roof deck, will expand and raise a blister. Blisters are a potential leak, particularly if some careless person steps on them. The existence of blisters is your warning sign to call a good roofer and have him slit each blister and mop it in place with hot asphalt, then put a patch over it.

Many times a leak appearing on the inside of a theatre comes from a puncture in the roof many feet, or even yards, away from the spot where it was first noticed. This is because the water coming through the roof travels along the roof deck, or along a beam or girder, or along a wall, until it finds a spot to break through.

Old Roofs Give Trouble

If the roof on your theatre is an old built-up roof, it is going to give you trouble. At this stage, a mopping of hot asphalt may prolong its life somewhat. This can only be determined by a personal inspection of the roof. If the felt itself is exposed, it is not likely to resist water, but if protected by a good coating of asphalt, it will.

Roof Deck Construction

There is another point that many do not consider. Some architects and contractors seem to forget that the roof deck (the surface over which the built up roofing is laid) has a lot to do with the leak proof lasting qualities of an otherwise good roof. Flimsy roof deck construction is false economy. If you plan to re-roof your theatre, be sure to include putting in good order all construction affecting the roof. It will save you money in the long run.

Built-up roofing over wood decking is usually laid over a layer of dry roofing paper, or felt, to prevent the hot asphalt or tar from leaking through the decking. Remember that this dry layer is not counted in the number of plies of roofing specified. A four-ply roof means four layers of felt in hot asphalt or tar, in addition to the first dry layer. If the roof deck is of concrete or some other simular material, the dry layer may be omitted.

Keep Roof Clean

Roofs must be kept clean. This is particularly so of low roofs surrounded by taller buildings. I once inspected a roof that had so much dirt collected in the valley that some maple seedlings about 3 feet high had taken root and grown there!

Roofing Materials

Roofing paper or felt is put up in rolls containing 100, 200 or 500 square feet, and is sold either by the roll or by weight. A 15-pound felt is one that weighs 15 pounds per 100 square feet, a 30-pound is one that weighs 30 pounds per 100 square feet. On the outside of each roll is generally a sticker or label which shows just what quality and weight it is. Felts are of two general kinds—rag stock or asbestos fiber; naturally the asbestos fiber is best. Check this on your next roofing job.

Pitch, tar and asphalt is sold by weight. The weight of a gallon of pitch is about 10 pounds. Gravel is sold by the bag and weighs about 60 to 65 pounds per bag.

Present day prices for three-ply tar and gravel roofing is about 7c per square foot; four-ply about 8½c to 9c per square foot; and five-ply about 10c to 11c per square foot. A five-ply bonded roof will average 12c to 15c per square foot. These costs apply where the foreman gets $9.50 to $10.50 per day, and helpers $8.50 to $9.00 per day.

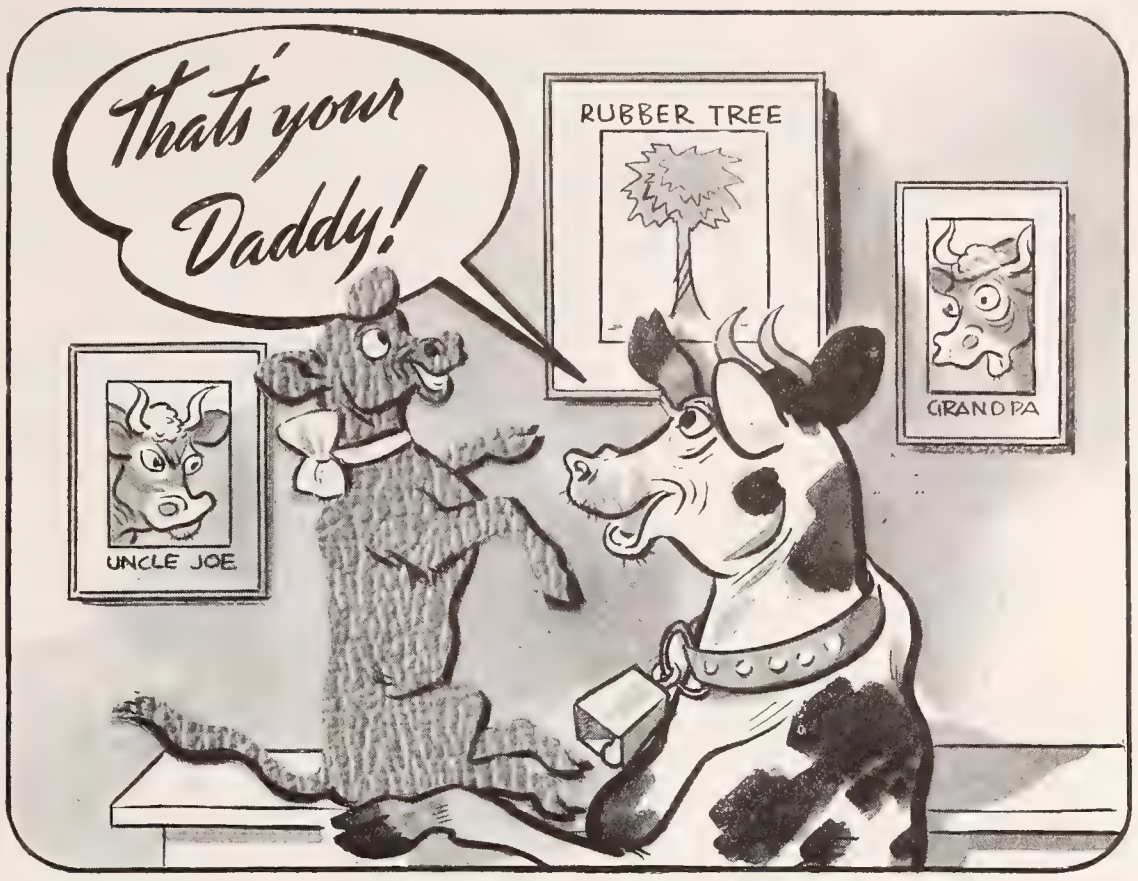
Roofing should never be done except during dry weather. Even proper repairing should be done during dry weather and when the spot to be repaired is thoroughly



Roofing is many times figured in "square." A square of roof is equivalent to 100 square feet.

Check your roof and your next roofing job and ask questions. When you know something about roofs, your contractor will respect you for your knowledge in what may prove to be a very practical way.

SEATING the auditorium

". . . no theatre can be better than its seating."

Rubber-Base Leatherette as A Fabric for Theatre Seating

WHAT DO I NEED for my particular purposes? How much will it cost? . . . Then you weigh the answers, one against the other, and finally come up with a decision.

That's a normal buying formula in all things, but of course it presupposes some knowledge of the characteristics and classifications, as well as the function, of the type of product being considered.

The theatre man, of course, isn't going into the details of manufacture of every item that he buys; in some matters he is guided largely by price. The trouble with this method, at least relative to a portion of such products, is that price may not tell the whole story.

It is so with simulated leather for auditorium seating. There is possibly a reason for confusion here. The theatre man, many years ago, learned to call all such fabrics "imitation leather." They looked more or less like leather, was the general observation, but they cost far less.

Two General Types

Further, simulated leathers are themselves divided into groups. First, there are two general divisions—one consisting in a coating of the chemical compound, pyroxylin (it has a variety of applications these days), to a cotton fabric; the other employs a rubber base, possibly with ground leather as a filler, while certain chemicals (they vary according to the specific and secret process of each manufacturer) which have been found to keep the substance from drying out (the natural oils in genuine leather do this to a certain extent, although leather may dry out in time, more or less rapidly according to care taken).

Both of these basic groups, which are marketed under such trade names as Fabrikoid, Russialoid, Naugahdye, Cavalon and Redo, have divisions of their own. Technically, leatherette may vary according to thickness, with only the "heavier" grades being adapted to auditorium seating.

High-quality pyroxylin coated fabrics, while not represented as a type adapted to continual flexing, is nevertheless used quite extensively as an upholstery fabric, especially on the padded type of seats where no springs are used and no flexing is involved

Because rubber coated upholstery fabrics will better resist continued flexing encountered in heavy duty seating, its greatest use is found in the theatre industry. Today, most every manufacturer of theatre seats, employing the spring or foamed latex cushion type of construction, uses rubber base simulated leathers.

Rubber-Base Type

Rubber-base leatherette was developed precisely for the heavy-duty applications in which genuine leather was used. The automobile industry was one of the first to adopt the substitute, and this usage has been an important influence on the development of finer grades. As theatre chairs became more and more luxurious, with spring-edge seats adopted generally, the motion picture provided another major market for this type of leatherette.

The process of manufacture for rubber-base type leatherette varies in certain details with different makes, but basically it consists in pressing the "mix" of rubber and filler fibres, pigmented for color and with suitable adhesive and preserving compounds, upon and into the mesh of a Machine employed by duPont to test the flexing characteristics of Cavalon. The test run is such, according to the manufacturer, as to show that the fabric will endure a downward force, applied as many as 100,000 times, without breaking.

fabric, such as cotton drill, moleskin or sheeting, under extreme roller pressure, the rollers being adjusted according to the gauge, or "weight," of leatherette desired. This rubberized fabric is then embossed—passed between two engraving rollers—to give the surface its leather-like appearance, in whatever grain effect is desired. The resulting characteristics may be indicated here by citing tests that some manufacturers apply.

Tests for Quality

The finished fabric is tested for edge wear by the rubbing action of a machine; there must be no perceptible wear at the end of, say, 50,000 rubs. For edge cracking, the fabric is exposed to sunlight under tension for 30 days. To make sure that the fabric will withstand repeated flexing, such as it is subjected to on spring-edge seats, this very action is simulated by a machine, the actual method varying according to manufacturer.

It is also tested for resistance to temperature changes which, if the substance had not developed properly in manufacture, would cause the fabric to become "tacky." The color, of course, must not crock or bleed. To make sure that it doesn't, the surface is rubbed with a damp white cloth many times; no color should show on the cloth. Additionally, pieces of the substance itself are immersed in water; the water ought to receive no coloration in a four-hour period.

A machine is used to determine scrub resistance—that is, resistance to peeling and cracking when the fabric is distorted, as it does become in actual use on seating. Fully 2,000 "scrubs" should not have any appreciable effect.

Atmospheric conditions are a prime factor in the life of genuine leather; simulated leather of the best grades is fabricated to stand up under all ordinary atmospheric conditions, and the finished fabric is tested for this quality by various means. That of ¶ Better Theatres is glad to answer the questions of exhibitors concerning theatre planning. Better Theatres' Service Department annually deals with hundreds of inquiries regarding planning problems, equipment, furnishings, etc. This is strictly a service to readers for which there is no charge.

¶ In order that questions may be dealt with effectively, they should be specific, and all conditions bearing upon them should be clearly given. Often a rough sketch is helpful. It is of course understood that this service is in no way intended to supplant that of a theatre architect. Better Theatres cannot supply working plans, design sketches, etc., which must be procured from a licensed architect.

¶ Although Better Theatres' Service Department has leading specialists regularly available for consultation when and as an inquiry may advise this, all inquiries are answered by this department and should be addressed to it, as follows:

one manufacturer of rubber-base type leatherette, called the "bomb test," consists in placing a piece of the fabric in a water-jacketed steel cylinder, the temperature of which is maintained at 158° Fahrenheit. Pure oxygen is introduced into the cylinder under 300 pounds pressure. The fabric must be able to remain in the oxygen for fifteen days without damage.

Colors and grains and "antique" effects in simulated leather have been increasing until a wide variety has been achieved. With color running through the rubber "mix," delicate shades are available as well as the standard colors.

But part of the beauty of leatherette, as of all fabrics, lies in the "feel" imparted by the texture. The surface should feel "dry," not oily; the grain should give a sense of depth, of body. In short, the whole effect of the fabric, to the touch, under pressure and in flexing, should be the substantial one of real leather, rather than one of oil cloth. And this effect is just as apparent in the dim light of the auditorium during the performance, as when the house lights are turned on.

Adjustable Aisle Light Allows Three-Way Control

THE ADJUSTABLE aisle light feature of one of the end standard designs for the Cameo line of auditorium chairs recently introduced by Heywood-Wakefield, provides for three-way control.

In this standard, which is the one shown on the Cameo model here illustrated, the legs are brazed, rather than riveted, to the center steel plate so that no rivet heads appear. Of steel construction, the standard has ornamentation in the form of chrome "tubes," which are riveted to the plate, and the aisle light is designed as an element of this ornamental treatment As indicated in the accompanying drawing, the light box, with the light aperture at the edge, directing the light at a small angle so that there is no glare, can be turned to throw the light straight down, rearward and forward, according to the particular seating layout, floor incline, or balcony step elevations in any specific area of the auditorium

Inspection and Maintenance Of Theatre's Non-Public Areas

By S. BRAVERMAN

FOLLOWING some regular procedure, according to the specific needs of each theatre, by which non-public areas of the theatre are kept clean, means two things: (1) greater safety, with possible favorable effects on insurance rates; and (2) a lower rate of actual (not book) deterioration.

In the non-public areas, the stage itself, and related dressing rooms, are included for the purposes of this discussion.

STAGE PROPER

The stage (even when it is merely a screen platform) should be mopped regularly with a weak solution of soap. In no case should the floor be waxed or oiled; if used for acts, performers might slip, and if it is only a screen platform, employes might slip on it sometime, and in either case the theatre operator is liable for damages or compensation.

Loose battens and props should be secured to the wall, in some corner or storage room. Storing in flyloft should be barred.

If there is a switchboard, the pilot light should be kept burning so as to avoid accidents.

Where horns are flown, the chains and lines should be checked. Any blanketing of the horns should be checked regularly for vermin and vacuum-cleaned and sprayed with insecticide.

DRESSING ROOMS

Whether in use or not, these need periodic cleaning. All inflammable materials should be kept in a metal container.

Where these rooms are not used constantly by performers, they are sometimes regarded as convenient storerooms. This practice may result in fire, particularly when paints, paint rags, etc., are placed in them. Better find a more open place for such materials.

Another thing: See that the water leads to wash basins are turned off during periods of non-use, so as to be sure the faucets do not drip. Dripping water results in corrosion.

EXIT AREAS

Fire-escapes should be checked regularly to see that they work. Many a theatre operator has assumed that they did, then a fire has tragically demonstrated that they didn't. Fire-escapes should not be allowed to become rusty. If they show signs of rust and become creaky, paint them with red lead, following with a surface paint of a suitable color.

Exit doors serving stage performers and employe areas should be checked as thoroughly as those leading from public areas. All doors should be inspected for leakage of light and air; if there are cracks, they should be caulked up.

Many theatres have cement walks at the rear or sides, leading from exits to the street. These should be checked as well as the walk out front for cracks, raised slabs, water hollows, etc. Some costly liability suits can result from negligence here.

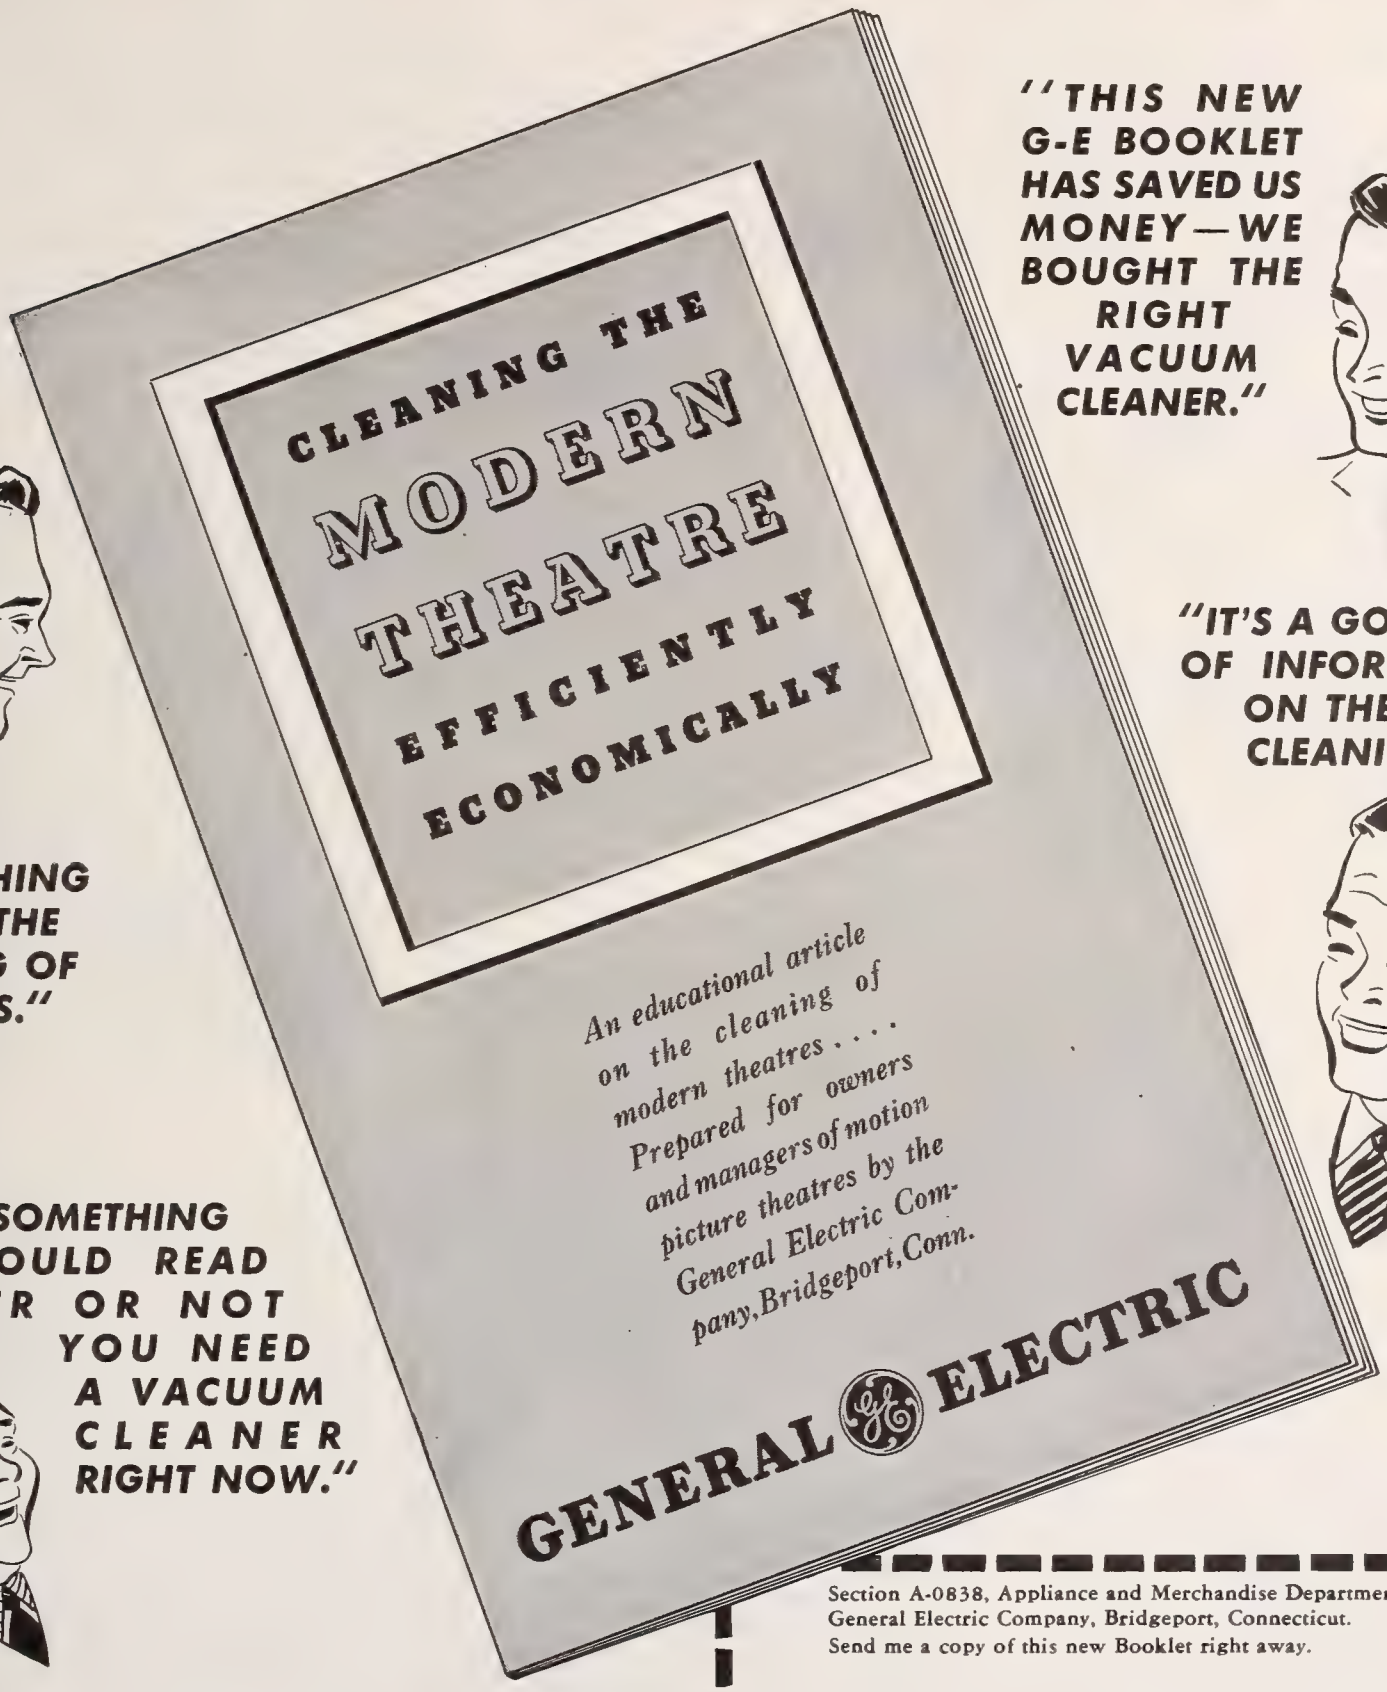
One source of building wall deterioration and water pools consists in clogged drain pipes, causing eaves to overflow. Check these pipes to make sure that they run clear.

ROOF INSPECTION

Roofs are 'way up there out of sight; they should not be out of thought, however. It is not the purpose here to discuss general roof maintenance, repair and replacement, but to indicate what regular, frequent inspection ought to be concerned with.

First of all, one should be sure that there is no substantial object laying on it. Boards, for example, work into tar when the heat of the sun has softened the coating.

If you have ventilators, close them in winter with a piece of canvas.



Check the coping to see that there are no loose bricks or stones. One might get blown off in a heavy wind and—look out below! With damage suits ensuing.

Immediately after a substantial fall of snow, the roof should be inspected to see that drain pipes are open. A large amount of snow should not be left on the roof very long; it hastens deterioration. To make sure that it doesn't, you might, at the beginning of snowfall, sprinkle the roof with snow-melting crystals.

False ceilings should never be used for storage. One forgets what is up there; the area is out of sight and out of mind. Then there is a fire. As pointed out before, it is better to have regular storage rooms, and to use these only.

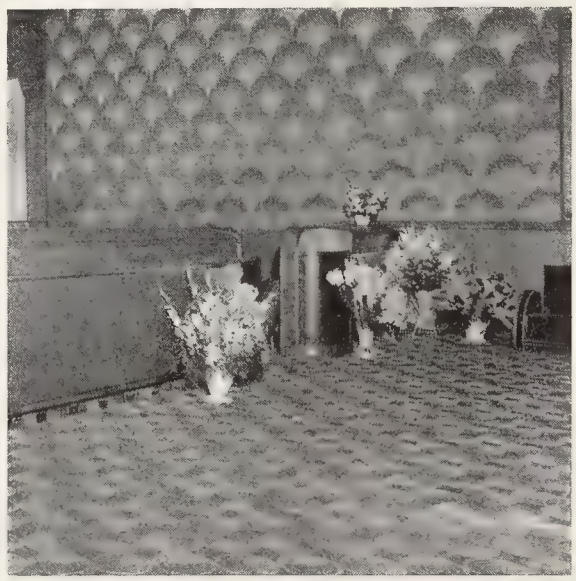
New Patterns in Theatre Wiltons

■ From the easels of Bigelow-Sanford's designing department have come these two new additions to this carpet manufacturer's contract line. That illustrated above (the picture is of a swatch of the actual carpeting) is definitely modern, tending toward the "modernistic", but avoiding the purely geometric abstractions of early designs in this classification. It needs a thoroughly modern interior, preferably on the simple side, to set it off. The carpeting illustrated was woven in tones of orange, brown, tan and beige moresque yarns. . . . The pattern shown below presents a simple classic-modern scheme, neutral enough in style to fit into any type of interior, but one with a well developed and colorful wall treatment particularly, since the pattern is executed in only two tones (that of the swatch pictured was done in tan and brown). The richness of this pattern is derived importantly from its texture effect. Both of these designs are in Wilton weaves, the upper one a Delwood, that below an Alba.

Don't Let Wall and Floor Fight with Each Other!

IN CARPETING, one of the details to watch is that of the relationship between floor and wall. This of course fundamentally involves colors; it also has to do with pattern.



At the outset, we have the problem of avoiding any impression of "topheaviness." By that is meant a tendency of the walls to appear heavier than the floor. The simplest way of assuring oneself on this point is to choose a carpeting darker than the walls; however, there is no reason for so narrowing one's choice. Usually this "weight placement" factor is suitably dealt with if the carpeting is in a more vivid color than the walls, or possesses a fuller pattern—in short, walls at least a trifle "weaker" in overall treatment.

This point relates directly to the necessity of some contrast between wall and floor. One should set off the other. As an illustration of what happens when wall pattern and floor pattern are too much alike, in configuration, fulness of pattern, or tone, a photograph of the standee area of the Mt. Lookout theatre in Cincinnati is shown. Of course, over the greater part of an auditorium, only the aisles are normally carpeted, and due either to the position of the aisles, or to a high wainscot, aisle carpeting is optically remote from the walls. This area does illustrate, however, what should be avoided in foyers and lounges, and again points to the possibility of conditions calling for more than one pattern throughout the public areas of the theatre.

In the women's lounge of the Mt. Lookout the Alexander Smith Crestwood pattern of the standee area achieves its full effect; here we have strong contrast between wall and floor, with the "weight" at the floor. The same is true of the women's lounge of the Sunset theatre in Cincinnati (which is described elsewhere in this issue).

The lobby-foyer of the Pix theatre in Lobby-foyer, Pix theatre, Waukesha, Wis.

Waukesha, Wis., presents a different treatment, but with similar effect. Wood veneer on the walls, providing a subdued grain pattern in neutral tones, is contrasted with a strongly figured carpet (Crestwood Velvet).

By watching this detail of wall-floor pattern relationship, the carpet is given full play as a decorative element.

■ A new pattern in the theatre line of Mohawk Carpet Mills. Conservative and definitely traditional in feeling, it is well adapted to the so-called neo-modern, or classical modern, interior styles. It is a Velvet weave with a gold scroll on a wine-colored ground.

PLANNING FOR PERMANENCE

THE FINE POINTS of design carried out in the proper planning of the motion picture theatre are never obvious to the exhibitor or the patron in the early period, immediately after the theatre is opened to the public. The exhibitor and the patron at first are always found to be reacting chiefly to eye appeal considerations. While a certain amount of eye appeal is essential in the structure, it must be remembered that those features which formed the original attraction will, after a comparatively short period of time, lose their importance and the more basic and practical elements of the structure will become subject to criticism and appraisal.

With each day that passes, these basic elements become more and more important and the success with which these elements have been dealt with in the planning becomes the measure by which the rate of obsolescence of the structure may be determined.

The Constant Patron

With few exceptions you will find that motion picture theatres depend largely on the repeated attendance of certain patrons for the main portion of their income, and it is the patron who is depended upon to be a continued source of revenue who becomes conscious after a short while of the deficiencies of basic provisions of planning.

If the success of the motion picture industry could be assured by just occasional attendance, it would not be so important to provide the so-called "comforts of home" to the patron. The frequency with which the average person desires to attend the theatre can be lessened to a serious extent if all of the necessary comfort provisions are not made part of the theatre. Recent improvements in home building and home furnishings and equipment have raised the general standards of comfort for relaxation, thereby requiring comparable comfort conditions while viewing motion pictures.

Basic Comforts

Unobstructed vision of a well projected picture seen from a comfortable, roomy chair with sufficient leg room between rows —these are the basic comfort requirements which are not carried to a fine enough point in the planning. With sufficient study it is possible to avoid an increase in the square-footage-per-person space requirements when allowing extra leg room by insisting on the highest efficiency in the design of the seating pattern.

These columns are regular features of Better Theatres dealing with methods by which the theatre may be planned as efficiently as possible for the exhibition of motion pictures. Both Mr. Schlanger and Mr. Potwin are consultants to Better Theatres. All inquiries concerning planning should be addressed to Better Theatres Service Department.

Auditorium Painting In a Flat Finish

THE tendency has always been to use dark colors in the painting of the auditorium surfaces to avoid annoying light reflections originating from the screen. Yet the degree of reflection due purely to the character of the paint is overlooked in most instances. It is a fact that a very dark color will reflect considerable light if the paint is not sufficiently flat or diffusive on its finished surface. And what the average painter will claim is flat paint may not prove to be very flat upon test.

Most of the water base paints will produce a satisfactory flat finish, but the workability and durability features of these paints are not satisfactory. It is also undesirable to use water base paint because of the need to remove it completely from any surface where repainting is required.

The addition of turpentine to paint increases its flatness, but when sufficient turpentine is added to produce the result wanted, the paint structure is weakened, its hiding power decreased.

Method of Testing for Flatness

A simple method for testing the flatness of paint is to have small sample panels painted with the paints in question, including one panel of a water base paint to be used as the guide. All samples should be about 3 x 4 inches, painted uniformly white and applied the same in each case. These panels are then all placed on a small board and held under and close to an electric lamp. The flattest surface will appear the darkest when the board is held at the angle which will reflect the lamp light directly into the eyes. The paint should finish as flat as a water base paint.

Beside the ability to control screen light reflections, the use of a proper flat paint will permit the use of relatively light colors, which in turn creates a condition whereby the waste light from the projected picture is employed to advantage. Light reflected from a flat finish spreads in a multitude of directions and therefore the reflection to any one point or eye is not critical, but the general dispersion of the reflected light provides a very desirable general illumination of the auditorium, which light is always "in phase" with the picture lighting.—B. S.

PLACEMENT OF MATERIALS

ACOUSTICAL materials do not give the same final result irrespective of the surfaces on which they are installed. The significance of this factor must be fully understood and appreciated if such materials are to be used to advantage in the acoustical treatment of theatres.

The writer had occasion recently to inspect several theatres where all of the acoustical material used had been installed on the ceiling so that it would not conflict with a predetermined decorative scheme for the walls. Actually, the treatment placed in this location proved far less effective than it would have been if at least a part had been distributed over the wall surfaces.

Wainscot Reflections

This same fact holds true in connection with treatment of the side walls or the rear wall of the theatre. In order that acoustical treatment may not be damaged, a hard-surfaced vertical wainscot, as high as 10 feet in some cases, is sometimes provided along the lower wall areas and the treatment is confined to the surface above this wainscot. Objectionable sound reflections from the high wainscot areas often stand out markedly, leaving the impression that the acoustical material used on the upper areas is having very little effect upon the control of sound.

In a number of theatres, it might also be stated, the use of acoustical materials has had an undesirable effect upon the quality of reproduced sound, solely for the reasons that the materials have not been placed in the proper locations, or too much material has been used.

Placement of Material

In treating the motion picture theatre, the acoustical problem is far more than one of providing enough material to reduce the reverberation time to the proper value and placing this material where it will offer the least interference with a predetermined decorative scheme. The sound from the loudspeakers is, in general, more directional and of a much higher level than that supplied by a performer or a small orchestra directly from the stage of a theatre. For this reason, unless careful attention is given to the placement of material, first reflections of sound from the walls, the ceiling, and occasionally even from the floor directly in front of the screen, stand out prominently, cross the path of the direct sound, and tend to interfere with quality, naturalness and intelligibility.

about People of the Theatre news of their activities reported from all sections — and briefly told.

JAMES C. CARTLEDGE has succeeded Nelson Hampton as manager of the State at Spartanburg, S. C. Mr. Hampton resigned to join the staff of a local newspaper. Mr. Cartledge has been in show business 25 years.

GEORGE THOMPSON, JR., has purchased the Hart theatre in Ferndale, Calif., from DOLAND PATTEN and RICHARD POLLOCK.

HARVEY C. BUCHANAN, operator of the Palace at Superior, Wis., has been reappointed to the Wisconsin Athletic Commission by Gov. Julius P. Heil.

The former Majestic theatre at Memphis, Ia., is being remodeled by the owner, EBEN HAYS, and is to be reopened under the new name of Time.

The Stratford at Stratford, Conn., has been closed for the purposes of enlargement and remodeling. Modern Theatre Equipment will install 600 new International chairs.

LILLIAN SANDERS, bookkeeper for the Century Projector Corporation, New York, is back on the job after a vacation.

SAM CAPORAL, operator of the Mayflower and Yale theatres in Oklahoma City, Okla., has equipped the Mayflower with a 20-ton cooling plant.

H. L. WAYCOTT has been granted a permit to operate a motion picture in the old mining town of Randsburg, Calif.

H. S. TWEDT has installed new seating in the balcony of his Lido at Manly, Ia.

PETER G. THIELEN, former manager of the Orpheum and Capitol theatres in Manitowoc, Wis., has announced his candidacy for sheriff on the Democratic ticket.

NELL WISSELL, secretary to Walter E. Green, president of National Theatre Supply Company, is back at her desk after vacationing in the Catskills. Miss Wissell will retire from business next month, when she will be married.

The Harris Brothers is installing an air-conditioning system in the 4,000-seat State in Hartford, Conn. The theatre has been dark for the summer.

H. S. LEVIN of San Francisco, has leased the White theatre at Fresno, Calif., from HARRY F. WHITE and will reopen the house on completion of alterations.

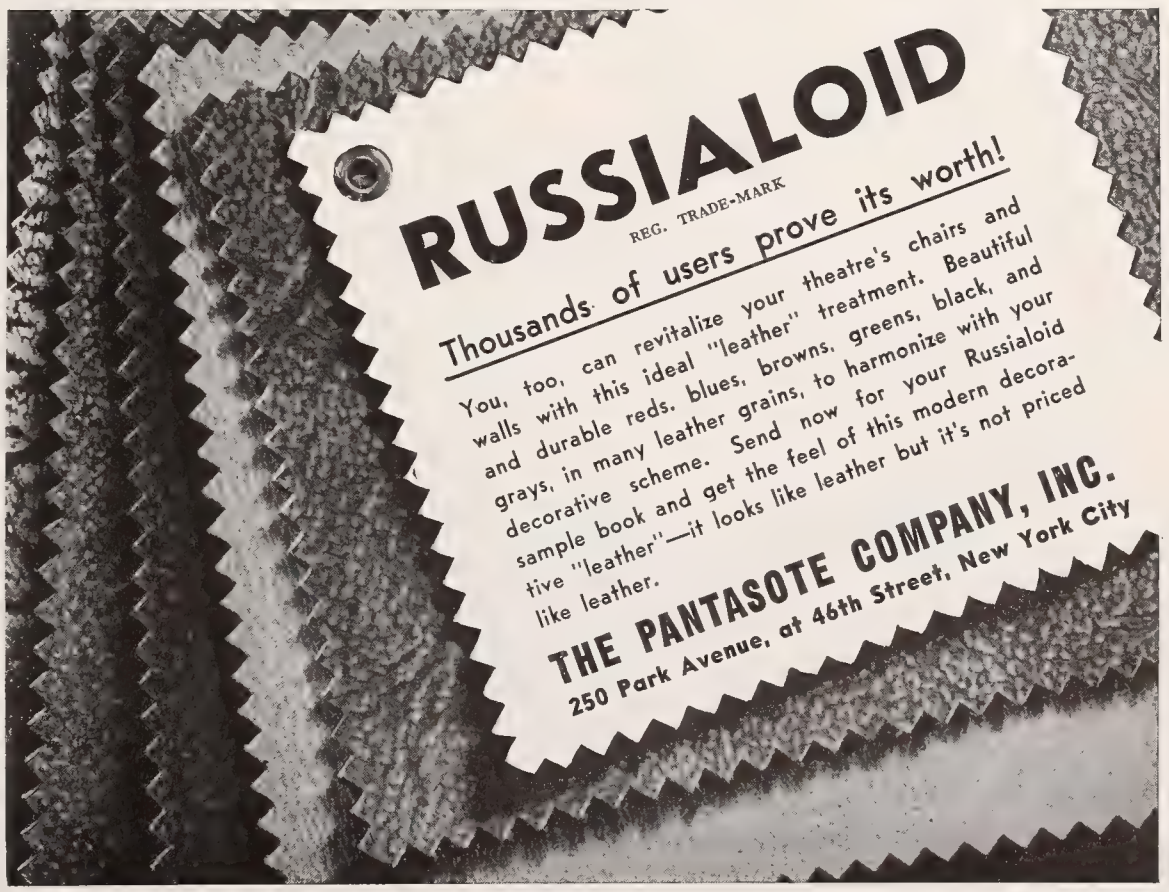
BERT HUKLE has opened his new Westmore theatre in Huntington, W. Va., designed and constructed by the F & Y Building Service of Columbus, Ohio. Despite a local infantile paralysis epidemic, the house, which seats 575, was filled twice on opening night.

The 280-seat Royal, in Cincinnati, has been reopened after having been remodeled inside and out. The house, which is a unit of Associated Theatres, Inc., headed by F. W. HUSS, was built 32 years ago.

CARL BURTON, owner of the Amusu and Nuart theatres in Cordell, Okla., has sold his houses to JOHN JAY, an exhibitor formerly of Yale, Okla.

MR. AND MRS. CECIL KNOTT of Munising, Mich., have now taken over the Salem theatre at West Salem, Wis.

ERNEST CARDWELL has bought a building at Hawarden, Ia., and is remodeling it into a theatre.



MAX C. KROFTA, operator of the Capitol theatre in Racine, Wis., and the Abby in Milwaukee, has also taken over the Granada in Racine. Mr. Krofta is secretary of the ITPA of Wisconsin and is completing his twenty-fifth year in theatre business.

MICHAEL DALY, operator of the Daly, Hartford and Plainfield theatres, has extended the running operation of the Plainfield to a full-week schedule.

JAMES EDWARDS has purchased the Valley theatre, formerly known as the Rialto, in El Monte, Calif.

DR. HENRY BROWN, operator of the Strand and Palace in Lakewood, N. J., has leased the Liberty at Freehold, N. J., from MAX SNIDER. Mr. Snider has operated the Liberty theatre for the past 20 years.

The Capitol theatre in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, a Famous Players Canadian house, is getting a new concrete floor and is also being reseated. KAPLAN AND SPRACHMAN of Toronto, Canada, are the architects, with B. WHITMAN as supervisor of purchasing and construction.

The Arbuckle theatre, Arbuckle, Calif., has been reopened under the management of DON L. BUCKMAN.

NICK MARIEMES, operator of the Royal of Tarpoon Springs, Fla., has acquired the 963-seat Rialto in New Haven, Conn. The theatre was operated for the past three years by MAX TABACKMAN. The new operator will remodel the house.

The new 4-Star Dixie theatre at Fort Mitchell, Ky., has been opened. The theatre is operated by Crawford, Lufborrow & Luhn and seats 600. Designers and builders were the F & Y Building Service of Columbus, Ohio. Messrs. Crawford and Lufborrow also operate two theatres at Cheviot.

The Charlotte theatre building in Charlotte, N. C., has been purchased by WORD H. WOOD, president of American Trust Company. The Charlotte Theatre Company has a lease on the building through 1943. The reported price was $50,000.

ABRAHAM FISHMAN, president of Fishman Theatres, operating the Dix, Playhouse, Howard, Lawrence, Lyric, Winchester and Apollo, all in New Haven, Conn., and the Community in Fairfield, Conn., died recently of a heart attack. Mr. Fishman is survived by three brothers, Dr. J. B., Selig and Harry, and a sister, Mrs. Philip Saslau, all of whom are interested in the theatre company.

DAVID BALTIMORE, founder and managing director of Theatre Managers Institute, Inc., Elmira, N. Y., has recovered from an illness of several months and reports his school is again operating.

The Lakeview, a new air-conditioned theatre with a seating capacity of 500, is now under construction in Atlanta, Ga. It will be operated by SAM and JAKE BOGO. Mr. Bogo was formerly manager of several South Carolina theatres.

H. ENGBERTSON, manager of the Grand and Lyric theatres at Decorah, Ia., has closed the Grand for remodeling.

Warner Theatres has appointed B. GRUBER, formerly assistant at the Broadway at Lawrence, Mass., to the position of manager of the Modern in the same city, to succeed WILLIAM KELLY. Mr. Kelly died recently while on vacation, following an attack of acute indigestion. A. SILVERWATCH, former chief of service at the Modern, is now assistant at the Broadway.

ROBERT MCHALE, manager of the Oaks theatre, Berkeley, Calif., is busy directing the operation of a $40,000 modernization job on this house. The remodeling includes the installation of a new front, new interior decorations, new furnishings for the lobbies and rest rooms, acoustical plastering, and a new system of ventilation.

BERT STERN, manager of the Criterion, 1,500-seat house in Oklahoma City, Okla., plans to close the house for two weeks in September for remodeling. The Criterion is a Standard Theatres house.

E. BRUCE JOHNSON, president of General Register Corporation, has been on the West Coast to attend several circuit district managers' meetings.

The theatre owned by WALTER HULL at Fallon, Nev., was destroyed by fire recently. The house will be rebuilt, it is announced.

ROBERT SPEERE, formerly of Belle Plaine, Ia., has leased a building at Cresco, Ia., and plans to remodel the structure into a motion picture theatre. The house will be known as the Mode.

WILL WHITMORE, advertising supervisor of Electrical Research Products, Inc., has returned to his office after illness.

ELMER THIESSEN, who recently graduated from Iowa State College and has been part-time assistant at the Corn theatre at Everly, Ia., for the past few years, has taken over the operation of that theatre from R. J. SCHOELERMAN.

The Garden theatre at Atlanta, Ga., has been opened under the direction of the Grant and Fairview Amusement Company, of which CHARLES A. ADAMS is general manager.

Interstate Circuit and Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc., have opened the Tyler in Tyler, Texas, and the Almeda in Houston, Texas. The Tyler seats 1,100; VAN ROBERTS is manager. The Almeda, accommodating 1,200, is managed by TOM HOWELL.

Work has begun on the construction of the new Charles theatre in Birmingham, Ala. According to the plans of the architect, WILLIAM J. OKEL, the structure will have 54-foot front of white paneled glass, worked in with colorful designs in mosaic. The seating capacity will be 1,000. The new house is being built by MYER and LENORE GERSON and will be leased by CHARLES J. ROOK of Oklahoma City.

R. M. BERNAU has opened his new $40,000 Iowa theatre in Lake City, Ia. The theatre has been under construction since early spring. The seating capacity is approximately 600.

MR. and MRS. JOSEPH EMASHOWSKI have opened their new theatre the Larksville, in Larksville, Pa. The new house is of concrete block construction and seats 430.

MORRIS HADELMAN has reopened his 550-seat Shelton at Shelton, Conn. The house has been reseated, equipped with modern lighting fixtures and new carpeting.

CHARLES T. LAIDLAW, owner of the Liberty in Dayton, Wash., has acquired the Plaza theatre in Waitsburg, Wash.

ALEX SCHREIBER, president of Associated Theatres, Inc., has renewed service contracts with Altec Service Corporation, to cover all Associated theatres in Detroit, Highland Park, Flint, Wyandotte, Farmington and Trenton, Mich. F. C. DICKELY negotiated for Altec.

The Midway in Protection, Kans., has been purchased from L. R. BAYLESS by VICTOR STARK, who has the Comanche at Coldwater, and ABE DARROCK. The new owners have closed the theatre for remodeling.

MR. and MRS. M. C. BENNETT, operators of the Roxy theatre at Priest River, Idaho, have bought the Rex in Newport at Washington, Wash., from MRS. LAURA EWING.

ED SEELEY of the engineering department of Altec, has been in Los Angeles for conferences with the research, standards and acoustic measurements committee of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Work has begun on rebuilding and enlarging the Lyric theatre in Bolivar, N. Y. The house was damaged recently by fire. Reconstruction work will cost $25,000, according to SAMUEL GANDEL, owner.

Rayhope Theatres Corporation, a Harry Brandt company, will take over, it is reported, the 1,247-seat Alhambra theatre in Torrington, Conn. The house has been under Warner Brothers lease for many years, but has been dark for some time.

The Nelson theatre has been reopened at Pascagoula, Miss., under the management of J. O. COLE and E. F. GRANT.

E. W. MCCLELLAN, manager of the technical section of ERPI's foreign department, sailed for Iceland recently to supervise the installation of Mirrophonic sound equipment, and Ashcraft arc lamps, in the Gamla and Nyja Bios theatres at Reykjavik.

Fitting Reproduction into the Studio-Theatre Sound System

● Advances in sound have now resulted in greater integration of studio and theatre processes than ever before. Here is told what this means, in practical terms, to every showman

By AARON NADELL

A LARGE PART of every theatre's entertainment apparatus is located off the premises, and is not owned by the theatre. Projection room equipment represents only some of the gears of a highly complex mechanism which begins at the studio. All the gears must mesh. Some are in your projection room, some are in Hollywood—but they are all part of a single machine.

This is especially true of sound. Every inch of sound track made is put to a studio listening test by playing it on standard theatre equipment before highly critical listeners. Any parts of the track that are less than perfect are subjected to re-takes or, if possible, are corrected by reprinting or by dubbing. Dubbing is the process of using the track, instead of a microphone, as a source of sound from which a new track is made, corrections being introduced by changing the adjustment of the recording apparatus. When the director finally okays the track, it sounds the way he wants it to sound, judging by what he hears as he listens to its reproduction on the apparatus that is installed in the studio's review room.

Equipment Obsolescence

Unfortunately, the theatre may have a different kind of reproducing apparatus, and the track may not sound the same way at all when it reaches the cash customers. The important difference is not that between one make of equipment and another, but between 1940 models of reproducing equipment in the review room and, say, a 1935 model in the theatre. To compensate for this type of difference, studios a few years ago tried putting out A and B prints. Those who accidentally got a B print when they should have had an A, or vice versa, will remember how thoroughly good sound could be ruined by playing it on equipment which did not match, in reproduction characteristics, the recording.

The system of A and B prints proved impracticable in distribution, as might have been expected, since for full success that system would have required A, B, C, D, and E prints, multiplying its impracticability in distribution to the point of absurdity. Today, the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, distributes detailed information indicating the technical limitations to which theatre apparatus should conform in order to match the prints Hollywood is putting out these days.

Studio-Theatre Integration

In other words, in the attempt to make all the gears of the whole complex reproducing system mesh, Hollywood first tried changing its own gears to suit those installed in theatres. There were too many theatres with too many different kinds of apparatus, and that system didn't work. Today Hollywood uses the best gears and pinions it can find for its own end of the process, and tells the theatre how to match them. If any individual theatre doesn't want to match them, then that theatre suffers proportionately. There appears to be no other way the job can be done.

Prominent among the Research Council's recommendations are those relating to theatre volume. Greater volume is put into modern tracks wherever the story so requires, because modern systems can reproduce it. The exhibitor can determine whether the system installed in his own theatre is capable of reproducing those tracks by referring to the Research Council's specifications on that point, which are summarized here:

Capacity-Power Rating

Up to 400 seats, 10 watts output; from 400 to 600 seats, 13 watts; 601-750 seats, 15 watts; 751-1,000 seats, 20 watts; from 1,001-1,250 seats, 26 watts; from 1,251-1,500 seats, 32 watts; from 1,501-1,750 seats, 37 watts; from 1,751-2,000 seats, 43 watts; from 2,001-2,250 seats, 48 watts; from 2,251-2,500 seats, 53 watts; 2,501-2,750 seats, 59 watts; from 2,751-3,000 seats, 65 watts.

For theatres above 3,000 seats, the wattage increase is roughly 6 watts for each 250 seats, with a recommended 132 watts for 6,000-seat houses.

The power rating of the sound system, of course, means undistorted power output. Any system can be "forced" at the price of distortion. Theatres having equipment that does not meet these recommendations must modify their installation or buy a new one if they intend to give their audiences modern pictures as recorded. Today's recordings are based on the assumption that the theatre will be so wired; if it isn't, there is nothing the studios can possibly do for that theatre unless they use some system of A, B, C, D, E, and F prints.

Frequency range is of course wholly as important as volume range in producing good sound. Theatres unfortunately are not generally equipped, and even servicing companies are not thoroughly equipped, to measure frequency range as the audience hears it. The apparatus required for such measurements being rather complex, theatre servicing is confined (with some exceptions) to measuring that in order to secure the desired screen brilliancy with the present dense black and white and the colored films, twice as much light is required as is possible to project by any low intensity lamp.

This doubling in light has been made possible at an increased combined current and carbon cost of less than 2¢ per hour, through the development of frequency response at the input to the loudspeakers. This is comparatively simple. The measurement fails, however, to show what the speakers do to the sound after it reaches them; hence, the Council has published data (which has appeared from time to time in these pages, and is readily available from the Council) relating to all the common loudspeaker types. They indicate the frequency response to which a system using any of those sets of speakers should be adjusted, as measured at the speaker input. Any system incapable of giving an overall frequency response in conformity with that data must be modified or replaced to get today's sound values.

Other faults in theatre equipment, aside from inadequate volume range or frequency range, interfere with or completely prevent reproduction of today's sound quality. For example, illumination across the width of the sound track may be uneven. Modern systems are expected to maintain even illumination across the entire track width within a tolerance of plus or minus 1½ decibel.

Much more important is flutter, which can ruin quality entirely if present to excess. Films now are made for equipments capable of operating with a flutter content rated at from 0.15% to 0.3%, depending upon the method of measurement. Using the method of measurement that gives 0.15% as the flutter content of acceptable modern reproduction, earlier types of equipment may introduce as much as 1½% to 2% of flutter when they are working well, and up to 5% when not in good repair. Such apparatus makes a marvelous hash of the tracks of today.

The above diagrams (top, variable area and matted variable density; bottom, wide variable density) have just been released by the Research Council, indicate approved sound track dimensions for Standard Release Print.

What Today's Sound System Must Do

A service engineer examines each component's part in high-quality performance

By W. W. SIMONS

WITH THE PATRONS of motion pictures becoming increasingly conscious of the quality of sound they hear, just what are the essentials today of a thoroughly good sound system, the kind of system that produces a pleasing sense of the reality and naturalness of the actors' voices, a real faithfulness in music and in other sound effects?

Well, let us first see what the basic components of the sound system are, and then look at each in order. The modern sound system today consists of three major elements. These are: the reproducer set, the amplifier system, and the loudspeaker system. In addition to these three major elements, there are one or more power units and a monitor horn.

Each of these elements serves its own very definite function as an integral part of the system as a whole, and an exhibitor has a right to expect them to live up to certain rigid requirements in the matter of performance. If each element doesn't live up to these performance standards, it automatically pulls down the performance standards of the other elements.

Reproducer System

Starting with the sound reproducer, where the sound—or as the technicians call it, the "signal"—is picked up from the sound track on the edge of the film and starts its electrical journey through the rest of the system, four essential requirements must be met, if the sound signal is to be given the proper start in life.

First, the exciting lamp and lens system must be capable of delivering a good "frequency response"—that is, voices must sound real, and orchestral music, for example, must be given the benefit of the full tonal range.

Second, there must be a minimum of "flutter," a condition which creates distortion in the sound, particularly at the high end of the frequency "spectrum." This type of distortion makes a high soprano voice sound raspy and harsh.

Third, the driving mechanism must be quiet. Mechanical noises, caused by vibrations in the sound reproducer set, must be kept from getting into the photo-electric cell, because if such extraneous noises get mixed into the legitimate sound at this point, they will be amplified as fully as the legitimate sounds themselves. It is also important that the projectionist's ear shall not be disturbed by noises within the booth.

Fourth, the reproducer set should be rugged in construction to stand up under the long hours of daily use, and to withstand the constant wear of moving parts.

Now let's turn to the amplifier system. Here there are five "musts" that every system must live up to:

First, the amplifier must have an overall normal frequency response which does justice to sound all the way up the sound "spectrum"—that is, from the lowest frequencies to the highest, from 50 to around 10,000 cycles. Included in the electrical design of the amplifier, a means must be provided to vary this response on both ends

When comparison is invited . . . even welcomed, one must be confident that it will prove the advantages and superiority of the equipment.

And that is exactly what a comparison of present-day projection arcs does, proves that of the frequency band.

This is absolutely necessary, as it provides for variations in the output of the speaker system and can be used to offset acoustic conditions in the auditorium that tend to rob the sound of its good quality. Ability to vary the response is necessary also because recording techniques of different producers are themselves different, and it must be possible to compensate for these in the individual theatre.

Second, the gain of the amplifier must be sufficient to amplify satisfactorily for comfortable listening.

Third, the amplifier must have sufficient power to deliver the signal to the horn system without distortion. The proper power ratings for various sizes of theatres have recently been published in a bulletin by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Fourth, the amplifier must be quiet in operation—again, so as not to introduce extraneous noises (hums, "frying," hissing, for example) into the stream of the legitimate sound. These noises must be prevented from getting into the sound even though the amplifier is operating at high gain.

Fifth, the amplifier's electrical and mechanical construction must be of the highest order. False economy in this construction may prove extremely costly, both in losses resulting from breakdowns, and the cost of replacement parts. The mechanical and wiring layout should be such as to provide easy access to all parts in case of emergencies.

Loudspeaker System

The last link in the chain of major elements in the complete sound system is the loudspeaker system. No matter how good the other links are, any improper design or construction in the loudspeaker system can ruin the sound quality, because it is here that the sound issues, full-fledged, into the auditorium. These requirements for top-flight results from the loudspeaker system are vital:

First, the efficiency of the speaker units must be of the highest possible, in order to provide high quality response—true faithfulness of reproduction to the original sound—and in order that too much power shall not be demanded of the amplifier.

Second, in the two-way speaker systems now commonly in use, the dividing networks must provide a proper "crossover" in order that the signal be delivered to the high-frequency and the low-frequency speakers without any "jump" or loss in the illusion of natural sound.

Third, the high-frequency horn must be capable of providing even distribution of sound, from side to side, and from front to rear, of the auditorium. The low-frequency baffle should give maximum response of the low-frequency speakers without causing "booming" effects.

Now for a quick glance at the power unit and the monitor. The power unit should be constructed to provide a constant source of either low-voltage or high-voltage direct current for the exciting lamps or field coils of the loudspeaker units. In the low-voltage power supply it is essential that "hums" be filtered out.

The monitor unit must deliver good quality of sound—and, strange as it may seem at first blush, the monitor must reproduce film noises from sprocket holes, frame lines, or stray hums being picked up at any point in the system. This is extremely important, because the projectionist must be instantly aware—and only the monitor can tell him—of any aberrations in the quality of sound as it is being heard.

Only the most exacting performance standards are safe standards to go by, in judging the merits of a sound system. Of the fact that the modern sound system is an extremely delicate set of interacting mechanisms requiring the highest standards of design, construction and consistent maintenance, during the entire life of the equipment, progressive exhibitors everywhere are by now pretty generally aware.

[The author is exceptionally well qualified to write of equipment requirements in present-day high-quality sound reproduction. As a member of the engineering staff of the Altec Service Corporation, Mr. Simons' major duties consist in the dissemination of all technical data on equipment and methods gathered by Altec engineers, to the nation-wide Altec field staff.] quality and the proper volume, and tend to maintain the proper sound level at a single fader setting throughout the picture.

Voltage Regulation

Another common difficulty leading to fader changes within a single feature is irregular voltage of the power supply to the theatre, i.e., the incoming a.c. line voltage from the power company's supply line varies from time to time. In many instances, the change in line voltage is sufficient to vary the acoustic power in the auditorium as much as 400% for the same fader setting. It is advisable in all installations where perfect line voltage regulation is not available, to install a voltage regulator as part of the sound equipment. This voltage regulator will maintain a constant voltage to the equipment and thus a constant power level in the theatre, for a given fader setting regardless of wide line voltage variations.

It should be pointed out that today's equipment is designed to keep in step with expected trends of development in studio sound recording. New equipment is sufficiently flexible to take care of these new developments as they become commercial, by the addition to, rather than the replacement of, the equipment.

Every exhibitor is a showman. He is selling to the public sound motion pictures. In general he is selling the same product as his competitor. His only advantage therefore is to obtain, over a period of time, the utmost from the product he is selling.

Here it is

THE B&L SUPER CINEPHOR f:2

WITH 25% MORE LIGHT TRANSMISSION

Bausch & Lomb now offers the f:2 Super Cinephor which actually delivers 25% more light on the screen. Light lost in previous lenses by surface reflection (4-6% at each air to glass surface) is made to do useful work. A new process of treating lens surfaces minimizes reflections and makes this f:2 lens have a light efficiency that hitherto would have been possible only at f:1.79.

Not only is there 25% more light on the screen, but also a gain in contrast and crispness. Shadow detail is not diluted by distributed light. Color films, too, have greater purity and brilliance.

F. H. Richardson's COMMENT

Noting 2,000 Errors In a Single Theatre!

RECENTLY in a large, well designed theatre operated by an "affiliated" circuit, during the projection of "Strange Cargo," several feet of the tail piece of one reel flashed upon the screen. Fortunately, ly the projectionist woke up and the changeover was made before the screen flashed clear. A generous bit of tail-piece had shown, however.

F. H. R.

Later, up in the projection room, I accused the two men on duty of committing in excess of 2,000 projectional errors in the performance just completed. They indignantly asked what I meant.

"Well," said I, "you will admit that with two men on duty you permitted several feet of a tail-piece to show on the screen."

"Yes," one of them replied; "it was my fault."

"Well, there are at least 2,000 people down below, every one of whom saw it. Now, multiply the single error by the number of people in the audience, and what do you get?"

"Okay, wise guy," was the response, "but how many times have you seen such a fault in this theatre?"

Not often, I had to admit. Nevertheless, in a theatre of class of this one, where projectionists receive top pay, most certainly I do not expect to see even one such outrage due, as was this one, to sheer carelessness. No legitimate excuse can be offered by any two-man crew for such a blunder, though it is possible, on rare occasion, that an excuse might exist in a one-man room.

To this man's credit, he made no attempt to excuse himself. I doubt that error will ever be committed by him again. Too many projectionists try to excuse themselves by saying, "Yes, I know it happened, but after all it did not amount to much." Right there they make a second mistake. While it would be true that the effect of the mistake would be perhaps rather trivial were it seen by but one person, it is viewed by hundreds, hence its aggregate effect is really serious.

Procedure for Ferreting Out a Cause of Hum

ELMER D. LARSEN, projectionist of Chenoa, Ill., writes, "have read your articles in BETTER THEATRES for several years. Now I have a trouble I cannot seem to discover the cause of, therefore ask you to straighten me out.

"Have a model 185 Operadio amplifier and use a Jensen auditorium speaker. My trouble is this: With film in the projector and a 5-horsepower, 3-phase 220-volt motor running, pulling the air-conditioning equipment, there is a loud hum. Even when I shut the motor down there still is a ground hum which is very annoying. Could you please advise as to what might be done to get rid of this nuisance? Do you think the motor is the cause, or that if it were fed by a separate circuit it would help. The Operadio company says I should cut out the base, but that I have done without effect."

Hum is very hard to get rid of. Usually the only successful procedure is a process of elimination. It would be well to refer to the trouble-shooting charts, beginning on page 669 of the Bluebook, sixth edition, second revision. These charts fill 40 pages of the bluebook and are too long to quote here, but reducing the general procedure of these charts to this case, so far as we are informed concerning the trouble, it would seem that Friend Larsen has two hums: one from the 3-phase motor, and a residual hum that remains even after the motor is shut down. The latter would probably have to be treated separately.

Eliminating Possible Causes

In every case, the process of elimination involves a search for one of two things—either the source of the hum, or the point at which it enters the sound system.

It of course is not necessary to seek far for the hum emanating from the motor. It is due either to a defect in the motor itself, or to improper grounding of its casing. Check this grounding very carefully, not trusting to superficial appearance. Open the ground straps and look for corrosion. If the ground connects to a water pipe, change to another pipe. There may be corrosion at the pipe joints. Check the motor for current leakage (imperfect insulation) between its coils and casing.

If all this fails to clear things up, it may be necessary to seek the point at which the hum gets into the sound system, since it does not seem to emanate from the motor. It is possible this may be through the power line, in which case a separate line run for the sound should cure the trouble.

However, the hum pickup could have its source in an imperfectly shielded photocell connection, or in imperfect grounding of the amplifier. It is even possible it could come through shielding within the amplifier itself. All these things must be checked one by one.

The residual hum remaining when the motor is shut down also may be caused by worn shielding within the amplifier or imperfectly shielded or grounded photocell connections. It also may be caused by deterioration of filter condensers, or the filter connections associated with the loudspeaker supply. In any event, the trouble shooting charts on hum, beginning on page 679, will suggest systematic procedure for elimination of possibilities until the cause of the hum is found.

Nitrocellulose Film And Its Fire Factors

CHARLES J. JOHNSON of San Francisco asks, "Will you advise as to whether or not a fire caused by igniting nitrocellulose film, can be controlled or extinguished by water; also why has not acetate film been adopted into general use?"

Albert F. Sulzer of the Eastman Kodak Company, gave an authoritative and very lucid explanation of this very matter in a recent issue of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers Journal. I quote:

"Nitrocellulose film base will not only burn rapidly when ignited, but also, if subjected to sufficient heat, will decompose without flame. The film base contains enough combined oxygen to maintain decomposition when once started, even in a limited air supply. Decomposition liberates comparatively large quantities of carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide, and oxides of nitrogen, which under certain conditions are dangerous to life. Some of these liberated gases are also inflammable, and under some conditions explosive.

"Since decomposition, when once started, will maintain itself and generate enough heat to produce combustion, the obvious control lies, not in methods intended to smother the fire by excluding air supply, but by the application of large quantities of water to cool the burning film below the decomposing temperature of about 300° F.

"In 1909, Eastman had developed cellulose acetate to a point where the company felt it could be substituted for nitrocellulose in motion picture film. To give effect to this development, Mr. Eastman arranged a meeting with the leaders of motion picture producing companies. . . . Little argument was needed to reach an agreement whereby only cellulose-acetate was to be supplied to producing companies thereafter. . . . Experience demonstrated however, that acetate film was not as strong mechanically as nitrocellulose film and that it became brittle with use. (Advancing age under conditions of use.—F. H. R.) Difficulty in the projection of acetate film was experienced, partly because of the inferior quality of the film, also because of the inferior projection equipment of that day and the rough handling to which film was subjected."

I think that answers the question quite fully, and doubtless many others have wondered about the same thing.

So far as water is concerned, however, its use for projection room fires is not really practical, but such matters bother firemen not at all when they have a job to do.

A 3rd Simplex REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. PROJECTOR HAS MANY ADVANTAGES...

A 3rd Simplex PROJECTOR IN AN EMERGENCY

"Is Worth its Weight in Gold"

Insures an uninterrupted show when unforseen circumstances force one of the active projectors out of service.

Increases element of safety — enables projectionist to keep all associated parts of projector, source of illumination, sound parts, etc., in better condition.

A 3rd Simplex PROJECTOR FOR SPECIAL EFFECTS

Performs a useful service when it is desired to emphasize a certain portion of the picture or to create dramatic effects. Portion of film may be removed from the print, set up in third projector and effect secured without interference with the two active projectors.

MANY THEATRES ARE FINDING THREE Simplex PROJECTORS A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

The Third Simplex Projector takes the place of one of the two active projectors when repairs are necessary and thus has a definite tendency to prevent neglect. Neglect is poor economy. • • • Equalization of Maintenance—spreading the wear—increases the life of all three projectors and over a period of years will automatically tend to liquidate the cost of the third projector.

"INSIDE"

SINCE that proceeding which started out to be a Federal law suit pertaining to enforcement of existing law has become a trade practice conference, it is most appropriate that Mr. Thurman Arnold should be inviting representatives of exhibitor organizations into discussions of any "consent decree" which may become, in effect, new law.

There is, however, in all this, an assumption that all of the interests and rights at stake are represented in terms of organization, set up with expert representatives to sit at the conference table.

That adds up to an indication that it is all an inside job. Conspicuously all of the discussed provisions of the proposed decree, and all of the discussions pertaining to them, are concerned substantially, exclusively with relations between established and intrenched factors and interests. One does not discover anywhere a presumption that the amusement screen might be an open industry based on a free art.

The laws under which the suit began were presumed to be written, long ago, in the public interest. The decree negotiations pertain to a cartel—and how to slice it.

MAYBE you've noticed that Dr. George Gallup, by reason of that poll on double bills to which he was incited by Mr. Sam Goldwyn, has been getting a thundering lot of publicity in consequence—so much so in fact that the only way Mr. Goldwyn might get even would be to make a poll picture starring the statistician.

It started out about Mr. Goldwyn's current theme, "double bills—and down with 'em," but it has become a national excitement of discussion by pundits and press because of a mere hypothetical statistic, to wit the allegation that there are about 32,000,000 persons in the United States who can afford to see motion pictures and don't—which is to say they attend less than once a month.

That may or may not be a fact, but the scarcity, if not the non-existence, of anything resembling a figure with actual arithmetic in it in this industry, has attracted amazing attention. Questionnaires are flying, forums are being had from Hollywood to Hoboken, to find out what is keeping those thirty-two million away.

Any and every kind of an answer is to be had. All of the answers are based on the assumption that there is one public. That is why there will be no single and correct answer. If one is to take Dr. Gallup's figures, something like 54,000,000 persons are moderately pleased with the existing motion picture output. That represents a remarkably good job, in view of the fact that all production seems to address itself at one order of customer, and rather generally with about the same line of creative talent, traded around the offices of Hollywood.

In pursuit of the majority, production has been and likely will be always in competition with itself. There is not much, if any attention, in production, to the notion that any business could be done by trying to please any audience but the biggest one. That will be coming, in time, and is on the way somewhat in terms of 16 mm. product and here and there with "documentary" efforts. A whole machine of production and distribution, and classified exhibition, too, will have to evolve, and it will be addressing itself to a lot of that hypothetical 32,000,000.

GROCERIES

COUNT G. SELMER FOUGNER, who conducts a column in the New York Sun under the title of "Along the Wine Trail", is off to California to look into the food and drink situation there and has announced that on his return he will claim "the rare distinction of being the only newspaper writer to visit California without going near Hollywood . . . it is prompted merely by the well established fact that Hollywood cares and knows mighty little about good food and drink and there would be little to report on. . . . "

If anyone is going to pick on Hollywood we'll do it, and we'll have no part of it from an outsider, even an expert on the boulevard cafes of Paris, who insists that food can be described only in French.

We can cite him a few items in Hollywood. Let him sample the chicken soup at M-G-M's restaurant, and consult Mr. Louis B. Mayer on salads. Mr. Julian Johnson of Twentieth Century-Fox could take the Count a few places, too. And on matters of exotic food he'd be surprised at what Mr. Robert Sisk of RKO could deliver. There are also some items at Warners, including such herring as no Frenchman has a word for. There's a place in Santa Monica where they have chicken and gravy (sauce to the Count) that would be the pride of Maryland. And as to wines, there's Dr. A. H. Giannini, for one.

The Count can go and write about the sand dabs of San Diego, the marine half-soles called abalone in San Francisco and the piffling clams of Pismo, but he will not have been anywhere yet. He only knows what he has seen in the papers. Hollywood doesn't talk about what it eats.

DANGERS WITHIN

A SERIES of articles on "fifth column" menaces to democracy was written recently for the daily press by Colonel William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer. Colonel Donovan, incidentally, chief of counsel for the defense in the government's motion picture anti-trust suit, has recently returned from a government mission to war beset England.

In the course of his third piece, Colonel Donovan and his collaborator took occasion to quote Hitler: "The results at which I aim are only to be obtained by the systematic corruption of the possessing and governing classes. Business advantages, erotic satisfactions and ambition are the three main stops in our propaganda organ. . . ."

That prescription, it is to be observed, is no invention of Hitler's, and it has all too often been self-administered by both corporations and men.

This Week in the News

Not Buying Product

EIGHTY-FIVE per cent of independent exhibitors in Minnesota and the Dakotas have not bought 1940-41 product, it was asserted Wednesday, by Fred Strom, executive secretary of Allied States Association of the Northwest, in Minneapolis.

Mr. Strom says that the independents insist rental terms so far offered are "prohibitive."

The Allied executive was emphatic in declaring that the situation was in no wise a "buyers' strike" engineered by his organization, and that it was not due to any concerted or collective action on the part of the organization or its members.

B & K Ends Triples

TRIPLE features will be abolished at the Balaban & Katz Belmont theatres in Chicago beginning September 13th, it was announced Wednesday by John Balaban, executive of the circuit, who said they had been adopted because surrounding competitors had instituted the policy.

"We plan to restore double features in the Belmont theatres," Mr. Balaban said. "If, however, competitors again go into triple features we may have no alternative but to do likewise."

Independent theatres in the Chicago area at the behest of Jack Kirsch, Allied of Illinois president, agreed to abolish triple features after Mr. Balaban's statement. Thus was promised an end of the war raging for years between Chicago independents and B & K over multi-features.

The new, "streamlined" single bill showing of special pictures at advanced prices and with reserved seats for evening shows, inaugurated by Fanchon and Marco at the Ambassador in St. Louis, got underway this week despite threats of retaliation by exhibitor competitors because of the extra clearance to be granted by distributors to the circuit on the special pictures. Warner's "The Sea Hawk" was the opening picture. At mid-week F & M reported satisfactory box office results on double and triple bills in other St. Louis houses.

Meanwhile the St. Louis Better Films Council protested against triple bills in other F & M houses on the ground that they ruined family night programs and encouraged the production of "B" films.

In Des Moines Tri-State Theatres was conducting a poll of public opinion on duals vs. singles. At its Roosevelt, in a better class suburban residential district, 76 per cent voted for singles; and at its downtown Paramount it was 73 per cent for duals. At the downtown Des Moines 57 per cent voted for singles. The circuit says it is attempting to establish the accuracy of the Goldwyn-Gallup duals poll, which three weeks ago reported 57 per cent against doubles.

Last minute defections by a small minority this week caused abandonment of the plan of Milwaukee exhibitors to drop duals in favor of singles at all of the city's 70 independent houses on September 3rd.

The fifth territorial district of Allied of the Northwest has voted against double feature policies.

Whither the Wind?

WHETHER "Gone With the Wind" would become a radio serial this Winter to sell Vicks cough drops or anything else was still in dispute at mid-week. Published reports last week said details were settled and the show would go on a CBS network on October 1st and each Tuesday night thereafter from 9:30 to 10:00 P.M. But over the week-end Loew's, Inc., and Selznick International issued a statement that "they have declined to permit the celebrated screen success to become a radio feature."

Negotiations were underway Wednesday to adjust the difficulties. Edward Wolf, artists' representative who is dealing with Selznick International-MGM and then in turn with the Stack-Goble advertising agency, predicted Wednesday that the matter would be settled to the satisfaction of all parties. It was reported that one of the chief objections to "Wind" on the air was the October 1st starting date which might interfere with the general release of the picture.

Newsreels and War

WITH the naming in Washington, this week, of Robert Collyer, former script writer for Universal and Paramount newsreels, as liaison representative, close co-operation is expected between the five newsreel companies and the National Defense Advisory Commission in connection with the rearmament program and the process of familiarizing citizens with the work of the commission.

Mr. Collyer, named to the commission's public relations staff a few days ago, is now working on plans to ease the bottleneck of red-tape in securing newsreel coverage of defense activities.

All newsreel activity having any connection with the defense program will clear through Mr. Collyer.

A native New Yorker, 34 years old and a graduate of Columbia University, Mr. Collyer, was, until lately, engaged in the production of one and two-reel educational subjects for the Dominion Government in Canada.

Walker to P.O.?

AT press time, Wednesday, on the eve of the retirement of James Aloysius Farley as Postmaster General of the United States, to return to private business, Frank Comerford Walker appeared to be the most likely successor.

Mr. Walker's name had been mentioned prominently in this connection since Mr. Farley announced his resignation, effective midnight Saturday, August 31.

Mr. Walker, 54 years old, Pennsylvania born—in the town of Plymouth—operates the 80 Comerford Amusement theatres in Pennsylvania and New York. He was formerly treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and worked importantly for the election of President Roosevelt, of whom he is a close friend and confidant in the nation's affairs. Since Mr. Roosevelt's election, the President has repeatedly sought Mr. Walker to serve in public life.

For years Mr. Walker has participated closely in formulative discussions among industry leaders on matters concerning motion picture distribution and exhibition and its conduct.

He was a nephew of the late Michael E. Comerford, founder of that circuit.

16 mm. Musicals

WORKING quietly for several months in Hollywood, a new film producing company, Artists Films, Inc., has completed four 12-minute short subjects, each containing a star, or noted group, of the music world and the whole representing the beginning of a yearly series of 21 reels, and a departure in planning and marketing of films in the 16mm field.

The films will be released starting in October, in 16mm. Release is not only to usual non-theatrical groups, but also to music societies and classes in and out of schools and universities as well as for "theatrical" showing in small towns without established motion picture theatres. Marketing will be in groups of three films.

Officers of the company are Rudolph Polk, vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System's artists' bureau, president; Walter Lowendal, vice-president and production manager; John Erskine, advisor, and commentator for some short subjects.

The distributor is Walter O. Gutlohn, Inc., of New York, distributors of much 16mm product.

Among the artists and groups appearing, and to appear in the shorts, and who have been signed to contracts, are Jose Iturbi, Richard Bonelli, the Coolidge String Quartette, Helen Jepson, Gladys Swarthout, Frank Chapman, Mildred Dilling, Charles Kullman and Albert Spalding.

Deal for Shirley

UNIVERSAL and Columbia are being named in Coast rumors anent a return of Shirley Temple to the screen, under a new banner—the "money making star" having been released from Twentieth Century-Fox several months ago with kind words and a $300,000 settlement.

The reports are based on talks now under way in Hollywood between producer representatives and Frank Orsatti, talent agent (also head of Phonovision, "nickel-in-the-slot-movie" machine), with Shirley's parents on the sideline with an opinion that their daughter could appear in approximately one picture annually.

The Columbia picture, it is merely reported, could be "June Madness"; the Universal deal includes producer Joe Pasternak, possibly in a treatment similar to that he has used for Deanna Durbin—and it is also said there is an independent producer lurking around the conferences.

Mr. Orsatti is also entrusted with obtaining for Shirley some remunerative radio contracts, some of which he has discussed.

Problems Abroad

FOREIGN department managers for American distributors met Tuesday at the MPPDA headquarters in New York to consider the possibility that activity in Japan would have to be discontinued and to discuss the systematic squeezing out of American films by the German Government in all controlled territory.

Paramount, the last of the majors to be operating in Germany, has received orders to get out of that country by September 12th and all occupied regions by the first of October. Twentieth Century-Fox and Metro had previously received notice to depart. American owned theatres in Europe will be faced with the alternative of closing or playing Nazi-approved product.

In Japan no permits to import film have been issued in many months, although about 60 should be available to the major companies under the agreement made with the Japanese Government two years ago. Exportation of money has been cut off and reissues of old pictures are restricted. It was reported that the Japanese branches of the American companies have practically exhausted their film supply.

Dollars to Britain

BRITISH talent in Hollywood, answering a United Press dispatch of Sunday from London, in which producer Michael Balcon was quoted as calling them "deserters," this week pointed to their large money contributions to Britain's war effort.

Mr. Balcon, in an article in the Sunday Dispatch, in London, had asserted British stars here were accumulating fortunes when those at home were making sacrifices.

The New York Daily News, in a copyrighted article from Hollywood, Monday, asserted that Anna Neagle and Lawrence Olivier, by personal appearances here and in Canada, had sent earnings of $700,000 less taxes, to Britain; that Cary Grant had contributed $125,000, said to have been his salary as co-star in MGM's "The Philadelphia Story"; that Charles Laughton was donating his entire radio appearance salary, $5,000 per week; that Gracie Fields was doing this, too, on a Canadian tour; and that approximately $100,000 was expected to be sent to England from the proceeds of Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30" now running in Hollywood, and in which actors serve without pay. The newspaper also mentioned the "$6,000,000" motion picture to be made in Hollywood by Herbert Wilcox and virtually all the British talent there.

Press Agents' Terms

EXECUTIVES in New York are perusing a document from the eastern branch of the comparatively new Screen Publicists' Guild, notifying them of an intention to secure a closed shop contract, of a wish to open negotiations, and of the hitherto undisclosed terms of the proposed contract for publicity men.

The claim of the Guild spokesmen is that it has more than 250 members, a majority among home office workers in publicity and advertising.

The Guild is seeking a five-year contract, dividing publicity workers into apprentices, juniors, and seniors; asking varied severance pay for these classifications; a $45 weekly minimum salary for apprentices of one-year service, $50 for those of two years, and $55 for those of three years; a similar range for juniors, from $60 to $70; and a minimum for senior publicity men, of $125 per week.

The eastern section of the Guild now has two delegates on the Coast conferring with that region's Guild on closer affiliation, and discussing erection of a national organization, with units in key cities, to organize all film and film theatre press agents. Joe Gould, a United Artists pressbook writer, in New York, heads the eastern Guild.

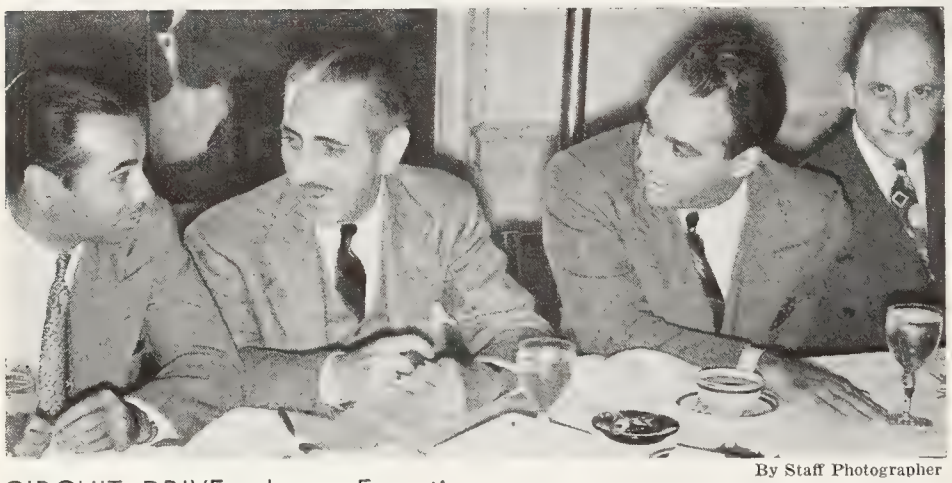
Wise Guys

"DR. IQ." radio quizmaster now presenting his Monday night network program from the stage of New York's Capitol theatre, has told Ben Serkowitz, for publication, that:

"In other cities I usually have time for only about fifty questions and answers, but the Capitol theatre audiences are so well informed that I have to add five to ten questions to fill out my time."

No consideration, apparently, has been given to the possibility that maybe in some "other cities" and the hinterland the smart ones are too smart to bother about radio quizzes.

"Stage" Again



WITH an old name and "an entirely new policy," according to announcement, Stage Magazine is to appear on New York news stands October 28. It is claimed that only the name of the Stage Magazine which suspended in June 1939 remains. The publisher of the new project is Alexander Ince, for some 28 years editor and publisher of Theatrical Life in Budapest. The editor of Stage is Alexander King, formerly with Life. William Rhinelander Stewart, New York social figure, is president of the corporation. The policy is said to contemplate attention to the drama, television, radio, opera and the screen.

DISTRIBUTORS SCHEDULE MORE NEW FILMS AT INCREASED ADMISSIONS

Exhibitors Voluntarily Cooperate, Says Metro; "Brigham Young", "Kit Carson" Open on Location

The practice of increasing admissions on pictures of the current crop is growing, since both exhibitor customers and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, distributor of "Boom Town," appear to have had favorable results with box office tests on that production one month ago. MGM, Wednesday, said "thousands of exhibitors have voluntarily cooperated."

Unlike the marketing of the Walt Disney-RKO "Snow White" and the Selznick-Metro "Gone With the Wind," in which instances the distributors provided contractually for increased rentals and/or increased admissions, the present situations involve suggestions, not contractual demands by the distributor to the exhibitor to raise admissions on certain pictures recommended by the distributor as suitable for such showing. Rentals are not being increased, the distributors receiving more income through percentage arrangements.

Twentieth Century-Fox's "Brigham Young," Disney's new "Fantasia," Warners' "Sea Hawk," U.A.-Chaplin's "Great Dictator," Warners' "All This, and Heaven Too," are being given increased admission attention, while distributors are giving greater effort than ever to showmanship for new pictures opening in the field or in preparation for opening, including Fox's "Brigham Young," United Artists' "Kit Carson," Walt Disney's "Fantasia," Columbia's "Howards of Virginia," U.A.'s "Foreign Correspondent," the Paramount-de Mille "Northwest Passage," Warners' "Flowing Gold," RKO's "Dreaming Out Loud."

"Kit Carson" Opens

More than 75,000 persons witnessed the "Frontier Parade" on Monday, which inaugurated a week's festivities in Denver, and the premiere, that night, in six theatres, of Edward Small's United Artists release, "Kit Carson." The number of people seeing the premieres at the theatres was estimated at 12,000, more than 300 of whom were guests of United Artists including 20 studio stars and executives.

The theatres used were the Denver, at which the main premiere celebration was held, the Paramount, Broadway, Rialto, Aladdin, and Tabor. With the Denver Post officially participating, and with a special allowance to hold the parade, which was said to be the longest in the state's history, Governor Ralph Carr and Richard Ozenbaugh, president of the Denver Chamber of Commerce, attended.

Monday began "Kit Carson Week" proclaimed by the Governor; and the city's buildings were lavishly decorated by special appropriation from city authorities.

The parade, with Indians, cowboys, and other appurtenances of the "Wild West," was broadcast over a coast to coast National Broadcasting Company network by station KOA, Denver.

MORE PITTSBURGH FILM COMPETITION

The newest rivals, current and pending, of Pittsburgh theatres for the entertainment dollar are an outdoor rodeo, scheduled for October, a horse race track to be built 35 miles away across the West Virginia border where betting is legal, several Mo-Skeet-O shooting ranges scattered throughout the city, and a new miniature golf course.

These are in addition to the nine roller skating rinks, over a dozen driving ranges, several archery ranges, more than 50 bowling alleys, a score of night clubs, two amusement parks, dog races at nearby Steubenville, Ohio, and Lake Milton, Ohio, an estimated 1,500, plus pinball machines, and an inestimable number of Bingo games, ad infinitum.

The California contingent included Charles Ruggles, Jon Hall, Lynn Bari, Olympe Bradna, Dona Andrews, Rene Riano, Astrid Allwyn, Harold Huber, Tom Brown, William Farnum, Carole Landis, C. Henry Gordon, Fay Wray, Anita Louise, Raymond Hatton, and Sabu.

Among those from New York were Oscar A. Doob, head of advertising and publicity for the Loew circuit; A-Mike Vogel, editor of the MOTION PICTURE HERALD Round Table; Samuel Shain, editor of the Motion Picture Daily; J. J. Milstein, Eastern representative of Edward Small; Monroe Greenthal, head of exploitation for UA; and L. Jack Schlaifer, western district sales manager for UA.

Frank H. Ricketson, head of Fox Intermountain circuit, and Mrs. Ricketson, were hosts to the visiting UA executives, and trade and newspapermen on the day before, at dinner and cocktails.

Local details were supervised by Mr. Ricketson, Harry Huffman, Bernie Hynes, Earle Collins, Ben Fish, and Mr. Schlaifer. Cooperating were Murphy McHenry, publicity director for Mr. Small, Mr. Greenthal, Mr. Milstein, and George Gompertz.

"Brigham Young" at Salt Lake City

Using seven theatres in Salt Lake City, Utah, Twentieth Century-Fox on Friday evening, August 23rd, opened its latest, "Brigham Young" for an estimated audience of more than 8,700 persons and a record run which, in the Centre theatre, in which the picture remained, drew, in the three succeeding days, 19,057 persons for a gross of $7,621.

On the opening night, at the seven theatres, the picture garnered $8,349.

The seven theatres were the Centre, Capitol, Utah, Paramount, Victory, Studio, and Marlo.

The company had its screen personalities at the multiple opening, among them Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Mary Astor, Brenda Joyce, Caesar Romero, Dean Jagger, Jane Withers, William F. Goetz, Colonel Jason Joy, and Mr. and Mrs. Darryl F. Zanuck, Mr. Zanuck being the company's vice-president in charge of production. These people arrived by plane in the city on Friday afternoon, and the stars among them appeared in the theatres.

Present from the New York home office were Sidney Kent, president; Herman Wobber, general sales manager; Walter J. Hutchinson, general foreign manager, and others.

Eight pre-release dates for "Brigham Young" have been set. They are in Ogden, Logan and Provo, Utah; Idaho Falls, Twin Falls, Idaho; at the Ambassador, St. Louis, and Loew's State and Chinese, Los Angeles.

33⅓ Per Cent Increase

Opening night admissions were $1.10. The advanced scale at the Centre amounts to an increase of 25 per cent for matinees, and 33⅓ per cent for evenings. The company last week, through Mr. Wobber, said it planned to ask for similar price advances in certain situations prior to the picture's general release. Mr. Wobber pointed at the picture's high negative costs, and merit.

The picture will open at the Ambassador Theatre in St. Louis next Thursday, at advanced prices, the top being 75 cents, compared to the present 56 cents.

At the premieres in the seven Salt Lake City theatres, Twentieth Century-Fox cameramen shot 2,000 feet of film, 500 feet of which will be used in a special reel to be shown to exhibitors at the trade showings of "Brigham Young" in company exchanges.

Mr. Kent returned to New York after the premieres, having conducted talks with Messrs. Zanuck and Goetz in Salt Lake City instead of Hollywood, where they had previously been scheduled. Mr. Wobber went on to the coast from Utah, and after a studio visit, will tour the company's exchanges in this country and Canada.

To Roadshow "Fantasia"

A New York City premiere, and roadshow engagements at advanced prices are planned for Walt Disney's latest, "Fantasia," Hal Horne, Eastern representative for Mr. Disney, said in New York last week. The time will be early November. The specific date and the admission prices had not been set yet, he said, but, in the latter connection, it was said that prices would probably range from 75 cents to $1.50 in most engagements.

Mr. Horne also said it was possible the picture might never be generally released, and that its initial roadshow engagements would be handled directly by Disney Productions.

In each theatre in which the picture is shown a new type of RCA sound equipment will be installed for the reproduction of the Leopold Stokowski music with which the picture is accompanied. Though the number and location of theatres to be used has not been selected yet, the company will order from ten to 12 of these special units at the outset, it was asserted.

If the number of units remains at this approximate figure, the units will be moved from one city to another as the occasion requires, it was said, indicating that the picture might never be playing in more than that number of situations in one time.

PREMIERES ON LOCATION PLANNED

"Howards" Next Wednesday

To the accompaniment of the usual extra ballyhoo, pageants, parades, civic festivities, and such, and the cooperation of Virginia's highest officials, including the Governor, James Price, Columbia will open its "The Howards of Virginia" in Richmond, that state, next Wednesday, at three theatres, the Byrd, State, and Westhampton.

The schedule this week included a water pageant in the morning; the welcoming of director Frank Lloyd and star Martha Scott, by the Governor; a special luncheon at the John Marshall Hotel, at which these two from Hollywood will be guests; a re-enactment of Patrick Henry's "Liberty or Death" oration in the afternoon; a pageant and folk dancing at Byrd Park; personal appearances of Miss Scott and Mr. Lloyd at the three theatres, in conjunction with the premieres; a ball at the said hotel, with they as guests.

There was a special trade preview of the picture at the Astor Theatre, New York City, Wednesday morning. Exhibitors and newspaper and trade-paper men were present.

Open "Foreign Correspondent"

Reopening the Rivioli Theatre, in New York, after a silent summer, and with a guest group of social notables and other luminaries of stage, screen, radio, the press and such, United Artists held the world premiere of Alfred Hitchcock's production, "Foreign Correspondent" on Tuesday evening. Among those scheduled to attend were Joan Crawford, Winthrop Rockefeller, Ingrid Bergman, Joan Bennett, James Roosevelt, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Hendrik Willem Van Loon, Lily Pons, Ralph Ingersoll, Roy Larsen, Jules Brulatour, William Allen White, Adam Gimbel, and Merlin Aylesworth.

The picture was to open in Ottawa, Canadian capital, on Thursday evening, accompanied by a coast to coast radio broadcast sponsored by the Canadian Broadcasting Commission. Mr. Wanger, producer, his wife, Miss Bennett, and Mr. Hitchcock, were to be guests of honor at the Canadian premiere and broadcast, in the latter of which several Dominion officials were to participate.

Roadshow for "Northwest"

Neil Agnew, Paramount general sales manager, said Monday, in New York, following his return from the coast, that the company might roadshow its "Northwest Mounted Police," and that this course was dependent upon decisions to be arrived at in a special meeting in Kansas City, on September 10th, of the company's district sales managers. Whether to ask increased admission will also be decided at the meeting.

Cecil B. De Mille produced the picture. It was sneak previewed in San Diego two weeks ago, with an enthusiastic audience response. The latter caused conferences among Paramount sales officials, on methods of marketing the picture in a "big" manner.

The picture will have its world premiere on October 21st in Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, birthplace of the group of men whom the picture glorifies. On October 25th, there will be simultaneous showings of the picture in key cities across Canada. The Canadian premiere is believed by the company to be the first foreign world premiere to be staged by a Hollywood concern.

"Flowing Gold" Plans

Warner Brothers may hold a dozen simultaneous premieres of its "Flowing Gold" in centers of the oil industry in this country, it was said at the studio last week. The picture has no specific locale; it is identifiable with any district. Mentioned last week as possible sites were Tulsa, Oklahoma; Long Beach and Montebello, California; Brownsville and Dallas, Texas; Baton Rouge and New Orleans, Louisiana; and Oil City, Pennsylvania.

"Boom Town" Records

MGM's "Boom Town" now playing prerelease test engagements, is hanging up records, according to the company. In Detroit, it played to 312 per cent of normal business on its opening day at the United Artists Theatre; in Oklahoma City, it finished its first week of business with 265 per cent of normal business. Scheduled for one week test runs, it has been held for three weeks.

The picture opened for regular runs in New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Springfield, and Worcester, Connecticut, on Thursday; in Waterbury, same state, on Saturday; and is scheduled to play in Meriden, also Connecticut, on September 15th.

Following is a list of percentages over normal which the picture scored, at advance prices, in special engagements, in cities other than those mentioned: Los Angeles, 252 per cent; Indianapolis, 345 per cent; New Orleans, 310 per cent; Harrisburg, 258 per cent; Reading, 232 per cent; Tulsa, 239 per cent; Atlantic City, 431 per cent; and Cincinnati, 453 per cent.

Balaban and Katz raised the admission scales 25 per cent for matinees and 33⅓ per cent for evenings, for the scheduled opening at their United Artists and Roosevelt theatres, in Chicago, on Saturday, of "Boom Town." The Northio circuit has given a similar increase for the opening, on the same day, at their Paramount, in Hamilton, Ohio.

CHAMPAGNE BOTTLE POPS FOR UA POSTER

Replete with champagne bottle, John Powers models, a lush carpet under foot, and an initialed banner screening their honored object, United Artists advertising officials held what they feel is the first preview, ever, of a poster, on Thursday noon, August 22nd, on 48th Street, near Sixth Avenue, New York City. The poster advertised Alexander Korda's "The Thief of Bagdad." Artist Willy Pogany officiated. There were also pigeons, fluttering not too willingly, from crates.

Roosevelts at "Pastor Hall"

Two sons of the President, Franklin, Jr., and Elliott, attended the Eastern premiere of their brother James' United Artists-released picture, "Pastor Hall," at the Warner Brothers Aldine Theatre, in Philadelphia Thursday evening, August 22nd. James Roosevelt was prevented from attending by influenza.

Station KYW broadcast the ceremonies, which also marked the Aldine's reopening. City Democratic Leader John B. Kelly led local dignitaries, who, together with the Roosevelt brothers, newspaper and trade press men and others, were guests of Warner Brothers circuit heads at the Warwick Hotel, for dinner, before the premiere.

"Lucky Partners" Opened

RKO Radio Pictures opened its "Lucky Partners" two weeks ago at the Chief Theatre, Colorado Springs, with a celebration attended by civic celebrities and great crowds. Manager Edward Terhune of the theatre managed the ballyhoo. The Colorado Springs Rodeo, one of the big events of the tourist season, was held during the run of the picture.

"Dreaming" in Little Rock

RKO's "Dreaming Out Loud" will be opened at the Capitol and Pulaski theatres in Little Rock, Arkansas, on next Thursday. Chestar Lauck and Norman Goff, "Lum and Abner" of Radio fame, who are stars in this picture, their first such role, will make personal appearances.

"Pride" in Fourth Week

MGM's "Pride and Prejudice" on Thursday began its fourth and final week at the Radio City Music Hall, New York City, reaching an eminence in runs attained by only three other films in the past eight years, "Snow White," "Rebecca," "All This, and Heaven Too."

The film grossed $102,000 the first week, $98,000 the second, and approximately $95,000 the third. This week it had played to 500,000 persons.

"Rockne" at South Bend

Warners' "Knute Rockne—All American" will open at South Bend, Indiana, on October 4th. Jesse Pavey, city mayor, and Reverend John Cavanaugh, vice-president of Notre Dame University, are at the Warner studios discussing premiere details.

Seven "Hawk" Holdovers

Warner Brothers this week reported that its "Sea Hawk" had secured seven holdover engagements in special key city bookings. In New York, the film entered its fourth week this week; in Philadelphia, it was held for a second week at the Boyd; in Atlantic City, it played two weeks in holdover at the Warner, and then a third week at the Stanley.

Other holdover locations are the Warners, Memphis; Ambassador, St. Louis; the Earle, Washington; and the Colonial, Richmond.

HOBLITZELLE, GOLDWYN, CHADWICK, CARR, HOUSEWIVES DEBATE DOUBLES

Radio's "People's Platform" on CBS Carries Discussion of Policies; Standard Arguments, Gallup Poll Are Cited

The dispute between opponents and defenders of double feature programs was carried to the public last Saturday night over the Columbia Broadcasting System's "People's Platform" program with Samuel Goldwyn, producer; Karl Hoblitzelle, Interstate Circuit, and Mrs. Leo B. Hedges, chairman of the film committee of the California Parent-Teachers Association speaking for single features and I. E. Chadwick and Trem Carr, independent producers, and Mrs. Arthur Beck, a California housewife, defending the double feature practice.

"Economic Freedom" Cited

Those speaking in favor of double features supported their position by pointing out that the patron got more for his money when he saw two films instead of one and that any attempt to force a single feature policy would be interfering with patrons' and exhibitors' economic freedom.

The recent Gallup Poll on double features which showed that 57 per cent of the public opposed double features was one of the arguments cited by Mr. Goldwyn at whose suggestion Dr. Gallup undertook the poll several months ago.

Other arguments in favor of a single feature policy given by the speakers were that an overlong bill tires the audience, good pictures are shown with poor films and the patron frequently finds that the picture he wishes to see goes on at an inconvenient hour.

The question for discussion on the program, which originated in Los Angeles, was "What should we do about double feature movies?" Under the chairmanship of Dr. F. P. Woellner, professor of education at the University of California at Los Angeles, the guests had been arguing for some time before the program went on the air. At the proper moment, without knowledge of the speakers, their unrehearsed conversation was carried to the radio audience.

Mr. Goldwyn asked for a balanced program of a single feature and selected short subjects. "Every picture cannot be great," he said, "but if a picture does not happen to be as good as the last one they saw then they see a two-reel comedy that's good the way they used to see a Chaplin comedy, a Harold Lloyd comedy, and all sorts of two-reel subjects."

In listing the advantages of a single feature program, Mr. Hoblitzelle said, "You have the opportunity of having a more diversified program, and, secondly, you keep the length of your program within reason. Now we learned back thirty-odd years ago, before pictures really became the vogue, that when vaudeville programs ran too long, regardless of how good they might be, the next day or days after it people would complain about being kept up too late. As I see the theatre, it is essentially a family institution. It is with us. When the man and his wife come to the theatre with their children and you keep that family in a theatre three or three and a half and sometimes four hours, it's too long."

The viewpoint of the Parent-Teachers organization, especially interested in family entertainment was expressed as follows by Mrs. Hedges:

"Now, that audience (the family) has been lost to the theatre. The family audience is gone and you speak of pleasing the audience which you have. You have lost an audience which you are going to have to go out and bring back into the theatre. They have substituted other forms of entertainment. They stay home listening to the radio. The double-feature has less followers. They have lost much to the single-feature and they have gotten out of the habit of going to the movies once a week, as a family," she concluded.

Mr. Chadwick said, "I think the audience is lost because the present practices and the present prices have in a manner taken the movies away from the general public and the issue really before the motion picture industry is that it's essential that the industry return the movies to the masses where it originally belonged.

Fights Single Feature

"Mr. Goldwyn's argument has been really centered upon the question of taste," Mr. Chadwick continued. "In matters of taste there's no argument. To the people who prefer and who like one feature and a diversified program, there are plenty of opportunities—there is no law that forces any exhibitor to run only one, but this issue of whether or not there should be double-features or single-features is really agitated because it is the desire of those who wish to deprive the public of their right to have two features on one program, if they prefer. In their economic situation they like two features because it gives them an assurance of at least a worthwhile evening's entertainment."

Mr. Goldwyn answered Mr. Chadwick by saying, "First Mr. Chadwick said most of the people want double bills in their theatre. This is not a proven fact, quite the opposite,—the millions of people in America who go to the movies can afford to go to the pictures and see good pictures and pay for them. Fifty-seven per cent of the people that go to see the pictures object to the double bills, the majority is overwhelming."

Mr. Goldwyn cited as an example of the effect of double bills how he tried each evening for a week to see "Rebecca" when he was in Arizona and never did see it because it was shown at 10:30 P. M.

"Why, wasn't it shown at 7:30?" Mr. Chadwick said.

"That's too early for me, I want to have my dinner at 7:30," Mr. Goldwyn retorted.

The suggestion made by Mr. Carr that the patron call the theatre "if he wants to see Mr. Goldwyn's picture and no one else's picture" was rejected by Mrs. Hedges, who said that it was frequently found that the family picture comes on late at night and children want to stay too long. She added, "You have eliminated, through the double feature, children's programs in the West because you have a picture such as "Swiss Family Robinson" billed with an adult picutre or films that are entirely too exciting for children."

Speaking as a consumer, Mrs. Beck, a housewife who sees "about 175 pictures every year," said that people want all they can get for the money and that double features aids employment in the industry and gives greater relief to the public.

Quality Program Necessary

Mr. Hoblitzelle disagreed. "If her theory is correct," he said, "then why not carry that theory further; instead of giving two features why not give them four features? Why not keep them in the moving picture theatres all day and all night? . . . In theatres, or in real life or in anything else you can surfeit people, you can give them so much that they will finally turn against that which they like most.

". . . I think essentially it's better for the public to give them a well-balanced program, a program that will run a reasonable length of time. . . . If the theatre is going to live it's got to be based on quality and not on quantity."

Mr. Hoblitzelle added that the change from five and seven act shows to 12 and 15 acts was one of the things which killed vaudeville.

On the question of freedom Mr. Hoblitzelle said, "I'm not attempting and do not attempt to say that Mr. Chadwick or anyone else who has a theatre is not at liberty to run that theatre as he sees fit. That's his privilege. I'm thinking of the theatre that I'm interested in as an institution, not for today but for the days and years to come. You cannot maintain any institution and have it live if you're only thinking of today and you've got to do those things to make it fundamentally sound and things to perpetuate that institution. Otherwise, you can go into the discard."

For a time the radio debate became somewhat heated and a number of the participants began to talk at once with the audience hearing little for several moments.

Late Show Kills Patronage

"Forty per cent of the people that used to go to pictures don't go anymore because they have to stay up too late. Economically, why not buy two automobiles for one? Why not have two meals for one? It's great when you go in and get two meals for one. You do it two or three times and get indigestion and you don't go to the place any more," Mr. Goldwyn remarked.

Mr. Goldwyn said, "I would rather have an exhibitor pay a little more to the man that produces the comedy, the man that produces the real picture, the preview picture" so that a balanced single bill show can be had.

"The most important exhibitors in America oppose double bills," Mr. Goldwyn asserted. "The president of the Fox West Coast Theatres told me that double bills are a cancer that will eventually eat up the motion picture industry."

The conversation was cut off as Mr. Goldwyn said, "I'll show you the wires and letters, thousands of them."

PATRON SUMS UP DUAL BILL DISPUTE

After listening to Sam Goldwyn and others on the People's Platform radio show last Staurday, discussing what should be done about double features, Kenneth Kahn, former associate editor of the magazine They Say, wrote a letter to the Herald in which, as he described it, "a movie-goer gets something off his chest."

"The crux of this double-feature tumult resolves essentially around one consideration," Mr. Kahn said, "that of entertainment. No one objects to seeing two good pictures. But a great many people do object to spending money and seeing one good picture and one bad one, or else, as is often the case, two bad ones. People do not go to motion picture theatres in order to get dishes, books or money. They go there for entertainment, and for entertainment only."

The Martin Quigley twenty-fifth anniversary edition of Motion Picture Herald is to be both the meeting place of vital personalities and institutions, and, most importantly, also the show-window of the great motion picture industry, for the world to read and see

MGM ANNOUNCES AN AMPLIFIED PROGRAM FOR 1940-41 SEASON

More Films Completed and Previewed at Opening of Season Than Ever Before, Distributor Says

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in New York, Wednesday, announced an amplified program of feature pictures for 1940-41, reporting that it had more films completed and previewed than ever before at this opening of the new show season on Labor Day, plus more actual release dates set, more productions filming and more cast and producing assignments arranged than the studios at Culver City have reported for early fall treatment in years.

Following "Boom Town," the first film of the new season, and now current, MGM is releasing "Strike Up the Band," a successor to "Babes In Arms," in which Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland again are co-starred, with Paul Whiteman and his orchestra and June Preisser.

Other Completed Productions

Other completed productions, for later September release, include "Wyoming" and "Haunted Honeymoon." A new Dr. Kildare story is also finished and on the release schedule for September.

"Wyoming," Wallace Beery starred, has Leo Carrillo, Ann Rutherford, Lee Bowman, Joseph Calleia, Paul Kelly, Marjorie Main, Bobs Watson and Henry Travers.

"Haunted Honeymoon," made by MGM in England, stars Robert Montgomery in a murder mystery, with Constance Cummings.

"Dr. Kildare Goes Home" is the fourth production in this series, carrying on the adventures of Lew Ayres as the doctor, and Lionel Barrymore. Laraine Day has the lead opposite.

In production and set for tentative release during October, November and December are "Bitter Sweet," "Escape," "Go West," "Third Finger, Left Hand," "Philadelphia Story," "Little Nellie Kelly," "Flight Command," "The Ziegfeld Girl," "Hullabaloo" and "A Woman's Face," and the new Nick Carter story, "Sky Murder."

Norma Shearer is the Countess, and Robert Taylor plays Mark Preysing, in Ethel Vance's "Escape." Nazimova has the part of Preysing's mother.

Coward Operetta Filmed

"Bitter Sweet" is a Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald co-starring film from Noel Coward's operetta. The support includes Ian Hunter, Sig Rumann, Fay Holden, Lynne Carver and Edward Ashley.

"Go West" is the title of the new Marx Brothers' follow to "A Day at the Circus." The cast includes June McCloy, Walter Woolf King, and Diana Lewis.

Katharine Hepburn will be seen with James Stewart and Cary Grant, in "The Philadelphia Story," adaptation of Philip Barry's play in which Miss Hepburn appeared on the Broadway stage.

Following her recent "I Love You Again," Myrna Loy will next be seen with Melvyn Douglas in "Third Finger, Left Hand," a comedy-drama against a New York background. In the cast are Lee Bowman, Felix Bressart, Raymond Walburn and Bonita Granville.

"The Ziegfeld Girl" will have Hedy Lamarr, Judy Garland and Lana Turner. The story described as "a cavalcade of the Ziegfeld tradition."

Judy Garland will appear in the title role of "Little Nellie Kelly," George M. Cohan's musical of the stage. Featured will be Charles Winninger, George Murphy, Douglas MacPhail and Arthur Shields.

Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr are co-starred in "Comrade X," newspaper story by Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer.

Radio Story Scheduled

"Hullabaloo," a story with a radio background, will have Frank Morgan, Billie Burke, Ann Morris, Leni Lynn, Sara Haden, Virginia Grey and Donald Meek.

A new Hardy family picture is promised for the fall.

Robert Taylor will star in "Flight Command," a story of America's air armadas, with Walter Pidgeon and Ruth Hussey.

Joan Crawford will be starred in "A Woman's Face."

"Sky Murder" is a sequel to the earlier MGM Nick Carter adventure narratives, with Walter Pidgeon again playing the detective.

"Dulcy" is an adaptation of the George S. Kaufman-Marc Connelly stage play of that name, with Ann Southern.

In "Maisie Was a Lady," Miss Southern again is the star.

"The World We Make," adaptation of the Theatre Guild play of last year, starring Norma Shearer, with George Raft in the male lead.

Miss Shearer also is slated to do Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30" later in the new season.

Among the other story properties, with likely stars, which will be source material in MGM's production schedule for the new season are:

SING SING, starring Clark Gable.

WITCH OF THE WILDERNESS, co-starring Gable and Lana Turner.

A NIGHT IN BOMBAY, starring Joan Crawford.

THE EX-MAYOR OF BOYS TOWN, in which Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney appear.

THE YEARLING, starring Spencer Tracy in the Pulitzer prize novel.

I MARRIED AN ANGEL, co-starring Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald.

COME LIVE WITH ME, co-starring James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr.

TORTILLA FLAT, starring Spencer Tracy.

BABES ON BROADWAY, co-starring the Rooney-Garland combination.

DAWN'S EARLY LIGHT, starring Robert Taylor.

TROPICAL HURRICANE, co-starring Taylor and Ann Sothern.

THE THIN MAN'S SHADOW, co-starring William Powell and Myrna Loy.

MARRIED BACHELOR, with Powell and Loy.

THE WORLD'S OUR OYSTER, co-starring Clark Gable and Miss Loy.

COMBAT CAR, starring Wallace Beery.

Booth Tarkington's LULU, starring Lana Turner.

BLOSSOMS IN THE DUST, starring Greer Garson.

SLIGHTLY MARRIED, starring Robert Montgomery.

BEAU BRUMMEL, starring Robert Donat.

THE MAN ON AMERICA'S CONSCIENCE, a story of President Johnson, starring Spencer Tracy.

WINGS ON HIS BACK, starring James Stewart.

A new Tarzan story.

SEA OF GRASS, co-starring Spencer Tracy and Myrna Loy.

HISTORY OF FILMS ON NBC PROGRAM

A history of the film industry will be dramatized Sunday afternoon over the National Broadcasting Company's Red Network as part of a series known as "The World Is Yours." Titled "The Story of the Silver Screen," the program will trace the developments of motion pictures from the days of Thomas Alva Edison to modern sound films.

The series, a sustaining program, is produced by NBC in cooperation with the U. S. Office of Education and the Smithsonian Institute. Gail Kubik has prepared a musical score which features music from "The Big Parade," "Birth of a Nation" and "The Jazz Singer."

Century Circuit Sets 13-Week Sales Drive

Managers, district managers and home office executives of the Century Circuit at a meeting last Monday at the Hotel Waldorf Astoria, New York, formulated plans for a 13-week sales drive to start Monday. Cash awards will be given winners.

Among executives at the meeting were Joseph Springer, general manager of the circuit, presiding; Fred Schwartz, chief film buyer, Arthur Baker and Al Burns.

New Loew-Poli Slogan

Combining two winning slogans in the circuit-wide slogan contest for the new season, Harry F. Shaw and Lou Brown of the Loew-Poli Theatres announce that Star-Spangled Movie Season—Where Pictures Are Better than Best" will be used to publicize the annual formal opening of the season. The winners, one from New Haven and one from Bristol, Conn., each receive a year's guest ticket to the Poli houses in New Haven and Hartford, respectively.

Rooney To Make Tour

Mickey Rooney will make personal appearances in a miniature musical for one week engagements in Loew's theatres in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington and New York.

U. S. AND "BIG FIVE" AT TRUCE; THURMAN ARNOLD CALLS EXHIBITORS

Government Agrees to More Flexible Escape Clause, and Majors to Demands for Advance Showings and 5-Blocks

Representatives of organized exhibition will be given the opportunity, beginning Tuesday, September 13, formally to present to the Department of Justice, in Washington, their views on the pending draft of a consent decree in the settlement of the Government's anti-trust suit in equity.

Finally in accord—but not necessarily in final accord—with the "Big Five" on a settlement, the Department, Tuesday, through Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, announced that it was prepared to listen to the representatives of exhibitor organizations which have protested those sections of the decree requiring advance trade showings and the selling of features in blocks of five.

It was learned Wednesday that several exhibitor organization leaders will urge the Department to replace the present block-of-five sales provision with a clause permitting the right to a liberal cancellation on whole block buying. The number and vigor of exhibitor protests from all types of exhibitors all over the country against the five-film proviso, overshadowing exhibitor disapproval on any other decree section is understood to be accountable entirely for the Department's decision to hear the exhibitor organization leaders.

Separate Meetings Planned

Mr. Arnold wired notification only to those who had asked to present their views before final action was taken. He will meet with each group separately, there will be nothing in the way of a general mass meeting, such as has been suggested variously in recent weeks. Mr. Arnold would not disclose the names of the organizations invited, and advised that there would be no formal publicity attending the conferences.

Washington, on Wednesday, viewed the Arnold action as an indication that the long negotiations for a consent decree were moving toward a climax. In eleven weeks they have been adjourned, postponed, stymied, called off and resumed a dozen times, at least.

Apparently the most serious obstacles were removed last Thursday, August 22nd, when the Department, at the insistence of Twentieth Century-Fox, a holdout with Paramount, agreed to a more flexible escape clause (see text in adjoining column), while the "Big Five" met the demands of the Government to agree to advance trade showings and sales in blocks of five.

Washington also reported on Wednesday that some days probably would elapse before the Department could reach a final decision on acceptance, because of the pending exhibitor conferences, and because of the necessity for the study of the document by a number of Department officials to see that it complied with the aims of the Department and the requirements of law, before presenting it to Robert Jackson, United States Attorney General, for his approval.

Also agreed to at last Thursday's conference, was a basis for arbitrating disputes under the decree. On Monday both sides met in New York with officials of the American Arbitration Association to start building plans of operation. Representing the defendants were John Caskey, counsel for Twentieth Century-Fox; Austin C. Keough, Paramount, and Joseph Hazen, Warners; for the Government were Robert Sher, special Assistant Attorney General; for the AAA: Sylvan Gotschal, counsel, J. Noble Braden, executive secretary and the AAA's board of directors. (The basic method of conducting arbitration under AAA procedure was described in MOTION PICTURE HERALD on August 24th, page 19.)

Features of Arbitration

The arbitration boards are to consist of groups of ten or more persons, to be chosen in each of the exchange areas. These persons, who must not be connected in any way with the industry, will be chosen by the American Arbitration Association. The costs of this will be met by levying a certain charge, based on percentage, against the earnings of each feature. A charge will be made against the exhibitor filing any complaint, but this charge will be small, it was said.

The new escape clause provides that if the Government, by June 1, 1942, has not obtained a final decree or decision by trial against the three holdouts—Columbia, United Artists and Universal—requiring them to give advance trade showings and sell in blocks of five, then the "Big Five" who are agreeing to the consent decree will be released automatically from those two provisions. All other sections of the decree would stand, however.

If the Government does obtain a final decree against the three companies then the "Big Five" may elect to observe the same conditions as laid down in the decree covering the three.

The decree, if effected, would become operative on September 1, 1941, precluding its application to 1940-41 contracts, but applying it to contracts for 1941-42.

The final form is expected additionally to provide for: (1) dismissal of all existing anti-trust suits instituted by the Government in various territories outside New York; (2) dismissal of all contempt proceedings in connection therewith; (3) exemption from the blocks of five selling provision all existing distributors' contract franchises, and film contracts between the defendants and their affiliated circuits.

More Exhibitor Opposition

Consideration to the opposing views of exhibitors and exhibitor organizations are being given by Department of Justice officials in Washington in connection with the proposed consent decree. Justice officials, however, would not officially divulge the trend of opinions expressed by the exhibitors but admitted that they had been pouring into the Capitol in considerable numbers.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the MPTOA executive committee would confer

The New Escape Clause

At the insistence of Twentieth Century-Fox, a new "escape" clause was incorporated into the proposed consent decree on Thursday, August 23, becoming Section Nine, and was agreed to in principle by the Government prosecutors and the "Big Five" defendants. It automatically provides that the five defendants, in the event that Universal, United Artists and Columbia are not under the pact by June 1, 1942, be relieved from Sections 1 and 2 (the advance trade showing and blocks-of-five selling clauses). Text of the new "escape" section follows:

"If on June 1, 1942, no final decree shall have been entered herein requiring each of the defendants, United Artists, Universal and Columbia, to trade show their features and to license them in groups for exhibition, Sections 1 and 2 of this decree shall be inoperative and of no binding force and effect upon any of the defendants consenting to this decree as to features released after August 31, 1942.

"If prior to June 1, 1942, such a decree shall have been entered against United Artists, Universal and Columbia, any defendant consenting to this decree shall upon its election be relieved from further compliance with Sections 1 and 2 of this decree upon complying with all provisions in such decree requiring United Artists, Universal and Columbia to trade show their features and to license them for exhibition in groups, and an order or supplemental decree to that effect shall be entered herein upon the application of the defendant or defendants so electing. Such election may be made at any time after the entry of such a decree against United Artists, Universal and Columbia."

EXHIBITORS' DECREE OPINION INVITED

with Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, in Washington, Tuesday, September 3, to discuss their objections to the proposed decree.

In Ohio, P. J. Wood, secretary of the Ohio Independent Theatre Owners in that State has asked exhibitors for their opinions on the block-of-five provision of the proposed decree. The directors of the organization were to consider the matter at a meeting at Columbus, Ohio, Thursday.

The United Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware went on record Thursday, Aug. 22 as being opposed to provisions of the "five-picture clause" in the proposed decree.

In a letter to Mr. Arnold, Lewen Pizor, president; and George P. Aarons, secretary, of the organization stated that the proposed provision "places the exhibitor at the mercy of the distributor, forcing him to buy in blocks of five, regardless of whether or not two or three of such block may be objectionable."

The organization further protested against withdrawing the cancellation right from exhibitors, which they claim would result from the proposed clause.

Opposition to the proposed decree in its present form is expected to be lodged with Justice officials by Allied and other independents. Allied officials are believed to have conferred in Washington with Mr. Arnold where objectionable portions of the proposed decree were pointed out. Independent exhibitors recall the Government's pledge that no settlement not satisfactory to them would be acceptable by Justice officials.

Urged to File Objections

M. C. Moore, president of the Southeastern Theatre Owners Association of Florida, in a letter to members of the organization urging them to file their objections, stated that exhibitors would prefer buying pictures under the present set-up with a cancellation privilege of 20 or 25 per cent or buy them one at a time.

Although secrecy shrouded its decision, dissatisfaction with the proposed decree is known to have been expressed by the New York Independent Theatre Owners. The exhibitors' organization sent its reaction to Mr. Arnold, following a lengthy meeting at the Hotel Astor.

The ITOA, however, expressed its satisfaction with the proposal to use the American Arbitration Association, to supervise the setting up of an arbitration system and formulate rules for its operation.

Griffith and Momand Cases in Oklahoma

Columbia, United Artist, and Universal have been granted until September 15th to answer or file objections to the interrogatories filed by the Government in its anti-trust suit against Griffith Amusement Company of Oklahoma City. Federal Judge A. P. Murrah, presiding in the case, issued the order upon stipulation of United States District Attorney Charles E. Dierker, plaintiff attorney, and attorneys for the defendant circuit and major producers and distributing companies.

The A. B. Momand vs. Griffith Amusement Company, et al, and Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp., et al, listed as 6516 and 6517, in the court's files, also progressed further this week when the plaintiff, Momand, filed a request for admission of facts under the rules of civil procedure for the district courts of the United States. There were four exhibits attached, A, B, C and D. One was a copy of the standard exhibition contract which was in use from May 1, 1925 to January 22, 1930, and final decrees in three federal court cases against film companies.

E. C. Stanard of Stanard, Carey and Stanard, Shawnee, Okla., where the plaintiff makes his home, and George S. Ryan, Boston, Mass., attorneys for the plaintiff filed the request for admission of facts.

In these two suits Momand is asking triple damages totaling $4,500,000 for alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust act, for damages he claims he sustained when he was forced out of business by conspiracy in restraint of trade. He formerly operated a chain of 18 theatres in the state of Oklahoma but is operating none at present. He owns the Odeon theatre in Shawnee, Okla., but leased that house to another exhibitor last year and is now engaged in the air conditioning business in Shawnee.

The request for admission of facts said in part: "Defendant distributors in licensing exhibition of motion picture films used a 'standard exhibition contract' from May 1, 1925 to January 22, 1930. The contract was adopted and used exclusively by the defendant distributors as a result of an agreement or understanding between them and other distributors of motion picture film.

"In a series of meetings at Omaha, Neb., June 22, 1930 to July 22, 1930, a zoning and protection plan for the Omaha distribution territory, a copy of which is attached as exhibit 'C' was adopted and agreed upon by certain individuals and corporations including a number of distributors of motion picture films.

"Among corporations which agreed on said zoning plan were the following: Paramount-Publix Corp.; First National Distributing Corp.; RKO-Pathe Distributing Corp.; RKO Distributing Corp.; Vitaphone Distributing Corp.; Publix Theatres Corp.

All of the defendants in the Momand suits have until September 15 to file objections or answer 585 questions propounded by the government in two interrogatories filed by the plaintiff. The federal government suit against the Griffith circuit is also at the same stage,—interrogatories have been filed by the government and the defendants have until September 15 to object or answer.

$300,000 Trust Suit Dismissed in Maine

The anti-trust suit of Edmund G. Pollard, Rumford, Maine, theatre owner, asking $300,000 damages from the Maine and New Hampshire Theatres company and the majors was dismissed this week by Federal Judge Francis J. Ford at Portland, Me.

The defendants moved to have the case dismissed on the grounds that Mr. Pollard did not appear before the person delegated to take his oral deposition at Rumford in accordance with the rules of civil procedure. No one appeared to represent Mr. Pollard and oppose the motion and the Judge dismissed the suit which charged that the majors and the local circuit had violated the anti-trust laws by depriving independent theatres of first run and major attractions.

FREULER RETURNS TO PRODUCTION

John R. Freuler, pioneer industry leader and at one time president of the old Mutual Film Corporation, announced this week, in Chicago, plans to return to production with a schedule of four features and 12 Westerns to be made in Hollywood. His American Film Corporation is now disposing of its film laboratory equipment in Chicago and is making preparations for Hollywood production.

Mr. Freuler, as president of Mutual, made the biggest dollar motion picture news of 1915 by signing Charles Chaplin at a salary of $670,000 for one year.

Finch Sells Facsimile Equipment to British

William G. H. Finch, president of Finch Telecommunications, Inc., of Passaic, N. J., announced Tuesday in a report to stockholders that the British Government had taken over a contract for facsimile equipment which had been placed by the French before that nation was conquered. The equipment is designed for the transmission of written and printed material between airplanes, field forces and headquarters as well as for general communication purposes behind the lines, it was said.

Frequency modulation (FM) broadcasting was hailed by Mr. Finch as "the greatest single achievement in the development of broadcasting since radio first became a popular convenience and entertainment feature. By FM sound broadcasting and written material can be transmitted over the same band without interference with each other, he said.

It was also announced that James W. Baldwin, former managing director of the National Association of Broadcasters and secretary of the Federal Radio Commission (predecessor of the Federal Communication Commission), has been appointed manager of the company's Washington office.

Roosevelt Leading In Newsreel Poll

Returns from the San Francisco newsreel theatre pushed Franklin D. Roosevelt into a 1,200 vote lead over Wendell L. Willkie in the poll being conducted by Newsreel Theatres, Inc., in its three newsreel theatres. Patrons vote by selecting a campaign button.

The standing Wednesday afternoon was as follows:

	For Roosevelt	For Willkie
Embassy, N. Y.....	25,602	21,891
Radio City, N. Y....	6,000	11,886
San Francisco	9,409	6,072
TOTALS	41,011	39,849

On a percentage basis the vote was split 50.8 percent for Roosevelt and 49.2 percent for Willkie.

Fidler in Film

The news-gathering methods of the radio commentator, James Fidler, are disclosed in Pathe News "Picture People," a new series for the company. Louise Rousseau directed. In the picture, with Mr. Fidler, are Bob Hope, Andrea Leeds, Arleen Whelan, Frances Langford, and others.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO TAKE M-G-M WITH A GRAIN OF SALT!

These are no times to take chances. The record of M-G-M over the course of 16 solid years of success is comforting to exhibitors. The stability of the company today with more stars than ever before and greater resources is a guarantee that's worth a fortune in peace of mind, safety of investment. SECURITY! That's important today!

THE THINKER ACTS!

"Don't they ever get TIRED? Can that M-G-M crowd keep it up forever?"

"One thing I like especially —M-G-M's got 18 top ranking producers, not just a few like other companies. It gives me a sense of security."

"Gosh, what a list of Stars! That's the policy they began with and they've been consistent ever since. More stars than ever now!"

"That's what I ask myself each year. My judgment is always confirmed. M-G-M always comes through."

"That outfit realizes that conditions change so they keep grooming new producers, writers, directors to keep up to the minute."

"It's a typical M-G-M summer. 'Boom Town', 'New Moon,' 'Andy Hardy Meets Deb,' 'Pride and Prejudice,' 'I Love You Again' and all the others. Every summer M-G-M's a life-saver to me."

"That phrase THE FRIENDLY COMPANY has real meaning. It's a pleasure to do business with them."

"Something I've discovered is that M-G-M's best is always better than anyone else's best, and M-G-M's average is always better than anyone else's average."

"WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR! WHERE'S THAT M-G-M CONTRACT!"

SWEET SIXTEEN

And he's always been kissed!

(by Miss Box-Office)

NOVELIST! PLAYWRIGHT!

KEEP WORKING!

"Every time I pick up a newspaper I read that M-G-M has bought a new stage hit or best-selling novel. They spend a fortune on story material."

It's a fact that M-G-M buys more novels and plays than any other company. As a result nowhere else do you get the fast change of entertainment pace which is the essence of showmanship. To keep the public coming, you must tempt them with new appeals each week and M-G-M does just that. Best sellers, famed stage hits — they get to be "Best" because they have great stories to tell. M-G-M is in a position to accumulate Big Time material which lends itself to the Big Time Production Standards of the M-G-M Studios.

AT THE TOP OF THE BEST-SELLER LIST!

It would take pages to illustrate all the great book and play properties in Leo's million dollar library of box-office properties. Here are just a few of them which will be source material from which outstanding attractions of the new season will be drawn!

HERE ARE PICTURES TO ENTER IN YOUR DATE BOOK!

M-G-M will produce a minimum of 44 and a maximum of 52 pictures in 1940-1941. Our friendly customers know from previous years that in listing a new season prospectus we reserve the right to make changes. Our mutual aim is to get the best ultimate results and any deviation from the following would only be in the interests of making the best pictures possible. We will let our record speak for that. The following pages reveal the greatest listing of entertainments and star values in the history of the Friendly Company. Here are the materials from which M-G-M's new season productions will be drawn.

Guild Cites Dies "Walkout"

Buron Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney, recently announced in the press his intention to subpoena certain members of Screen Actors Guild in Hollywood to question them concerning un-American and subversive activities. The Guild this week answered this announcement as follows:

"These members, eager for a full and fair hearing, experienced difficulty in being served with subpoenas, and on presenting themselves for questioning were pledged to secrecy and so could not publicly exonerate themselves.

"Congressman Martin Dies, on Friday evening communicated indirectly with this Guild regarding a list of Guild members against whom he alleges that he has evidence connecting them with subversive activities," the Guild continued. "He offered these Guild members an opportunity to appear voluntarily before him on Saturday, Sunday or Monday to clear themselves of these charges. However, he left Los Angeles on Saturday night before our members could take advantage of his offer if they wished to do so. He first issued a statement to the press that he was shocked that more of them had not come forward.

"Only 14 Guild members out of an approximate membership of 800 have been accused. On behalf of its total membership, the Guild reaffirms its belief in the constitution of the United States and the fundamental principles of Americanism.

"We, the executive board of the Screen Writers Guild feel that the recent actions of Mr. Fitts and Mr. Dies are capricious and unfair. The charges they make are grave and the Guild supports the small group of its members who are involved in their desire:

"1. To be given an opportunity to meet and refute these charges in an open, fully legal manner.

"2. Until they are given that opportunity, to be, in the American way, considered innocent until they are proven guilty.

"3. Not to be deprived of their livelihood or hindered in obtaining work by unsubstantiated charges of this nature."

The Actors Guild telegraphed Congressman Dies the texts of wires received from Lucille Ball, Frances Lederer, Lionel Stander, and Jean Muir volunteering to testify denying Communistic affiliations donations.

Franchot Tone, Louise Rainer and Francis Lederer were cleared Tuesday, in New York, of being Communists or sympathetic to the cause, after they appeared for special hearings before Representative Martin Dies. Mr. Dies said that they might have cooperated with or contributed to groups which they did not know were under Communist control. Lionel Stander, also accused, will be recalled by Mr. Dies when he returns to New York for hearings September 20.

Chatkin to Columbia

David Chatkin, former executive of the Paramount, and Monarch circuits, has been made assistant to Harry Cohn and Sam Briskin at the Columbia Hollywood studios.

Thorpe Leaves 20th-Fox

Chet Thorpe has resigned as advertising sales manager of the Twentieth Century-Fox exchange in Seattle and is now employed at the Bremerton Navy Yard.

Harry, Jack Cohn Will Get Pay Restoration

Restoration of salary cuts of one-third which were taken by Harry Cohn, president, and Jack Cohn, executive vice president, in September, 1939, will be made by Columbia it was indicated in the company's proxy statement for the annual meeting September 18, filed with the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday.

Harry Cohn who drew $149,767 for the year ending June 29, 1940, would be paid $2,500 weekly, plus a $300-a-week general expense account and 12 per cent of the company's profits above the required dividends on its $2.75 preferred convertible stock, under the proposed upward revision.

Jack Cohn would receive $1,500 a week, plus $200 weekly for expenses and 6 per cent of the annual profits in excess of the required dividends. The statement disclosed that the extra compensation from the profit-sharing deal would be limited so that Harry Cohn's compensation would not exceed $3,500 all told; Jack's not more than $2,000 —their former pay scales.

Bernerd Leaves Grand National

Jeffrey Bernerd, formerly director and general manager of Gaumont British sales, including those in the United States, resigned this week as co-managing director of Grand National Pictures, Ltd., after the acquisition of that company on Monday in London by British Lion Pictures.

At his New York offices, where he has been carrying on his Grand National business, including a participation in the marketing here of James Roosevelt's "Pastor Hall" acquired from Grand National for United Artists' release, Mr. Bernerd said Wednesday, that he still retained a financial interest in Grand National which, he said, would continue producing under its new owner. He added that he had the American distribution rights to "Frightened Lady," a GN film recently arrived, and that he might produce here.

Production in Hollywood by an American company he would form, depends on the outcome of present negotiations with a major distributor for release arrangements he said.

Expect 1,000 to Honor Myers at Banquet

Abram F. Myers, general counsel and chairman of the board of Allied States, will be guest of honor at a testimonial dinner to be held in conjunction with the three-day Atlantic City Convention of Allied of New Jersey which opens at the President hotel, September 25. Approximately 1,000 are expected to attend the testimonial banquet, to be held September 27.

Replace Loudspeakers

Frank Yassenoff and Herbert Beck, operators of the Riverside Auto Theatre, Columbus, Ohio, have installed individual speakers throughout their parking lot, because of an injunction suit by residents of the neighborhood, who complained that noise from the former loudspeakers disturbed their sleep and comfort. The installation of the individual speakers is expected to cause the suit's abandonment.

Paramount Circuit Partners Convene

Paramount theatre partners in the mid-West met on Tuesday at the Drake Hotel in Chicago and discussed probable effects of the pending consent decree settlement of the anti-trust suit, the new season's product, the admission tax and other operating problems. Those attending were Leonard Goldenson and Sam Dembow of the home office, John Balaban, A. H. Blank, Earl J. Hudson, Edward Hyman, Tracy Barham, Harry L. Nace, John J. Friedl, Harry David, Jules J. Rubens and Ralph Branton.

In addition to general operating questions the part theatre circuits can play in the program of national defense was considered at the session. A number of mid-western circuit operators were scheduled to meet with Government officials in Washington Thursday to discuss defense problems, particularly the dissemination of information on developments to the public by means of theatre screens. Mr. Blank, chairman of the Paramount theatre associates' committee for national defense activities, Mr. Balaban and Mort H. Singer were to leave Chicago on Wednesday to attend the Washington meeting.

Lawrence Resigns Goldwyn Post

Jock Lawrence, former war newspaper reporter and magazine writer who entered the Goldwyn organization six years ago as press representative, resigned, on Tuesday in Hollywood, as production assistant to Samuel Goldwyn.

Mr. Lawrence said he had no definite plans for the future. However, he is reported under consideration by the Motion Picture Producers Association, for the publicity post vacated by Tom Pettey two months ago. Mr. Pettey resigned at the time to become Hollywood representative of the New York newspaper, PM.

Mr. Lawrence is 37 years old, a native of Cleveland, a graduate of Yale. He has been in the publicity departments of RKO and Paramount. In 1938, he became Mr. Goldwyn's production assistant.

Seattle Changes

Several personnel shifts have been made in Seattle. Ruth Farnham, formerly of MGM, has become secretary to L. J. McGinley, at Universal; Chester Thorpe has resigned as advertising sales manager of the Twentieth Century-Fox exchange; Marion Forhan, formerly of the United Artists exchange in Calgary, Canada, has become bookers' stenographer at the Warner exchange; and Betty Rosenkauf has joined the same exchange.

Complete Coal Short

"The Story of Anthracite," in 16 mm sound, is available to schools, clubs, and other non-theatrical groups, its producer, Anthracite Industries, Inc., announced last week. The film tells the story of Pennsylvania hard coal.

Gore Building Two

Butler E. Gore is to build two new theatres in Tampa, Florida, adding to his present three. One will be in the business district; the other in a suburb.

SELZNICK INTERNATIONAL DISSOLVED, PRODUCER CONTINUES ON HIS OWN

Whitney Joins with Selznick in Statement Attributing Move to Causes Resulting from World Conditions

The David Selznick-John Hay (Jock) Whitney corporate setup of Selznick International Products will be dissolved, and Mr. Selznick, through his company, David O. Selznick Productions, will take over talent contracts and filming, to produce the two feature commitments remaining on his United Artists distribution contract. Further than that he has no plans.

Liquidation Voted

The immediate liquidation of Selznick International was voted on Friday of last week at a stockholders meeting in New York City. Although all debts were paid, and $2,900,000 in debentures retired together with annual interest at six per cent, and large payments made to stockholders, dissolution was ordered, it was said, because of present economic conditions brought about by the European war.

In explaining the action David O. Selznick, president and producer, and John Hay Whitney, chairman of the board, issued a joint statement:

"It is with profound regret that we feel that the risks involved, due to world conditions, make it desirable to take this step. We have striven for five years to establish and consistently maintain a high standard of product and we like to think that our trade mark became symbolic of an ideal in picture making."

Mr. Whitney is also prominently associated in the affairs of Technicolor, Inc. The Selznick-Whitney Selznick International's biggest picture, "Gone With the Wind," was made in Technicolor.

The producing and distribution contracts of Selznick International have been assumed by David O. Selznick Productions, Inc., formed two weeks ago in California. The new company will produce two films, possibly "Joan of Arc" and "Jane Eyre" to fill out the contract with United Artists which released all Selznick International films with the exception of "Gone With the Wind," distributed by MGM in a deal which involved the services of Clark Gable.

Acquiring Talent Contracts

David O. Selznick Productions will take over the contracts with players and directors, including Vivien Leigh, Ingrid Bergman, Joan Fontaine, Alfred Hitchcock, Robert Stevenson, Alan Marshall and Hattie McDaniel. Daniel T. O'Shea, vice-president of the old company, will become general manager of the new. Other executives of Selznick International who are expected to join the new company include Katherine Brown, eastern production manager, and Val Lewton, story editor.

Mr. Whitney, Mr. Selznick and Francis Altstock will serve as directors in dissolution while the assets of Selznick International are liquidated. All physical assets, it was said, will immediately be offered for sale. The nature of these properties was not given.

Others who will assist in the dissolution are E. L. Scanlon, former treasurer, who will act as fiscal agent on the West Coast in cooperation with Raymond A. Klune, production manager; Leonard R. Case, former assistant treasurer, who will act as fiscal agent in the East and Lowell V. Calvert, company sales manager, who will supervise liquidation of all exhibition contracts.

The principal stockholders in Selznick International included John Hay Whitney, C.V. Whitney, Myron Selznick, Mrs. Charles S. Payson, Norma Shearer, Robert Lehman, John Hertz. It was said that Mr. Selznick received enough for his services to finance the new company. He said, "I expect to retain 100 per cent of the new company."

Mr. Selznick said he had not decided upon the stories for the two pictures to be made for United Artists. He also told the New York press: "I make no promises that I'll make any pictures beyond those two." The final two required by the contract with United Artists will be finished, Mr. Selznick hopes, before next spring or summer.

Murray Silverstone, chief of world-wide operations of United Artists, issued a statement congratulating Mr. Selznick on the formation of David O. Selznick Productions. He said:

"In these troublesome times when the industry so badly needs important attractions it is extremely gratifying for us to know that the great talent and devotion that created immortal pictures like 'Gone With the Wind,' 'Rebecca,' 'Prisoner of Zenda,' 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' and so many others, has pledged itself to the production of pictures on an even more personal basis as you now propose."

Wishes Selznick Success

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., said, "I wish Mr. Selznick success. He has shown great creative ability, as evidenced by "Gone With the Wind," and I look forward to a continuation of this quality in his future productions." Mr. Selznick was at one time a producer on the Metro lot.

Selznick International was formed in October, 1935, with the following board of directors, who held office until the dissolution last week: Mr. Whitney, Mr. Selznick, C. V. Whitney, Robert Lehman, Myron Selznick, Loyd Wright, and Dr. A. H. Giannini. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Selznick expressed their appreciation of "the splendid and unselfish services rendered throughout the company's history by Dr. Giannini, the well known California banker and pioneer in motion picture financing."

In listing the honors won in the short history of the company it was said, "Throughout the entire five years of the company's existence, Mr. Selznick held first place as the producer of the greatest number of box office successes in the annual poll of exhibitors conducted by the Quigley Publications."

Players brought to stardom by Selznick International included Ingrid Bergman in "Intermezzo," Vivien Leigh in "Wind" and Joan Fontaine in "Rebecca."

Selznick International opposed double features and block booking and insisted that its films be sold individually, and recently came out with a policy of not selling any picture until it was completed.

Mr. Selznick had his early training in the industry from his father, Lewis J. Selznick, and successively was a reader, associate producer of Westerns at MGM, producer at Paramount, vice-president in charge of production at RKO-Radio, vice-president and producer at MGM, president of Selznick International and now head of David O. Selznick Productions.

THEATRE COOPERATION ASKED FOR SHORTS

Exhibitors who don't support the distributors in properly selling their shows are betraying the industry and the majors' efforts to make good product, Norman Moray, short subject sales manager of Warner Brothers, said Thursday, August 22nd, at the New York home office after a special screening of the company's new season short subjects for the press, exchange staff, and local exhibitors.

Mr. Moray said Warner Brothers, this year, in the face of continued double features and possible far-reaching changes in the structure of the industry, had extended itself in making shorts, using larger budgets, and high-salaried directors and players. "The thing that we specially are against is the use, in ads and displays for theatres, of merely the phrase, 'selected short subjects and newsreels'," he said.

Approximately 40 of the 86 scheduled new season Warner shorts are completed.

James Roosevelt Moves To Culver City Studio

Globe Productions, Inc., releasing through United Artists, has leased the major part of the RKO-Pathe lot in Culver City where ten sound stages and 16 acres of exterior sets are available. With this action Mr. Roosevelt severs all connection with the Samuel Goldwyn studio.

The RKO-Pathe studio in recent years had been known as the Selznick International Studio and there "Gone With the Wind," "Rebecca" and other major attractions were produced.

With the prospect of a $3,500,000 production schedule, it was announced that additional space was required. In two weeks production of "Pot O' Gold," featuring Horace Heidt and his band, is scheduled to begin. Harry Tugend is writing the screen-play. The second picture on Globe's schedule will come from the Samuel Bronston company which is to produce Jack London's novel, "Martin Eden."

Henry Henigson, general manager of James Roosevelt's productions, said he will begin work shortly in the new quarters on the first 30 of the 300 scheduled coin-in-slot machine shorts for Mills Novelty Company.

Korda Announces Six To Be Made in U. S.

Alexander Korda Films, Inc., which releases through United Artists, has announced its first American production schedule of six top-budget feature pictures. Mr. Korda has expanded his activities to include production in Hollywood as well as in London.

American headquarters of Korda Films are at the General Service Studio in Hollywood where in recent weeks "The Thief of Bagdad," filmed mostly in England, was completed.

The six features on the schedule are: a story based on the lives of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton, starring Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier; "New Wine," life of Franz Schubert, the composer, with Ilona Massey in the feminine lead; "I Have Been Here Before," starring Merle Oberon in a story written by her husband, Mr. Korda; "Jungle Boy," Sabu, and "Cyrano," Olivier.

Production is to begin in September on the Nelson-Lady Hamilton story and "New Wine," followed by "Jungle Boy" and "I Have Been Here Before."

The Old Subscribers' Roll Call

In connection with the preparation of the forthcoming special issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of Martin Quigley's service in the journalism of the screen, a recording of the older subscribers to the publications of the House of QP is being compiled.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD is prideful of the fact that its subscription rolls of today include the names of men who have been identified with the motion picture from the earliest days of organized exhibition—some of whose names were first inscribed on the rolls of Moving Picture World, beginning in 1907 and acquired by The Herald in 1928, and Motion Picture News, absorbed by The Herald in 1930—all today fused into the institution of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

It is desired to hear from those older subscribers from such a period as fifteen years ago, on back to the beginning. To make response convenient, a reply coupon is offered:

See Business Pickup In Ohio Territories

Exhibitors in two Ohio situations envision a pickup in business as a result of increased employment occasioned by the building of airplane factories under Government financing. A $35,000,000 airplane engine manufacturing plant will be built by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation on a 200 acre tract at Lockland, near Cincinnati, where from 12,000 to 15,000 will be given employment. A $4,000,000 airplane manufacturing plant will be built by Curtiss-Wright Corporation at Port Columbus, adjacent to the City of Columbus, which will employ around 10,000.

Business in Cincinnati, except theatres, has shown a consistent increase for 15 consecutive months, according to the Chamber of Commerce indices there. Gains in percentages for July of this year, compared with the same month of 1939, were: Employment, 17; bank clearance, 12; department store sales, 12.8; new car sales, 47; building permits, 28; and mortgage loans, 43. Theatre business has shown definite improvement with the advent of cooler weather, but, generally, it is below the levels of some of the previous comparable periods.

Three Circuits in Northwest Merge

A merger of three independent circuits in Washington, Alaska and California into one partnership has been disclosed in Seattle. The new company, to be known as Hubenart Theatres Company, will operate 14 theatres formerly owned by Arthur C. St. John of Centralia, Wash., Ben F. Shearer of Seattle and Hugh W. Bruen of Whittier, Cal.

The houses involved in the deal are the Fox and Liberty, Centralia; St. Helens and Pix, Chehalis, and the Monte theatre in Montesano, all owned by Mr. St. John; the Whittier, Wardman and Roxy theatres in Seattle, owned by Mr. Bruen, and the Tower theatre in Bremerton, Roxy in Everett, Revilla in Ketchikan, Alaska, and Capitol in Juneau, Alaska, all owned by Mr. Shearer.

NEW SUBURBAN MARKETS TAKING AS MUCH AS 25% OF CITY BUSINESS

Population Shift and Economic Movement Indicated in Census Report Draws Attention of Distributor Sales Heads

Motion picture distributors and operators of both large and small circuits are turning attention to the United States Census Bureau's 1940 report on the national consus disclosure of a marked shift of population since the last census, in 1930, from large cities and other concentrations to the suburbs and small towns.

Motion Picture Herald, on August 17th, page 25, reporting on the Census Bureau's latest tabulation of populations, showed the extent of the shifts during the past decade in the 37 cities having populations in excess of 250,000, and observed that, as a result, a substantial part of the future of motion picture exhibition, lies in the suburbs of the large cities and in the small towns surrounding such centers.

Emphasized by Sales Organ

The 1940 census figures are revealing population trends which are of importance to theatre owners and distributors, it was pointed out this week by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in The Distributor, its film sales department publication, which concludes, "Not only do the 1940 census figures confirm the expected trend toward decentralization of population, but they demonstrate that this movement away from the cities is also effecting an internal change which is materially affecting the cities' business structures."

Reports made to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, by appraisers in 200 cities, shows that central business districts have lost as high as 25 per cent to the suburbs and small towns in their areas.

And with the shift of population, theatre building is likewise shifting, new theatres being constructed to serve growing communities, particularly where industries have been moving to the rim of cities, creating new suburban residential districts.

With the loss of 25 per cent of business to the suburbs, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer notes that it has been necessary for downtown merchants, at increased expense, to establish branches in outlying districts to follow their customers' migrations.

Population Influence

"Exhibitors, like other retailers," observes MGM, "are dependent upon population for patronage. To what extent development of downtown theatres is affected by population migration depends upon a variety of conditions —the volume of transient trade, theatre policy and management, parking facilities, and so on. Generally and broadly speaking, it is probably questionable whether many large cities will much increase their present downtown seating capacity in the next decade.

"But much more important than this to the average salesman is the steady growth of theatre business in city outskirt and suburban areas. Nor can there be any assurance that rentals are keeping pace with business improvement unless grosses are constantly watched and carefully analyzed. Outside factors which should be regarded as straws showing how the wind is blowing include construction of all sorts, the attention which large retail units are giving to the area, the influx of professional men, development and activity of the real estate market, bankers' interest in the community and a variety of other equally obvious considerations," added MGM.

Cite Los Angeles

The distributor cites Los Angeles as a good illustration of why downtown merchants have been forced to establish suburban branches. Latest available census figures for that city show shrinkage of downtown retail sales from 43.2% in 1929 to 33.7% in 1935, but during this period the share of neighboring sections rose, Hollywood's from 9.9% to 11.9%, Wilshire's from 5.3% to 9.2% and Westwood's from 0.2% to 0.8%. As a result of population migration, principal Los Angeles stores have had to open "country" branches: Bullock's on Wilshire Boulevard and in Westwood, The May Company 6½ miles out on Wilshire, The Broadway in Hollywood, with a recent addition to it, and Magnin's and Coulter's and Saks-Fifth Avenue in outlying sections. Sears, Roebuck & Co. has five stores, none downtown, which are said to gross $25,000,000 a year.

St. Louis Trend Noted

The article continued, "St. Louis is another city where this trend had been the subject of study before census figures again centered attention on it. There are 62.5 square miles within the city limits but it has a ring of suburbs. Population loss between 1910 and 1920 affected 13% of the city's area. During the next ten years 26% of the city's area lost population. Up to the present decade, this decentralization has been steadily progressing while the city itself was showing population gains—6.3% from 1920 to 1930. But the 1940 St. Louis population shows a 1% loss, the figutes dropping 8,212 from 821,960 to 813,748. While a breakdown to show the affected area is not yet available, there is not much doubt that considerably more than 26% of the city has lost population.

"In Los Angeles between 1930 and 1939 there were 75,611 family residential units built, practically all of them being three miles or more from the business district, most of them from three to five miles out and a good deal still further away. Along with this population have gone stores, doctors, automobile sales rooms, dentists, repair garages—and theatres.

Researcher Finds One Solution to Lost Film Markets In Rural U. S.

Hollywood producers should expand their marketing to reach the "forgotten 32,000,000" financially able residents of rural communities who never or rarely ever attend the movies, instead of directing their attentions toward the more or less steady picturegoers, Samuel E. Gill, New York research specialist, said Tuesday, in summarizing the results of an independent survey which he conducted of rural communities.

Mr. Gill declared: "The biggest opportunity for the new business Hollywood needs to offset the loss of European markets will be found in the rural districts."

Mr. Gill, former research director for Crossley, Inc., the National Resources Board and the Twentieth Century Fund, declared that, although upper half city incomes average $2,500 as against $1,800 in the rural top 50 per cent, spendable income for both is approximately the same because rents and food prices absorb more of the city dwellers' income.

"The ruralite puts more of his income into having a good time," continued Mr. Gill. "In addition, the lower half rural population also has more to spend than the lower city 50 per cent and spends it.

"Ruralites will go far for amusements. My study showed that 83 per cent in the lower 50 per cent brackets travel to more than one town to see movies. Some 89 per cent in rural communities own and operate automobiles.

"But, it seems to me, big companies neglect everything except key cities in developing consumer demand. An indication of what can be done in the rural field is proven by the success attained by suburban and rural theatres located on main highways and equipped with adequate parking facilities."

Sends Ambulance Fleet

Twenty-two ambulances of the Lewis J. Warner fleet, purchased by the American Red Cross, are en route to England. The fleet, costing $25,300, was contributed by Harry M. Warner and is dedicated to the memory of Mr. Warner's son.

Milestone Is Signed

Lewis Milestone, who directed Ronald Colman and Ginger Rogers in "Lucky Partners" soon to have its New York premiere at the Radio City Music Hall, has been signed by United Producers to direct the first production which this company will release through RKO Radio Pictures.

Vance To Build

Willis Vance, who operates the Ohio and Eden, Cincinnati suburban theatres, and the State, a neighborhood house at Newport, Ky., just across the river from Cincinnati, has acquired a site for a new 750 seat theatre at Oakley, Cincinnati suburb. It will be located across from a new theatre to be built by R. L. Fitzwater, until recently manager of the Avon, in Cincinnati.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Mr. J. Glottman, now in New York, carries some strange tales about exhibition in and around the country of Colombia in South America, where he is sole distributor of the products of National Theatre Supply Company and International Corporation.

For the most part, equipment for theatres must be flown into the remote regions, at quite some expense.

For instance, Domingo Galeano, an exhibitor customer in Arauca, who operates a theater in the inlands of Colombia, had to pay $928 in shipping charges alone to have a Simplex projector, Walker screen and Delco lighting equipment sent by plane from Bogota.

Mr. Galeano's section is a wild cattle country, although the population is not wild, merely primitive. His customers pay him half-a-cow admission to his theatre. The price of a cow in that sector is around $1.65. Some Colombian cattle ranchers run as many as 100,000 heads on the hoof to market, taking two months for the journey. Conditions are so severe, however, that the ranchers arrive with no more than 10 to 20 cows out of each 100 started.

Jack O'Leary, manager of the Old Colony theatre on the rockbound shores of Massachusetts at Plymouth, is the latest to receive a contribution to a "conscience fund."

The other day he received a letter, unsigned, which stated that a parent patron has two sons, one 11, the other, 12, and that after the older one became 12, he continued going to the Old Colony theatre, as do many of his friends, for juvenile prices. The parent wrote that this was dishonest, and to correct the wrong, enclosed one dollar to cover the difference between that which the boy did pay and that which he should have paid.

Some folks out in Anamosa, Iowa, however, do not have a similar spirit. The other day Victor Young, manager of the Circle theatre there, noticed a man carrying a little fellow in his arms, who bought a single 20-cent adult ticket, the 'child' being carried in free. After the performance, Mr. Young noticed the 'child' in the smoking room, puffing on a big, black stogey. Closer examination revealed that he was a well-wrinkled midget.

Linda Winters, RKO actress picked to play with Orson Welles in his first Radio production, "Citizen Kane," is in reverse on name changing. She's returning to her own name, Dorothy Comingore.

We pass along the formal and official statement which Warners passed on to us, announcing Hollywood's newest accomplishment in these days of so many great Hollywood accomplishments:

"The longest kiss of motion picture history was photographed yesterday at the Warner Bros. studio, with Ann Sheridan and George Brent, real-life sweethearts, the principals in the marathon performance.

"From contact to break, the record kiss, exchanged for the fadeout scene of 'Honeymoon for Three,' lasted exactly 56.2 seconds, script clerk stop-watch time. It shattered, kiss statisticians declare, the old record of 49 seconds flat, credited to John Barrymore and Dolores Costello. The Barrymore-Costello mark, made in 'The Sea Beast,' has endured since the old silent film days.

"Other notable osculatory performances eclipsed by the Sheridan-Brent collaboration include the 47-second kiss of Greta Garbo and the late John Gilbert in 'Flesh and the Devil' (editor's query: 'member that one?), the 35- and 40-second efforts of the late Rudolph Valentino and Agnes Ayres in 'The Sheik,' and the more recent 30 seconds plus embrace of Charles Boyer and Hedy Lamarr in 'Algiers.' Even Theda Bara's swooning embraces are said to be made to appear brief by comparison with the new record.

"Approval by the Hays office, which normally limits kisses to 30-second duration, is taken for granted because of several circumstances. The kiss is the final fadeout scene of the picture, and so is delivered at a time when true lovers should be entitled to embrace as long as they please without censure. Circumstances require a sustained embrace. Last, but not least, rumor has it that Miss Sheridan and Brent will marry.

"In view of all these circumstances, Director Lloyd Bacon loaded his camera with ample film and let them run on and on for a full 90 feet while the stars kissed for the new world's film record."

Police in Zurich, Switzerland, banned the American-made somewhat humorous western production of Universal's "Destry Rides Again," because it displayed too much fighting and shooting. Newsreels on the same local programs showing the Nazis' destruction of Dunkerque were permitted to continue. Which shows what it shows.

There's always open house at radio station WOR for persons with new program ideas. Only a few, however, are found airworthy. Most of them are just no good. Here are a few rejected recently by John S. Hayes, assistant to Julius F. Seebach, Jr., in charge of programs:

An international broadcast in which the originator of the program wanted to talk personally with both Churchill and Hitler, explaining Churchill's position to Hitler, and vice versa. "I can do this so well," said the "idea man," "that everything will be cleared up. They will each understand the other, and the war will be called off at once."

The Great American drama: "About Northerners and Southerners, and Easterners and Westerners, and it will be authentic because where the script calls for a character from the Midwest, he will broadcast from Chicago and where I have a Southern character he will broadcast from Atlanta, and so on. In this way, my drama will originate in cities and towns all over the country at the same time."

A different kind of art instruction program: The lad who dreamed this one up claimed he had a simple method for reducing all works of arts to simple numbered system of lines, curves and angles. "I will describe a famous painting over the air, like the Mona Lisa, and listeners can follow my system, and paint a Mona Lisa themselves, right in their own homes."

If Don Kuhn at Detroit's Pal-State theatre ever gets the idea again to use his male ushers for freak exploitation, he'd better turn elsewhere for help.

The other day he had his ushers take turns in front of his theatre, dressed a la caveman, in leopard skins, posing as "glamour boys" of 1,000,000 B. C., to exploit the Hal Roach-United Artists picture "1,000,000 B. C." One of the "glamour" ushers was chased for blocks by two score clamoring girls, who finally treed him in a park. He finally escaped to the revolving door of a nearby department store, but was arrested for obstructing traffic.

Beneficences of $50 are almost extinct in motion picture exhibition, but Owen Holmes, who operates the open air Auto-Vision theatre in East Greenbush, outside of Albany, N. Y., got one the other night just the same.

A car pulled up to the ticket office, the driver asked for two and gave Mr. Holmes a $50 bill, adding gratuitously "Keep the change." Amazed, Holmes went out to see his patron to return the money. After a short interchange Holmes recognized his patron as Steve Williamson, a studio technician in Hollywood.

Mr. Williamson had borrowed $50 some 25 years ago towards his trip to California, where he eventually made good. Reading about Mr. Holmes' managership of the Auto-Vision project in Motion Picture Herald, Mr. Williamson determined to repay the debt once he got back east and stopped off just to do that little thing.

2,000 NAMES RISE TO FAME WHILE 3,000 ARE DIMMED, SAYS ALMANAC

QP's Annual Reference Volume for '40-'41 Records Personnel Changes of Screen Credits for Production Season Passed

Hollywood, ceaselessly searching for the materials of fame, elevated 2,011 names to cast sheet prominence this year, a 400 per cent increase in the rate of manufacture of eminence, while 3,021 players, writers and technicians had their hold on attention reduced to a reference line to make way.

The count is based on the Who's Who section of the 1940-41 International Motion Picture Almanac, a Quigley publication, out next week. Last year evanescent fame brought only 520 new names, to make room for which 986 biographies were reduced to reference lines back to prior editions.

16,000 Biographies

Edited by Terry Ramsaye and compiled by the staffs of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, Better Theatres, Motion Picture Daily and Fame, the twelfth annual edition of the Almanac contains five pounds, avoirdupois, of listings and statistics in addition to the compilation of 16,000 names of industry talent and personnel in the biographical section.

The average age of the displaced talent is calculated to be five years above the average age of those being raised into fame and position, but the grand average of all screen players remains where it was a year ago, at 34 years. Nearly all reductions were made in the talent and technical groups of Hollywood, the executive personnel remaining approximately the same except for changes and promotions within the industry. The biographical data in the section is given in some 920,000 words.

In the standard vital statistics sections of the book it is shown that the industry spent approximately $150,000,000, the same as last year, to give the customers the 584 pictures produced and distributed during the year. Some 350 new theatres were constructed between June, 1939, and June, 1940, and approximately $35,000,000 was spent on them and on rehabilitating older houses.

300 Companies Listed

The new edition carries a combined, cross-indexed Corporations section in which are listed 300 principal companies engaged in the business of motion pictures, with their executive personnel. In another section the bankers' story of the year is told in the financial statements of the larger companies.

For the first time documentary pictures and their producers get reference book attention. Fifty-five of these films now in circulation are listed with the 150 producers engaged in that type of production in the United States.

Under Television and Broadcasting attention is given to the newest entertainment medium, its present leaders and boundaries; to facsimile transmission, rapidly growing method of communication, and to the older industry of radio broadcasting. In this division are listed 250 stars who divide their time between radio and films.

There are 57 division headings in the book's 1,112 pages, from the biographies to the list of active labor unions and employee organizations and the digest of news of the year.

ALMANAC LISTINGS CROSS-INDEXED

The twelfth annual index of the International Motion Picture Almanac contains some 1,100 items, listing producers, distributors and exhibitor organizations, with a cross index of financial statements, officers and other pertinent matter, ranging from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences to the letter Z—B. F. Zeidman, Zenith Cinema, Zenith Radio.

Actors, writers and directors, the documentary film, the advertising film, labor organizations, publications, radio, television, technical groups, foreign film distributors, sign companies, newsreels, a chronology of the motion picture and No. 87-273, the U. S. Bill of Complaint against Paramount Pictures, Inc., et al., now in the process of a consent decree, also are listed.

West Virginia, Penn., Jersey Exhibitors Meet

The West Virginia Theatre Managers Association held its annual convention Tuesday and Wednesday at the Greenbrier Hotel in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. One of the principal speakers was Edward L. Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Tex Ritter, cowboy star under contract to Monogram, was to be a guest of honor at the convention banquet. The arrangements were in charge of J. C. Shanklin of Ronceverte, W. Va., and W. H. Holt of Richwood, secretary-treasurer of the organization. S. J. Hyman, president, presided at the meetings.

Jersey Allied Meets

Allied of New Jersey met Thursday at the Hollywood Hotel, West End, N. J., to discuss plans for the organization's convention to be held at the President Hotel, Atlantic City. The closing banquet will be a testimonial to Abram F. Myers of national Allied.

Allied Independent Theatre Owners, Philadelphia, met last Tuesday to discuss industry problems.

The meeting of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Connecticut has been postponed until September 23rd.

Illinois Group Convenes

The United Theatre Owners of Illinois met in Champaign, Ill., a week ago Tuesday to discuss impending state taxes. The members discussed ways and means of organizing a defense against any additional taxes.

William F. Crouch, executive secretary of the recently formed UTOI group, said that more than 30 members had joined in the last two weeks and that he would set up permanent headquarters in Springfield in September.

North Dakota Election

Frank Wetzstein of the Mandan theatre, N. D., was elected governor from western North Dakota at a meeting of the Independent Theatre Owners' Association of North Dakota, held recently in Mandan.

The group is endorsing Northwest Allied. However, it was decided to retain the North Dakota organization for social reasons and to cope with such legislative matters as may be of interest only to North Dakota exhibitors and theatre owners.

Michigan Allied Sets Meeting

Allied Theatres of Michigan will hold its 1940 convention in Jackson, Mich., October 7-9. The board of directors convenes on the opening day, with the two succeeding days to be devoted to general business conditions.

A testimonial banquet in honor of Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Association, will be a highlight of the 21st annual convention of Allied of New Jersey in Atlantic City on September 25-27.

Brigham Young

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

The Story of the Mormons

This is the story of the Mormons, from Nauvoo, Illinois, to Salt Lake City, Utah, from persecution on through months of hardship, sickness, despair, death and disloyalty, plague and prayer, to the valley that nobody else wanted and the place of peace and prosperity they made for themselves there.

Combined in the picture are many things that have prospered the screen since its beginnings. Here is, first of all, entertainment on a scale commensurate with the proportions of the scene and time dealt with—the nation's frontier as it pushed westward under the thrust of men and women whose courage and convictions, on whichever side of the frontier code, were unquestioned. Here is, too, entertainment in terms of the faith of men in their God under conditions putting that faith to trial by fire, by famine and by forces of nature. Here is, in a degree not attained since "The Covered Wagon" if then, the drama that flows from the spectacle of a people fleeing distress and pressing on in quest of a homeland. And here, as in no other film save D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" and George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man," is the thrill that is born of beholding faith instrumental in righting the affairs of man.

But it is not to be understood that it is as a spectacle or as a sermon that "Brigham Young" has been handled by Darryl F. Zanuck and comes now to the nation's seekers after entertainment. On the contrary, it is as a melodrama packed with incidents affecting the lives of many people, incidents ranging from mob-violence to locust-plague, that the story of the Mormons is narrated. Nor is the dialogue placed in the mouths of Joseph Smith and Brigham Young the measured language of the pulpit, but rather the language of men of purpose and expediency in a place and time when choice of words was a luxury.

The picture opens with the bigots banded against the Mormons at Nauvoo taking to horse and gun to attack the settlement, continues with them firing the houses and barns, beating some of the men to death, shooting others. It goes on from there to the trial of Joseph Smith for treason, Brigham Young's defense of his leader, Smith's conviction and assassination by a mob that breaks into his cell.

From this beginning the picture moves forward to show the flight of the Mormons across the frozen Mississippi to Iowa, across Iowa to the haven offered by friendly Indians at Council Bluffs, onward from there with Mexico as destination, later with California beckoning a part of the band with tales of gold, finally to the halting at the present site of Salt Lake City, the cultivating and planting of the land, harvesting of the first crop, the rationing of food during the protracted winter and—with the coming of spring—the coming of the locusts to devour the young grain.

The efforts of the settlers to vanquish the onswarming locusts—called crickets in this picture, perhaps, 'though needlessly, to prevent association with a similar sequence in "The Good Earth"—furnishes a crisis in the story that would serve as a climax in any super-special. Here it is depicted as breaking the spirit of Brigham Young, although not his faith. He summons his people around him to announce his unfitness to lead them, but before he can do so the sky is blackened by flocks of seagulls (they'll tell you in Salt Lake that gulls never came so far inland before or since) come to devour the locusts. This is the climax of the picture and the turning point in the fortunes of the Mormons.

In common with stories of magnitude, sweep and power, the record of the Mormons' crossing of the nation overshadows performances and personalities in the picture. The title role is played by Dean Jagger, that of his wife by Mary Astor. A romance played out against the background of the story of the Mormons is handled by Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell. The many who play name parts are listed below. The cast numbers in the hundreds.

Off-screen talent responsible for the vigor and impact of a film to be remembered include Kenneth Macgowan, associate producer, whose name on a film has meant much and will mean more from now on, Henry Hathaway, director, accountable for performances of distinction en solo and en masse, Lamar Trotti and Louis Bromfield, screen playwright and novelist, who accepted their material as they found it in the records and fashioned it without fear or prejudice for the screen's public.

Patriotic Romance

The arrival on the screen of this patriotic and moving presentation of the early American fight for freedom and independence comes at a time most appropriate for the purposes of exhibition and exploitation.

The production is a concise and faithful dramatization of the lengthy, epical study made by Elizabeth Page of pre-Revolutionary and Revolutionary periods in American history which, when issued in book form as "The Tree of Liberty" gained wide popularity with the reading public. Director-producer Frank Lloyd, who so eloquently distilled into a celluloid capsule the spirit and essence of the British people in "Cavalcade," has fashioned a rousing testament to the principles of American democracy. Sidney Buchman, composer of the screen script for "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," reiterates the tribute to the American way of life.

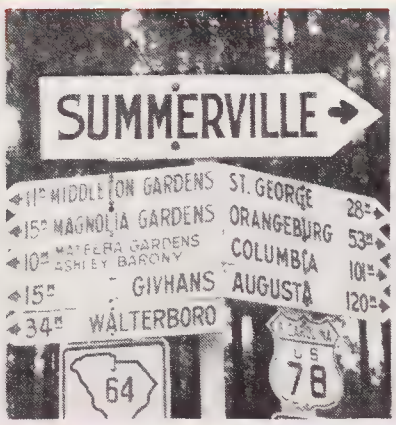
Although the material is heavily annotated with historical and patriotic lines, the human element in the form of the romantic couple, "Matt Howard" and "Jane Peyton" is given equal emphasis and is utilized to introduce and highlight the history page sequences. This dramatic balance is due in great part to the sincere and sensible playing of Cary Grant and Martha Scott.

One of the surprises of the production is Mr. Grant forsaking his well recognized comedy forte and emoting in a straight, dramatic role with substantial success.

The story opens with a prologue in which young "Matt Howard," the son of poor backwoods folk, meets the youthful "Thomas Jefferson." It is through this friendship that years later, "Howard," now a surveyor, goes to work for the aristocratic "Peyton" household and falls in love with "Jane," the daughter of the estate. The couple marry and return to the rough and ready district of "Howard's" earlier years.

Through the encouragement of "Jefferson," "Howard" enters politics and when hostilities between the colonies and the mother country break out, he sides with the colonials and joins the army in spite of the protestations from "Jane." Eventually, he is joined by his two sons in the revolutionary movement and when his first-born crippled son distinguishes himself by a feat of bravery, the father belatedly becomes reconciled with him. The saga ends with Cornwallis bottled up at Yorktown, as "Jane" and "Matt" are reunited politically and romantically.

Previewed at the Astor Theatre on New York's Broadway, where a capacity audience of specially invited exhibitors and press representatives gave the film its complete and undivided attention and was particularly demonstrative at the film's finale when "Matt" Howard eulogizes the democratic philosophy of life and government.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.



Produced and released by Columbia. Frank Lloyd, producer and director. Associate producer, Jack H. Skirball. Screen play by Sidney Buchman. Music and score by Richard Hageman. Photography, Bert Glennon. Art director, John Goodman. Interior

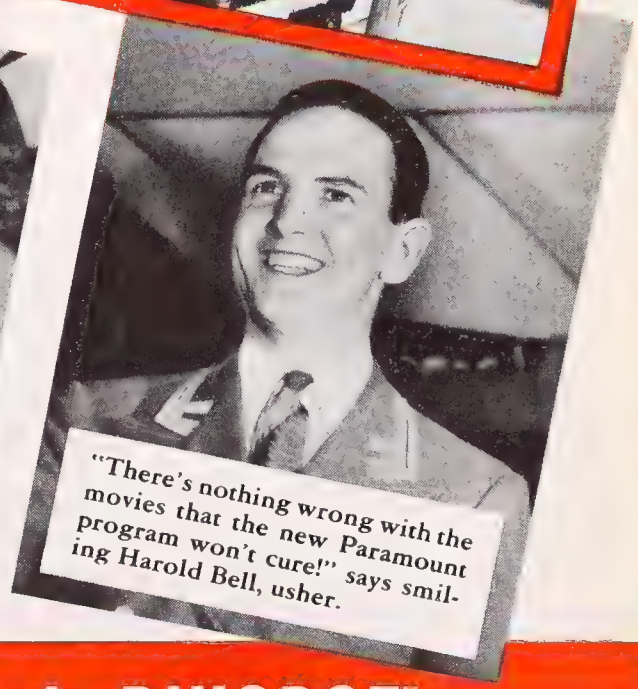
HIGH-HAT SUBURBAN TOWN

"I cater to the station-wagon set. My customers see the Broadway shows . . . sing the latest hit tunes . . . read the new books. And they want the best in pictures, too. That's why I look to Paramount this year. Stage hits like 'Kiss the Boys Goodbye' and 'Skylark'. . . stories like 'An American Vagabond', the life of O. Henry, and 'City That Never Sleeps,' from best-seller 'F.O.B. Detroit'. . . new stars from the stage like Betty Field, Mary Martin, Leila Ernst, Eddie Bracken . . . and the lightest and gayest of musicals like 'Rhythm on the River'. . . that's the kind of entertainment the Westport people want . . . and that's why Paramount's going to get the big play from Westport this year!"



—GEORGE COMDEN, Owner-Manager of the Fine Arts Theatre (499 seats) Westport, Connecticut

Even in swank Westport Hopalong Cassidy finds an ardent supporter.

Three of Westport's younger set discuss "Rhythm on the River." "I liked Oscar Levant best," says Helen Jones. "Give me Bing any time," says Janet Bendtzer. "My heart belongs to Mary Martin," says Joyce Guyaz.

"There's nothing wrong with the movies that the new Paramount program won't cure!" says smiling Harold Bell, usher.

"After the show at the Academy, most folks like to drop in for a soda. Noticed when it's a Paramount picture, business here picks up!" That's Bill Carter on the right talking. Joe Boswell smiles agreement.

Bus Driver D. W. Mook: "Thanks for tipping me off about that new Joan Blondell and Dick Powell comedy, 'I Want a Divorce.' I'm laughing already!"

"The Paramount line-up looks like extended playing time, and that's right up our alley. Paramount's weeded out the 'B's' and weak sisters and given us a chance to get back into real show business. With all the big ones coming up, we can exploit, advertise, and build up runs that'll look like marathons . . . and that's where the profit is. Take the Benny-Allen 'Love Thy Neighbor' . . . Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland in 'Arise My Love'. . . and, well, any one of the pictures in this announcement . . . with shows like these it looks like we can really kiss the 'B's' goodbye!"

Owner of the 730-seat Acade Theatre, R. H. SHADLEY, ta over the Paramount program w Manager E. T. CLAFFEY.

ROBERT S. BATES, editor of the Meadville Tribune - Republican, after looking over the new season line-up, says:

"We congratulate Paramount on its forward-looking program for the year, concentrating its efforts on fewer pictures and emphasizing humor and action wherever possible. The nation needs more humor and entertainment to maintain its balance!"

"Did you hear Dotty Lamour and Robert Preston are going to be in 'Moon Over Burma'? I saw them in 'Typhoon' and I wouldn't miss their next picture for anything!"

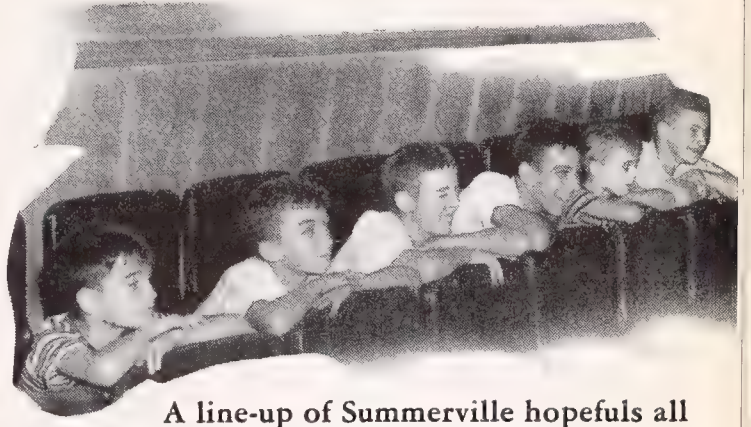
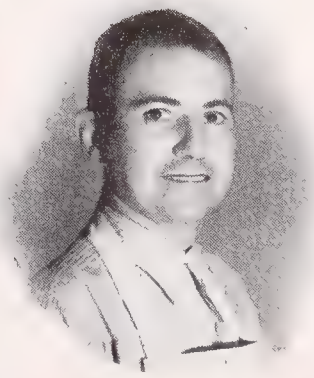
IN THE HEART OF THE DEEP SOUTH



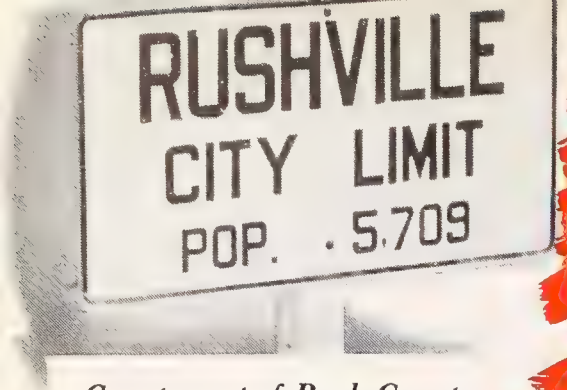
"We want the kind of pictures our customers want," says owner Morris Legendre," and right now they want light entertainment, with music and laughs and popular stars. No problem pictures to make 'em worry...no propaganda pictures to remind 'em of the headlines. Looks like Paramount has its ear close to the ground, 'cause they're giving me exactly the kind of entertainment I need to keep my audiences happy ...'Rhythm on the River,' and one that looks as if it was made specially for me, 'Virginia'!"



MR. LEGENDRE looks over the Paramount line-up...and begins to count up those good old grosses on the adding machine.

"Got to have a mighty strong show to get the folks into town these 'dog days'. Thanks to Paramount, there are no 'dog days' at the Summerville Theatre. Those big ones keep my house packed!"

A line-up of Summerville hopefuls all wrapped up in the antics of "Hopalong Cassidy"! Mr. Legendre believes in building his program to satisfy everyone.



"Paramount sure knows its groceries," cracks clerk Roy Driggers, "to keep those swell pictures coming one after another. 'Texas Rangers Ride Again,' and 'The Quarterback' look wonderful to me!"

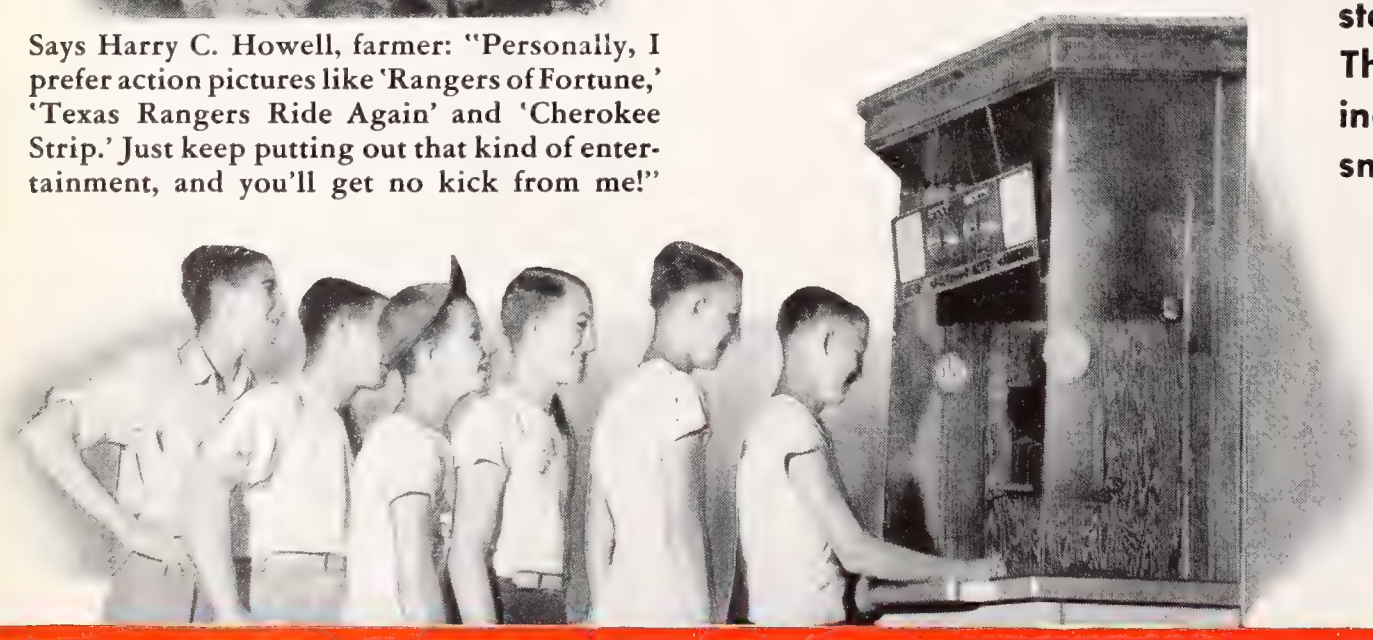
County seat of Rush County . . . three factories, but predominantly a farming town.

RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE U.S.A.



Here's what ROY HARROLD, owner of Rushville's 667-seat Princess Theatre, says he needs this year:

"The people who come to my theatre are mostly farming folk. And they like their entertainment down to earth, too . . . the kind they can understand, like Joseph Conrad's 'Victory' and 'Aloma of the South Seas.' Not that they don't like musical comedies. Most everybody tunes in on Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, and every one of these stars packs the house for me. Thanks, Paramount, for turning out the kind of pictures that small town audiences go for!"

Says Harry C. Howell, farmer: "Personally, I prefer action pictures like 'Rangers of Fortune,' 'Texas Rangers Ride Again' and 'Cherokee Strip.' Just keep putting out that kind of entertainment, and you'll get no kick from me!"

Roy Harrold says he can keep these lads in line even during the basketball season with Paramount comedies.

WAY OUT WEST IN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

FRANK PANERO, manager of the Delano Theatre.

"Action . . . and more action. That's what we want out here. And I'm tickled pink to see that Paramount's put the emphasis on action again this year . . . pictures like 'Rangers of Fortune,' 'Sunrise in My Pocket,' 'Shepherd of the Hills' and 'Cherokee Strip.' And I'm glad to see we're getting six more Hopalong Cassidies. They do better business for us than any other series of Westerns made.

"I've been playing Paramount product for 25 years. My all-time record was hung up with Paramount's 'Covered Wagon.' This year, with all the big ones coming up, I'm out to shoot holes in that record. Paramount's putting more money into every picture . . . and I'll get more money out of every one!"

This is the Wasco Theatre. Folks here like their movies a little more sophisticated. Paramount's got the right program for them, too.

O. L. Johnston, agricultural worker, says: "History pictures are my dish. That's why I liked 'Union Pacific' and that's why I look forward to 'Sunrise in My Pocket' and 'TexasRangersRideAgain'!"

"Comedies with radio personalities—people I hear on the air but never get to see except in the movies—appeal to me. Paramount seems to have all the big radio stars . . . so I'll take Paramount!" So says Marion Twiford of Delano Union High School.

"Looks like our Saturdays are all taken up, Joe. Did you see that list of swell pictures coming?"

What 5 experts say about PARAMOUNTS SHORTS...

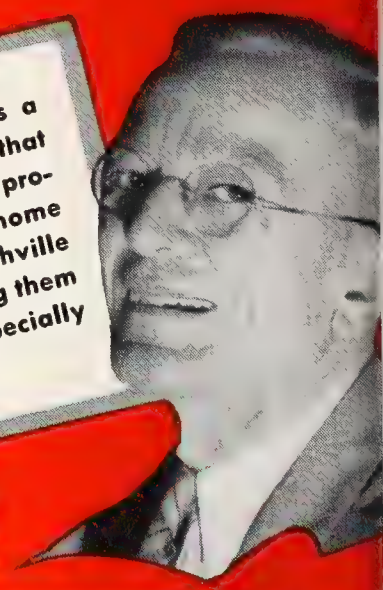
"You'd be surprised, or maybe you wouldn't, what a terrific kick Westport audiences get out of Popeye. They're just the thing to round out a perfect Paramount program. And those Benchley comedies are sure to get a bang-up reception!"

—GEORGE COMDEN,
Fine Arts Theatre,
Westport, Conn.

"Paramount Animated Cartoons are the tops in the business. I'm glad that you made a star of Gabby and put him in his own series. My audiences loved him in 'Gulliver' and sure will welcome him back. I'm anxious to see that new 'Merry Models' series, with puppets!"

—FRANK PANERO,
Delano Theatre,
Delano, Calif.

"Do I like Paramount shorts? You bet! They've got everything I need to balance my show and keep the customers happy. Variety . . . color . . . and, say, that pre-testing sure does work out swell. There's plenty of those Paramount shorts that get marquee billing in my house!"



—MORRIS LEGENDRE,
Summerville Theatre,
Summerville, N. C.

"When I run on a single feature policy, I need a strong short subject program to round out the bill. Paramount gives me just what I want. The new line-up looks very good to me, indeed!"

—W. H. SHADLEY,
Academy Theatre,
Meadville, Pa.

"I look on Paramount shorts as a kind of show insurance. I know that as long as there's one on the program, my audiences will go home happy. And then, folks in Rushville practically insist on my giving them their Paramount News, especially in these times!"

—ROY HARROLD,
Princess Theatre,
Rushville, Ind.

Foreign Correspondent

(UA-Wanger)

International Adventure

With public attention focused as at no time since the days of Richard Harding Davis and Floyd Gibbons upon the dispatches filed by American journalists overseas, to whom producer Walter Wanger has dedicated this picture in a foreword of eloquence and force, showmen have here an attraction possessed of timeliness both as to subject matter and with respect to marketability. Quite apart from the names supplied for the marquee, the story told and the setting dealt with, the film furnishes its own basis for enlisting support and cooperation of newspaper and radio station.

Adventure, mystery, suspense and intrigue are its keynotes and these are rung in sequence and out, counterpointed on occasion with comedy, in a manner to fascinate, amuse, entertain and —in a finish that had a preview audience cheering—thrill its beholders. This ending, in which the foreign correspondent of the title broadcasts a message to America from London, during an air raid, drives home its lesson of preparedness with a power attained by none of the films which have sought by depicting Nazism in operation to dramatize its threat to democracy.

Unlike other pictures pertaining to the war in Europe, this one employs the place—London and Amsterdam—and the time—August-September, 1939—as setting for its story of a newspaper reporter sent from New York to get a story about what's going on behind the scenes of international diplomacy. The reporter is witness to the assassination of a Dutch pacifist, pursues the assassin, learns that the murdered man is a double, killed in order that the pacifist may be tortured into revealing an unwritten clause of a treaty, goes on to discover that the supposed British leader of a peace organization is in fact a German secret agent, a fact unknown to his daughter, with whom the reporter has fallen in love.

Attempts are made upon the reporter's life and other correspondents join him in his attempt to rescue the Dutch pacifist, which succeeds. Then war is declared, the German spy boards a clipper plane for America, the reporter does likewise, and the plane is shelled, comes down in the sea, reporter and girl returning to London when rescued, the spy drowning to save his daughter. The reporter files his story by telephonic subterfuge. The broadcast follows.

There is no withholding of identities of nations represented, but neither are there denunciations out of character, appeals to prejudice or partisanship. Dialogue by James Hilton and Robert Benchley, who also plays a part, and the original screen play by Charles Bennett and Joan Harrison stick to the story of adventure. Casting, which presents Herbert Marshall as the German spy instead of the British hero and George Sanders as the British reporter instead of the German spy, has the effect of mystifying the audience to advantage. Joel McCrea's portrayal of the reporter is of a kind to satisfy both reporters and laymen. Albert Basserman's performance as the Dutch pacifist is something to tell the customers about in advance.

Alfred Hitchcock's direction emphasizes movement, suspense and realism.

Previewed at the Four Star theatre, Hollywood, to a matinee audience composed in about equal parts of profession and public, applause emanating in like measure from both groups. —W. R. W.

Flowing Gold

(Warners - First National)

Oil and Character

Suggested by a Rex Beach story, this Kenneth Gamet screen play treats of oil and the people who bring in wells, in terms of action and a psychological reform.

The reform takes place in the person of the embittered young oil worker portrayed by John Garfield; and is effected by a foreman played by Pat O'Brien and a girl enacted by Frances Farmer. Love for the latter finally pursuades the young man to return and face trial for a murder committed in self defense.

After struggles including a fight for their lease, a fire and a landslide, the three main characters bring in a well on which all had staked everything they possessed, as had the girl's father, seen as Raymond Walburn. Principally in support are Cliff Edwards, Tom Kennedy and Granville Bates.

The picture was directed by Alfred Green, with William Jacobs as associate producer.

Previewed at Warners' Hollywood Theatre, Hollywood, where the picture was received with some restlessness by an audience of both the public and professionals.—WALTER SELDEN.

Produced and distributed by Warners-First National. Associate producer, William Jacobs. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Original screen play by Kenneth Gamet. Suggested by a Rex Beach story. Kit Carson

(UA-Small)

Biographical Melodrama

Just where fact leaves off and fiction begins in this panorama of the people, places and events associated with the fame of chief scout Kit Carson, is a matter for sticklers and historians to haggle over, not exhibitors or theatregoers. The news of interest to showmen and their customers is that Edward Small has made of the Kit Carson character a figure befitting the tales told of his heroism, daring and decision, a personality matching the ruggedness of his setting. No stereotype of romance is the Jon Hall of this casting and no fabrication of fantasy the narrative unfolded. On the contrary, the Carson story is a western produced as a western with all the trimmings plus realism, momentum and conviction.

Opening with an attack upon Carson and two companions by Shoshones, an episode in which blood is let and lives are taken, the story moves on to the scout's arrival at Fort Bridger where he meets Captain John C. Fremont and his cavalry and Dolores Murphy and other members of a wagon train turning south from the Oregon Trail bound for California via the high Sierras and Shoshone country. Taking charge of the wagon train, he proceeds in company with Fremont until the officer leads his troops into certain ambush, branching off from there. Indians attack both cavalry and wagon train, Carson's rescue of both furnishing a stretch of melodrama packed with action suspense and gunfire. It is on arrival in Monterey, however, that the Carson story takes on dimensions and significance, continuing on to include establishment of the republic of California, defense of the Murphy hacienda against the Mexican governor-general's forces, a sequence appealing to the spirit of adventure and patriotism, finally the joining of America with the forces of the republic.

Direction by George B. Seitz is for realism rather than glamour, motion rather than sentiment. George Bruce wrote that kind of a screen play from Evelyn Wells' story. Photography by John Mascall and Robert Pittack make of the mountainous background a treat for the eye. Ward Bond and Harold Huber as the scout's buddies, Lynn Bari as the girl, Dana Andrews as the rival and Raymond Hatton as Jim Bridger lead the support.

Elsa Maxwell's Public Deb No. 1

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Cinema Cocktail

This is a comedy of New York life as lived belowstairs and abovestairs, by rich and poor, fabricated for purposes of laughter and with front-pages and society-columns of the newspapers as source of material used and treatment accorded it. Save for the presence of Elsa Maxwell, portraying Elsa Maxwell as the columnists have taught the public to know her, none of the characters are genuine, but anyone who reads is at liberty to identify them with personalities in cafe-society and elsewhere at will.

The debutante pertained to by the title is presented as the richest girl in the world whose engagement to a Republican candidate for Congress becomes ensnarled when, having been enrolled in the Red campaign by her Russian butler, she leads a Communist parade, gets arrested, photographed by the tabloids and nationally identified with the Communist movement. A penniless waiter in a Russian restaurant spanks her for her sentiments—with the cameras looking on—and becomes a national idol. Her canned-soup business is boycotted to the verge of bankruptcy by outraged housewives and she pretends to renounce Communism for the purpose of thus restoring the business to a state of prosperity so that she can sell it and turn the proceeds over to the Party. Just as she is about to sell it, however, Russia invades Finland, her Finnish boxing teacher flattens her Russian bulter and she decides Democracy may be all right after all, marries the young man who spanked her and keeps the soup business.

Brenda Joyce as the debutante and George Murphy as the boy she marries are to the fore throughout, Miss Maxwell having little to do but be herself. Charlie Ruggles as a capitalist who doesn't worry, Mischa Auer as the Russian butler and Maxie Rosenbloom as the Finnish athletic coach supply most of the background comedy, Franklin Pangborn performing a bit that is in a class by itself as a delicate bartender.

The story, although fashioned for humor in all particulars, leaves no doubt as to where the writers—Karl Tunberg, Don Ettlinger and Darrel Ware—stand with respect to Communism. They're against it.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Westwood, where it was greeted with laughter and, when dialogue or action tended to expose Communist doctrine as fakery, applause.—W. R. W.

Dr. Kildare Goes Home

(MGM)

Case for Municipal Clinics

In this number of the Kildare series the interne graduates, accepts an appointment as staff-physician under the mentor who has overseen his training, and then goes home to discover that his father, practitioner in a village upstate, is failing in health under the strain of attending more patients than he can care for with safety to himself. The young doctor, aided by his chief of staff, determines to establish a clinic in the town under conditions whereby the citizens, on payment of 10 cents per week, can assure themselves of medical services supplied by three young doctors who join him in the project.

Success in working out his solution of the problem confronting the townsfolk is arrived at by way of a series of incidents which have the result of dispelling prejudice against the clinic system of medicine after argument and persuasion have failed to do so. Dialogue includes presentation of the arguments put forth by proponents of this plan.

Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and Laraine Day again play the parts they have played in former Kildare pictures. Samuel S. Hinds, Gene Shelton, Emma Dunn and Nat Pendleton head the support.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Westwood, where it was attentively regarded, induced perhaps somewhat milder response than most of its predecessors.—W. R. W.

The Durango Kid

(Columbia)

Western

A rip snorting product of the west "The Durango Kid" employs the masked rider theme as the stepping off place for its fist fights, gun duels and other accoutrements of the western. Music and song, too, has its place here with the Sons of the Pioneers taking care of that department. For romance the film has Luana Walters playing opposite the star, Charles Starret.

"Bill Lowry" (Charles Starrett) returns to his father's ranch the day the father is killed by "Mace Ballard" (Kenneth MacDonald), a neighboring rancher. "Ballard" has been conducting a campaign of terror against various homesteaders, driving them from their land, and resented the interference with his plans by "Lowry, Sr." "Bill" suspects "Ballard" from the start of his investigation.

Appointed a deputy marshal "Bill" forsakes the law for the costume of "The Durango Kid," a mysterious frontier Robin Hood, who had operated in Texas, just prior to the story's opening. He strips "Ballard" of his money and turns it over to the homesteaders. "Ballard" by a ruse recovers the money. In a final showdown between the two "Ballard" admits to the murder of "Bill's" father, which is overheard by the marshal and a posse he has gathered.

Dance, Girls, Dance

(RKO Radio)

Comedy of Dance

Maureen O'Hara, Louis Hayward and Lucille Ball are co-starred in this tale of a ballet troupe and the lives of some of its members. Principally concerned are the two leading feminine players, who resort to appearances in a burlesque show as a way of providing themselves with the necessities. Miss Ball becomes a burlesque queen, Miss O'Hara her stooge, doing a straight ballet number between appearances by her friend. The burlesque sequences end with a denunciation from the stage of her audience by Miss O'Hara.

Louis Hayward is cast as the youthful heir to a tire fortune, whose matrimonial misadventures touch the lives of both girls, and include a marriage to one. Virginia Field appears as his first, and, ultimately, third wife, while Ralph Bellamy is director of a ballet troupe in which Miss O'Hara finally gets her chance.

The cast includes, as well, Maria Ouspenskaya, Mary Carlisle, Edward Brophy, Walter Abel, Ernest Truex and Sidney Blackmer; and Vivian Fay is seen as a ballerina in a sequence which caused spontaneous preview-night applause.

Harry E. Edington was executive producer, Erich Pommer produced and Dorothy Arzner directed. The screen play was written by Tess Slesinger and Frank Davis, from a Vicki Baum story. The film's songs were the work of Edward Ward, Chester Forrest and Robert Wright, and dances were staged by Ernst Matray.

The Mummy's Hand

(Universal)

Horror and Humor

Principally appearing in this story of Egyptian tombs and a mummy preserved over the course of many a lifetime are Dick Foran, Peggy Moran, Wallace Ford, Eduardo Cianelli, George Zucco, Cecil Kelloway, Charles Trowbridge and Tom Tyler. It is a film in the thrill-chill category and handled accordingly.

The screen play by Griffin Jay and Maxwell Shane, from an original by the former, takes a young archeologist and his party on an expedition into the desert to discover a lost tomb, a trip which inadvertently brings them to the discovery of a mummy whose life has been preserved.

The picture was directed by Christy Cabanne and produced by Ben Pivar.

Arizona Frontier

(Monogram)

Western Melodrama

Based on a screen play by Robert Emmett, Monogram's latest western production has Tex Ritter, the company's cowboy star, as the white man raised by Indians on a reservation and later appointed by the government to choose a spot where the east and west branches of a railroad will meet. Treachery by an army lieutenant, gun fights and rides across the prairies supply ample action for western fans.

Supporting Ritter in his role of government agent and justice seeking cowboy are Jim Thorpe, well-known athlete, as the Indian chief "Grey Cloud," "Slim" Andrews, the constant companion of Ritter, and Evelyn Finley who handles what little romance there is in the picture.

Edward Finney produced "Arizona Frontier" and the picture was directed by Al Herman.

SHORT PRODUCT

Dogs You Seldom See

(Vitaphone)

Sports Parade

Photographed in color "Dogs You Seldom See" is an interesting assemblage of the rare canines gathered from various parts of the world. Dogs of all varieties are seen, including the afghan, a Japanese spaniel, bedlington, saluki, one of the oldest breeds in the world, the bull mastiff, the toy Brussels griffon, the Chinese crested and the Mexican hairless, and the Mexican Medicine dog that is supposed to protect its owners from sickness. The subject, aided by off-screen commentary, will hold the interest of all including those who have little interest in canines.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Football Highlights

(Vitaphone)

Sports Parade

With the football season rapidly approaching Vitaphone will release "Football Highlights," the first in the series of Sports Parade subjects. In it the thirlls and highlights of the game in past seasons are captured by the camera. Much of the reel is dedicated to Knute Rockne and the technique made famous by him while coach at Notre Dame. Slow-motion and stop-action shots enhance the interest as the tricky and clever plays of the Rockne teams are put into effect. This is an ideal subject to play previous to the opening of Warner's feature picture, "Knute Rockne-All American."—Running time, 10 minutes.

Riding Into Society

(Vitaphone)

Starring Elsa Maxwell

Here's a two-reel subject produced in the flash-back manner revealing how the first lady of society, Elsa Maxwell, crashed the much envied upper strata. The film opens with Elsa enjoying a sea voyage as a young girl more than a few years ago. On board the ship she meets an Englishman and his wife who invite her to join them on their estate in a fox-hunt. Elsa nervously assembles a riding habit and joins the hunters only to be given the friskiest horse in the stable. When the animal bolts with Elsa on his back she leaves the party of hunters under the impression that she is a great rider. They refuse to believe otherwise. The subject was directed by William McGann who has woven some interesting and amusing situations throughout. This is an excellent subject to play in advance of the forthcoming Twentieth Century-Fox picture reviewed in this issue, "Public Deb. No. 1" in which Miss Maxwell has a leading role.

From Nurse to Worse

Stoogian Slapstick Selection

The trio of "Peck's Bad Boys," the Stooges, receives for once the just reward of their murderous mannerisms. The lads are talked into forsaking honest labor by means of taking out health insurance and then cashing in on the pretext they are mentally unbalanced. "Curly" is selected to impress the examining physician and he pretends he has delusions of being a dog. The doctor diagnoses the case as one in need of a brain operation. The boys hide while the doctor spreads the alarm of an escaped lunatic being at large. "Curly" is finally apprehended and is saved from the surgeon's knife by his two buddies posing as hospital employees. The lads finally wind up back on the job and go to work on the gentleman who sold them the idea of health insurance. The boys fall into a lapse of bad taste when, caged in a dog catcher's wagon, they begin to delouse each other.—Running time, 17 minutes.

A Peep in the Deep

(Columbia)

Fable Cartoon

This drawing board tale concerns two brothers on a fishing trip. They haul up a bottle inside of which is a map for a sunken treasure. Off they go in quest of the buried prize. After some difficulty in hoisting the treasure chest because of an interfering octopus, the brothers finally lift the lid and out pops, as a surprise for both hunters and spectators, another octopus with the message that he is "Yehudi."—Running time, 6½ minutes.

Way Back When a Razzberry Was a Fruit

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Stone Age Cartoon

Another in the Stone Age cartoon series, this has adopted the latter day newsreel to show what went on in those distant times. The subject is similar in its characters and humor of previous issues of the series. A dinosaur, a sabre-toothed tiger and a caveman hunter, who manages to squeeze in every sequence, are typical of the animated Fleischer characters. Running time, 7 minutes.

Pictorial No. 2

(Paramount)

Two Items

Two items are presented in this issue of the Pictorial series. First, male hair styles through the years are reviewed. The item is handled in a comic manner and no doubt audiences will derive much pleasure from men's hair styles of the past. The second item concerns the fitting of spectacles to faces, feminine faces in this case. Included in this item is a picturization of the making of modern optical glass. Narrated by Ward Wilson. Running time, 11 minutes.

You Can't Shoe a Horse Fly

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Hunky and Spunky

Continuing the adventures of the appealing donkeys, Hunky and Spunky, this Max Fleischer color cartoon has little Spunky trying to take an afternoon nap while a fly buzzes around with the obvious intention of satisfying his hunger at Spunky's expense. Spunky is no match for the calculating fly but Hunky comes to the rescue. The situations are clever and make for an entertaining cartoon. Running time, 7 minutes.

Men of the Lightship

(GPO Film Unit-ABFD)

War at Sea

In early 1940 Nazi planes bombed and machinegunned a lightship off the Norfolk coast, emptied their chambers into the dinghies. This superb and moving documentary recreates that crime, makes of the result the most dramatic and haunting film evoked by the War. Albert Cavalcanti and David Macdonald, producer and director respectively, shooting on the spot, filming the Dudgeon itself, using no professionals but men from the Trinity House lightships themselves, have done a superlative job in documentation. The "matey" life aboard ship, the personal interests of the victims, the merciless thoroughness of the German planes, the foggy wastes of the North Sea, the background efficiency of the Navy, and the tragic irony of the ending that brings them to land as they collapse from sheer exhaustion, all are woven into the story. The camerawork is lucent and finely textured, the cutting adds something to the narrative, and the simple accents of the seamen themselves gives the tale its final note of authenticity. Running time, 25 minutes.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

FCC SEES HOLLYWOOD AS SOURCE OF TELEVISION PROGRAM SUPPLY

Chairman "Amazed" at Studios' Potential Ability to Supply Shows; Paramount Circuit Partners Study Medium

Television programs originating in Hollywood studios and using film technique were seen this week by James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, as the possible answer to television production problems which have received relatively little attention in the midst of the engineering and commercial disputes.

Visited Studios

Mr. Fly has returned to Washington from the West Coast, where he went through the Warner, Paramount and RKO studios and expressed himself as amazed at the techniques and properties of the film industry which could readily be adapted to television production.

As a result of his inspections, undertaken in a study of the effect of television on motion pictures and the possible coordination of the two, Mr. Fly said he had concluded that television program production was crude compared with that of the motion picture.

"We may have laid too little emphasis on the production end of television and may not have appreciated all that the motion picture people have to offer from that point of view," he said.

The chairman referred particularly to the sound techniques of the studios and to their tremendous stores of properties, their spacious lots and many stages, which, he said, suggested that the film industry well could give consideration to the possibilities of acting as a production center for "live talent" television programs.

Mr. Fly expressed disappointment that more motion picture studios had not applied for television station licenses. At present time only Paramount has asked for a permit.

Paramount Partners Concerned

Theatre partners of Paramount, with the exception of Balaban & Katz in Chicago, have expressed interest in television but have taken no action. Paul Raibourn, television coordinator for Paramount, has reported that some of the partners have asked him about the advisability of applying for a television station. After being told about the investment required and the fact that there might be no income from television for some time, it was said that the Paramount theatre partners lost their immediate interest.

Mr. Raibourn would not predict when he thought television would become commercial.

He said that the progress being made was probably all that could be expected, pointing out that at least two competing companies will be experimenting this winter in a number of cities.

In Chicago tests will be made with a portable transmitter before a fixed location is definitely selected. "We have some theories of our own which we would like to test," Mr. Raibourn said. The best location for a television transmitter, has generally been considered the highest available point, usually the top of some building as the Empire State Building for NBC and the Chrysler Building for Columbia Broadcasting System in New York. Special problems are presented by Lake Michigan on the entire East side of Chicago.

Mr. Raibourn predicted that the DuMont television system a Paramount affiliate, would receive continually greater acceptance because, he said it is a more economical method of achieving even better results. This winter the DuMont and RCA systems will be tested in about five cities each. Philco in Philadelphia and Zenith in Chicago are experimenting with their own equipments.

NBC in New York is said to have two reasons for not wishing to put its television station back on the air until some general agreement is reached on standards. Broadcasts were suspended last month. The first is that it does not wish to go to the expense of making two changes in its transmitters; the other is that it does not wish to continue to pay large sums of money, estimated at $500,000 per year, for television programs, if there is no immediate prospect of commercialization.

Mechanical Changes Necessary

The action of the FCC in giving the old number one television channel to FM broadcasting has required one change in the NBC television transmitter and similar adjustments in each RCA receiver. If the National Television Systems Committee should adopt a standard other than the one which NBC-RCA planned, a second change would be required.

Columbia Broadcasting System has been experimenting with television in New York for several years. Gilbert Seldes was appointed director of television programs over a year ago, but, up to now, no programs have been telecast to the public. There is no indication that CBS plans regular television programs this Fall. The failure to start telecasts was originally laid to delay in delivery of equipment but it is now reported that CBS is waiting for the question of standards and commercialization to be clarified. CBS plans to conduct tests, however, in three or four cities this fall.

At the meeting of the sub-committee chairmen of the National Television Systems Committee held last week at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City it was decided that sub-committees or panels should meet during the first two weeks in September and a general meeting of the chairman should be held at the end of that month. It was recognized that completion of a final report, hoped for by January 1, 1941, was contingent on whether or not the various elements represented would agree to a compromise on many disputed points, including the number of lines for each picture and frames or images per second.

NBC's station in New York and several other stations operated last year on the Radio Manufacturer's Association standards of 441-line images and 30 frames per second. DuMont Television Laboratories and others led the fight for flexible standards and attacked what they called freezing the art at hearings held last winter by the FCC. This fall, according to announcements, a number of different standards will be in actual operation.

Combined System Patented

A patent was issued last week to Peter C. Goldmark for a system which combines sound, television and facsimile broadcasting and reception all in one. One sychronizing signal controls the television and facsimile hookup. The television signals are carried on one wave and the sound and facsimile on another. The patent has been assigned to Markia Corporation of New York City.

The Radio Corporation of America was the assignee on a patent obtained by Humboldt W. Leverenz on a luminescent preparation for the television receiver which gives the image any desired color.

The Consolidated Wire and Associated Companies of Chicago has applied to the FCC for a television station permit. The company is headed by Paul Mann and Joseph Mann is secretary-treasurer.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth District has ordered a new trial in the case of Elias T. Stone, Harold Stone, John G. Anderson and E. T. Shaw, underwriters of the stock of Television & Electric Corporation and Television & Projectors Corporation, who were convicted on evidence offered by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Department of Justice.

On Friday night General Electric in Schenectady was scheduled to carry the speech of George A. Mead, department commander of the American Legion to the New York State convention by six different mediums. In addition to being broadcast on the standard band, on short wave and by FM, it was televised, carried to a legionnaire sick in Buffalo by wire and from the studio to the Hotel Van Curler on a beam of light. The light beam was converted to sound at the hotel by a photo-electric cell.

FILMS AND EDUCATION

Recognition of films on the part of the higher education is proceeding apace—latest manifestation of the new rapprochement being the offer extended by the University of Southern California to Warner director William Keighley.

In mid-September, Mr. Keighley, whose last was "No Time for Comedy," and who is now engaged on "Four Mothers," will start directing a course in cinema direction in the University Department of Cinema, Division of Arts.

Running a year, the course will meet on Friday evenings, and will cover "Analysis and interpretation of screen plays, discussion and demonstration of principles — composition, picturization, movement, rhythm, pantomime, study of films to demonstrate various principles and methods."

Among others, it is said that Mr. Keighley plans to exhibit several of his own films.

Huey Succeeds Westlund

Charles Huey, formerly with roadshows, has been named advertising and publicity manager of the downtown Golden Gate theatres in San Francisco, replacing Ben Westlund.

Get Film Labratory

Missouri Film Laboratory has been taken over by Charles Siebenthaler from Milan E. Triplett. Mr. Siebenthaler formerly was with Advertising Accessories, Inc.

Resuming Vaudeville

The Brandt circuit in New York will resume vaudeville at the Flatbush and Windsor theatres September 9th.

BROADWAY STAGE AT ALL-TIME LOW

The Broadway stage, heart of the legitimate drama in America, one of Hollywood's story sources, turns to the new season, this Labor Day weekend, leaving records behind of the poorest season in 20 years, hitting a low in both quailty and quantity.

The Broadway theatre has been slipping steadily, since its peak years around 1927-28 and 1928-29, when 302 plays were produced, reaching the low in the past season of only 97 produced, 75 per cent of which were failures.

The figures are from The Billboard's annual survey, which will appear in that amusement publication of August 31 date.

There were only 20 "hits" during the year, 14 dramatic and six musicals. Forty-five plays closed within five weeks. The overall average length of playing time was 115 performances for the musicals, 70 performances for dramas.

Of the total 97 produced, 77 were dramatic, 20 were musicals, with the percentage of failures running at 78 per cent and 67 per cent, respectively.

The preivous low was 110 plays produced, each, in the two previous seasons. This dropped 13 shows in the year just turning.

The number of 20 hits compares most unfavorably with the middle 1920's, when hits were running 70 a year.

However, a more optimistic note for the new Broadway show season was heard in New York, Tuesday, from the Dramatist Guild, which reported that prospects for 1940-41 were excellent, basing its conclusion on the number of dramatist contracts with producers already reaching its office. They are far more than at any similar time in past seasons.

Guild officials are working with Actors Equity to aid in the establishment of experimental theatres and hope to have a plan formulated early this Fall. Generally, the plan is expected to provide for Equity to reduce the minimums required for performers and for a waiver of some of the provisions for royalties by the Guild. These waivers, however, will be available only to cooperative groups which provide for a sharing of profits among actors and dramatists if the ventures are successful. It is hoped that such groups will stimulate new approaches to the legitimate stage and introduce new techniques which will improve the art.

Negotiations with the League of New York Theatres for a new minimum basic agreement to succeed the contract which expires next March will be started during September, it was said. Provisions for purchase of film rights by motion picture companies in advance of stage production have been shelved by the League but the Guild believes that the plan may be revived during the general negotiations on the basic agreement.

Guild officials expressed doubt that there would be any major changes in the new contract. Most of the changes would be for clarification of doubtful terminology, it was said, and there is little likelihood that the League will get very far in its request for a 50-50 per cent division of proceeds when plays are sold to film companies.

The Billboard's review of the legitimate stage of Broadway over a 20-year span, statistically, starting with the 1920-21 season, follows:

British Planning Export Film Drive In the Americas

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

The British Government will make a concentrated effort to stimulate the sale of newsreels and short subjects in Latin America and features and short subjects, but not newsreels, in the United States.

Official confirmation has been obtained of the report recently published in MOTION PICTURE HERALD that the British Ministry of Information is organizing a drive to promote the export of British product.

Newsreel in South America

It is known that the 100 per cent British newsreel, organized recently as a joint effort of all British newsreels, is already distributed weekly in Latin America. Also, the Paramount British reel, which is sent regularly to Latin America, Canada, Australia and other parts of the world carries a certain portion of British Information Ministry propaganda sequences.

It is considered virtually certain that the British drive will include the dispatch of a representative to North and South America to stimulate distribution of British films.

A high Government official said the changed attitude of Americans and the gradually changing attitude of the British service departments toward propaganda had aided the plan.

Commission Worries U. S.

American film interests here are understood to be greatly concerned over the probability that a new British Film Industry Commission is to be established by the Government in the near future. Especially are they concerned over the extent of the industry control which will be exercised by the commission. It is pointed out that obviously the Commission aims at a greater control of the industry, by the British, and especially the control of the marketing of foreign product.

The British Board of Trade and financial interests here are believed to be back of the establishment of the film commission. A secret committee is understood to be at work on initial plans for the commission.

The committee is understood to include in its membership D. E. Griffiths, former head of First National here and former president of the Kinematograph Renters Society. The membership does not represent any particular trade body.

Gildemeyer Lauds Havana Project

F. H. Gildemeyer, manager in Havana of the Western Electric Company, Inc., of Cuba, arrived in New York last week for an extended vacation. He expressed enthusiasm over the theatrical development in Cuba and cited, as a recent example of progress there, the 14-story building project now rising in downtown Havana, which will include two theatres.

He said the main theatre of this project, which was designed for Antonio H. Rodriquez by the architectural company of Martinez y Rojas, will seat approximately 1,800 persons.

Weiser to Kansas City

Martin Weiser, assistant exploitation man for Warners in Hollywood for the last year, has been transferred to handle exploitation in Kansas City.

Hold Testimonial Dinner for Lampe

Gus Lampe, retiring city manager of the RKO-Schine theatres in Syracuse, N. Y., was given a testimonial dinner Wednesday at the Onondaga Hotel there. Mr. Lampe has been appointed zone manager for the Schine circuit in eastern New York, Maryland and Delaware.

Mayor Rolland B. Marvin was honorary chairman of arrangements, assisted by Gene Curtis, Paramount manager, acting chairman; Harry Unterfort, who suceeds Mr. Lampe in Syracuse; Harvey Cocks, manager of the Strand; William Goff, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Assembly. Frank J. Revoir, of the Sentinel Broadcasting Corporation, was to be toastmaster.

Among film men invited were J. Meyer and Louis W. Schine, John O'Connor, Fred Myers, Malcolm Kingsbury, Leon Goldberg, Harry Mandel and Max Fellerman, all of RKO Theatres, and George Lynch, Frank Boucher and John May of the Schine organization.

Form Chicago Club

William Weinshancker of the Universal exchange in Chicago has been named president of the newly organized Reel Fellows Club, there an organization of film salesmen. Other officers are Lou Goldberg, Paramount, vice-president; Irwin Joseph, Columbia, secretary, and Bob Funk, Universal, treasurer. On the board of directors are Harry Goldman, Warners; Milt Simon, Twentieth Century-Fox; Morris Hellman, Monogram; Harold Wirthwein, Paramount, and Mike Kassell, RKO.

Declare Canadian Dividend

The third dividend for this year has been declared on the common shares of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, the amount being 25 cents per share, payable September 27th to holders of record September 17th. Similar amounts were paid for each of the first two quarters of 1940. It is estimated that the circuit will round out the calendar year with a disbursement of $1 per share.

Harris Honored

John H. Harris, president of the Harris Amusement Company, of the Arena Managers Association, and national chief barker of the Variety Clubs of America, this week was given "The Floral Tribute" by the Jewish Outlook, publication which honors a different Pittsburgh citizen weekly.

New Warner Display

Warner Brothers is instituting a new type of 40″ x 60″ display, which is to be called the "Photochrome Display." The new unit combines photo enlargement and color. Displays are transparent and can be used very effectively in all shadow boxes. They will be available for "No Time for Comedy," set for release September 14th.

Holt Joins 20th Century-Fox

Archie Holt has become a salesman for Twentieth Century-Fox in Seattle, succeeding Jean Spear. Mr. Holt was formerly manager in Seattle for Gaumont British, and more recently has been associated with Jesse Jones in the operation of the Granada in Portland. The house has been sold to Al Meyers of Newberg, Ore.

No New Ontario Tax Seen; Form Defense Brigade

Mitchell Hepburn, Prime Minister for the Province of Ontario, has officially announced that the finances of the province are such that no new taxation to finance war, unemployment relief or other projects is contemplated and that no session of the legislature will be called in the Fall unless an emergency arises.

Previously there had been an intimation from the Ontario Government that the amusement tax would be restored as a war measure after a lapse of the admission levy for three years. Mr. Hepburn said that current revenues are meeting budget requirements in spite of loss of income due to increased war imposts of the Federal Government which had cut into the provincial field.

Operators' "Brigade"

The projectionists at all theatres of St. John, N. B., are now part-time soldiers. They are members of the searchlight battery of the non-permanent militia, having decided to sign up for the special war service together. Their object is to focus giant searchlights from building roofs on invading air and sea craft to facilitate matters for the anti-aircraft gunners and coast artillery. One of the big searchlights is stationed on the roof of the Capitol theatre. The operators have been granted the special privilege of training two mornings weekly, but can be called out during an emergency for full-time service, on home defense solely. The coastal location of St. John will make it a likely point of attack by German and Italian planes, submarines and surface raiders, and intensive preparations are being made to cope with such invasions, including establishment of anti-aircraft and short batteries of artillery with permanent bases. Air raid precautions with special police and test blackouts have been organized. Participating in the searchlight battery are the operators at the Capitol, Mayfair, Strand, Empire, Regent, Community and Gaiety theatres.

Two in Oklahoma City

Building permits were issued August 17th for construction of two new suburban theatres in Oklahoma City within a half block of each other on North Hudson Avenue. R. G. Seiber, Oklahoma City hotel operator, is building a theatre at 1212 North Hudson, and Lelah Popplewell, school teacher, and her brother, Guy Popplewell, are erecting a house at Northwest Eleventh Street and Hudson Ave.

Cuban Exhibitors' Election

Running for presidency of the National Union of Theatre Managers, Cuba, are Antonio Gonzlaes and Nester Lao. Elections are in September.

Shirley Temple Re-issues

Astor Pictures has set September 1st for the national release on "Pardon My Pups," first of a series of four two-reel re-issues starring Shirley Temple.

SONGWRITERS ATTACK BMI OVER ROYALTIES

Charge Royalties from Songs Are Kept by Broadcast Music Without Division to Writer

Broadcast Music, Inc., is carrying on its fight against what it calls a "music monopoly." The new music publishing and catalogue firm, established in New York City some five months ago by the National Association of Broadcasters, to supplant, and combat, the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, as a music source for radio, stage, and screen, this week issued a rejoinder, combative as usual, to a late attack upon it, made by Irving Caesar, head of the Songwriters Protective Association.

Charge Network Domination

Mr. Caesar's statement compared the Songwriters' contract with that of BMI, and remarked, of the latter's that "such things as royalties from the sale or licenses to use titles, electrical transcriptions, dramatizations, television, and numerous other sources of possible revenue now known, or hereafter to be discovered, are kept by BMI, without a division to the writer." It is also charged domination of Broadcast Music by the networks.

To this Broadcast Music officially replied that from the beginning it had stressed that it is "an organization owned and controlled by broadcasters, and it does not see why stock ownership in that group is to its discredit."

BMI also charged Mr. Caesar's group with being influenced by Ascap.

"In any event," the Broadcast Music statement charges, in another section, "it is hard to see how BMI could do worse for the songwriter than the organization which SPA spends its time in defending; namely, ASCAP. This Society distributes, roughly, one third of the money which it collects, to writers. Ninety seven per cent of the third of the money so spent goes to less than 300 writers, and the great bulk of the ASCAP membership, 72 per cent therefore, receives one penny out of every dollar which the user of music pays for such use. . . . If SPA truly represents all songwriters it is peculiar that it should defend a closed shop distributing organization which distributes money in such a whimsical and unfair manner."

On Monday, Mr. Caesar answered the BMI reply with another "open letter," in which he charged Broadcast Music with misstatements and claimed it was "doing a job for the chain broadcasters."

Broadcast Music this week announced it had 365 members, and that it had gained approximately 50 of these within a few days after the National Association of Broadcasters convention in San Francisco one month ago.

Meanwhile ASCAP is also continuing its battles in the courts of the land against anti-Ascap laws.

Its attorneys, Schwartz and Frohlich, last week announced that the Society will not appeal from a recent Federal Court decision upholding minor sections of the Florida anti-ASCAP law of 1939, unless state authorities appeal from those portions of the decision invalidating major sections of the law.

Under sections of the law supported by the decision, ASCAP must file a list of its licensed compositions, and pay for each title a tax of two cents. The state agrees to prosecute infringers.

That part of the law held unconstitutional would have forced ASCAP to license its music by piece, or for a uniform price established in advance.

There will be a hearing in Omaha Federal Court on October 9th, at which attorneys for the state and ASCAP are to agree on the record of the litigation involving the state's anti-ASCAP law, to be forwarded to the United States Supreme Court, in connection with the state's recent appeal from a Federal statutory court decision ruling the law unconstitutional.

Broadcast Music this week, following its offer, made at its inauguration, that the screen could obtain its music without charge, announced that it had "closed" with one major for one song to be in a picture which will begin production in September, and that it was negotiating with another to supply all the music for one or more pictures.

Iowa Tax Board Silent on Inquiry

Iowa Tax Commission officials said this week that no one with any authority at the commission office had made any comments in regard to a study of the Iowa personal property use tax and that commission officials were not prepared to comment on the subject. Rumors to the contrary were said to be without foundation.

The commission has just released a report on the personal property use tax collections for the fiscal year July 1, 1939 to June 30, 1940. Motor vehicles and trailers are the main source of revenue under this tax and the collections for the year amounted to $1,320,595.61. The receipts from consumers in the business classification was $366,262.25 and from retailers $160,842.36—making a grand total of collections under this tax law of $1,847,700.22.

In the report of the retail sales tax collections for the fiscal year April 1, 1939 to March 31, 1940, the collection of the two per cent sales tax from amusements was $8,733.13 greater than for the preceding year, amounting to $293,171.82, collected from 5,664 amusements. The grand total of collections from all sources for the fiscal year was $16,442.02 less than for the preceding year, amounting to $14,992,730.

Libson Presents Check

Isaac Libson, managing director of RKO Midwest, in Cincinnati, Ohio, has, recently, presented to Robert McIntosh, chairman of the Hamilton County Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, a check for $1,000, representing theatre collections for the Will Rogers Memorial Fund.

Republic Signs Goodman

Republic has signed Benny Goodman and his orchestra, Frances Langford, Ann Miller, Hugh Herbert and Kenny Baker for what is described as its biggest musical in its history, "Hit Parade." The film has gone into production with Sol Siegel producing and John H. Auer directing.

Managers Shifted In Fox Midwest

The Fox Midwest circuit this week announced managerial changes, including the transfer of Arthur Zimner, manager of the circuit's theatres at Springfield, Ill., to manager of theatres in the Greater Kansas City district. This change will permit Lon Cox to devote more time to his job of buying film and assisting E. C. Rhoden, president of Fox Midwest and division manager of the circuit of more than 100 theatres.

Other Changes Made

Oher changes follow: C. C. Murray from Belleville, Ill., to Springfield, Ill., as manager; C. H. Zile from Arkansas City, Kan., to Belleville; Floyd Davis, Marshall, Mo., to Arkansas City; Dale Havelone, Brookside, Kansas City, to Marshall; Max Van Buren, Winfield, Kan., to the Brookside Kansas City; Hugh Siverd, Atchison, Kan., to Winfield, and Alan Karf, home office booker, to Atchison as manager.

James Fronkier, who has been at Newton, Kan., as manager, goes to Iola, Kan., in the same capacity; L. Rockhold of Iola to Wellington, Kan.; Al McClure of Wellington to Eldorado, Kan.; W. R. Rowell of Eldorado to Newton, Kan.

C. P. Forbes of Chanute goes to the Orpheum, Topeka, Kan., and Ed Allison of the Oakland, North Topeka, goes to Chanute. Jack Slinker, who has been assistant at the Paramount, Joplin, Mo., transfers to the Gem, Topeka; Jack Scott, assistant at Emporia, goes to Joplin as house manager of the Paramount; Jerry Hayes, assistant at Topeka, will house manage the Strand, Emporia, Kan.

Ray McLain of Emporia, Kan., and Roy Cato of Cape Girardeau, Mo., change places.

William Souttar of Kirksville, Mo., goes to Moberly, Mo., replacing Chub Golladay, who moves to Ft. Madison, Ia. Earl Hayes of Ft. Madison goes to Kirksville.

Edward Whaley of the Capitol, Benton, Ill., now is at the Warwick, Kansas City, while Glen Carroll of the Warwick has gone to Benton, Ill. Ralph Wallace of the Rockhill, Kansas City, and John Johnson of Boonville, Mo., change places.

13 Lantz Cartoons

Universal will release 13 Walter Lantz color comedy cartoons in the 1940-41 season. Andy Panda, the character created last season by Mr. Lantz and his staff, will be the central feature in the new series. Other animated characters to be featured include Oswald the Rabbit, Li'l Eight Ball, Winchester the Turtle and a number of new ones. First of the new cartoons, "Andy Panda's Crazy House," will be released September 9th. Two others nearing completion, "Recruiting Days" and "Knock-Knock," will follow.

Fay's Drops Vaudeville

Fay's theatre, Providence, R. I., a vaudeville and film house for the past 23 years, will operate with a straight film policy this season. The stage shows originally had been eliminated for the summer only and were to be resumed in the fall. The Metropolitan, in Providence, will open September 12th with variety attractions and name bands three of four days each week.

Warner Club Elects

New officers have been elected by the Warner Club in Seattle, as follows: Morton Endert, president; Guy G. Maxey, vice-president in charge of entertainment; Mary Schmidtz, secretary-treasurer, and Mayme Moody, chairman of the welfare committee.

Senator Demands Full Radio Probe

Continuance of the investigation which has disclosed the employment of United States Senators, real estate brokers and outside lawyers by Radio Corporation of America in 1932 in the effort to secure postponement of the trial of an anti-trust suit then pending, is being demanded by Senator Charles W. Tobey (Rep., N. H.).

An outgrowth of hearings by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on the reappointment of Thad H. Brown as a member of the Federal Communications Commission, the investigation of the RCA case, which culminated in a consent decreee, was brought to a conclusion last week with Senator Tobey introducing a copy of a Concord (N. H.) newspaper story in which former Senator George H. Moses, in the face of testimony to the contrary by David Sarnoff, president of RCA; Robert O'Callaghan, RCA attorney; Roger Whiteford, Washington lawyer, and two other witnesses, denied flatly that the group had ever conferred with him regarding the case. The former Senator, however, did not come to Washington to submit himself to questioning by the committee.

Immediately following the termination of the hearings, Senator Tobey introduced a resolution calling for a further and full investigation of broadcasting by the Interstate Commerce Committee, of which he is a member.

Improving Outlook Seen for Year

A generally optimistic outlook for the motion picture industry during the balance of 1940 is forecast by Poor's Investment Survey, despite diminished rentals in the foreign field.

Increased theatre attendance and higher box office receipts which are expected to accompany rising consumer incomes should somewhat offset declines in revenue from abroad, according to Poor's. In view of the fact that production costs are expected to differ little in 1940-41 from the 1939-40 levels, an improvement in net results is to be expected, the report stated.

For the first five months of this year, exports of motion picture film experienced a 28 per cent decline in comparison with the corresponding period for 1939; while May showed a 32 per cent drop. Lack of competition from belligerents, however, is expected to enable American film producers to at least hold their dominant position in the South American market, according to Poor's.

Change Publicity Set-Up

Effective immediately, Paramount's studio publicity department at Hollywood, headed by Cliff Lewis, will function directly under studio management instead of under home office direction as in the past.

Kanturek in New York

Otto Kanturek, cameraman on "Gestapo," which Twentieth Century-Fox will distribute in this country and in Canada under the title "Night Train," has arrived from England for a visit at the Twentieth Century-Fox home office.

The Motion Picture Associates, New York exchange men's and exhibitors' group, will begin its Winter meetings September 12th, at the Hotel Astor, in that city. Plans for the annual dinner-dance in November, will be discussed.

Specifications for Fader Drawn Up

The Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in Hollywood is distributing to theatre operators new specifications for a "Standard Preview-Theatre Auditorium Fader" and a "Standard Preview-Theatre Variable Equalizer." They were drawn up by Research Council's Theatre Sound Standardization Committee and approved for use by all studios in all preview theatres.

The use of this new standardized equipment by all studios in all preview houses will eliminate the necessity for each studio independently adjusting the theatre equipment for each preview by providing adequate adjustable equipment control in each house.

New Credit Bulletin

The Academy also is distributing a new technical credits bulletin to members, production executives and studio technical department heads, listing technical credits for all productions made in all studios between January 1 and June 30, 1940.

The bulletin contains credits classified by the production as well as credits listed individually, designating the complete credits of each technician who contributed to pictures made during the first six months of 1940.

In addition the bulletin carries a recapitulation of credits for members of the Academy Sciences Branch for 1938 and 1939. Thus this new bulletin, supplemented by the last technical credit bulletin, published in January, 1938, gives a complete record of the credits for each member of the Sciences Branch for the past five and one half years.

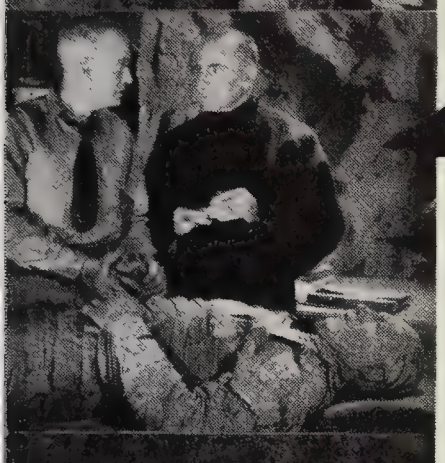
Analysis of the credits shows a total of 210 productions, made by the following producers each of whom finished the indicated number: Academy, 1; Argosy, 1; Columbia, 23; Darmour, 3; Hal Roach, 3; Harold B. Franklin, 1; Harry Sherman, 1; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 23; Monogram, 5; Paramount, 20; Republic, 27; RKO Raido, 21; Samuel Goldwyn, 1; Selznick, 1; Sol Lesser, 1; Stephens-Lang, 2; 20th Century-Fox, 26; Universal, 27; Walt Disney, 1; Walter Wanger, 3; Warner Brothers, 19.

Sargent Wins $1,000 In Skouras Drive

Named as winner of the first prize of $1,000 in the district managers' contest of National Theatres' 13-week Skouras Showmanship Drive Tuesday was Thorton Sargent, Fox West Coast district manager with headquarters at Los Angeles, Calif. The sum of $30,000 in prizes was distributed throughout National Theatres' divisional areas.

Spyros Skouras, head of the circuit, was guest at the close of a series of divisional meetings of the organization, at which the award to Mr. Sargent was made. Mr. Skouras was expected to return by plane to New York over the weekend.

Griffith Managers Meet



The first session of a two-day annual convention of the H. J. Griffith theatres in the Kansas City area, convened Tuesday, at the Ambassador hotel, and was attended by 20 managers. With Mr. Griffith presiding, the managers discussed showmanship and theatre operation. A banquet closed the first day's session.

Harrisburg Voters Seek Sunday Film

Petitions signed by 6,900 registered voters requesting that the issue permitting Sunday films in Harrisburg, Pa., be placed on the ballots in November were filed Monday, August 26th, in Dauphin county court by a committee of theatre managers headed by C. Floyd Hopkins, Harrisburg representative of Wilmer & Vincent. Only 1,506 signatures are required.

Defeated in 1935

The petitions were made in compliance with the state law permitting a referendum on a subject every five years. The Sunday film question was defeated in 1935.

Other Pennsylvania communities will vote also on the Sunday film question in November. The opposition is being organized by the Pennsylvania Council of Churches through the Federated Legislative Committee of Pennsylvania, an organization of church groups.

Sunday Films Elsewhere

Managers of theatres in Cleveland, Tenn., are seeking to reach an agreement with the mayor and city commissioners on the showing of films on Sunday. Edward Hembree, of the Princess, said this week that many of his patrons have been urging the move for some time.

The Sanford, N. C., board of aldermen recently authorized R. P. Rosser, theatre operator there, to resume the showing of motion pictures on Sunday, which had been banned for some time.

Hansel Marvel, manager of the Hill Billy Playhouse at Bowers Beach, Houston, Del., who has been arrested several times on charges of breaking Delaware's ancient Sunday blue laws, last week was arrested again, this time on charges of obtaining the services of theatrical performers by false pretense.

Swayze Leaves Newspaper

John Cameron Swayze, amusement editor and motion picture critic for the Kansas City Journal, has resigned to join the staff of radio station KMBC in Kansas City, Mo., as a newscaster. He is succeeded on the newspaper by Bob Locke.

Universal Bars Visitors

In the first such move in recent years, Universal has announced a ruling prohibiting all visitors from the studio. The ruling is in the interests of economy and efficiency, with a number of big pictures shooting and set to start also a reason.

Kirsch Heads Fund

Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied, has been named chairman of the amusement division of the Chicago community fund. The quota for the division is $25,000.

Terrell Succeeds Bell

Dan Terrell has succeeded J. Raymond Bell as Loew's publicity director in Washington. Mr. Bell is now in the home office. Mr. Terrell for the last five years has been assistant to Frank La Falce, Warners publicity head in Washington.

Connolly with Fralick

Mike Connolly has become associated with Freddie Fralick, Hollywood Agent.

Buenos Aires and Rio Set for RKO Sales Meets

September 13 is the date and Buenos Aires the scene of the opening of the South American sales conventions of RKO with Phil Reisman, vice president in charge of foreign operations presiding. Mr. Reisman sailed Friday, August 23, on the S.S. Brazil for Buenos Aires.

Newly appointed Argentina manager, Ben Y. Cammack, who assumed his new post on the same day that Mr. Reisman sailed for South America, will be chairman of the convention. Present also will be George Kallman, Chilean manager and members of the selling and publicity forces.

En route to Buenos Aires, Mr. Reisman will stop off at Rio de Janeiro to discuss with Bruno Cheli, Brazil manager, plans for the all-Brazil sales convention to be held at Rio one week after the Buenos Aires meeting.

Fox Midwest to Use Sound Trucks

Following the ninth annual convention of Fox Midwest Theatres at the Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City, August 20 and 21, the circuit began use of specially designed ballyhoo trucks, of which it eventually will have four, to advertise individual pictures of merit. The circuit also plans to test the special-price-on-special-pictures idea by use of "laboratory towns."

Over 130 managers and circuit executives attended the convention, which ended with a golf tournament and a steak dinner at the Starlane Farm of E. C. Rhoden, president of the division. Among those on the program were Spyros Skouras, National Theatres head, and Charles Skouras, president of Fox West Coast Theatres.

The Spyros Skouras showmanship campaign awards were presented. Belts, signifying the contribution of new money-making ideas for the campaign, went to Ralph Wallace, Rockhill; Harry Biederman, Linwood; James Long, Plaza, and Morrill Moore, Isis, all of Kansas City; Floyd Davis, Marshall, Mo., and Robert Gage, accounting department, circuit home office. Watches were presented for performance in the final two weeks of the drive that ended July 13 to Charles Barnes, Granada, Kansas City, Kas.; B. M. Montee, Beatrice, Neb.; Phil Hill, Jayhawk, Topeka, Kas.; Komp Jarrett, Clay Center, Kas.; Hort Ulrich, Salina, Kas.; C. C. Murray, Springfield, Ill.; H. M. Burnett, West Frankfort, Ill.; Gene Kincaid, Lexington, Mo., and H. L. Golladay, Moberly, Mo.

Intermountain Meeting Held

Seventy-five theatre managers and executives attended the annual convention of the Fox Intermountain Theatres held in Denver this week, with Rick Ricketson, division manager, in charge. Both Spyros and Charles Skouras were present. Like the Fox Midwest meeting the principal topic was the proper presentation of new product.

Approximately 250 members of National Theatres' western division attended the organization's annual gathering at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel in Hollywood Wednesday. Plans were made for the annual campaign starting September 1st.

RKO Exchange Changes

Al Hill, former office manager in Sioux Falls for RKO, has been appointed office manager and head booker in Des Moines by the company. Marvin Wolfish, formerly a booker at the Minnneapolis branch, becomes office manager in Sioux Falls. Ernie Lund succeeds Mr. Wolfish. Douglas Desch has been named branch manager in Dallas. The changes were brought about through the resignation of Robert E. Helms and Tim Evans, office managers in Dallas and Des Moines, respectively.

Appoint Tax Investigator

Jesse Moss of New York has been appointed special assistant United States Attorney to check on New Jersey theatres to ascertain whether the theatres are complying with recent national defense tax laws. Hubert Harrington, assistant U. S. Attorney, who announced the appointment, said his office had received no complaints of law violations.

PETRILLO SILENT ON TWO LABOR DISPUTES

Jurisdiction Battle Fails to Materialize; Philadelphia Strike Settlement Rumored

That heralded battle between two American Federation of Labor entertainment industry unions—the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent actors' union, and the American Federation of Musicians—simmered this week in contrast with the bluster of a week ago.

James C. Petrillo, president of the AFM, and Lawrence Tibbett, president of the American Guild of Variety Artists, did not meet Friday, August 23rd, as scheduled. Previously, they had conferred several times and had talked freely for publication. Mr. Petrillo, particularly, was voluble with AFM arguments.

September 2nd Deadline

Mr. Tibbett's guild is a Four A's member. Several weeks ago, its instrumentalists were ordered by Mr. Petrillo to join the Federation by September 2nd, or be barred from radio, recording, concert work and whatever other occupation could be reached by the musicians' federation's long arm.

Mr. Tibbett called upon the Four A's for help, claiming the intrusion upon his three-year-old union was an invasion of jurisdiction. Four A's unions met to consider what aid they could give, and whether the case was similar in jurisdictional aspect to the attempt last summer by the stagehands of George Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, to charter an actors' union and thus enter the Four A's field. Last week, the Screen Actors' Guild and the Actors' Equity resolved support of the musicians' guild.

Reply of Mr. Petrillo to the guild charges was that formation of any other union containing musicians, was an invasion of the AFM jurisdiction and that every musician belonged in his organization.

Philadelphia Settlement Rumored

Rumors of settlement of the long strike of the Philadelphia Musicians Local 77 against the Warner circuit in that city circulated in musicians' circles this week, after a special committee from the local had met on Friday, August 23rd, in New York, with Mr. Petrillo. The latter has had several conferences with Frank Phelps, Warner circuit labor contact, and with Joseph Bernhard, circuit general manager.

In Hollywood, special committees from the producers and the Screen Writers' Guild met last week, to discuss a contract, the guild committee having been previously instructed by its executive board, after a general membership meeting, to ask the producers to sign the six months' minimum contract agreed to in principle by all parties, or reopen negotiations. This minimum contract provides an 80 per cent guild shop, a ban on speculative writing, a grievance committee, and it gives the guild the right to negotiate for screen credits.

Last Tuesday, in the same city, the Screen Actors Guild elected Robert Davis as chairman.

The Los Angeles office of the National Labor Relations Board last week wired Washington headquarters for instructions on whether to hold a consolidated hearing on the petitions for certification as bargaining agencies for studio and Central Casting Corporation office workers, casting directors, and assistants, by the Screen Office Employees Guild and the American Federation of Labor Office Workers union.

The American Guild of Variety Artists on Friday, August 23rd, removed Tom Kelly as executive secretary of the Philadelphia unit, for "gross negligence and incompetency."

The New York Motion Picture Film Editors Guild held its last, open charter meeting at the Hotel Capitol Tuesday night. The unit now has 157 members.

The Kansas City stagehands' contracts with the downtown theatres (Tower, Midland, Esquire, Newman, Orpheum, Regent, and Liberty) and the suburban Fox Plaza and Fox Uptown, were to be removed on Friday for one year without change, Felix Snow, IATSE vice-president, said this week. The projectionists of the IATSE are also negotiating, but want changes in conditions.

Officers for the coming year, elected by the Wisconsin Association of Stage Employees and Projectionists at a meeting last week in conjunction with the annual convention of the state Federation of Labor, at Janesville, in that state, are John Kunzman, Sheboygan, president; Jack Warner, Milwaukee, vice-president; Steve Thomas, Racine, secretary; and Stanley Przlomski, Kenosha, treasurer.

At the convention, Joseph A. Padway, attorney for the AFL, charged Thurman Arnold, assistant United States attorney general with opposition to Administration policy, in his anti-trust drive, which includes labor.

Working Contracts Presented

The Detroit Local 38, of the IATSE, last week presented one year contracts, for signature, to the city's theatres and commercial film studios using stagehands. The contracts, to be effective on Friday, provide minor hour and condition changes.

The San Francisco Theatrical Employees Union, Local B-18, has absorbed the Theatrical Wardrobe Atttendants Union, Local 22,082, after an affirmative vote by both memberships.

Clyde Weston has become an operator at the Miners' Theatre, Collinsville, Illinois. Mr. Weston was ousted as business manager of the St. Louis Projectionists Local, 143. In that capacity, he was first lieutenant of John P. "Big" Nick, president of the union, also ousted.

Frank Phelps, Warner labor contact, met with representatives of the Wilmington, Delaware, projectionists last week the Warner New York home office, on a new contract to be effective on Friday.

Projectionists Local 273, comprising members from New Haven, Ansonia, and Derby, in Connecticut, met Monday night, and discussed new contracts. Nelson Frazier, president, and Matthew Kennedy, business agent, presided.

Censor Appointment

Mrs. Herbert Sichel has been appointed a member of the Portland, Ore., municipal motion picture censor board, it has been announced by Mayor Joseph K. Carson.

Bishell in Post

Jules Levy of Premier Pictures has appointed Art Bishell Seattle branch manager in charge of distribution in the state of Washington.

Given Joins Columbia

Stanley Given has joined the advertising sales department of Columbia in Philadelphia.

Report July Tax Gain of $116,000

The Bureau of Internal Revenue at Washington has reported that Federal admission tax collections for July totaled $1,650,163, an increase of about $4,500 over the June revenue of $1,645,603. This figure is approximately $116,000 more than the $1,543,250 recorded for July, 1939. The month's collections represent the return of taxes on June business, the last month in which the 40-cent exemption applied.

Following the normal seasonal trend, collections in the Third New York (Broadway) District dipped in July to $484,661 from $521,904, the Bureau reported.

July revenue, for the sixth successive month, was higher than the corresponding period in 1939. Including July receipts, the total collections for the first seven months of the year were $12,817,934, more than $2,000,000 ahead of the $10,689,477 collected in the same period last year, it was reported.

Box-office collections dropped from $466,371 to $434,748 and admissions to roof gardens and cabarets dropped from $37,587 to $31,633, while receipts in other classifications increased.

State Treasurer Don H. Ebright of Ohio announced at Hamilton, Monday, that sales tax collections from Jan. 1 to Aug. 10 amounted to $29,917,160, an increase of 10.1 per cent over the $27,134,897 for the corresponding period of 1939. Exhibitors pay three per cent on gross receipts throughout the State.

RKO Six Months Profit is $220,819

Net profit after all charges of $220,819.07 for six months ended June 30 last were reported Tuesday by RKO. This is the first full half-year period following the corporation's reorganization.

Because the new bookkeeping system was not set up until the end of the reorganization in December, comparative figures are not available for the same period last year.

Consolidated profit from operations before depreciation, taxes and provision for dividends on Keith-Albee-Orpheum preferred stock, amounted to $1,425,592. Depreciation and taxes were $1,058,385 and the sum of $145,387 was provided as K-A-O dividends.

RKO Treasurer William J. Merrill declared that the figures in part were estimated and subject to adjustment at the close of the calendar year.

Consolidated Dividend

The board of directors of Consolidated Film Industries has declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the company's preferred stock, payable October 1st to stockholders of record September 13th.

Dividend Is Announced

A dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred shares for the current quarter, payable Sept. 30 has been declared by the Hamilton United Theatres, Ltd., operating three theatres in Hamilton, Ont.

OBITUARIES

Paul Nipkow Dies; Television Pioneer

Paul Gottlieb Nipkow, 80, a pioneer of television, credited in Germany as being among the first to develop the basic technique of radio transmission of visual images, died in Berlin August 24th of a heart attack.

In 1883 he invented a revolving scanning disk which was used in February, 1928, to send a picture 3,000 miles by radio from London to New York City. He patented his invention, which he called an electrical telescope, but was unable to pay the costs of continuing the patent. Others developed the basic device, and by 1933 it was competing with the electron tube and the cathode-ray beam as a means of making transmission of pictures by electricity practical.

In 1934 he was made honorary president of the new television section of the Reich Chamber of Wireless.

William Crall Dead

William F. Crall, retired circuit owner of St. Petersburg, Fla., died near Harrisonburg, Va., recently while visiting relatives. Mr. Crall had operated theatres in Virginia, Florida and New York for many years until he retired 10 years ago and moved from New York to Florida. He was a native of Fayetteville, Pa.

Walter Ebeling

Walter Ebeling, 31, manager of the Garden theatre in New York's Yorkville section, was found dead in a clump of woods in Berrien Springs, Mich., August 25th, by a sheriff's searching party. Two hitch-hikers were reported to have confessed killing him for his money. Mr. Ebeling was said to have been on vacation at the time of his death.

Ben McCormick

Ben P. McCormick, 60, theatre operator, was killed August 25th when his small plane, in which he was working on his fourth hour of solo flights, nosedived from 100 feet at the Canon City, Col., airport. He operated theatres at Canon City and Florence, Col., and Hot Springs, N. M.

Edna Waldron

Edna Waldron, 26, actress, died in Hollywood August 24th of burns received in an unsuccessful attempt to save the life of Catherine Bowman, 3, whose clothes became ignited from a fluid Miss Waldron was using to clean clothes.

William H. Richards

William H. Richards, chief electrician at the Orpheum, RKO first run in Kansas City, died August 21st at the age of 49. He had been at the Orpheum and its predecessor, the Mainstreet, for over 20 years. He was a member of Local 31, IATSE.

Harry Leid

Harry Leid, 62, chief mechanical engineer for Loew's Theatres, died of a heart attack August 22nd in New York. He was a member of Loew's construction staff for 14 years and aide to Harry Moskowitz, construction chief.

"Great Dictator" Still Suit Ended

A stipulation settling the $1,000,000 damage suit of Charles Chaplin and Charles Chaplin Film Corporation against Time, Inc., as publisher of Life Magazine, Henry R. Luce, John Shaw Billings, Roy E. Larsen, and Charles D. Jackson was filed Monday, August 26th, in federal court in New York.

Under terms of the settlement the defendents are permanently restrained from publishing in Life or any other periodical scenes from Mr. Chaplin's picture, "The Great Dictator."

The plaintiffs waive all claims to damages, profits or costs. The stipulation provides that the defendants are to deliver to the plaintiffs within 10 days all stills of the picture in their possession.

The suit, filed in June, charged the defendants with unauthorized publication of a still depicting Mr. Chaplin in the role of the "dictator."

Order Reade to Continue Pool

A permanent injunction has been issued by the Chancellor of New Jersey preventing Walter Reade, circuit operator in New York and New Jersey, from dissolving a pooling arrangement with Leo Justin in Morristown, N. J.

Under an agreement made three years ago, product was to be divided among the Park and Jersey theatres, operated by Mr. Justin and Morris Jacks, and the Community, operated by Mr. Reade. Mr. Reade was charged with breaking the agreement.

John A. Loesche Dies

John A. Loesche, 49, an assistant director of the Columbia Broadcasting System in the last 10 years, died at his home in Palisades, N. J., August 22nd. Born in Newark, Mr. Loesche served for 24 years with the Thomas A. Edison Company. He conducted auditions for Kate Smith in 1930 for Columbia, and had been in charge of her program since then.

Eugene A. Phalen

Eugene A. Phalen, owner of the Allis theatre in West Allis, Wis., died August 23rd of a heart attack at the age of 64. Mr. Phalen was a former city councilman and state assemblyman and had been president of the West Allis and police commission for many years.

James Quinn

James Quinn, 55, motion picture character actor, died in Hollywood August 21st of heart disease. He was playing a role in "Little Nellie Kelly," at the time of death.

Hilda Keenan

Hilda Keenan, 49, actress and former wife of Ed Wynn, comedian, died August 20th at the Medical Arts Center Hospital, New York.

Herbert Glanton

Herbert O. Glanton, 65, manager of the Tivoli theatre in Huntington, Ind., died August 24th of a throat infection.

IN COURTS

RKO Settles Action With Chicago Circuit

The breach of contract action which RKO Radio brought against Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Chicago circuit, based on the reduction of admission scales at the Oriental theatre, was settled out of court by John Jones, representing the circuit, at a conference last weekend with RKO home office officials in New York.

Mr. Jones, on his return to Chicago, declined to discuss the settlement terms. Three RKO features which had been set for Oriental were cancelled when the admission scales at the house were reduced. RKO subsequently filed suit for damages.

Seeks "Brigham" Injunction

Eleanor Harris filed suit in federal court in New York Friday, August 23rd, seeking to enjoin Twentieth Century-Fox from exhibiting "Brigham Young" unless she is given screen credit as collaborator with Louis Bromfield on the story. The plaintiff claims she was employed as a screen writer by the company, to which she had sold a play on Brigham Young called "Prophets of Empire."

Files Bankruptcy Petition

A petition in bankruptcy listing liabilities of $46,514 and assets of $16,900 was filed, Friday, August 23, in federal court in New York by Sigbert Wittman, former exhibitor and part owner of the Triad circuit in The Bronx. The largest creditors are Joe Bernstein, Inc., Credit-America Corporation, and Walter Heller Company, on a joint obligation of $35,746 arising from Mr. Wittman's endorsement and a promissory note made to these three companies by Triad Theatres.

Sues Broadcaster

Select Theatres Corporation, Alberto Cosella, Berta Cutti and Walter Ferris filed suit Thursday, August 22nd, in federal court in New York against International Broadcasting Corporation, WOV Artists, Inc., Ronzoni Macaroni Company, Syd Leipzig and Gino Caini charging plagiarism of the play, "Death Takes a Holiday," in two Italian plays broadcast over WOV.

Drop Universal Suit

Discontinuance of the $1,350,000 suit filed in 1931 against Universal Pictures Company by American Feature Film Company was disclosed in Federal Court, here, Tuesday. The complaint alleged that the defendant had charged that sum in excess of the prices fixed by contracts on negative costs.

The plaintiff claimed to have had exclusive distribution rights in New England to all features produced under the trade name "Jewel"; also to all shorts under two five-year contracts expiring in 1928.

Deny RCA Dismissal

The application of RCA, General Electric Co., and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., to dismiss the camplaint of RCA minority stockholders against the Victor Talking Machine Co., a dissolved subsidiary of RCA was denied, Tuesday, by Supreme Court Justice J. Sidney Bernstein.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

BLONDIE HAS SERVANT TROUBLE: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms—Another joyful step toward the harum scarum of Harold Lloyd days. "Ghost Breakers" without a radio personality and foreign setting we'd say. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 11-13.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

DOCTOR TAKES A WIFE, THE: Loretta Young, Ray Milland, Gail Patrick—Very good business and many fine comments on this comedy. We would enjoy playing many more of this type here as it is the sort of thing my patrons like to see. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

OUT WEST WITH THE PEPPERS: Edith Fellows, Tommy Bond—This series of pictures always draws very well for us. The kids look forward to them. This one just as good as the others although we personally think Edith Fellows is quite colorless, though capable. Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 8-9.——Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

TEXAS STAGECOACH: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—Okay western. Played August 6.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TEXAS STAGECOACH: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—A typical Starrett but the singing was better than usual so made this feature better than average. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

THOSE HIGH GREY WALLS: Walter Connolly, Iris Meredith—They didn't get over the walls; they stayed outside. Too hot.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

First National

ANGEL FROM TEXAS, AN: Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman—Double feature; played with "Village Barn Dance." Gave extra good business on these two features.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE: Roger Pryor, Lucille Fairbanks—Just a good companion feature. Running time, 53 minutes. Played August 14.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

IT ALL CAME TRUE: Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart, Jeffrey Lynn, Zasu Pitts—This was very good picture. Good on any dates. No business.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

MURDER IN THE AIR: Ronald Reagan, John Litel, Lya Lys—Paid for this once and forgot it but picked it up for a bargain night and got back my film rental plus a little extra. People seemed to enjoy it, although it was slow. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

THREE CHEERS FOR THE IRISH: Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan, Thomas Mitchell—Very good picture. Running time, 98 minutes.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT: George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart—We played this one for three days with a Sunday opening and my advice to you who have it booked for mid-week or week-end is to play it starting Sunday. Don't believe you will go wrong if you take my advice as this is a honey. Will be enjoyed by all and you will get plenty of word of mouth advertising. Business good; comments swell. Picture's grand. Push it hard. Running time, 95 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

'TIL WE MEET AGAIN: Merle Oberon, George Brent, Pat O'Brien, Geraldine Fitzgerald—Good show but no draw. Flop at box office. Running time, 98 minutes.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

AND ONE WAS BEAUTIFUL: Robert Cummings, Jean Muir, Laraine Day, Billie Burke—Another one you should pass. Wish I had. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Cecelia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Good picture and good business. Did more than "Hardy and Son" and pleased all. Judy Garland is a real asset to this picture. Running time, 87 minutes. Played August 14-15.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

BOOM TOWN: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr, Frank Morgan, Lionel Atwill, Chill Wills—"Boom Town" with its stellar cast topped by Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr will prove the biggest grosser of any picture shown since "Gone with the Wind." Full of action. Gable and Tracy are pals and friendly enemies alternately and Miss Colbert, seen and heard in her very best acting, with Miss Lamarr an avowed enemy of each other but both seeking the love of Gable, are both simply adorable in their separate parts. Last but not least are Frank Morgan, Lionel Atwill, Chill Wills and director, Jack Conway. Running time, 116 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

CAPTAIN IS A LADY, THE: Charles Coburn, Billie Burke, Beulah Bondi, Marjorie Main—A dandy picture for bank night that pleased everyone. All the stars good. Why not feature Marjorie Main in more pictures? Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 15-16.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

CAPTAIN IS A LADY, THE: Charles Coburn, Beulah Bondi, Billie Burke—Pass it by all means as that is all it could have possibly been made for . . . to pass. Running time, 65 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

CAPTAIN IS A LADY, THE: Beulah Bondi, Charles Coburn, Helen Westley, Marjorie Main—I asked Metro for a good, peppy show for carnival week and they booked one with a locale in the old ladies' home. Another one like this and I'll be in the old ladies' home. Beulah Bondi, Helen Westley and Marjorie Main give very good portrayals but in a town where ninety per cent of the patronage is young people I might as well hang crepe on the door as to try to sell a picture without romance, glamour girls, dancing and comedy. The few who came walked out. I would have liked to walk out with them. Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 9-11.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DR. KILDARE'S STRANGE CASE: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Laraine Day, Alma Kruger, Nat Pendleton, Marie Blake—Very good but these pictures do not draw any more. Too much alike. Lionel Barrymore is always good, the rest of the cast satisfactory with Alma Kruger, the central girl and Nat Pendleton furnishing the comedy. Personally, I like this series but the patrons get tired of the same setup and quit coming. Running time, 77 minutes. Played August 16-18.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

EDISON, THE MAN: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Gene Lockhart, Charles Coburn—Not as good box office as "Young Tom Edison" and even less business than "Waterloo Bridge" despite Tracy's popularity here. An excellent picture, however. Wish more had seen it. Played August 11-12.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

EDISON, THE MAN: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Gene Lockhart, Charles Coburn—Very good. Spencer Tracy at his best. Business fair. Pleased most of the cash customers. Running time, 107 minutes. Played August 2-3.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

FLORIAN: Robert Young, Helen Gilbert—An interesting picture. Trailer played up the wrong angles for our house. Fair business with everyone enjoying the picture's entertainment. Played August 14-15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FORTY LITTLE MOTHERS: Eddie Cantor, Rita Johnson, Bonita Granville, Judith Anderson—Although Eddie is still as good as ever, this broke our low Sunday record. The production is well made and with a good supporting cast, but the story has no appeal at the box office. Running time, 90 minutes. Played August 11-12.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

GHOST COMES HOME, THE: Frank Morgan, Billie Burke, Ann Rutherford—A new twist to the Enoch Arden plot. Greatly enhanced by Frank Morgan's naturalness for the part. Running time, 76 minutes. Played August 7.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

GOLD RUSH MAISIE: Ann Sothern, Lee Bowman, Virginia Weidler—We thought this was about the poorest "Maisie" picture yet. We know that business was very bad and it wasn't the weather, heat, rain, fish biting, threshing, or laziness that kept them away after the first night. Running time, 82 minutes. ——A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MIRACLES FOR SALE: Robert Young, Florence Rice, Henry Hull—The miracle is still for sale. The public didn't buy.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MORTAL STORM, THE: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan, Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Irene Rich, Bonita Granville—One of the finest dramatic pictures of the year so far. The acting is excellent. Business not so hot. Running time, 100 minutes. Played August 7-8.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

MORTAL STORM, THE: James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan, Frank Morgan, Irene Rich, Robert Stack, Bonita Granville —Here is truly a good production. Nothing but raves by the entire audience. Give it your best playing time and it will not let you down. Running time, 100 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY (reissue): Clark Gable, Charles Laughton, Franchot Tone; TOO HOT TO HANDLE (reissue): Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Walter Pidgeon—Both reissues, and as you know they were among the top pictures that came out in their respective years. Both did satisfactory business. Numerous of our patrons said they had missed them both and then there is the rising generation that I know did not see them in the previous run. Re: the exploitation man that many of the producers have. They get what they think and to all intents we know, if signs are right, should be a natural and a top grosser, so they send in a carload of suggestions, which if they are serious in curtailing expenses is just that much wasted money. Dumb I would call it. The big pictures sell themselves with a little help. You have cast that you know have been tops in the past with an intriguing title and then they spend money and special effort on perhaps is the best picture they will release. It is not those that need selling. It is those that are on the border of bigness that need the support of the exploitation man. Further, they have a lot of screwy ideas that they have gained in the larger situations that will not fit into the smaller towns. We have an intimate patronage who will take our word for the quality of the picture if we put it before them and we don't use the superlatives that come on trailers followed by a picture that turns out to be a cluck of the first water.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

NEW MOON: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—Played this feature to smallest week-end gross in history of this theatre. Ninety per cent of our customers do not like these stars at all in any picture and this one had even less appeal. Certainly not for small towns. Running time, 102 minutes. Played August 10-12.—Ritz Theatre, Ritz Amusements, Inc., North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

NEW MOON: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—Maybe it's the weather and maybe it is the screwy campaign year and all the hullabaloo and hysteria about war in Washington. But the pictures that you would lay a bet would do stand out business just don't pan out and that was true of this. Did only business that an average program picture would do. In the first place this Eddy can go through terrific battles and his hair is never mussed. As an actor all he has is a voice. Then you get a cheap little picture like "The Ghost Breakers" and business is like old times again. It may level out after the election and we won't have to second guess them.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

NICK CARTER, MASTER DETECTIVE: Walter Pidgeon, Rita Johnson—Walter Pidgeon in his usual "roller bearing" role. Thrilling and very interesting bit of "it could happen here" sabotage. Running time, 60 minutes. Played August 15-17.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

SPORTING BLOOD: Robert Young, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lewis Stone—Pleased the few who came out to see what the poorest trailer of the year was supposed to represent. Metro should feel very proud of its ability to conceal whatever hints as to the plot of this that might possibly lead one to believe that it has something to do with racing from its trailer and its advertisements. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Rita Quigley, Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey, John Carroll, Bruce Cabot—Well produced but a bad egg at our box office. Too many Metro pictures are souring on us of late. Just any picture would do as well as this one has. Played August 18-19.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THUNDER AFLOAT: Wallace Beery, Chester Morris, Virginia Grey—An excellent Beery picture. Caused considerable and favorable comment here. Of course, it was a man's picture and our patronage with the exception of some 20 or 25 women consists of the male sex. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 4. F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

TWENTY MULE TEAM: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau—Disappointed both as to business done and entertainment values. Hardly a story of the 20 mule team as title suggests. There must have been more excitement than shown here. Played August 9-10.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WATERLOO BRIDGE: Vivien Leigh, Robert Taylor—Excellent. Good draw compared to recent Metro releases. Played August 4-5.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WATERLOO BRIDGE: Robert Taylor, Vivien Leigh—Excellent picture that failed to draw for us as we played it late in this territory. Both leads in this never better. Running time, 103 minutes. Played August 10-11.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small patronage.

WE WHO ARE YOUNG: Lana Turner, John Shelton—Good picture and good business. Running time, 79 minutes. Played August 13. E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Monogram

MYSTERIOUS MR. REEDER, THE: Will Fyffe—An excellent picture, well defined plot. Fyffe a grand actor and everyone in my audience well pleased. Running time, 77 minutes. Played August 4-5.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

SKY BANDITS: James Newill, Louise Stanley—On Friday and Saturday we are after action and good drama. This picture provides both. Royal Mounted pictures always appeal to week-end patrons. Running time, 63 minutes. Played August 16-17.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

Paramount

ADVENTURE IN DIAMONDS: George Brent, Isa Miranda—O. K. for a double feature. With an attraction that can carry it. One of those "Raffles" stories. Running time, 77 minutes. Played July 21-August 1.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

DR. CYCLOPS: Albert Dekker, Janice Logan—We doubled this and went over very nicely, although I believe that this can be run by itself in spots where double features are not well liked. Running time, 77 minutes. Played August 4-5.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER, THE: Charles Ruggles, Martha Raye—Some like it; some didn't. Just fair attendance.—J. N. Wells, Wells Theatre, Kingsland, Ga. General patronage.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER, THE: Charlie Ruggles, Martha Raye—Played with "Jeepers Creepers." Drew extra business and pleased all patrons Sunday-Tuesday.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

INVITATION TO HAPPINESS: Irene Dunne, Fred MacMurray, Charlie Ruggles—This was a different sort of love story, wrapped around a fighter's life and struggle to the top and, although it was a bit dramatic, the majority found that it stirred their emotions too deeply. Running time, 95 minutes. Played August 17-18.—F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

ROAD TO SINGAPORE: Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope—This is a natural and will bring in the customers when nothing else will.—J. N. Wells, Wells Theatre, Kingsland Theatre, Ga. General patronage.

SAFARI: Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Very dull picture but business okay. Doubled with "In Old Missouri." Played August 2-3.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H.—General patronage.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS: William Holden, Bonita Granville, Ezra Stone, Judith Barrett—Very good picture. Fair draw. Played August 9-10.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TYPHOON: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston—Gets by due to color. Story not enough to impress as good entertainment. Played July 26-27.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TYPHOON: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston—Short but appealing. Well produced and well received. Running time, 72 minutes. Played July 28-30.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

Producers Distributing Corp.

HITLER, BEAST OF BERLIN: Roland Drew, Steffi Duna—The title brought them in in droves but the picture was only fair. It dragged in places and I had some walkouts. Running time, 88 minutes. Played August 18-19.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Republic

CAROLINA MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—Good picture and good business. Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 16-17.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DAYS OF JESSE JAMES: Donald Barry, Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Pauline Moore—Gives Rogers a chance to show he has the best singing voice on Republic's western lot. Running time, 63 minutes. Played August 15-17.——Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

HI-YO SILVER: Herman Brix, Silver Chief, Chief Thunder Cloud, Lynne Roberts—Did fair with this special. Too hot for normal business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

IN OLD MISSOURI: Weaver Brothers and Elviry—Good comedy-drama. Okay business. Played August 2-3.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

JEEPERS CREEPERS: Weavers Brothers and Elviry, Roy Rogers—Played with "The Farmer's Daughter". Drew extra business and pleased all patrons Sunday-Tuesday.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

RANCHO GRANDE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—Fair. Business off somewhat. Not as good as "South of the Border" or "In Old Monterey". Played August 16-17.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Very good. Did nice business. Double with another show. Running time, 71 minutes.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

VILLAGE BARN DANCE: Richard Cromwell, Doris Day, Lulu Belle and Scotty—Double feature; played with "Angel from Texas". Gave extra good business on these two features.—Louis J. Frana, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa. General patronage.

WAGONS WESTWARD: Chester Morris, Anita Louise, Ona Munson, Buck Jones, George "Gabby" Hayes—Excellent for rural trade and those who want action and good drama. Chet Morris fine in this role. Worth a good play date. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 11-12.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

NEW AND PRODIGAL CONTRIBUTORS

One new and one prodigal contributor sent reports this week to the What the Picture Did for Me Department. The new reporter is:

EMORY SCOTT, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa.

The exhibitor whose reports have been missing for some months is:

LOUIS J. FRANA, Olympic Theatre, Calmar, Iowa.

Read the reports of these and other exhibitors in the columns on these pages.

RKO Radio

BILL OF DIVORCEMENT: Maureen O'Hara, Fay Bainter, Herbert Marshall, Adolphe Menjou—Pretty poor when one recalls the original Hepburn-Barrymore version. A reissue of that would have saved production expense and certainly would have drawn as well and pleased better. Sound recording not so hot. Played August 7-8.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

CURTAIN CALL: Barbara Read, John Archer, Helen Vinson—Played on bargain night to average business. A very ordinary program picture with plot similar to dozens of others. Running time, 63 minutes. Played August 13-14.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

LOVE AFFAIR: Irene Dunne, Charles Boyer—A very good portrayal of an intricate and delicate heartthrob. The acting by Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer was most excellent and was enjoyed by all here. Running time, 87 minutes. Played July 6-7.—F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BLUE BIRD, THE: Shirley Temple, Spring Byington—This did average Temple business with me. All the women and children liked it as well as any other Temple picture. It is a very beautiful picture and carries a very good lesson on the pursuit of happiness.—J. N. Wells, Wells Theatre, Kingsland, Ga. General patronage.

EARTHBOUND: Warner Baxter, Andrea Leeds—One of the poorest features we've played this year and this came to us in high allocation. It was too short, the story is silly and we had the lowest midweek gross we've ever experienced in this house. Running time, 67 minutes. Played August 14-15.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

FOUR SONS: Don Ameche, Alan Curtis, Mary Beth Hughes, Eugenie Leontovich—Didn't do a thing on this here. Poor business for two nights. Opinion seemed to be that it was much inferior to Metro's "Mortal Storm". Hope it is the last of this type of picture we have to play here as they don't draw. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FOUR SONS: Don Ameche, Eugenie Leontovich, Alan Curtis, Mary Beth Hughes—I do believe that the original story, as produced in silent days, would have been the biggest money maker of the year. But, as it is, it flopped in our neighborhood. Running time, 88 minutes. Played August 13-16.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

GRAPES OF WRATH, THE: Henry Fonda, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Dorris Bowdon, Charley Grapewin—This just as well had not been made as far as I was concerned. Could have used any kind of picture in its place and done just as well. Plenty of kicks on it. Everybody dissatisfied.—J. N. Wells, Wells Theatre, Kingsland Theatre, Ga. General patronage.

LILLIAN RUSSELL: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Leo Carrillo, Weber and Fields—Lousy business for a top allocation Fox picture. No interest from public in this at all. And it was quite slow and uninteresting. Alice Faye should be cast in 1940 dress. Played July 28-29.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

United Artists

OUR TOWN: William Holden, Martha Scott, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Beulah Bondi, Guy Kibbee, Stuart Erwin—Nice picture. Poor box office. Complaints received on commentator form of presentation. Played July 14-15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

REBECCA: Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders, Judith Anderson—Had good business on this one considering that about 70 per cent of my patrons was male. The story was a trifle too long and could have been shortened considerably for the small towns. Running time, 127 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SAPS AT SEA: Laurel and Hardy—These feature comedies are well received and enjoyed by our patrons. They are also well suited for double feature, especially with heavy duds of which we have been getting too many. Running time, 57 minutes. Played August 4-5.—R. Navari, Liberty Theatre, Verona, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

STAGECOACH: Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Andy Devine, John Carradine, Thomas Mitchell, George Bancroft, Louise Platt—A real mix-up of characters in a well produced and directed melodrama of the "old-time West". Great acting and good entertainment. Played August 3-4.—F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

Universal

BLACK FIRDAY: Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi—

Good but no draw. Played August 16-17.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LA CONGA NIGHTS: Hugh Herbert, Dennis O'Keefe, Constance Moore—Skip it. We did not get a laugh the entire running. Just a big disappointment. Running time, 61 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SKI PATROL: Luli Deste, Philip Dorn—Very good action play and timely. Business okay but we had a swell stage show to help. Bell's Hawaiians are excellent Very well received troupe of native performers. Played August 13.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

YOU'RE NOT SO TOUGH: "Dead End Kids", "Little Tough Guys", Nan Grey—Picture packs a lot of wallop. When looking for a good Saturday picture, sure to please 95 percent. Play it. Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 2-3.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

GAMBLING ON THE HIGH SEAS: Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, John Litel—Too short for single feature bill. Picture pleased our bargain night crowds, however. Running time, 55 minutes. Played August 9.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

GRANNY GET YOUR GUN: May Robson, Harry Davenport, Arthur Aylesworth—Excellent comedy starring that grand trouper, May Robson, who is at her best, which is very, very good. Harry Davenport and Arthur Aylesworth give outstanding performances and the story is a laugh riot. Not big but it will please. Running time, 55 minutes. Played August 2-4.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MY LOVE CAME BACK: Olivia de Havilland, Jeffrey Lynn, Charles Winninger, Jane Wyman, Eddie Albert—Picture definitely not for the proletariat. Nice entertainment for anyone with a college background or music lovers in general. Shades of the old masters here overshadow cupid. Running time, 85 minutes. Played August 4-6.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

TEAR GAS SQUAD: Dennis Morgan, Gloria Dickson, John Payne—Thrilling entertainment for a family house. Highlight of picture is introduction of pleasant new male face, accompanied by a more than pleasant singing voice, Dennis Morgan. Running time, 55 minutes. Played August 8-10.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

HECKLER, THE: Charley Chase—Good. Sorry Charley Chase isn't with us any more.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

OH, YOU NAZTY SPY: Three Stooges—Your "Stooge" crowd will be augmented on this one. Very funny bit of satire on dictators. Running time, 18 minutes.—Emory Scott, Uptown Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

PARK YOUR BABY: Fable Cartoons—Just fair.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 1—Extra good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SOUTH OF THE BOUDOIR: Charley Chase—Not too funny.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

YOU'RE A NEXT: All-Star Comedies—Always gets a laugh.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BOOKWORM TURNS, THE: Cartoons—The bookworm turns and fights a smashing victory. A very clever picture that will please all seeing it. Running time, eight minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

COLORFUL CURACAO: FitzPatrick Traveltalks—Very interesting.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

DOMINEERING MALE, THE: Pete Smith Specialities—Rather amusing. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

FEED 'EM AND WEEP: Our Gang—"Feed 'Em and Weep" was old and not so good but as usual the "Gang" evoked some laughs.—F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

HIDDEN MASTER, THE: Passing Parade, No. 13—Fine. Keeps folks thinking.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MILKY WAY, THE: Cartoons—Good colored cartoon.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

NEW PUPIL, THE: Our Gang—Another satisfactory comedy from Our Gang. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

PEACE ON EARTH: Cartoons—Very beautifully colored cartoon.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

RAINY DAY, A: Cartoons—Good cartoon.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SERVANT OF MANKIND: MGM Miniatures—Maybe a bit too obviously build-up material for "Edison the Man". Okay otherwise.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

STUFFIE: Pete Smith Specialties—With war, crop failures and depression we want some funny comedies and that goes double for the kiddies. Most of them like dogs and did not want to see "Stuffie" make the supreme sacrifice so it did not please. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

TOM TURKEY AND HIS HARMONICA HUMDINGERS: MGM Cartoons—Good color cartoon with some swell harmonica playing (mouth organ to you). Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

VALIANT VENEZUELA: FitzPatrick Traveltalks—Good as usual for this series.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WAY IN THE WILDERNESS, A: Passing Parade, No. 14—Just a filler about pellagra. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

XXX MEDICO: Passing Parade, No. 12—Swell dramatic reel.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Paramount

ALWAYS KICKIN': Color Classics—We hate to do the kicking but it is a poor cartoon.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FROLICKING FROGS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Good, outstanding. You'll be amazed.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LEAVE WELL ENOUGH ALONE: Popeye the Sailor — Popeye slipping. — Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

ORRIN TUCKER AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—Very good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 100—Very interesting and entertaining. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BONE TROUBLE: Walt Disney Cartoons—Funny and clever.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

EDGAR KENNEDY COMEDY: Filled the bill and met with approval all around.—F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

INFORMATION PLEASE, No. 12: Wendell L. Willkie—This short subject drew extra business for us on account of Willkie and he is very good. The recording is terrible as on all the shorts in this series. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park and Ritz Theatres, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

MR. DUCK STEPS OUT: Walt Disney Cartoons—Highly amusing.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PATHE NEWS: As usual very good and timely. Always good here.—F. G. Mills, Director of Motion Pictures, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

PUT PUT TROUBLE: Walt Disney Cartoons—The best Disney this season. A riot of laughs.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SCRAPPILLY MARRIED: Leon Errol Comedies—Okay comedy.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

CLIMBING THE SPIRIT'S HOME: Father Hubbard's Alaskan Adventures—Good. Everyone likes these.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Universal

ANDY PANDA GOES FISHING: Lantz Colored Cartunes—Very funny. A good series.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GOING PLACES: No. 71—Always good.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Vitaphone

EGG COLLECTOR, THE: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SNIFFLES AND THE BOOKWORM: Merrie Melodies—"Sniffles and the Bookworm" have many contests but all is well that ends well. Running time, eight minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

RADIO AND RELATIVES: Vitaphone Varieties—Entertaining one reel comedy. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

REMEMBER WHEN: Broadway Brevities—Excellent old time vaudeville that pleased the older patrons and was a novelty to the younger set. Running time, two reels.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SINGING DUDE: Dennis Morgan—Here is a short that is just about tops. Western locale so play it with something heavy. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

VALLEY, THE: Color Parade—Usual travel talk about Alaska. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WOODY HERMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—An excellent band short but the backs showing the audience were so old they were pitiful. Just such direction and cutting spoils the entire reel. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YOUNG AMERICA FLIES: Broadway Brevities—Any town with an airport or contemplated CAA training will do well to shout this one to the skies. Assembled without the "travelogue" effect this one did nice business here in a community that is just now beginning to feel its wings sprouting. Running time, 18 minutes.—Emory Scott, Theatre, Creston, Iowa. General patronage.

Miscellaneous

MEMORY LINGERS ON: Good one reel showing Fatty Arbuckle, Mable Normand, Ford Sterling, William S. Hart, Keystone Cops, Caruso, Jim Corbett, Jack Johnson, Jack Dempsey, etc. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Koppel Joins Yorke

Mitchell I. Koppel has joined Emerson Yorke, producer of theatrical and informative films, becoming manager of the newly created Industrial Film Division. Mr. Koppel was formerly special representative for Alexander Film Company. The new division will include commercial stop-slide, minute movies and short subjects in both black and white and color.

Union Anniversary

Local 10, Buffalo, International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, held a 50th anniversary party at the Hotel Statler there last week. About 200 attended. Gold membership cards were presented to three charter members who, with 21 other Buffalonians, organized the local in 1890. They are Matthew Henges, Arthur Cronin and John Harris.

Murray Personal Appearance

Ken Murray started a three weeks personal appearance engagement Wednesday at the Paramount theatre, New York. The comedian's latest picture is "A Night at Earl Carroll's," just completed by Paramount.

Irvin Heads Campaign

Warren Irvin, district manager of Palmetto Theatres, with headquarters in Columbia, S. C., has accepted appointment of chairman of the publicity committee for the 1940 Community Chest campaign in that city.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

JOB INSURANCE

In one fashion or another over the years, this page has pointed out the actual boxoffice returns accruing to the manager from personal publicity received through his contributions to the Round Table. Highly placed industry heads have said as much, and more. Added support now comes from Charles H. Ryan, assistant to James E. Coston, Warner Chicago Theatres zone manager. To Mr. Ryan, we are indebted for the following, entitled "Job Insurance", taken from the zone's weekly Exploitation Bulletin, edited by the author.

"Many managers unknowingly bury themselves to such an extent that their identity is lost to people in and outside the theatre business. In this business of exhibiting motion pictures to the public, there is a difference between being known and being forgotten.

"When you formulate any ideas, new systems, exploitation suggestions or anything that may be conveyed to another theatre manager, you are selling yourself not only to your fellow workers, to your employees, but to executives in your own Company and in other organizations which are potential employers for the future.

"Keep in mind that whenever you are selling your theatre to your patrons that you are also selling yourself for advancement. The manager who permits his identification with successful endeavor to be slighted or ignored is in need of Job Insurance.

"In this business of operating a theatre, advertising is a career. Whenever you accomplish any idea in this business, do not keep it to yourself. Let the world know about it. This is the reason why your superiors consistently urge you to send in worthwhile ideas in your campaigns, so that they can be picked up by the other managers and the various trade papers.

"In blowing your own horn, you are selling seats for your theatre."

With the first all-star benefit game already on the horizon, the business of football hookups hits the screen. That would be uppermost in Round Tablers' plans, according to evidence already on hand from the field. Bill Yeakle, of Danville, Ky., bows in with the first pigskin promotion. It's a printed schedule giveaway of the local college and high school games with "compliments of the Kentucky and State Theatres" set up where it can't be missed.

The realignment of operation, now announced by J. Myer and Louis W. Schine, again allows us the privilege of congratulating Round Tablers going up, as, with Lou Lazar, Gus Lampe and Frank Boucher now head the circuit's divisions in the field.

They have long been known to the members through individual accomplishment, through close cooperation given their forces in doing a job of boxoffice. Each has stopped long enough at the rungs of the ladder to learn the intricacies of exhibition, to come adequately equipped for the tasks that lie ahead.

"IT'S NOT WHERE—IT'S WHAT"

Over in Bergen County, New Jersey, Skouras-men Max Cooper, Norman Gluck and Pop Stahl found out that Jimmy Lydon, an RKO Radio starlet, is a local boy. So the three day-and-date "Two Thoroughbreds" in which the lad makes his first feature appearance, promote the local mayors for a "Lydon Day", round up the youngster's family for "personals" and break a lot of hot publicity in the dailies. The campaign turns just another date into a boxoffice winner. On top of that, Cooper books "Tom Brown" in which the boy again appears, and does it all over.

Out on the edge of Vancouver, B. C., at the Famous Players Canadian subsequent-run Windsor, Larry New persuades Anna Neagle to make the theatre for a "personal" in conjunction with the star's "Irene". Miss Neagle plugs the date on the radio, the papers go for the occasion, the house is packed and traffic is shot for blocks around. Immediately after, Larry books "Nurse Edith Cavell" and cleans up again.

Elsewhere in this section is set forth in detail what the boys did to win the spotlight. To the discerning, the stories also tell that New Jersey or British Columbia, first-run or subsequent, have little enough to do with it. As always, "it's not where you are; it's what you've got". The man who keeps busy putting over his shows has little time to wonder whether or not he is in the right spot to put them over.

Stage coach, cowhands a-horse, and mounted 24-sheet on truck, covered Los Angeles and Hollywood in advance of "When the Daltons Rode," as reported by Lincoln Quarberg, of Universal, on the showing at the Hollywood Pantages and RKO Hillstreet.

Colored enlargement of Osa Johnson in action, shots of fighting wild animals, and montage of scene stills from the picture, plus a lot of standout "see" copy, made up the attractive front for "I Married Adventure," at the Earle, Washington, by Frank La Falce, Warner zone ad and publicity head.

For "Turnabout," at Loew's Valentine, Toledo, Wally Caldwell employed a squad of college boys to make the downtown area, carrying letters of title and theatre, as noted. Other letters on the boys' chests spelt out "for laughs."

Round Table In Pictures

Gag horse display (below) used by Barnes Perdue, for "Buck Benny" at the Ritz, Chillicothe, Mo., was made from flour barrel, two by two's, compo board and piece of rope for tail, the latter animated by small motor inside barrel. Shot of the stunt to Jack Benny was autographed by the star.

Traffic-stopper reported by Carl Rogers for "Boom Town" at Loew's, Harrisburg, Pa., proved to be the live signboard as illustrated below, of lettering on girls' legs. In addition, girl in center carried theatre and date on reverse side of leg.

Skouras-men Join To Plug Local Boy

Since Bergenfield, New Jersey, is the home town of Jimmy Lydon, RKO Radio starlet, his first feature appearance, in "Two Thoroughbreds," was seized upon for a special celebration at the three Skouras theatres in the county where for the occasion the picture was played day and date. Cooperating with Max Cooper, at the Pascack, Westwood, who reports the campaign, were Norman Gluck, at the Teaneck, in Teaneck, and Pop Stahl, at the Palace, in Bergenfield.

Entitled "Jimmy Lydon Day" the event was featured with personal wires from the local boy in Hollywood to the mayors of the three communities, inviting them to the theatres as his guests, the telegram expressing the starlet's thanks for the honor accorded him. Among other top promotions set in motion by the theatremen was a freckles contest in each of the houses, the judges including Lydon's two brothers, who also made personal appearances in talks about the talented younger brother. The campaign advance was fully covered by the county papers, publicity featuring a three-day by-line in the Evening Record of the starlet's biography.

In all, the promotion counted strongly for extra business on the date at the three theatres, with Cooper capitalizing on the momentum further with an added "day" honoring the star in conjunction with his role in "Tom Brown's Schooldays" at the Pascack, which was played shortly after.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Local Angle Stressed On "Seventeen" Date

Since a local girl was chosen as winner in the "Miss Seventeen" contest held recently by Roy Slentz, manager, and Ev Olsen, publicist at the Gopher, in Minneapolis, Minn., for that date at the Gopher Theatre, much was made over the date with a special campaign directed to the high schools and colleges by designating week of showing as "Date Week" for students. Individual schools were recognized on special nights, each school contacted to insure full participation on the part of the student bodies.

Opening was highlight of the campaign with local girl who had gone to the Paramount Studios as winner, making a personal appearance on stage during which time she was interviewed by commentator from WCCO. Wire was received from Jackie Cooper and the girl was presented with large floral bouquets.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

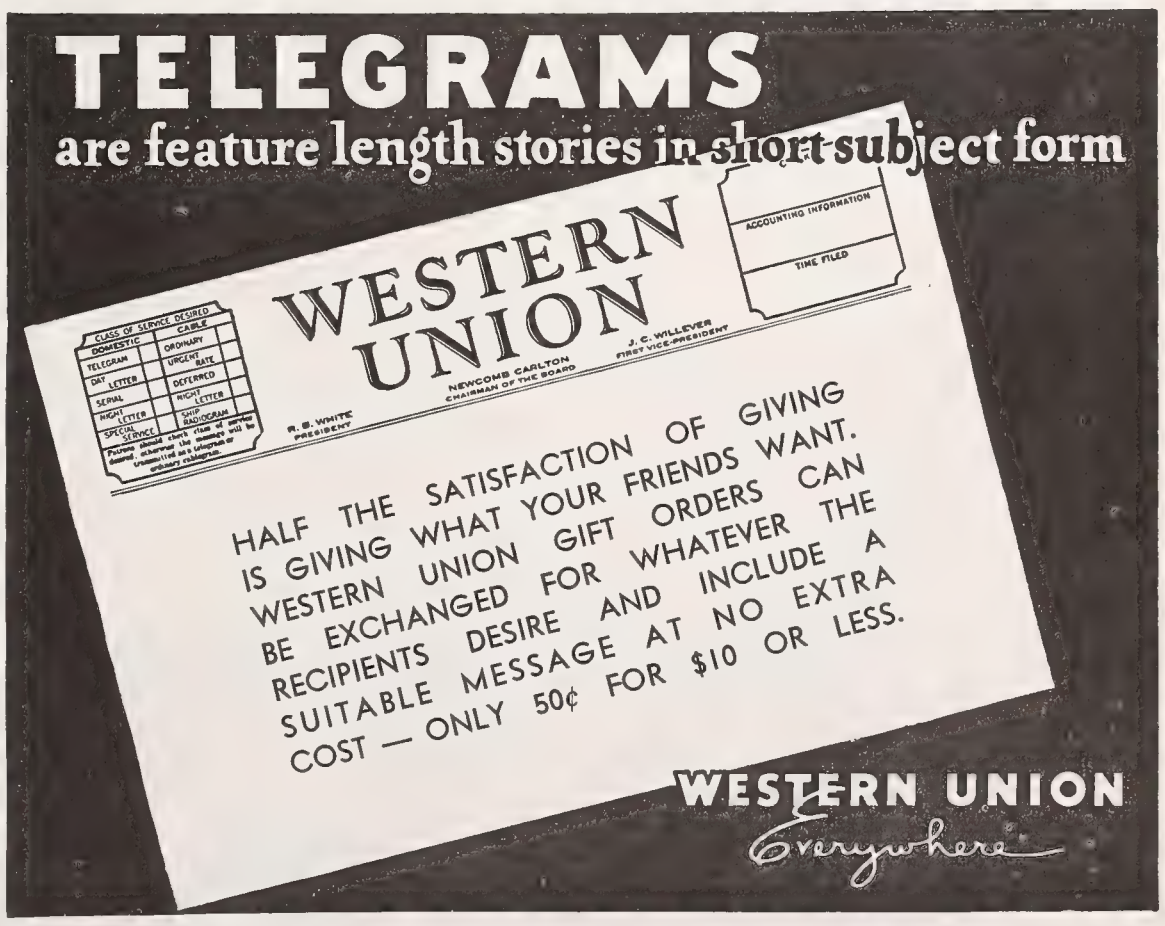
Twedt's Store Herald

Effective is the tieup arranged by Doc Twedt at the Lido Theatre, in Manly, Ia., whereby leading department store distributes 1,000 special heralds each week to customers in the outlying districts. Center of herald carries small box with title of Twedt's current attraction and also the jumbled letters of some patron's name. Folks are requested to read the herald carefully and if they spot their name listed in the box to report to the theatre for tickets to the current show.

Kalberer to Sell New Show Season With "Back to the Movies" Promotion

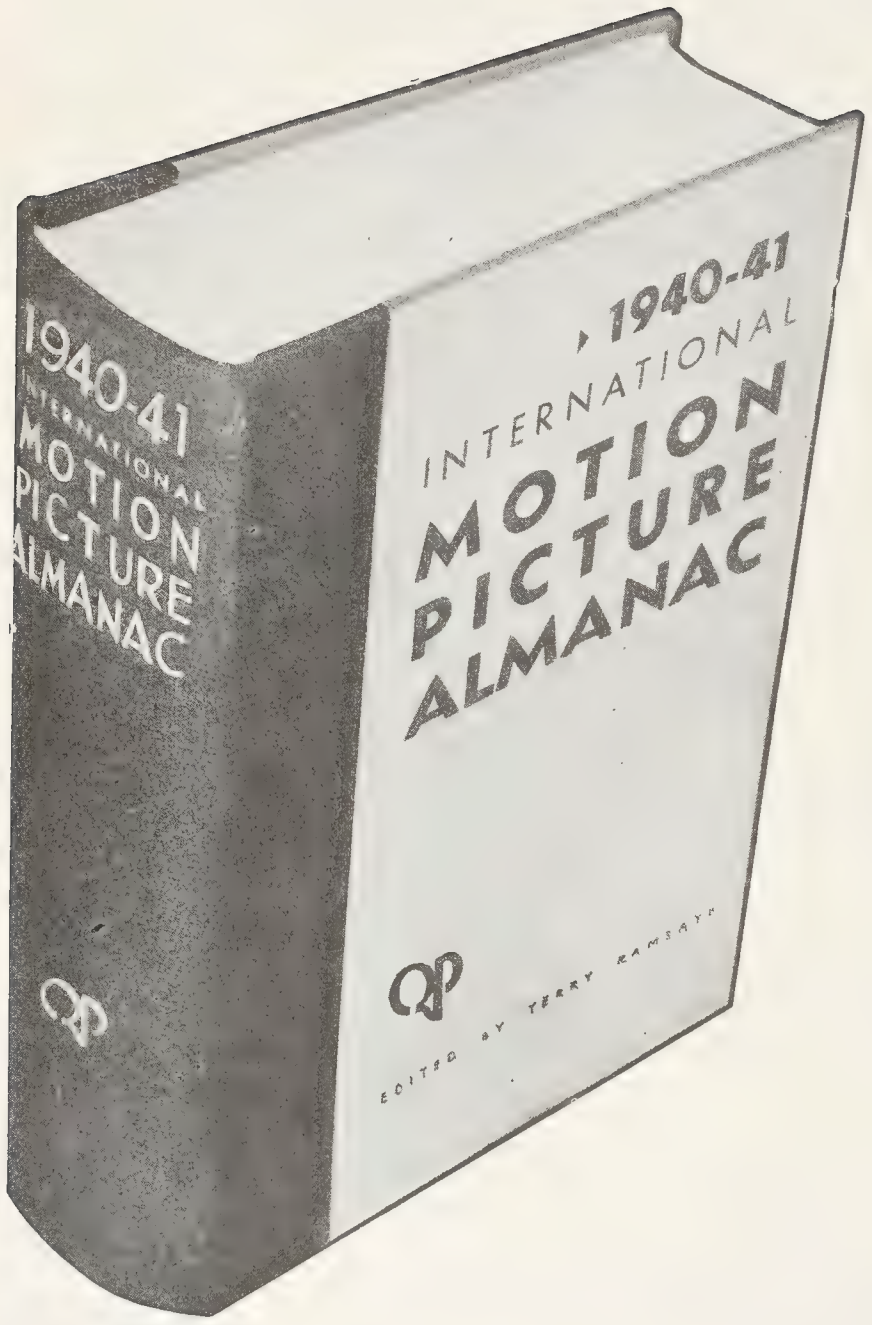
Previously executed as independent ventures, the Greater Movie Season campaign put on by Kal Kalberer for the Indiana, in Washington, Ind., and the Back-to-School promotion sponsored by his local paper are being combined currently by theatreman and daily under the title, "Back to School—and Back to the Movies". Thus, the publicity and merchant tieins usually split between the two are to be concentrated in one giant drive for mutual benefit. It is planned to have the paper make up cuts and slugs of the new slogan to be placed in all campaign and cooperative advertising.

Featuring the promotion is to be a proclamation from the Mayor to emphasize that readin', 'ritin', 'rithmetic and entertainment should go hand in hand now to bring happiness and contentment dispelled by the war hysteria. The daily will further the cause with editorials, picture publicity and art.



The main merchant co-op project is to be a "New Movie Treasure Hunt" in which 25 to 30 merchants are being invited to participate with ads and window displays. In each contest window, a still of a star or stars of one of the early new season bookings will be displayed prominently, mounted uniformly on printed cards carrying contest and theatre copy. Readers will be advised of the pictures to come in a comprehensive list carried in the newspaper stories on the contest. The contest will require that the star stills in the windows be coupled with the title of the picture in which the star is to appear, plus mention of the merchant's window in which each still was found. Contestants, in addition, will be asked to write a 50-word opinion of which of the new season pictures they feel will be the most outstanding, and why.

Winners will be judged according to promptness, neatness and correctness of answers, plus quality of essay, prizes to be cash and merchandise from merchants or Chamber of Commerce. Guest tickets will also be offered.



Breakfast Campaign Clicks On "Stayed for Breakfast"

The morning meal was given a bit of spotlighting by Francis Deverter, publicist, and Ed. Rosenbaum, Columbia exploiteer, to sell "He Stayed for Breakfast" at the Colonial, Harrisburg, Pa., the campaign built around a number of "breakfast" ideas, such as a perfect breakfast menu contest planted with the local Telegraph. Winners were guests of the Penn Harris hotel for breakfast and of the theatre for the showing.

On opening day, breakfasts were delivered to the newspaper critics, the food accompanied by a loaf of Hollywood bread, with appropriate tiein copy. Street stunt had a man dressed as chef carrying tray of food and "I'm on my way" banner. Out front, the theatremen rigged up a breakfast table with complete dishes and service. Seated was a man in tails and top hat. Card on table read, "Another satisfied customer. He stayed for breakfast."

WARNER-MEN REPORT CURRENT ACTIVITIES

Round Tablers in Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh Zones Effect Smart Tieins

Radio listeners in Reading, Pa., tuning in to the twice-daily weather broadcasts, hear the following announcement that ends the report, and promoted by Lester Stallman, on behalf of the excellent cooling plant at the Astor Theatre.

"Don't stay home and suffer with the heat. Come down to the theatre and enjoy perfect air-conditioned comfort. It may be hot again tomorrow but the temperature is never above 74 degrees at the Astor."

In front of the boxoffice, Stallman carried a changeable chart showing the temperature in the street and in the theatre. With this was displayed a thermometer which because of its position always marked a reading higher than that of the weather bureau. Under the official weather statistics in the dailies, Lester ran a box to the effect that no matter how the nation sizzled, it was always comfortable at the theatre.

Other inducements offered patrons the privilege of enjoying themselves at the theatre as long as they pleased, and on excessively hot days, notices were carried out front inviting passersby to cool off in the lobby. It was noted that many who accepted afterwards bought tickets to see the show.

Seaman Stages Kid Picnic

A kiddie picnic,promoted by David Seaman and his assistant, Jack Fields, of the Forum, Forum, Philadelphia, as an extra selling buildup for the theatre activities, was held at a nearby amusement park during the week. In addition to the various refreshments and amusement obtained by the manager, was an exhibition ball game between the theatre team and another local outfit. Since coupons good for the picnic were available only for the youngsters who had attended the two previous Saturday matinees, the theatre benefited directly by two healthy houses as a result besides added regular kid patronage expected as a result of the promotion. An extra highlight which also brought attention to Seaman's date for "Biscuit Eater" was a giveaway of a prize puppy obtained from Ken-L-Ration.

Goldenberg Offers Star Shots

Another standout stunt in the Philadelphia zone was a camera idea worked by Marty Goldenberg for "Andy Hardy" at the State. Mounting two life-sized cutouts of Rooney and Garland in the lobby, Marty rigged up a batch of stage olivettes, of some 4000 watts, to light up the cutouts. Via trailer, lobby cards, and newspaper ads, the theatreman announced that patrons could have their own pictures taken with the stars by bringing their own cameras with the theatre supplying the "studio lights." The gag went over very well, with Goldenberg adding to the effectiveness with camera store tieins and with drug stores selling camera supplies.

For the Earle, in Washington, D. C., Frank La Falce, zone ad head, worked out a three-week radio tiein with WMAL on "Ghost Breakers," on a scrambled word contest, with prizes given to those turning in the greatest list of bona fide words from the letters in the words "The Earle—Bob Hope." Tied to a popular daily program, the contest was sold strongly for two weeks with the picture strongly plugged. Winners were announced during the week of the picture's run, with the theatre giving cash and guest tickets as prizes. A one-frame trailer was also run as a plug for the program.

La Falce Ties to Cotton Week

With his assistant, Bill Ewing, La Falce celebrated National Cotton Week with the cooperation of the Daily News and leading local stores. The latest cotton fashions were displayed in the Earle lobby, and as a part of the stage show, the chorus line wore new cotton styles supplied by the cooperating stores. The overture was tied in with a medley of southern tunes under the title of "Cotton Week."

The paper came in with a full-page promotional ad to advertise an eight-page section for the "week," the special carrying a page-one layout of Warner stars in cotton fashions, the inside pages including layouts of the theatre stage show. The daily also arranged for a full display in the telephone company's downtown windows, the exhibit containing life-sized cutouts of the stars in the cotton styles. Cooperating stores were represented with full-page co-op ads in the special section, all carrying slug cuts for the theatre.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Paper Eliminates Column On Kenney Promotion

As his first contribution to these pages, Manager Raymond J. Kenney, Warners' Cosmo, Chicago, reports an unusual newspaper tiein for "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," tieing the picture's "fifth column" aspects with the actual fifth column of the neighborhood paper. Kenney persuaded the editor to leave blank for one issue the fifth column of the front page, with copy in center explaining that the fifth column was eliminated during the "fifth column" expose of the picture, on request of the theatreman.

In exchange, Kenney worked a contest idea with the paper on the picture for further prominent position, giving guest tickets as prizes.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Lamm's "Orchid" Contest

Highlight of Louie Lamm's "Brother Orchid" campaign at the Warner Palace, in Lorain, Ohio, was a missing word contest used in local daily. Partial quotations by Edward G. Robinson from the picture were run in cooperating newspaper, guest tickets going to those filling in the correct words which were to be found in the want ads. In addition, leading beauty salon featured an Ann Southern coiffure which was advertised by them in papers and windows.

Girls in Sarongs Invited to "Pago"

Memphis women with a yen to costume themselves in sarongs were allowed the privilege in the campaign put on for "South of Pago Pago" at Loew's Palace, when Manager R. M. Kilgore invited local girls dressed in the South Seas fashion to be guests of the theatre. Notice to the effect was run in a box atop the day ahead ad with further note that six of the saronged were also to be guests at premiere of Del Courtney's band at the local Hotel Claridge.

To insure success of the stunt, Kilgore engaegd six professional dancers to appear in costume out front on opening day for pictures arranged with the papers. The same six were scheduled to be the bandsman's guests and to do a tropic number to music of the picture at the hotel. For street bally, the manager picked up the girls, in costume, on morning of the opening, and dropped each one at a different downtown point with instructions to walk from there to the theatre. In case there were other girls to accept the theatre offer, it was planned to include them at the hotel party. According to Bob, some 16, in costume, showed up during the first matinee.

Public Invited to Pose

For a second street stunt, figures of native man and woman, minus heads, were made up by the house artist, and passersby invited to pose behind the cutouts, placing their heads in the cutout portion above the shoulders. Photos were taken with admissions given those who could identify themselves among the snaps posted in the lobby. This was followed by a "Pago Pago" water carnival at a nearby popular lake resort, over the resort's p. a. system, and advertised heavily in advance with heralds, posters all over the grounds, with the picture emphasized in all the publicity.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Smith Ties "Daltons" Period to Hot Springs History

Comprehensive newspaper publicity for his date on "When the Daltons Rode" at the Paramount, Hot Springs, was obtained by W-Clyde Smith, Malco city manager, by a series of feature articles on events in local history during the period of the bandits' reign in that sector. Each of the articles was illustrated by a photo of the community in the time of the picture, which had some bearing on the activities of the robber band. For emphasis, the photos were headed by the title of the picture for a closer tiein. In addition, Smith promoted further copy on a local resident who produced the first film record of the outlaw gang in Hot Springs back in 1910.

For ballyhoo purposes, Clyde dressed four of the house staff in outlaw costumes, mounted them on bannered horses to make the business section. The boys put on a phony bank stickup and other traffic-stoppers to call attention to the date. Hookup with the city bus system was promoted with cards on all vehicles, copy comparing the slow and expensive transportation available "when the Daltons rode" with present facilities.

Star "In Person" Aids Second-Run

Discovering that Anna Neagle was in nearby Victoria on her way to Vancouver, B. C., on behalf of the Canadian drive for war funds, and that her visit would coincide with his subsequent-run of "Irene" at the Windsor, Larry New wired to ask if Miss Neagle would consent to stop at the theatre, to let the working people in his district "have a look at her offscreen." The star not only accepted the invitation but in a radio interview in advance told all the folks about it. As a further buildup, New promoted plugs for the occasion over another top station. The rest of campaign was "whisper."

The result was a capacity house within a few minutes of opening, and by the time the manager arrived with the star, there was a crowd of 2,000 outside that tied up traffic for blocks. The appearance proved a box-office bonanza, and according to Larry, did a lot to build the theatre's prestige since the dailies went heavily for the event with stories and photos. Expense was limited to the cost of the wire to the star and a bouquet of flowers.

To capitalize on the "personal," New immediately booked in "Nurse Edith Cavell" which had yet to play his house, topping his campaign with special advertising drawing attention to Miss Neagle's recent visit.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Telephone Stunt Clicks for May

Reported as pleasing to his patrons is Ed May's telephone stunt used at Schine's Paris, in Paris, Ky., whereby his cashier calls 30 telephone subscribers daily, asking them to give the correct titles of the two current attractions. If the correct answer is given, guest tickets are awarded; if not, it is suggested to the prospective patron that he watch the theatre's ads so that they may be informed and ready with a correct reply next time they are called.

For his date on "House of Seven Gables," May promoted a costume, one side of which was a devil and the other a skeleton which theatre attache donned.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Mitchell Reports Recent Activities

Promoting a supply of dates from his local grocer, John L. Mitchell for run of "It's a Date" at the Genesee Theatre, in Waukegan, Ill., enclosed pieces of the fruit in small imprinted envelopes with copy reading: "Yes, it's a date. But you will want to bring your own favorite date to see Deanna Durbin in" etc., etc. This was followed by title, cast and playdates and distributed broadcast few days ahead.

For his street bally on "Lillian Russell," Mitchell dressed one of his ushers and girl in Gay Nineties attire and had them ride a bannered tandem bicycle around town week before the opening. While for "Typhoon" a full co-op page was promoted from leading insurance men in town, banner line across top reading "A typhoon is headed for Waukegan, are you protected by tornado, wind and fire insurance?"

As is set forth in the head above, just two more Fortnight periods remain before the judging takes place for the Third Quarter-Master Plaques, Medals and Citations. Entrants not yet in the top brackets have time to redouble their efforts, since more than a month of the Quarter remains. The availability of the bigger pictures already released for the new season is emphasized for the benefit of entrants looking for Awards ammunition.

LATE NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENTS

(Above) A 75 lines on 2 columns, for "McGinty" at the New York Paramount, and a similar size for "Love You Again" at the New York Capitol (below), are discussed together to point out representative type treatments and copy layout used by these houses in an endeavor to identify the situations quickly in the minds of newspaper readers. The Paramount uses a lot of benday for background and lettering; the Capitol stresses block capitals and lighter face lower case, as illustrated.

(Right) To initiate the Greater Movie Season programs at the Springfield, Ohio, units of the Chakeres-Warner circuit, attractions at the five houses were grouped in an 185 lines, full, as emphasized here and reported by Hank Harold, adman. Though the "drive" was spotted by slogan-slug and circle at top, film strip and star cut illustration at left, and type panel below, to hold the whole together, the institutional copy was not allowed to subordinate the individual attractions, as noted.

(Right) Of the two campaigns offered by 20th Century-Fox, for "The Man I Married", the New Orleans Saenger, selected the anti-Nazi theme, as against the romance and wife problem copy, chosen otherwise. Of interest, is the fact that there has been little or no difference in comparative grosses where the different campaigns were used, according to Rodney Bush, 20th Century-Fox publicity and exploitation manager. Size of above layout: 165 lines on 3 columns.

Productions are listed under distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed as "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) indicates the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title denotes first appearance.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed. Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

Good Advertising

WILL FILL THOSE EMPTY SEATS

And...the BIG 3 in Theatre Advertising is GOOD advertising. It doesn't oversell . . . it doesn't undersell...it gives them just enough to make them want to see more. It excites their curiosity and makes them feel that what you have to sell is worth more to them than the price of admission! That's why they are the first Seat-Sellers in the Business.
